The statement claimed that Mrs. Evans was in a state of deep depression after repeated quarrels with her husband, and had once attempted suicide by gassing herself in her apartment above the Christies.

Christie said he frustrated that attempt, but that Mrs. Evans later boasted that "no help for me through with it." He described going to her apartment and lying on a quilt beside the gas fire with her. Mrs. Christie was downstairs at the time.

"She said she would do anything if I would help her. I think she was referring to letting me be intimate with her."

Two tries at intercourse failed because Christie had a back ailment, the statement said.

"I think that is when I strangled her. I think it was a stocking I found in the room."

Christie said he eventually gave Mrs. Evans whiffs of gas from a hose fixed to the fire. When she became unconscious he strangled her and dragged her body.

Husband Returned

"She (Mrs. Christie) didn't know anything about it. Evans came home in the evening about six o'clock. It was dark when I heard my wife leave. I went to my kitchen door and called.

"I spoke to him in the passage and told him that his wife had committed suicide, that she had gassed herself.

"We went into the kitchen and Evans touched his wife's hand, then picked her up and carried her into the bedroom and put her on the bed. There were no lights on in the kitchen or the bedroom."

Christie said that in that darkened chamber, with the body of Mrs. Evans lying beside them, he suggested to Evans that he (Evans) would be blamed for his wife's death because he was known to have quarrelled with her.

"He seemed to think the same. He said he would bring the van (truck) down that he was driving and take her away and leave her somewhere.

"On the following Friday Evans sold his furniture and after my wife had given him power-of-attorney he left saying he was going to Bristol.

"At that time I was under the impression that he had taken his wife away in the van. I can't recollect seeing the baby there."

Christie went on to relate how police came to his house following the arrest of Evans (he was picked up in Wales) and his confession that "he had put his wife down the drain."

After the statement had been read, a police witness said that Evans originally also was charged with the murder of his wife, but the charge was not proceeded with for "obvious reasons." The reasons were that he had already been sentenced to hang for the killing of his daughter.

Was Reserve Policeman

In the statement on the Foerst woman, Christie said he struck up an acquaintance with her in a tiny slum cafeteria in 1943 while he was taunting a man accused of theft. He was then a reserve policeman. His wife was away.

The statement said "she undressed and wanted me to have intercourse with her. . . . While having intercourse I strangled her with a piece of rope. She was completely naked. . . . I took her from the bedroom into the kitchen and put her under the floorboards."

The statement said he later buried her in the garden grave.

Months later, he inadvertently dug up her skull while puttering around the garden, and tossed the skull into an ashcan which he used as an incinerator.

The Eady girl's prelude to death included several trips to the movies with Christie, the statement said. It continued: "On one occasion she came alone and I believe she was complaining about her breathing."

Gassed Girl

The alleged confession said he mixed her an inhalant potion to cure her colds and rigged up a breathing apparatus but, instead he piped coal gas into the makeshift inhaling tent.

"She became sort of unconscious and I have a dim recollection of getting a stocking and tying it around her neck. I am not too clear about this and am a little confused. It might have been the Austrian girl I used the gas on. I believe I had intercourse with her at the time I strangled her."

The statement said Christie put the Eady body in his washhouse and buried it in his garden the next day.

Although Christie is facing a murder charge only in the death of his wife, he has already been accused of garroting three more playgirls whose decayed corpses were found walled up in the murder house.

Thirty-two persons, many of whom had waited all night outside the famed Old Bailey court, leaned forward in their seats when the dramatic statement was read.

A few minutes before they saw Christie step briskly into the oak-panelled dock, glassed in on three sides, and make a deep bow to the judge.

RAWDON

Special Masonic Service Held As Part of Rawdon Centennial

By MRS. PERCY MACMULLEN

RAWDON. — On Sunday morning, 80 members of Stirling Lodge No. 69, A.F. & A.M., and visiting brethren attended the Annual Masonic service at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling.

Rev. A. E. Baker, pastor of St. Paul's, presided over the service. Mr. George Carlisle welcomed officers and members of the lodge and visitors on this historic occasion in Centennial Year.

The pastor, Rev. A. E. Baker, gave a very thought-provoking and challenging message with the Masonic brethren specially in mind on the theme "The Superlative Degree".

Treatise on Masonry

He said all good public libraries contained a treatise on Masonry and its high ideals. Free Masonry is the oldest secret organization in the world and in the 13th century A.D., there were groups in England, who had three degrees.

In 1717 modern Masonry was accepted but even this dates to a century earlier but the records have been lost of these earlier meetings.

The three primary degrees are set forth and today there are several other degrees.

A Mason must believe in the Christian church, in the sacred laws of morality and must recognize civil authority.

Masonry is for free-born peoples but Christianity lays down no barriers for even slaves can become Christians.

Not a Substitute

Masonry is not a substitute for the church but rather it should go hand-in-hand with the church, and the treatise emphatically states that all Masons should work honestly on week days and worship God on holy days.

The speaker urged each person in the audience to polish and furnish their minds with worthwhile thoughts in order to become useful members of society.

Master Masons are duty-bound to improve the morals, and correct the habits of their members.

The "Superlative Degree" emphasizes fraternal love, it also emphasizes "courage". Men should be willing to dare for the right regardless of the consequences. The speaker gave illustrations to prove that courage is needed in 1953 the same as has been down through the ages.

There has been almost fifty years of Masonry in Stirling and there is still work to be done, if you choose to serve your fellowmen to the utmost.

Pleads For Action

The speaker pleaded for action and service and the thought of setting a better example to the young people of this generation. We need more people like Winston Churchill who are willing to give themselves. In this day and age so many are unwilling to give an honest day's work.

Mr. Baker closed his inspirational and educational message with a plea for the underprivileged, children, need of Christian training; medical health if services in the public schools and becomed the public and private neglect of the growing generation. He vehemently denounced the everyday evils that are so rampant especially alcoholic beverages and the neglect of home life.

The speaker closed his timely address with the gospel words "Blessed is the man who walks not with the ungodly but who delights in the way of the Lord."

On Sunday, June 28, Judge Mott, Toronto, will address St. Paul's Missionary Auxiliary and Women's Association at a Rawdon Centennial service.

The last of the Hunter mission was held Sunday evening at St. Paul's with South Hastings' Young People as special guests.

'Roads to Life' Subject of Sermon At Hunter Mission

RAWDON. — On Friday evening at St. Paul's United Church Rev. G. C. Hunter spoke briefly on the theme "The Roads That Never Close".

He said there were four roads to the Christian life, and he gave illustrations and quotations to further explain the way of these four roads and quoted Martin Luther, John Wesley, William Booth, D. L. Moody, and other men of note and Rev. Mr. Hunter also gave a wealth of Bible passages.

The four roads were to Damascus, to Jerusalem, to Jericho and the road to Ammas.

The Protestant faith was born in order that all people would have freedom, Mr. Hunter quoted various excuses used by Sunday School teachers and dwelt on the age old query "Why isn't the Church strong?"

He said the road of Christian service is an opportunity to give yourself. He closed his message with examples of people who have surmounted various difficulties and who have proved that Christian roads never close.

Marvin Shewen

Rev. Mr. Hunter then showed two reels of colored moving pictures of "The Caribou Trail". These are amateur pictures, taken by himself and other missionaries while serving in the central part of British Columbia where the United Church has its largest mission field in the Dominion of Canada.

The pictures have been prepared under the direction of the Missionary Education Department of the United Church.

Final Meeting

The final cottage prayer service held the week previous to the Hunter Mission was at the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bush.

Mr. George Carlisle, clerk of the session presided and Rev. A. E. Baker gave the special preparatory address. Mrs. Ross Holland read the lesson and Mrs. Clifford Lanning offered prayer.

Visiting Ministers Hear Sermon At Hunter Mission

RAWDON.—Six visiting ministers in addition to Rev. A. E. Baker, pastor of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, heard Rev. Gordon Crosley Hunter preach the Thursday evening sermon of the Hunter Mission at St. Paul's.

Visiting ministers were, Rev. Duncan McTavish, Bridge Street, and Rev. J. W. Platt, Belleville; Rev. H. Giffin, Foxboro; Rev. R. McEachern, Frankford; Rev. R. R. Bonstead, Rawdon circuit and Rev. W. S. Hall, Stirling.

Rev. Mr. Hunter based his message on the theme "The Grace That Never Ends". He opened with a narrative "Saved by Faith" and pointed out that one's mind never gets tired so long as he or she is heartily grateful for the privilege of living.

Secret of Growth

The secret of new growth and vitality in the United Church across Canada is in the growing satisfaction of people who are privileged to serve their church. Those people who live under a sense of privilege and thankfulness are those who get the most out of living. This is aptly portrayed in the Book of Psalms where thankfulness prevails.

Canada has a worldwide reputation for its great citizenship and its willingness to assist other countries who are in need. Our privileges in Canada have been bought with the blood of others and our freedom should not be classed as "our rights" but rather "our privileges".

Every day of our lives is a gift of God's grace and the world we live in, our food, our clothes, and our everyday necessities.

Only Privileges

Rev. Mr. Hunter said there were no rights in true family life, here both father and mother share and it is a privilege for dad to earn money to support his family and for mother to give the children loving care.

Christ said, "Ye have not chosen Me but I have chosen you"—and it is a great privilege to be chosen for the Christian life and we should always remember that Christ chose the twelve disciples despite their unworthiness.

The speaker quoted scriptural passages on "Faith", and gave his audiences many instances to prove that everything about our Canadian way of life is a heritage and that church work is not obligatory.

Rev. Duncan McTavish closed this meeting with a prayer which tied all of Rev. Mr. Hunter's address together with the thought: —"Do you? Do I? live every day with a sense of privilege."

Foil Kidnap Attempt in Vienna

Three Russian civilians attempted to kidnap a Czech, identified only as Lukas, from his apartment in the American sector of Vienna. Two squad cars of the "international patrol" answered the call for help from the Austrian authorities. The British, French and American patrolmen arrested the Russians and put them in the back seat of one of the patrol cars. Then the Russian member of the four-power patrol jumped into the driver's seat and planned to drive off. Realizing at last U.S. patrolmen had been arrested, the wheel and forced the car to collide with the other patrol car. In the photo at left, a huge crowd assembles at the scene of the kidnapping attempt. The patrol cars are shown here after the collision with the U.S. military patrolman explains to his superiors how the Russian patrolman tried to drive off. Soviet officials have since effected the release of the three alleged Soviet kidnappers.

REPORT CANADA NONE TOO HAPPY OVER FOOD GIFTS

No Protest Made Yet On Food Surplus Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is "none too happy" about United States proposals to give surplus foodstuffs away to needy countries, an external affairs official said today.

However, he added, "there has been no official protest to Washington—as yet."

Several bills are under study in the Congress under which the U.S. would give away between $1,000,000,000 and $2,000,000,000 worth of surplus agricultural products, but none has been approved.

"We find none of them attractive to us," the official said.

Canada, the American proposals are to give importing countries the chance to get free American foodstuffs as a supplement to their normal purchases.

However, we fear here and in other food exporting countries is that no one will be able to determine with certainty the level of "normal" purchases by importing countries.

This may lead to widespread reluctance by importing countries to buy foodstuffs from any country if there is the chance of getting them free from the U.S. larder.

A drastic reduction in exports from Canada and other agricultural countries may result causing depression among the growing New Zealand, which leans heavily on its food exports for its prosperity, has protested already to Washington.

Repulse Chinese Red Drive As Third Year of War Ends

Pilot Takes Off From Highway At Bowmanville

BOWMANVILLE (CP)—A pilot brought his small plane down on a field in an emergency landing Tuesday, then lifted his empty fuel tanks and took off on a busy highway while cars were lined up for miles.

The operation, directed by police, took two hours.

Daniel Sicard and Fruend Louis, both of Montreal, were flying to Toronto when they were forced down in a field near No. 2 highway, two miles east of here.

Police were called and decided on the highway take-off. A tractor was used to haul the plane to the 22-foot-wide roadway.

The oldest, a 32-foot wingspread, cleared a heavy hydro wire by inches as it climbed into the air. Bowmanville is 19 miles east of Oshawa.

Canadian Pilot Killed in Crash In Lincolnshire

LONDON (CP) — A Canadian pilot was killed when his Sabre jet fighter plunged deep into a Lincolnshire bean field, the RCAF disclosed today.

Name of the victim has not been announced here pending notification of next of kin.

Officials said the crash occurred Tuesday during a formation flight from No. 1 fighter wing, North Luffenham, England. The crashed plane was missed after the formation had emerged from clouds and the wreckage was recovered near Boston, Lincs., where it had dug deep for a field, damaging two nearby cottages.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Pleasant summer weather will continue across the province today with temperatures ranging from 56 to 70 in northern Ontario to 70 in the north country.

A storm which developed in Wyoming on Monday moved northeastward and is expected to reach Northern Ontario by Thursday. Cloudy skies and thunder storms in advance of a flow of warm air from the south occurred across central United States during the night. This weather will spread across Ontario tonight and Thursday. Temperatures in southern regions will reach the high 16s Thursday. Little change in temperature is expected in the northern regions.

SEOUL (AP)—U. S. and South Korean infantry hurled back Chinese attacking in division strength and Sabre jets bagged six Red MiGs today at the close of war in Korea drew to a close.

The war goes into its fourth year Thursday.

The 8th army said Chinese regiments which attacked Allied hill positions in central Korea's Iron Triangle had suffered more than mid-afternoon except in one small sector.

Infantry of the U. S. 3rd division and South Korean units buried back 3,000 Reds in a night-long battle for Boomerang ridge.

A U. S. Army spokesman said the Red attack on Sniper ridge began shortly after midnight and carried into South Korean trenches at some points. Dense fog helped to screen the attacks. But reinforcements were rushed to the front and before noon the Reds were in retreat. No more than a single Communist platoon remained in the area, the army said, the spokesman said.

The only casualty report came from Boomerang ridge where U.S. troops estimated they killed and wounded more than 700 Reds.

Allied fighter-bombers took off to bomb and strafe the attacking Reds in the area and reported clearing late in the morning.

DROWNS IN SHIP CANAL

HAMILTON (CP) — Alexander MacDonald, 25, of Hamilton, was drowned today in the Burlington ship canal. Although the area was crowded with swimmers, apparently no one saw him slip under the water.

Police said he was in the water about 25 minutes before firemen were called. They recovered the body.

Britain Has Moved from Bankruptcy To Solvency in 20 Months—Churchill

ABINGDON, England (Reuters) — Prime Minister Churchill said today Britain has moved from "bankruptcy to solvency" in 20 months under his administration and is striving for independence from U. S. financial aid.

A new and buoyant spirit pervades the whole nation," he said. "The atmosphere of frustration and disappointment that hung over us two years ago has now given place to one of faith and confidence."

The prime minister made the statement in a message of support for Airey Neave, Conservative party candidate in a parliamentary by-election here next Tuesday.

The by-election was caused by the elevation to the peerage of Conservative member Sir Ralph Assheton and Abingdon seat in the October, 1951, general election by 4,883 votes.

St. Laurent, Drew Trade Shots In Opening Phase of Campaign

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

Political leaders Tuesday night thrust and parried verbally from election platforms. Prime Minister St. Laurent taxed Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, with promising the impossible. In turn, Mr. Drew described Liberal policy for the future as "a yawn."

Meanwhile, from Winnipeg, Stanley Knowles, CCF member for Winnipeg North Centre in the last Commons, made a plea by national radio network for support of his party's national health insurance program on voting day, Aug. 10.

Mr. St. Laurent took a few cuts at Mr. Drew's election manifesto before a Guelph audience. His former promised tax reductions of $500,000,000 and the whole Progressive Conservative platform as "absolutely impossible" to carry out.

Willing to Promise Claims

He indicated clearly that his opinion of Progressive Conservative promises was that they meant higher federal expenditures. That included promises of lower taxes and lower prices, more family security taxes for health and education, contributory health insurance, more money to set fair farm prices, more pay for civil servants and better treatment for veterans, he said.

"So far as I can see, there is nothing the Conservatives are not willing to promise."

Their tax-cut proposals could be carried out by running into a huge deficit, borrowing money to meet it and increasing the national debt. They should say so if that was what they planned.

With a passing slap at the CCF and Social Credit, other major groups in the campaign, Mr. St. Laurent wrote off minister's chances. He said the choice is between his government and the Progressive Conservatives.

Mr. Drew at a meeting in his home riding at Carlton, which includes parts of Ottawa, said Mr. St. Laurent has given no indication of Liberal policy for the future.

Policy Called "Yawn"

The prime minister's keynote speech in Windsor, Ont., Monday "simply tells us that the government policy for the future is expressed in the words: 'As you were.' That was not a policy. It was a yawn."

Mr. St. Laurent's statement that the opposition had been denied no information was surprising, Purdy Crawford, Conservative MP, unanswered questions on the order paper during the last session had been passed by Parliament, but "ignored" by the government.

The government had become the victim of its own propaganda when it could not give a plain factual evidence of waste and inefficiency.

Allies Again Demand End To East Berlin Martial Law

By TOM REEDY

BERLIN (AP)—The Western allies demanded anew today that the Russians lift martial law in East Berlin. They also rejected as unworthy of consideration Communist charges that American officers incited the rioting in Red-ruled East Germany last week.

The new demand came as East German Prime Minister Otto Grotewohl was reported told the Soviet party workers that many German arrests during the rioting are being released but that the "genuinely guilty" will be punished severely.

The British, U. S. and French commandants in Berlin made the demand in a letter to Maj.-Gen. P. T. Dibrova, Red army commander of forces quartered in the East sector to quell the rioting. Dibrova, they said, had charged that a German arrested as a riot leader had been found with American who wore a uniform with two stars. The only two-star general in Berlin is Gen. C. Tinsley Harrison, the U. S. commandant.

Grotewohl's statement was seen as a placating move to a population simmering with resentment still under martial law eight days after long-smouldering discontentment with Red rule exploded into revolution.

Grotewohl spoke to a rally of Socialist Unity (Communist) party workers. He emphasized that the machinery is already in motion for releasing the great numbers of East Germans arrested during the rioting June 17 and in the days following.

Western circles reported as many as 18,000 were jailed in East Berlin alone, and 4,000 in East Berlin prisons. The severe punishment Grotewohl said would be handed out by 27 summary executions by Russian military tribunals pointed once that the East German local courts are considering the same punishment for all.

The East German regime disclosed that Dec. 15 will be the date of subjects to air their grievances in Red-sponsored public discussions. Grotewohl promised social benefits promised by his government, but there was no indication of relief from the extra expense by cutting back government spending for industry and for the fledgling armed forces. The Soviet zone army is estimated at between 125,000 and 175,000.

Grotewohl's statement was seen as a placating move to a population simmering with resentment still under martial law eight days after long-smouldering discontentment with Red rule exploded into revolution.

Soviet troops patrolled the Allied sector boundaries Tuesday and West German traffic was light. Traffic moving. The entire city of Berlin is surrounded by the Soviet occupation zone.

King of Cambodia Warns Country Will Withdraw

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—King Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia has warned that his little Indo-Chinese kingdom will withdraw from the French Union and seek complete independence if the French unless his demands for full independence are granted.

It said:

"We will not consider ourselves members of the French Union unless France grants the full independence of Cambodia, at least in the same status as that of Pakistan with relation to Great Britain."

Cambodia is one of the three French-associated states of Indo-China. The other two are Viet Nam and Laos. France has control of the foreign affairs, defence and much of the internal affairs of all three while Pakistan's chief tie with Britain as a member of the British Commonwealth is allegiance to the British Crown.

Norodom Sihanouk came back into Cambodia Sunday after a week's self-imposed exile in Thailand. His predecessor had threatened abdication, reiterated that he would not return to his capital at Phnom Penh until his demands are met.

Meanwhile, he is staying at Battambang, 150 miles northwest of the capital. This area is an anti-Communist stronghold. He carried entirely by Cambodian troops under the king's command.

Captain of Polish Liner Seeks Asylum in U.K.

LONDON (Reuters)—The master of Communist Poland's crack liner the Batory, has asked for permission to remain in Britain, a home office spokesman said today.

The 14,287-ton Batory—the same ship on which Communist propagandist Gerhardt Eisler escaped from the U. S.—arrived in London from Britain without the captain last Saturday.

The home office spokesman said that after the Batory sailed, Capt. Cwiklinski was traced and detained. He had been asked for permission to remain in Britain.

The spokesman had previously said the 38-year-old chief officer had also failed to sail with the Batory and had been traced and detained. The spokesman said he could make no further statement on the medical officer for the moment.

EXONERATE AVON BLASTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The air force told Congress Tuesday it has carefully tracked the debris from atomic explosions for thousands of miles without finding any connection between those blasts and unusual weather. Col. W. Hightower Foster, chief of the air force office of air conditions around test-blast areas showed that atomic explosions did not even produce local rain storms.

U.S. EMISSARY LIKELY TO REACH SEOUL THURSDAY

Still Hopes He Can Bring Unity on Truce Plans

By ROBERT E. TUCKMAN

SEOUL (AP)—An emissary from Washington arrived in Tokyo today en route to critical talks with Syngman Rhee as the unyielding South Korean president vowed again to fight on alone.

His stand widened the split with his allies.

As the bloody war ended its third year, these developments heightened the tension in Korea:

1. Walter S. Robertson, U.S. assistant secretary of state, carrying a secret note to Rhee from Secretary Dulles, landed in Tokyo and was expected in the South Korean capital Thursday.

2. Rhee served official notice he would boycott the 16-division army from United Nations control if an armistice is signed on present terms.

3. The leader of the anti-Rhee political party, Dr. Cho Pough Fyong Ok, was severely beaten after speaking out against the Korean president's defiant truce stand.

4. The biggest Communist attack in months in South Korea—more than 1,000,000 taking part—was expected to be launched Thursday, second anniversary of the costly war.

Yong Tai Yang, speaker of the RoK National Assembly and as outspoken Rhee supporter, lashed out at "those who would let forces "will not retreat even one inch back" from the present battleline.

Letter to Clark

Rhee dispatched letter to Gen. Mark Clark, Rhee said that under terms of the present armistice agreement "I do not see ... how the RoK forces can remain under joint command, however regrettable to us."

The letter, released today by Rhee, was dated Saturday—two days before Clark conferred twice with Rhee in person. Rhee wrote president in an apparently futile effort to win his approval of a truce.

Rhee, who tossed a wrench into the longstanding armistice last week by ordering the release of more than 27,000 anti-Communist war prisoners, steadfastly opposes any truce that leaves Korea divided.

"We ... will never be with deep humility," Rhee wrote Clark, "not to fight again."

Still Hopeful

He is still hopeful that I will be able to remove all misunderstandings and differences that stand in the way," he said.

He was accompanied from Washington by Gen. J. Lawton Collins, United States Army chief of staff.

When he arrives in Seoul for talks with Rhee, Robertson will be greeted with an anti-truce demonstration staged by 300,000 persons as the biggest yet.

The South Korean government named Thursday "northward advance unification day" and ordered about 300,000 persons into the streets to plans for demonstrations, parades and speeches.

FIND PLANE WRECK

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's maritime safety board said today the wreckage of a C-119 flying boxcar which vanished Tuesday has been discovered in the hill of Yoshidahama island near Hiroshima. The plane carried seven members and three U. S. paratroopers. There was no mention of survivors. The transport disappeared enroute to Korea.

EDINBURGH (AP)—The Queen received the "ancient crown of Scotland in a moving ceremony today, but she didn't wear it.

At St. Giles's Cathedral, where she was the central figure in a national service of thanksgiving and dedication, she held the crown for a moment, and then handed it to the Duke of Hamilton.

The duke, high officer of state, stumbled slightly and the glittering crown almost slipped from its golden cushion. But he recovered his balance and then it was returned safely to a collection of treasures which Scots call the Honors of Scotland—crown, sceptre and sword of state.

It was a ceremonial in every thing except the actual act of crowning. Some were disappointed that she did not wear a crown in this Scottish capital, but it was explained that the ceremony was no significance whatever—it was in fact an observance of Scottish tradition. Scotland's later coronation will put a second crowning here would have been out of order.

Silence Shrouds Deep U.S. Concern Over Rhee's Plans

Eisenhower Won't See Press As Truce Situation Delicate

By JOHN HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Official silence on the Korean truce crisis today underscored deep U. S. government concern over what Syngman Rhee may do next to block an end to the Korean war.

President Eisenhower cancelled his weekly press conference, which ordinarily would have been held today. It was understood that he did so because of the delicate truce situation.

The state department said earlier Secretary Dulles talked with veteran correspondents but these were occupying a lot of Dulles' time today.

Other officials have declined to say what any substantial information on Korean problems or proposals.

Showdown Near

That a showdown with President Rhee of South Korea on the truce is clear in the dispatch of Walter Robertson, assistant secretary of state, to see him. Robertson carried a secret message from Dulles. Robertson left Washington U. S. policy-makers are pinning their hopes on persuading Rhee to let the truce become effective regardless of his opposition to it. They have no hopes that Rhee can stop the truce but believe he might block any unified action by Korea which would threaten to wreck it.

There is no evidence here of the disposition to meet Rhee's latest price for a settlement. He said Tuesday he wants a defence pact with the U. S., withdrawal of United Nations and Chinese troops from Korea, and a three-month limitation of post-armistice negotiations with a resumption of war if a permanent peace has not then been agreed upon.

Won't Meet Price

The decisive step which the South Korean president has said he will take, if a truce he doesn't like is signed, is withdrawal of his troops from the United Nations command. They would then be free to go on with the war, even if the UN and the Communists agree to an end of the fighting.

Obscure Deputy To Try to Form French Cabinet

PARIS (CP)—President Vincent Auriol crossed up political observers today and called on Joseph Laniel, a deputy little known outside his own party, to try to form a Republican party, to have a try at forming a government to end France's political paralysis.

The nomination was announced after Premier Antoine Pinay, another independent, gave up attempts to put together a country's 19th post-war cabinet. France has been without a government since Premier Rene Mayer was ousted May 21.

Laniel, a textile manufacturer, has served in several French cabinets but always as a junior minister.

Pinay was the seventh political leader to refuse the call to try the job and the third to say no without even getting to the presidential palace. The other four were turned down by the deputies.

Three Canadians Facing Charges In German Death

HANNOVER, Germany (AP) — Three Canadian soldiers were charged with manslaughter today in the road crash slaying June 1 of a Polish national.

Canadian military authorities said charges were placed against Pfcs. Vernon Kimber, 21, of Eastview, Ont.; Thomas Dyer, 22, of Boyd's Cove, Nfld., and Lovitt van Vessem, 21, Dieppe, N.S.

Court martial for the three will be held in July.

The Pole was Tietre Barancek, 63, a civilian driver attached to the same unit as the three Canadians, the 79th Royal Canadian Artillery Regiment, stationed near Hohne.

Health Program Would Cost $600,000,000

By CANADIAN Press Staff Writer

REGINA, Sask. (CP) — CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell estimates it would cost $600,000,000 to set up and operate a national health program in Canada.

Despite this sum, Mr. Coldwell told a political rally of more than 600 persons here Tuesday night that the scheme would mean an annual saving of about $15,000,000 on the $671,000,000 Canada now pay for health service.

Mr. Coldwell, speaking in the ninth Saskatchewan centre since he opened his party's federal election campaign June 15, said the Liberals had been promising a national health plan since 1919. Yet when Health Minister Martin was asked why nothing had been done, he replied such a plan couldn't be set up "overnight."

The CCF leader accused the Liberal government of setting up a social security tax to "care for the rich" and to bring in a "rich man's" budget. His party, if elected June 10, would introduce social security measures on an ability-to-pay basis.

Mr. Coldwell also took a verbal swipe at the 16-point program outlined by George Drew, national Progressive Conservative leader.

"Conservatives promise cuts of $500,000,000 in the national budget," he said.

"Any person who promised all this along with tax cuts either doesn't know what he's talking with arithmetic or something wrong with his politics," Mr. Coldwell said.

New Laboratory Will be Built By Breeding Unit

Construction of a new laboratory building costing $46,785 for the Quinte District Cattle Breeding Association, Inc., just west of Belleville, will commence immediately, it was stated today by Watson and Wiegand, architects for the Association.

Tenders for the construction of the new building were opened Tuesday and the contract awarded to St. Lawrence Contracting Company, Ltd., of Belleville. Construction will commence immediately with no completion date set.

Plans call for a two-storey building containing approximately 5,000 square feet. The building will be of masonry construction with flat tar and gravel roof with hot water heating. Mr. Watson, architect, inspected cattle breeding association laboratories in Pennsylvania before drawing plans for the Belleville building.

The new building will be used by the local association in connection with the operation of collecting, storage and shipping of semen to the various units in the Bay of Quinte district.

Commandments For Water Safety

Commencing on the number of week-end drownings, Dr. Dianadon, local YMCA Physical Director, stated today, "It is shocking to anyone who reads the newspapers to learn of these tragedies.

Without a doubt some of them were unavoidable accidents. However statistics have proven that the majority of drownings could be avoided if people would use common sense and practise some simple safety rules.

"In more than 30 years of swimming, camping and water activities, the Y.M.C.A. has developed the following Ten Commandments of Water Safety both young and old should learn and follow religiously:"

Ten Y.M.C.A. Water Safety Rules

1. Never Go Swimming Alone — Ever.
2. A rock or a log may be hidden; weeds; may not be deep enough. If you are not sure, jump feet first.
3. Don't Show Off in the Water. — Do not push people off docks, "duck" other swimmers; rock boats and canoes. Many have lost lives as a result of such smartalec, show off tricks.
4. Don't Attempt a Rescue Unless You are a Strong Swimmer. — Many have lost their lives in attempts at rescue have resulted in two drownings instead of one.
5. Cool Off Before Plunging Into Cold Water.
6. When overheated or after strenuous exercise wait till you cool off before entering water. Chill may be brought by sudden changes in temperature.
7. If You Can't Swim, Stay Out of Small Boats.
8. Small boats and canoes are rarely capsized. If capsized, stay with them. Keep calm and capacity of a row boat or canoe.
9. Pay Strict Attention to all Warnings.
10. They are put there to protect you from dangerous currents, undertows, "drop-offs" and hidden obstructions.
11. Always Race Towards the Shore. Not Away From It.

12. Know Your Limitations.

Don't try to swim further or longer than you know you can, just because someone dares you to. Don't try to swim a swift current or tide just to see if you can do it—Maybe you can't.

Enumerators Start Making Rounds In Hastings South

Enumerators for the riding of Hastings South have commenced making their rounds to every home in the riding taking the names of those entitled to vote in the Federal election on August 10. Enumerators started making their calls on Monday morning.

Returning officer for the riding is Mr. Hal Bartlett, of Tweed. He urges that householders cooperate with the enumerators as much as possible to enable the necessary information to be obtained as quickly as possible.

Author Relates Little-Known Facts About the Queen and Royal Family

King George the Sixth tried unsuccessfully to tell his brother Edward and Prince Minister Stanley Baldwin that his younger brother, the Duke of Kent, would make a better King than Edward.

This fact, and a host of interesting, little-known items about the Royal family were made known to the members of their weekly meeting in Kiwanis Centre Tuesday noon, by Charles Clay, noted Canadian writer and author of the current best seller, "King Love the Queen."

"The abdication of Edward was an extremely painful experience for George" said Mr. Clay, "and he advanced the name of his brother to succeed to the throne because he was the father of two male heirs and had married into the Greek Royal family.

"I discovered, in the course of writing this book, that George was a great man and a great king," said the author. "He was unwittingly and unwittingly, he projected himself into his daughter and into the future. In writing 'Long Live the Queen' I found a great deal of drama in the material."

Father Was Very Formal

"Did you know that George had very strange relations with his father? When he was a child, due to his father he had to go to a strict and formal school and audience with His Majesty. This had a profound effect upon his life and the life of Edward.

"George also had an impediment in his speech. He could not pronounce k's and g's, and in consequence he had to refer to his father 'majesty' or 'father' because he could not say 'King'.

"He also stuttered so that it took him three times to ask Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon to marry him."

One of the late king's little known, but highly unusual habits was the navy practice of drinking beer before going to bed.

Mr. Clay ended for years to break him of this habit but he persisted in it to the end.

"King George had great physical courage, to the point of recklessness," stated the speaker. During World War I, he fought as a turret officer in the battle of Jutland and was reprimanded by his superior officers for exposing himself out on the top of his turret at the height of the fighting because he wanted to get a better view of the action.

During World War II, he toured the battle fronts, and the demonstrations of loyalty his subjects showered upon him were the greatest moments in his life.

Mr. Clay told several anecdotes about the present Queen, illustrating the nature of her relationship with her family, and with those who were entrusted with her education.

Most Dramatic Moment

"The most dramatic moment in her life was the death of George the Sixth," said Mr. Clay. "When she returned 4,000 miles from Africa the formalities associated with acceptance of the throne, left her alone with the burden of her private grief."

Mr. Clay, for many years literary editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, and during the war associated with publicity work for the federal government, is Canadian representative for the Encyclopedia Britannica, and author of a literary property that has been agent that is carried on 35 Canadian stations. He is currently living in Toronto.

In amassing the material for his latest book, Mr. Clay contacted official news sources in Canada, Great Britain, South Africa, Australia and the files of many metropolitan newspapers.

He said that one of the sources was the 15-pound scrapbook which the royal family put together over the years by Mrs. Ida Grant, of Montreal. It was a most amazing collection of information—much of it unique and impossible to locate elsewhere, even in the libraries of some of our greatest universities.

Mr. Clay made 5,000 separate notes, a pile weighing 50 pounds. These finally reduced to 150,000 words that comprise the book.

The speaker was introduced by Everett Fairman and the thanks of the Kiwanis was passed on by L. L. Moore.

Committee Told New Buildings For Replacements

TORONTO (CP)—Reforms Minister Foote of Ontario told the legislature's select committee on mental institutions Tuesday that new buildings at nearby Mimico reformatory were for replacement only.

The committee Monday criticized departmental action in expanding accommodation at Mimico while the committee was trying to find ways and means to cut down prison population.

Mr. Foote said that the committee was under a misapprehension. He said the $80,000 expenditure at Mimico was to replace a unit condemned as a fire hazard in December, 1951.

Mr. Foote refused to stop the building program until the committee reports months from now. "I'm interested in constructive efforts," he added.

Must Review Code

W. M. Nickle, (PC—Kingston) said nothing constructive could be done until the Criminal Code was revised to permit a positive detention system.

"That's beyond my province," said Mr. Foote. "When these other problems have been developed and passed by the legislature that's enough for me and I don't want interference."

The reforms minister said construction of a new institution at Millbrook was vital. He said there were enough psychopaths in Ontario's prisons to require needed treatment at the Millbrook project to warrant its construction regardless of what results the committee's decisions may bring.

"If we have to be at loggerheads with the minister," said Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver, "we're going to make much progress."

"We have no political ax to grind," continued Mr. Oliver, "and the committee feels the inauguration of a parole probation system will relieve the pressure on the provincial prisons to the extent that there would be no need for additional institutions."

A "POINT GRAND" evening for Someone.

Closing Camp Fire Meeting Is Staged By 2nd Boy Scouts

An enjoyable evening was spent by the boys of the Second Belleville Boy Scout Troop at a closing Camp Fire held on Jewish Island with their parents as guests for the evening.

The evening started with a ball game between fathers and sons. Due to the large size of some of the older scouts it was rather difficult to tell which were the fathers and so an accurate score could not be kept. After the game a camp fire was started by Queen's Scout John Bedford and everyone gathered around to enjoy wieners and soft drinks.

Presentation Made

The highlight of the evening was a presentation of the Bushman Thong to Queen's Scout Robert Owen. The presentation was made by R.C.M.P. Constable Ken Moore, who recently left the troop to join the Mounties.

The thong is stationed at Ottawa, made a special trip to Belleville for the ceremony and spoke to the parents and scouts about Bob and their fine friendship in scouting. Needless to say Scout Master Willis Jackson and boys were delighted to have Ken with the troop again even if only for a time. Some eyewitnesses were then presented to the following boys who attended the course in Stirling: Ron Galpin, Richard Rowbotham, Glen Stewart, and Carl Young. Other badges presented were: swimmers and lifesavers, Glen Stewart; leather workers to Jerry Putnam; camp cook to Ron Galpin; and stalkoners, boatsmanship, canoeers and knotters to Richard Rowbotham.

Camp Crests Presented

Camp crests for attending the canporee at Gananoque were presented to 15 scouts: A.S.M. Tuckers, Troop Leader John Bedford, Scouts Galpin, Gilham, Green, Lackington, Mayhew, Mitchell, Poste, Putnam, Rowbotham, Stewart, and Young.

In making these presentations Scouter Jackson pointed out that it was the youth themselves who earned these badges and worked hard to do so and that the record of the progress that the 2nd Belleville Troop was making.

Special guests were District Commissioner Archie Lewis; A.D.C. Owen Bonter, William Gander, president of the Scout Mothers' Group and Mr. Doug McLean, president of the men's group committee.

Mr. Don Allen spoke to the troop and congratulated the boys on their fine work throughout the year and stated that in his opinion 2nd Belleville Troop was second to none for true scouting in this district. He also gave the boys information concerning the district camp which is to be held in July.

The evening was ended with the singing of the Scout Vesper song.

Obituary

LEWIS MARTIN PRINGLE

In failing health for some time, Lewis Martin Pringle, North Park Street, died early this Wednesday morning at the Hastings County Home. He was a lifelong resident of this city and for many years was employed with the Ontario and later the Ontario Intelligencer press in the job department. The late Mr. Pringle was well known and highly respected among a wide circle of friends.

He was born in Belleville, 81 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Pringle.

A member of the United Church, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. James Cook, of Belleville; and two brothers, John W. Pringle, of this city and Frank Pringle of Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

RONALD E. NEIL (R.E. J. Weeler, Ontario.)

Ronald E. Neil, of R.R 1 Wooler, Ontario, who was drowned on Sunday, June 21, at North Bay, on Conecon Lake, was born at Wooler on March 1, 1936.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Neil, who survive. Also surviving are a brother, Carman (Joe) Neil, of Trenton; a sister, Mrs. Harold Tribbett, and his grandfather, Mr. Joseph Potter, of Stirling.

The funeral notice appears elsewhere in this edition.

TORONTO STOCKS

Western oils rolled ahead on a broad front with gains in six out of seven issues traded.

Industrials moved in a fairly narrow list of issues at firm prices.

A handful of uranium, including Chimo, Gunnar and Nesbitt-Labine, pushed higher by as much as 27 cents. New Normetal base metals settled back slightly.

Refining, oil, utilities and papers were firm spots in the advancing industrials group.

Jewlers and holding companies showed firmer tendencies in golds but senior producers were mixed as Giant and McIntyre eased.

Base metals were up more than three-quarters of a point as the whole section had a firm upward tendency. Among higher-priced issues, Falconbridge, International Nickel and Sherritt were firm.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP)—Sales up to noon too few to establish prices at Ontario stockyards today. Receipts: cattle 300; calves 210; hogs 120; sheep and lambs by holdover from yesterday 1,800 cattle mostly heavy steers and stockers.

A few good quality steers 19-20; good heavy 18-18.50; good heavy lambs 14-14.50.

Sales on calves are too few to establish prices.

Grade hogs 22; dressed sows 21.

PRODUCE MARKET

Licenced Buyers Complain Cheese Not All Sold on Board

Licenced buyers making regular purchases of cheese through cheese exchanges at the support price offered by the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board are being "put out of business" by factories going around the organization and selling cheese direct to buyers.

This was stated Tuesday night at the Belleville Cheese Exchange by cheese buyers, who said the situation may be due to misunderstandings regarding the regulations governing the sale of cheese under the Farm Products Marketing Act.

Stan L. Joss, of the Black Diamond Cheese Ltd., in a prepared statement said there were three main points which needed clarification.

One of these points was that cheese was being sold direct to cheese buyers without going through licenced buyers' organization and a price below the prices on the cheese exchange. This practice put buyers making purchases on the exchange at a disadvantage.

Another point on which clarification was sought was that buyers were being asked by factories to purchase cheese direct and pay for them in full, and not put the responsibility on the producers' organizations. In many cases refusal to meet this request is resulting in the buyer or buyers losing the factory.

Mr. Joss said that at a meeting with the Farm Products Board last week, cheese buyers had been told that the price bid on the exchange must represent the price paid to the factory, less five cents per 100 pounds as toll for the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board.

Signed by Two Others

Mr. Joss said that at a meeting he was also signed by W. S. Cook and Son, and W. R. McCreary, cheese buyers.

Mr. Joss suggested that the situation could be corrected through friendly discussion and asked that the producers' organization arrange a meeting in an attempt to clarify the matter.

Chas. N. Heath, secretary of the producers' organization, said the matter referred to by Mr. Joss could have wide implications.

He said that through the co-operative marketing of cheese as set up originally for an initial payment of 36c per pound for cheese to the factories, the balance of the money received to be pooled and pro-rated back to the factories. Under such a scheme all cheese had to be sold on the exchange.

He noted that a meeting would be held in Ottawa and it was hoped that teeth could be put into the regulations that cannot them to be lived up to. "The regulations must be enforced, or we fail," he noted.

William Cook, local buyer, said the buyers were not objecting to the producers' organization which he said, was trying to do a good job for the industry. However, the situation was that factories were going around the organization and were selling cheese to buyers at a lower price than was set on the board. "We are being put out of business as buyers," he said.

A total of 1,268 cheese, including 356 specials, 3,009 white and 3,864 colored, was offered on the exchange. The marketing board support price was 28½ cents for white and 28¾ cents for colored. About 1400 colored and 450 white were sold to the board with the marketing board taking the balance.

Lost Mother's $13,000 Savings On Horse Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Henry Way, who lost his mother's $13,000 life savings on the Kentucky Derby, escaped a trial for grand larceny Tuesday when the little 71-year-old woman forgave all.

Mrs. Lillian Way refused to press a complaint that her son took the money from a joint safe deposit box to bet on the Derby.

"I haven't long to live," she said. "I hope God will forgive my sins and I want to forgive my son's."

Way, 43, who has three children and one grandchild of his own, bet the money on Derby favorite Native Dancer and lost by a head.

Weeping, he told the judge:

"I'll sign my house over to my mother and give her everything I've got. She can live with me for the rest of her life."

Assured Pigeon Trap Will Do Work Required

HAMILTON (CP) — Even with the aid of flood lights, a homing pigeon needs at least a week to lure a he-pigeon into captivity, Weather Bureau Too officials say.

The Downtown Business Association here was assured that a pigeon trap set up on a downtown building would produce results as soon as "the fancy pigeons" came to regard it as home.

Robert Matteson, city property superintendent, says the female bird will be released next Sunday to fly around extending invitations to the troublesome males.

Any pigeon who takes them up will become a dead pigeon when the gates of the trap are lowered.

"I think the best results will be apparent in the warmer weather, but we should make headway before then," Mr. Matteson said.

He added that impatience would ruin the whole set-up.

RARE VISITOR

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)—The first opossum ever believed seen in this part of Ontario was captured alive on a farm and turned over to game overseers. It will be sent to Algonquin Park zoo. The day after the animal was caught, another opossum was killed by a car.

Here beyond any doubt, is the greatest watch value in the world today. This is no ordinary watch, for nearly one million of this particular model are already being worn.
Yes, 1,000,000 "Votes of Confidence" from sportsmen, world travellers, navigators, businessmen and a host of others to whom downright accuracy is really important.
The "Century" contains the famous Omega 30 m/m movement which recently established a new precision record of the Geneva Observatory. This watch now holds more observatory records and has gained more International Awards than any other watch in the world.
A true masterpiece of Swiss craftsmanship this Omega is "noiless proof", "dustproof", "shockproof", "non-magnetic", "temperature compensated" and has "positional adjustment". Priced from $75.00 in stainless steel and $97.50 in 14 kt. gold filled.
All watches priced from $50.00 insured FREE against loss for one year.

QUEEN RECEIVES

Edinburgh was gay with decorations and vast throngs applauded the 27-year-old Queen as she rode in a state carriage drawn by four grey horses from Holyrood House to the Cathedral.

There was no outward sign of objection to some facts that she is known as Elizabeth II instead of Elizabeth I, as nationalists contended would be proper. Many hundreds of police were alert to quell any demonstrations. But there was no hostile gesture, and the acclaim of an estimated 200,000 persons along the processional route was a duplicate of the applause the Queen received on her Coronation in London.

The nationalist contention, rejected in a Scottish court, is that the first Elizabeth of England was not Queen of Scotland, and that consequently in Scotland the present Elizabeth should be the first.

The Queen, wearing a chic, blue crepe dress, smiled happily and waved continuously as she sat beside her consort, the Duke of Edinburgh.

Burn Two Fingers

OTTAWA (CP)—Was there a fire inspector in the house? There was indeed.

Gordon Metcalf, Ottawa City solicitor, was questioning Fred Cooksey, the city's chief fire inspector, Tuesday in a public inquiry into a land development scheme. Mr. Metcalf was leaning against the court clerk's desk at Carleton county court house.

Suddenly Mr. Metcalf jumped and cry. Sparks shot 10 feet. He had apparently short-circuited an electrical outlet with a wire paper clip. He burned two fingers, requiring medical care.

Commissioner M. A. Seymour, conducting the inquiry, commented to Mr. Cooksey:

"I can think of no one better than you to have the defective outlet to the attention of the authorities."

HE DOESN'T UNDERSTAND "PUBS"

Dalton J. Caswell, of Sundridge, Ont., says that the "pub" system of Britain is "not always suitable in Canada."

We hesitate to take issue with Mr. Caswell. He is the chairman of the Hotel Association of Canada. His experience as a hotelman provides the required qualification to speak with authority on the problems involved in the sale of beer and ale. But when he asserts that public houses or taverns "haven't worked out" in Canada, his intense dislike for a wholly erroneous impression overcomes our timidity.

We are not disposed to quarrel with Mr. Caswell's contention that the public house system in Ontario has not "worked out." But we object to the assumption that the phrase "public house" means the same thing in Ontario as it does in Britain.

The owner of the public house, says Mr. Caswell, has no obligation to his customer other than to sell beer. What is true in Ontario and it may also be considered to be true in Britain, although most British "pubs" are also small hotels.

Mr. Caswell draws from this fact the conclusion that hotels are "the most logical place" in which to sell beer, because hotels provide other services and create a better atmosphere for the social drink.

His conclusion is correct, as far as Ontario goes.

But there is one great and all-important difference between the British public house proprietor and his colleague in Ontario. The public house proprietor in Ontario is prohibited, by law, from creating the best type of atmosphere for the social drink. He could improve furnishings, but the atmosphere this would create would be one of refinement which would not be welcomed by many of his patrons. Desiring to drink beer in his shirt-sleeves, the working man does not take kindly to the dim lighting and soft furnishings of the lounge. What he wants is an opportunity to entertain himself with congenial companions. That is what he gets in the English "pub" where drinking is the only necessary duty to the main occupation of the evening, which may be darts, chess, checkers or merely conversation. These diversions, except the last-named, are prohibited in the average "public house" in Ontario, for the law has decided that the best way to keep the consumption of beer at an irreducible minimum is to give a man no opportunity to do anything but drink when he enters a beverage room.

IMPORTED CANDIDATES

The Toronto Globe and Mail is more than mildly annoyed at the sight of J. W. Pickersgill, recently appointed a member of the Federal Cabinet as Secretary of State, seeking a seat in Newfoundland. It describes his arrival at St. John's and editorially records the fact that, "bowing and smiling, Mr. Pickersgill immediately assumed the role of his talents" and left at the disposal of the people of Newfoundland." Then the editorial declares: "Canadian politics have come to a sorry state if this sort of thing is to be regarded as admirable or even tolerable."

The first reaction of many politically-informed readers will probably be one of intense surprise. Since when has it been the rule for an appointee to the Cabinet to seek a seat in some riding with which, in the past, he was not even remotely connected?

This type of action is, of course, almost the rule, rather than the exception, in Great Britain. It is much less common in the United States, but there are some who will think it flighly desirable that Canada should copy the British practice. It has certain advantages. It makes it possible for all political parties to obtain their ablest and most experienced men in Parliament. It means, also, that in ridings which lack outstanding men of a certain political conviction, electors supporting that party still have the opportunity to cast their ballots for an acceptable representative.

But let us not be too hasty in applauding such arrangements. Peter Howard, former journalistic aide to Lord Beaverbrook, records in his book, "Beaverbrook—My Friend," the reception that he sought to become a Conservative candidate for a vacant seat in the Mother of Parliaments. He went to see the chairman of the association, told him of his desire and was informed that "the sort of fellow they were looking for." Then he was asked, "How much will you subscribe to the local association?" "Five pounds," said he would give his first salary. This was unsatisfactory. "We have already been offered a thousand pounds a year," he was told. "On the Labor side also," he adds, "a seat in Parliament was sometimes awarded, almost in the nature of an honorable pension and retirement, to those who had grown old in Trade Union service."

We want none of that in Canada. So perhaps the Globe and Mail is right. Perhaps, on the whole, the British system cannot be regarded "as admirable or even tolerable." But surely an exception should be made in the case of Cabinet ministers.

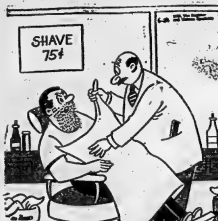
SLEEPING BABY

I like laughter, I like singing
In the home that I am keeping.
I like even door bell ringing.
But not when the baby's sleeping.



I like quiet in the hallways,
Thoughtful people, tiptoe creeping,
Sane folks who remember always
That upstairs the baby's sleeping.

I like shouting, I like shrieking,
I like wrestling, romping, leaping,
Boys in groups—all loudly speaking,
But not when the baby's sleeping.

I like quiet in the hallways,
Thoughtful people, tiptoe creeping,
Sane folks who remember always
That upstairs the baby's sleeping.

Editor Is Mad Must Be a Dad

(Toronto Saturday Night)

Parents are a pretty sorry lot, if we can believe all we're told by various psychologists, social workers and professional speechifiers. These are no bad little children, only bad parents; there would be no need for juvenile courts if parents were on the job; parents do not administer enough spankings; parents should do no spanking; and so on.

Now clergymen of the United Church have joined in the outcry. The Toronto Conference was told the other day that one of the reasons for the present shortage of clergymen is that parents were persuading their sons not to enter the ministry, aponsible for everything about it parents are to be held responsible for everything about their children, from morals to choice of a life work. A lot of other people had better start trying to justify their own reasons for being.

Isle of Bliss Draws a Hiss

(Hamilton Spectator)

The report of the finding of a beautiful Swedish blonde and her tall bronzed husband living like Adam and Eve on a secret island in the Mediterranean moved readers in the news on the first really muggy day of summer, and doubtless thousands of men and women—most of them neither tall and bronzed nor beautiful blondes—felt a twinge of envy.

The idea of life on a desert island (desert in the sense of uninhabited by any one else, not of devoid of vegetation—for palm trees are mandatory) has a peculiar attraction for humanity, especially at this time of year. To the man bent over a lathe or confronted with a full "in" basket, to the housewife wrestling with the washing and two children, there is an irresistible fascination about a hot, humid day in dreaming of life on a little spot of warm green earth unwashed by cool blue water and with no company but, respectively, Marilyn Monroe or Gary Cooper.

Such daydreams are a proof of the resiliency of the human spirit, for civilized man should be ashamed to admit that to his timid little attempts to get back to nature it is met by a barrage of wine. And yet his mind determinedly escapes from reminders of the fishing trip on which it rained incessantly and he caught a cold, of the week at the cabin in the woods during which he was devoured by flies and bitten by mosquitoes at the beach. In consequence of such mind also excludes the obvious deductions: That if he ever found his desert island the coconuts would eventually have the blight, the spider crabs would be a little too big at night and the breadfruit would give him indigestion; that after the honeymoon with Marilyn Monroe he would crave a companion who had a more serious mind.

It would be interesting to know what daydreams that Belgian Adam and his Eve are dreaming in their Mediterranean islet as they munch their diet of and drink water, but we suspect that his are of a good deal of bustle, a good deal of highway to drive on and an office in which he can find refuge from the prosaic chatter of her; hers of a bubble bath, a fur coat, a Paris frock, jewelry by Lanvin and a roomful of men to dance with.

Soap Measure Of Prosperity

(Winnipeg Free Press)

The average consumption of soap in Canada is about 25 pounds per head per annum. With the possible exception of its small-boy population, who probably thinks this a needlessly high percentage, the figure is generally regarded as typical of the prosperity of cutting their year's laundering and bathing requirements down to a single pound of soap. Yet more than a quarter of the world's population must do what Canada does on a quarter of the annual consumption of soap and cheerfully survive.

Four of the world's 28 principal countries, with a total population of 1,000,000,000, average the national incomes of less than $100 per head. Their people are plagued by high levels of civilization without benefit of cash. Take as a striking parallel between national prosperity and national consumption of soap and cheerful cleanliness

5 Members of RCAF Scouts Will Attend Ottawa Jamboree

Five members of the RCAF Trenton Boy Scout Troop will attend the Canadian Boy Scout Jamboree being held this year on Connaught Rifle Ranges in Ottawa from July 18 to 26.

Three first class RCAF Trenton Scouts, Ronnie Holvick, Keith Blissett and Robert Durand, all students of Air Chief Marshal Breadner School and 14 years of age will attend with Scout Master F/S Art Davies and Assistant Scout Master F/S J. C. Campbell.

Robert Durand, son of F/S and Mrs. Paul Durand, of RCAF Station, St. Jean, Que., was a member of the Trenton troop for three years prior to his parents' departure, recently, from Trenton. A former resident of RCAF Station Trenton, Scout Durand returned to being a Patrol Leader with the troop and earned the right to wear the badges of an Interpreter and a Carpenter. He will travel from St. Jean to meet his Trenton Scout friends in Ottawa.

A former Middleton Park resident, Keith Blissett, son of Sgt. and Mrs D. P. Blissett, of Trenton, will graduate from Air Chief Marshal Breadner School this month. The Blissett family moved from Middleton Park when Sgt. Blissett was posted overseas for a one year tour of duty in Metz, France. Patrol Leader Blissett carried on with the RCAF troop to complete five years of service. He wears the swimmers' badge, which he had earned in the RCAF Station pool.

Served Three Years

First Class Scout Ronnie Holvick, son of Sgt. and Mrs. John Holvick, of 11B Borden Drive, Middleton Park, will also graduate from Breadner School this month. Patrol Leader Holvick has his swimmers' and firemen's badges and has served three years with the RCAF troop.

All three Scouts wear the Bronze Arrowhead on their uniforms earned on completion of an indoor training course for Control Leaders.

Scout Master Davies, of 34 Rivers Drive, and Assistant Scout Master Campbell, of 8 Johnson Drive, will attend the Jamboree as leaders.

F/S Davies, who wore the uniform of a Cub and Scout in his youth, has had seven years' experience as a Scout and Cub Master. During the past three years he has had the addition of Scout Master with the RCAF Trenton troop. He is a member of the Intelligence Staff at Training Command Headquarters.

A member of the RCAF Station Servicing Squadron, F/S Campbell has had two years' experience as a Scout Leader with the RCAF troop and was a Scout himself, as a boy.

The RCAF representatives to the Jamboree will join with a Kingston group in Ottawa where they will live under canvas for eight days. They will take with them a five gallon paint can which has been converted into a charcoal burner for cooking their own meals. It will be the Scout's responsibility to draw his own rations, assist with pitching his own tent, make his bed, and to help keep the camp clean. There will be a program of games, constructive projects and sightseeing tours around Ottawa, the parliament buildings, the mint, and the archives are a few of the places slated to which the Scouts will be taken.

4 R.D. Bowlers Receive Awards

Successful bowlers in No. 4 Repair Depot Bowling League were awarded prizes by Group Captain D. H. Hall, Commanding Officer No. 4 R.D., at the annual "Ball" held in the Depot drill hall recently.

F/S Cliff Palmer accepted the cup for his team which took top honors for the season in the Depot Bowling League with an 84 points. A prize for the second place team with 75 points was awarded to LAC D. H. Tugwood, team captain.

A second cup for highest total pinfall of 3353 in the "A" league-pinfall which was given to Captain Col. L. V. Whyte. In the "B" league, Cpl. A. J. Dunbar's team was awarded the prize for a total pinfall of 3254. Other awards went to WO2 J. G. Powers and LAC F. J. Hinks for their high singles of 341; Sgt. A. M. McKenzie had high triple of 949, and LAC J. E. A. Bolarent the high average of 218.

In the Mixed League, prizes were presented to team captains F/S. W. J. Stephens and Sgt. O. C. Therien.

The successful "June Ball" was organized by a committee under the chairmanship of S/L W. G. Scott, with members F/O D. A. Nolan, F/O N. Attendu, LAC R. Palmer, LAC E. St. John, Cpl. R. B. Buckland, AW1 B. Nye, LAC J. E. Wharrick, Cpl. W. Shinka and LAC K. E. Williams.

Breadner Graduation Exercises

Mr. J. Garratt, of the Trenton High School, will be the guest speaker at the 1953 Air Chief Marshal Breadner School graduation exercises, Thursday at 7.30 p.m. in the school's auditorium.

The final exercise of the year will include a musical program by the Training Command Band. Refreshments will be served following the graduation program.

Purchase by City of County Home Better Financially Than Expected

That the city came out of the purchase of the former Hastings county home and farm much better financially than it once appeared possible, was the observation made today by Alderman Charles L. Hyde, chairman of the city finance and executive committee.

"Considering everything I think the purchase turned out very well for the city," Alderman Hyde said. "At least it has turned out much better than it at one time expected."

The comment was made following a report given at Monday's council meeting by Alderman Wilbur Cowtyman, chairman of property, on the present financial picture concerning the purchase of the home and farm.

The county home property was purchased by the city back in 1948 at a price of $300,600 with the intention of using the main building as a convalescent hospital. The said the city in establishing a convalescent home the province of Ontario provided $100,000, which went on the purchase price of the house. However, the Department of Health later said the old county home was not suitable for a convalescent hospital and the amount of the grant was left with the city. Anticipated Receipts

The report on the county home property given by Alderman Countryman showed anticipated receipts from the sale of buildings and building lots in connection with the home amounted to $87,-823. Added to this was the $100,-000 grant from the province, making a total of $187,753.

This gives a difference of $112,-247 which had to be put up by the taxpayers of Belleville.

A breakdown of receipts from the property showed $1,324 received from Avon Jewellers for two lots, and $250 from F. Hrechkosey for a third industrial lot. The main property including the old home was sold this spring to Belleville Properties for $27,000 to be turned into hotel and motel site.

One hundred and thirty-eight residential lots in the area north of the highway had been sold at the time the report was prepared, this returning the city $39,-376. Remaining unsold were 66 lots with an anticipated value of $14,200. Two building lots had been retained for future development of the area.

Only Stenchel Two

South of the highway 100 lots had been used for construction of Wartime Housing from which the city received only a nominal fee.

Alderman Countryman noted there were 13 new streets in the former county home farm area with 127 residential lots north of the highway and 119 residential lots in South Bayview, or south of the highway.

In addition to this land had been provided for the new Dundas street firehall and another strip of land to provide a rear entrance to the Queen Elizabeth public school grounds. In addition three lots had been provided in North Bayview for park purposes and in South Bayview 22 acres for the same purpose A driveway, refrigerator unit and refrigerator had been donated to Belleville hospital, and one large and one small garage to the public works department.

The city may still derive some revenue from the South Bayview property where 100 Wartime Homes are now located, as after a ten-year period the city may negotiate for the purchase of the houses.

Under the contract with Wartime Homes the city provided the land and was loaned $600 per lot for provision of services, such as roads, and sewers. This money is being paid back in ten annual payments, plus two per cent interest. In lieu of taxes the city receives $75 for each house.

Swiss Consider Constructing Atom Pile of Own

BERN (Reuters) —Switzerland, watching the success already achieved in the United States and Britain in experimental work for the application of atomic energy for power and heating purposes, is considering the construction of an atomic pile of its own.

A decision is expected to be reached this year by the Swiss federal commission.

Although Switzerland possesses no uranium ore, the metal used to produce a nuclear chain reaction, Swiss nuclear scientists have been studying, both theoretically and experimentally, the fundamental problems raised by the industrial use of atomic energy.

Extensive research work has been undertaken by Swiss university institutes as well as by certain branches of Swiss industry.

The Swiss atomic commission, which was set up in 1946, has organized several teams of research workers who have made valuable progress.

The decision by the European council for nuclear research to construct a nuclear laboratory in Geneva will also prove of great use to the Swiss scientists in their research work.

There is, however, some political opposition to building this laboratory, and a referendum in which all the inhabitants of the canton of Geneva will be asked whether or not they are in favor of such an undertaking has already received more than the statutory number of signatures needed for the calling of a vote.

U.S. Near Pact For Using Spain's Air, Naval Bases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is reported nearing final agreement for use of Spanish naval and air bases in return for large-scale military and economic aid.

Senior officials confidently expect three separate agreements spelling out how Spanish-American ties will be signed some time this summer.

Informants plans call for the Eisenhower administration to provide the Franco government with almost $200,000,000 in military and economic assistance during the fiscal year ending June 30 next.

As part of the deal being worked out in Madrid, the U. S. government is reported ready to spend additional huge sums running into perhaps hundreds of millions of dollars, to modernize and expand about half-a-dozen Spanish air and naval bases.

Spain would agree to lease these highly strategic air and naval installations to the U. S. to help in the defence of Western Europe against communism.

The precise sites are still secret.

Northern Electric Wrecks 6 RD 23-9 In Ladies Game

Northern Electric ladies softball team, powered by a 21 hit attack and a big 13 run fourth inning, racked up the 6 R.D. Rockets 23-9 in a Lakeshore Ladies Softball League game played Tuesday evening at 6 R.D.

The Electrics wasted no time in taking the lead as they scored over five runs in the first inning, three in the second and one in the third. The Rockets stayed with them notching six runs in the first three innings but even rocket power couldn't outrace the Electrics after their huge dozen run splurge in the fourth. From there in they coasted with two runs in the fifth and one each in the last two innings.

The Rockets expired with two runs in the fourth and one in the seventh.

Jones, with four for five, Waite and H. Reeves with four for six, and Butler with four for five, led the winners at bat, while Smith with two for two, picked up a quarter of her total with eight blows.

Slade worked the first two innings for the Electrics and H. Reeves finished. Drake took the whole ticking in going the route and suffering line for the Rockets.

Lineup: Northern: Summers cf; H. Reeves lf-p; B. Reeves c; Butler ss; Waite 2b; Folb; Slade p; Seguin; H. Seguin rf, replaced by Harder in 4th.

No. 6 R.D.: Rickerts: Freeman c; Lucas cf; Stadnyk 3b; Williams 1b; Olson rf; Drake p; McDonald ss; Anderson 2b, replaced by Smith in 5th; Proudlock lf, replaced by Vlan in 5th.

THOROLD (CP)—Carl Leader, 13, was drowned Monday when he stepped into deep water while wading in a shallow portion of a dam. He formerly lived in Bowyn and Val d'Or in northwestern Quebec and came here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Leader, and their three other children about a year ago.

New-Type Mask Will Not Fog Up In Cold Weather

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's defence research board has perfected a new-type gas-mask which doesn't "fog up" as conventional masks do in cold weather.

A board official who didn't want his name used said Tuesday the mask solves the two major problems encountered by conventional masks in sub-zero temperatures.

The presence of the conventional mask start fogging when the temperature drops below freezing. The fogging gets worse as the temperature drops and the mask becomes almost unwearable at sub-zero temperatures.

Also, moisture in the breath of the wearer of the mask condenses in the outlet valve and freezes, closing the valve. The wearer must either remove the mask or suffocate.

The new DRB mask, the official said solves the first problem by the special feature in interior design." It is classified as secret information.

The second problem is solved by having the moisture collect in an outside container.

8th Belleville Cubs Holds Parents' Night

The 8th Belleville Cubs held their annual parents' night, Wednesday evening in Prince Charles School.

The Cubmaster, Mrs. L. Ashley, welcomed the parents and introduced her assistants. They put on a pack through a regular meeting to entertain the parents what a Cub learns.

Mrs. Ashley thanked Scout John Goodman, for all the help he has given her in her Cub work.

The Stars

First stars were presented to Neil Campbell and Billy Goodman, and the boys were congratulated for having one eye open so quickly.

Collectors and Artists badges were presented to Terry Wise and Gardeners badges to Freddie Smith.

The boys and their leaders held a sing-song around the camp fire which was presided over by the parents who joined in the last one.

The Blanket

The beautiful handicraft display which won the boys the fine cloth trophy for the third year, was admired by the parents.

Refreshments were served and brought the enjoyable evening to a close.

Marsh Hill School Wins Religious Education Shield

June 4 marked the day for the religious education competition among the four schools, Foxboro, Marsh Hill, Turner's and Elden Hill. The previous week had terminated the weekly religious education classes held each week to the four schools until the fall term commences again.

Scripture Memorizing

The competition consisted of the entire number of Scripture verses given throughout the school term, the parable of The Prodigal Son said in unison and the same parable said by one chosen student of the class. Judging was based on knowledge of the work, articulation, enunciation and general expression.

The Judge chosen for the second year was the Rev. W. T. Middleton, United Church minister of Bayside, who offered both timely suggestion for improvement and commendation where merited. The Rev. H. W. Gibbs of Foxboro, the teacher, was credited by the splendid showing of each of the schools.

Mr. Middleton carefully judging the students, announced that the Marsh Hill School was the winner of the shield with a possible 94 out of 100.

CAN TIE SHOES

BOSTON (AP)—TV-radio star Arthur Godfrey is able to tie his own shoes for the first time in 7 years. The Massachusetts General Hospital issued that report Monday night while stating that the popular entertainer is in "very satisfactory" condition. Godfrey was operated on May 15 to correct the injuries suffered in a 1951 automobile accident.

Weddings

FONGER—ELLIS

St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, was the setting for a pretty summer wedding on Saturday, June 20, at 4:30 p.m. when the Rev. L. Arthur Page, rector of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill, united in marriage, Marlene Dorinda Ellis, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Ellis, of Barrett's Corners, to Edward Clive Fonger, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy E. Fonger. Red and white gladioli adorned the altar and tall standards of pink and white peonies and coralville, the chancel steps.

The wedding music was provided by the church organist, Professor Ernest Wheatley, who accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Eric Lahey, who sang before the ceremony, "I'll Walk Beside You" and "O Promise Me", during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in the traditional bridal gown of pearl silk Rosepoint lace and nylon net. The fitted jacket was accented by its matching crinoline, and the fitted jacket had by a small sculptured collar and long sleeves tapering to "V" points at the wrists. Her fingertip veil of orange blossoms in garland form held her unembodied tulle illusion veil. She carried an ivory Prayer Book, created with fresh cut pink carnations and stephanotis, the gift of her bridegroom.

Mrs. Wilfred Ellis, mother of the sister, of the bride, was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids, Mrs. Raymond L. Fonger, of Toronto, and Miss Merna Ellis, of Barrett's, sister of the bride. Both were gowned alike in shepherdcrave dresses in rainbow hues of nylon organzas. They were attired in headdresses and carried harmonizing nosegays of white pom 'mums, roses and sweetpeas.

Mr. Noel L. Fonger, of Cochrane, Ontario, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while Mr. Raymond L. Fonger, of Toronto, also a brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Eric Lahey, of Belleville, were ushers.

The bride's mother, gowned in embossed rayon lace in aqua shade, with black accessories and pink carnation corsage, received the many guests at the Inn of the Quinte Country Club. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in antique Shantung, in Italian blue, with white accessories and corsage of Chief Tacoma carnations.

Congratulatory telegrams were received from Toronto and Sudbury.

For travelling to Niagara Falls, and the New York State, the bride chose a navy and white taffeta ensemble with white accessories, and corsage of soft pink carnations. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Fonger will reside at 19 Valleyview Crescent, Belleville.

Prior to her marriage the bride was the honored guest at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Miss Faye Roberts.

TELLER STOLE $81,000

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A 49-year-old bank teller who earned $265 a month has admitted taking $81,000 during a 30-year period just "for normal living expenses" for his wife and two children. The federal bureau of investigation said Kenneth R. Gardner made the admission after his arrest on a charge of making a false entry involving $600. Authorities said Jackson home is a modest one and that he had only one suit of clothes.

Bridge St. United Church Holds Successful S.S. Picnic

On Saturday, Bridge Street United Church held its annual picnic at Tweed Park on Stoco Lake. This was a picnic not only for the members of the church school, but also for the interested members of the congregation. It was under the capable direction of Ernest Robbs, assistant superintendent of the Sunday School.

Results of Races

The results of the races with the winners of first, second, and third places listed respectively, are as follows:

30 yards dash, girls 6 and 7 years— Paulene Jenitah, Deana Domich, Sandra Bonnetta.

50 yards dash, boys 8 and 9 years—David Blakely, Robert Lloyd, Robert Burr.

50 yards dash, boys 10 and 11 —Ronald Matheson, Bill Lattimer

75 yards dash, boys 13 years and over—Andrew Robb, Bob Lock, Bob Franklin.

Shoe Scramble race, girls—Pat Olsen, Shirley Smith, Diana Mansfield.

Adults' Peanut race — Jack Todds, Jim Musgrove, T. K. Franklin.

As at all picnics, the climax arrived at supper time when baskets were brought forth and the tables were laden with good things to eat. Everyone agreed that this had been a most successful picnic, even the weatherman contributed as the electrical storm did not reach Tweed until evening.

TO ANGLE, TANGLE

KINGSTON (CP) — William Bowsher and his wife, Georgina had their fishing lines tangled together during a recent fishing trip at a nearby cottage. When they pulled the lines in two fish, one over pounds and the other five and a half, were snagged on the lines.

Miss Genevieve Treacy, daughter of Mrs. Roy Treacy, 98 Burnham Street, and the late Roy Treacy, was a recent graduate from St. Joseph's School of Nursing, Hotel Dieu, Kingston. She was a former student of St. Michael's Separate School and High School and at the nurses' graduation was the winner of the silver medal for second highest standing, which was donated by Dr. F. X. O'Connor. Miss Treacy also won the scholarship for pediatrics.

Women's Activities

WHITE'S WOMAN'S ASSOC.

WHITE'S DISTRICT. — Mrs. Clayton Stickle and Mrs. Ron Stickle were co-hostesses on Thursday afternoon for the June meeting of White's Women's Association with a good attendance of members and several children.

The president, Mrs. Ernest Curtis, presided and opened the meeting.

The devotional service was taken by Mrs. William Yeteman, who chose the story of "The Virgins", as her subject. Mrs. Benson Rowsell led in the service, Matthew 25:1-13. The story of the lesson was given by Mrs. Yeteman who also closed the worship service.

There was one new member, one member paid dues and two members made birthday donations. The strawberry ice cream social was discussed and further plans made. It was decided to hold the bazaar at White's Church on Wednesday, October 14.

Mrs. Arnold Ketcheson was in charge of the program. Mrs. Ross Stickle and Mrs. Casey Ketcheson gave readings.

As a result, tools and implements, was won by Mrs. L. Stickle, who received a glass dish.

Mr. Middleton moved a vote of thanks to the hostesses who served refreshments, assisted by Mrs. C. Ketcheson.

CANNIFTON W.M.S.

The June meeting of Cannifton W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Harvey Putman. A welcome was extended to the members and also to the seven visitors who were present.

Items of business. The results of the canvassing for money in place of the annual home cooking sale was most gratifying and a hearty vote of thanks was extended to all who helped in any way to make this a decided success.

The program was in charge of Mrs. G. Preston, the theme of the worship service being "The Holy Bible." It opened with the hymn, "O Word of God, Incarnate," followed by the Scripture by Mrs. H. Rompre. Meditation followed and prayer. Many have been the attempts to put into Our Revised Version of the Bible and this thought: "Thy Word is a lamp to my feet", has occurred that this is an illustration of what should be if the Bible were not thought to be an out-of-date and little-used lamp, but a wonderfully functioning trilamp. One should not read the Bible idly. It should be read to find the courage, or the peace, or the wisdom or the strength that is needed. Read the Bible reverently and read it with an open mind, trusting that you may find in it some word from God to inspire and help you. It is there.

This part closed with the hymn "Breathe on Me, Breath of God", Mrs. Putman's solo was rendering in Bible Study", was given with Mrs. D. Brenton, Mrs. R. Pound, Mrs. R. Williams and Mrs. G. Brenton taking part.

Mrs. D. Brenton gave a reading on "Christian Citizenship" and Mrs. A. Holgate a reading on "Christian Stewardship and Prayer."

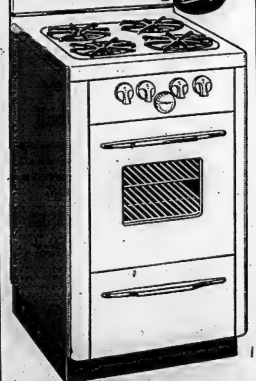
Mrs. Williams gave a few remarks about the new mission field that has opened in Northern Rhodesia.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her helpers.

BAYSIDE W.M.S.

WHITE'S DISTRICT. — Mrs. Frank Leach was hostess to the ladies of the Bayside Woman's Missionary Society on Wednesday afternoon with the president, Mrs. Leach presiding.

The scripture lesson, 1:1-14 was read by Mrs. Walter Jones.



Mrs. Clifton Rush gave a most interesting talk under four headings, "The Grace of God", "The Love of God", "The Worship of God", and "The Communion with God." She closed by reading

Timothy 2:1-6. The offering was dedicated by Mrs. Leach then prayers were offered for missions, for missionaries, for the Queen, and for those in the community.

Mrs. Leach outlined the study book, "Along African Trails", which was very much enjoyed.

It was decided to have a joint meeting of the Bayside W.M.S., the Sunbeam Mission Band, the Bayside Mission Circle, the Baby Band and the mothers at the Bayside school on Wednesday afternoon, July 8. A prize for the oldest and the youngest member will be donated by Mrs. C. Rush and Mrs. Walter Jones. Each family is to bring sandwiches or cake and a social time will be enjoyed.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"How my friend is not appreciated."

Alice—let's call her—is 18 years old. For the past seven months she has been keeping company with a young man which of course isn't his real name.

At only a little past 17, Phil has had to shoulder the adult burden of supporting his family, working day and night, Alice says, in the factory owned by his father, who is ill.

"Because of this," she writes, "it's impossible for us to go out very often, most of the time only on three Saturdays a month. Then, he takes me to two or three times a week and that's all. The rest he doesn't phone I feel very depressed, and make not only myself but my friends very unsociable. I know Phil likes me, but I'm wondering if he's taking it for granted.

"Another thing is that Phil's friends are always coming around. He doesn't keep in touch with them. Also, the girls who are these friends of his have designs on him and because of this I feel very much, and I don't want to hurt him, as it means much to him to have me. He has left, but he hasn't me by his shoulder, and I feel friendless without him when he has the opportunity, or should I break off with him? Do you think it would be wrong? If I went down to his home to visit him occasionally? I don't want it to seem that I am running after him, but he has been asking me to come down and I never have gone."

Don't Appreciate Him

Know what I think? I think that girl is pretty unreasonable to talk about breaking up with a boy when working his head off to support his family, just because he doesn't phone her every day in the week. I never heard of such nonsense.

That lucky girl if she has a steady boy friend who is so considerate and sensible, and above all should think she would want to hang on to him. I should think that instead of whining about his not phoning her enough she would be defending him loyally to these other girls and boys who don't know a worthwhile friend when they see one, and who haven't got the sense to understand how tied down he must be with his work, or the decency to offer to lend him a hand once in a while. Fine friends they are! And a fine one she'd turn out to be if she threw him over for a flighty thing like not telephoning her every other minute. Why doesn't she wake up and show him that she is made of better stuff nor as he has, and let him know that she understands the difficulties, and burdens he has, and that she is going to let him down?

There's no reason why she should'n't drop in at his store occasionally to say hello, as long as she doesn't hang around and interfere with his work. If she does go she should stay only a few minutes, and not spend that few minutes scolding him for neglecting her, so that she leaves him upset and worried. She should use the time to cheer him up and let him know how much she appreciates his good qualities, and how glad she'll be to see him the next time he's able to make a date with her.

Risky Good Times

Of course, this doesn't mean that I think she ought just to sit around and do nothing when he can't be with her. On the contrary, it seems to me, on his side, should understand that it's not normal for a girl of her age to spend hours on end alone. Similar boy can't take her out, and he should be willing to have her see other friends and enjoy good times with them. When they do have an evening together, she should discuss this with him and see if they can't come to an understanding about it.

But for heaven's sake, let her start learning to look at things from other people's viewpoints instead of doddling down inside her own and pulling it over her head so she can't see anything else.

What kind of girl makes parents and friends miserable just because things aren't going to suit her? I'll tell you! A baby girl! That's you, Alice, so how about beginning to grow up?

Special-Purpose Menu

By Mary Moore

Recently the method for roasting a fresh ham appeared here. Since your family is small I was hard put to use the large roast up interestingly, despite the fact that it was first served in a dinner for six.

Of course we used it sliced cold for dinner next day and for Pete's sandwiches in his carried lunches. Then I made the meal at which I served it with Barbecue Sauce and Nut Stuffing (the most appetizer—helped along with the sweet-and-sour frosting on Rita's cake (see below).

Pork Barbecue on a Bun

Cole Slaw with extras
Crushed Strawberries on Ice Cream or Blanc Mange
Rita's Chocolate Cake with Fudge Custard Frosting
Coffee

Directions

Pork Barbecue on a Bun

There are so many methods for this as there are modern housewives and roadside restaurants. But this is the best I can decipher: Rubbed pieces of roasted meat (this may be pork or cooked beef or veal or beef) in very little thin gravy—just enough to moisten the meat and keep it moist while it heats through. Place very generous servings of prepared hot hamburg bun, cut in half. Cover with barbecue sauce, put on top and then lay to, men. Some of the barbecue stands reheat the meat in a covered pan with the barbecue ingredients and gravy. Do it either way but do it.

Barbecue Sauce—No. 1: Melt 1-3 cup butter or margarine and in it saute 1-3 cup chopped onion until tender but not at all brown. Add 1 teaspoon each salt, sugar, thick bottled steak sauce, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 1-2 to 1-2 cup water. Simmer for 2 or 3 minutes. (This No. 1 is very good as a basting for broiled chickens.) No. 2 (Yankee): Mix together 1-2 cup catsup, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 teaspoon tabasco sauce, 7-8 teaspoon chili powder, 1 cup water, 1-2 teaspoon mustard, 1 tablespoon brown sugar. Heat through.

Cole Slaw with Extras

Cabbage should be shredded fairly thin for cole slaw as you know. What kind of dressing you use is your business, but integrating additions are: finely chopped parsley and chives and seasonings to peppercress, chunks of canned pineapple, chopped salad olives, slivers of green pepper or canned pimento, celery seed. Does that give you a few ideas to work with next time you are hungry for slaw?

Rita's Chocolate Cake With Fudge Custard Frosting

Mix together in a small bowl 1 teaspoon baking soda and 1-3 cup good quality cocoa. Stir in 1-3 cup boiling water and let stand while you cream thoroughly 1-2 cup best quality shortening. Gradually add the cocoa mixture, 1 cup brown sugar until very light. Add the beaten yolks of 2 eggs, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla and the cocoa mixture. Sift with 1 cup sour milk or cream. (If you use cream of course the cake will be richer and tenderer.) Stir but do not sift the flour, then measure 2 cups and sift them with 2 teaspoons baking powder and 1-4 teaspoon salt, and fold into mixture. Fold in the stiffly beaten leftover 2 egg whites. This is rather a large cake—it could be used for 2 8-inch layer pans. Butter pans and line with wax paper and butter again. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 40 minutes for 2 large pans, 30 minutes for 8-inch-inch pan; layers take about 25 minutes.

Fudge Custard Frosting

Two tablespoons cornstarch, 4 tablespoons cocoa, 2 tablespoons butter, 3-4 cup sugar, 1 cup boiling water, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Mix in order given (except vanilla) in top of double boiler, stirring until thick. Cover and cook 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Then beat until cool and still creamy enough to spread.

Believe it or not— am reluctant to be immodest—but I know you will be sorry if you don't decide this cake and frosting recipe

ROSLIN UNITED CHURCH W.A.

ROSLIN — The June meeting of the W. A. was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Bailey. The president, Mrs. Carman Bailey, opened the program in the usual manner. Psalm selection 723 was read responsively. Roll call showed 12 members and one visitor present.

Mrs. Harry Sayers gave the treasurer's report. It was decided to have a quilting and dinner in the church vestry.

Mrs. Freeman Howe, leader for the evening, opened the program with a hymn and read the 21st Psalm. Mrs. John Fargey read an inspirational story about Queen Elizabeth II.

"The Balmoral Story" was read by Mrs. Joe Chisholm and Mrs. Howes read, "The Servant of His People."

Mrs. Bailey served refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Name Of Church In Marriage Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beecksman:

In September I am to be married in the chapel of the church which I have always belonged, which I am very active, and which I am very devoted and very deeply devoted. At the ceremony there will be only the members of the two families, and there is to be no reception. However, we will send out a large number of engraved announcements, and on these I had hoped that I could include the name of my church. But I have been told by several of my relatives and friends that this is not correct, and, as a matter of fact, I never have received a marriage announcement on which this was done. Will you please advise me about this? — W.

I'm happy to tell you that the your marriage announcements it is absolutely correct to give the name of the church in which the ceremony was performed, and today this is done more and more; I very much like the idea. . . and it would be most significant in your case, where you have such a close and devoted connection with the church.

The name of the church comes after the date. Like this:

On Tuesday, the eighth of September Nineteen hundred and fifty-

— Grace Church
Haven, Connecticut

How Best to Spend Savings To Celebrate Engagement

Dear Mrs. Beecksman:

We are going to announce our engagement soon. My fiance and I have saved enough money for some kind of celebration of our engagement, and he would like your advice as to what to do. Both his family and my family are living in small apartments, too small for an engagement-announcement dinner. So we thought we would give a dinner for both families at a restaurant or night club. With our savings we could afford that dinner, but not a large engagement party (Am I correct in assuming that it is the engaged girl's family who are supposed to give this dinner?) — M.

Since it is supposed to be your parents who give any occasion at which your engagement is announced, would the following be a possible "allocation" of the budget? If your parents aren't able to pay for the dinner, couldn't you apply some portion of your savings to give a simple little dinner at your home, inviting only your fiance and his parents and perhaps some other members of his immediate family? (Or invite them to lunch on Sunday, or to tea or other refreshments late Sunday afternoon.) This would announce the engagement and get started the close and important relationship between your parents and his. Then, as soon with a small towel. It is very easy to cream the skin to the throat, in which event your facelocks will be a bit stringy next day. See that the rear tresses are tucked up and under.

Spread a nourishing cream over your face, using upward and outward strokes with flattened fingers. Be careful not to push up the flesh around the eyes.

Hands are not all that should be.

Then smooth your neck—front, back and sides—using downward strokes between the collar bones and the chin. Clasp your fingers together at the back of your neck and turn your head from side to side, rubbing the skin smoothed. If there are discolored skin scales present, as happens when the flesh has a dry appearance, they will be loosened. Also, the skin will become smooth and pearly under tender usage. A small investment in the cause of beauty, and it pays good dividends.

While you are taking a backward glance in your mirror, note the lines of your back. Have your shoulders a pleasing pose? If not, it may be because of incorrect posture.

You will find your triple mirror pure joy when regarding your hairdo. No little rag tags and bobtails will make it untidy. You will catch them, put them in place.

Beauty

Revelations of a Triple Mirror

Have you one of those cute little triple mirrors hanging before your dressing table? If not, let fall some provocative hint when your next birthday is approaching. It is a necessary part of every girl's beauty equipment. Just when did you last see the back of your neck? And your rear hairdo? You should take a frequent survey of that territory. Necks are not all that they should be. The fragrance of scarves and furs can discolor them.

All the neck ever gets is a swish of the washcloth once or twice a day—no fragrant creams, as are lavished on the complexion and hands. It is left to its own devices. Blackheads can lodge there, in which event a sponging with cas de cologne is necessary to dislodge them.

If a girl could see herself as others see her, she wouldn't merely powder in front of her ears and under her chin; she would backcomb her neck. And it wouldn't do a bit of harm to include the nape line.

Before you start your nightly beauty chores, bind back your hair after this as you wish, give a party to celebrate the engagement, a simple late-afternoon party on Saturday, perhaps in the apartment of your fiance's family (many guests can be accommodated in even a very small apartment . . . and they love it); invite all the relatives and friends with whom you wish to share the happy news, and serve the simplest of refreshments. As are you listening . . . these parties needn't cost so much as the restaurant or nightclub dinner for only the six. (So you'll have some funds left over for whatever you wish!)

Fashion Flashes

COOL CHARM is at its best in a new group of dresses for women. Triple sheer rayon print, in a neat black design on white, is used for a very useful and pretty dress. Black velvet outlines the deep V cardigan neckline and continues from above the zipper to below the waist. It also edges the short-sleeved, turn-back cuffs and makes a tailored belt. Softened pleats at side of skirt.

COOLISH nights at the theatre bring out many silk suits. Lightweight black silk brocade makes a smart suit that features a boxy jacket instead of the usual fitted one. Shawl collar stands away in back for a flattering frame, and there are wide turned-back cuffs on the easy sleeves. Skirt is straight and slim.

NEVER! so much velvet as we've noted this season for hats. Large and small it's velvet all the way, say store buyers. A typical model is a profile shell of black velvet trimmed on the side with a large, soft black feather pompon and finished with a flat black velvet band across the crown.

THE ETERNAL LURE of lace is nicely interpreted in a floor-length, strapless evening dress, the white lace fashioned in a delicate rose pattern. A row of cartridge-pleated white organdie edges the fitted, heart-shaped decolletage, and the full skirt is accented with curved rows of the pleating. At the waistline in back is a floor-length sash of white moire.

God Knocked Out Of Our Schools Trustees Told

EDWIN INN (CP)—Joseph Connell, secretary of the Kitchener YMCA, said Monday that many school boards have become overanxious in their attempts to keep schools non-denominational.

They have created places where the name of God is mentioned with hesitation, he told the 34th annual convention of the Urban and Rural Trustees Association.

"I'm sure it was never the intention of the persons who created the framework within which our schools operate to have a situation like this," he said.

"God has been kicked out of the schools' back doors. Some boards are so anxious to be fair that they're unfair."

He urged trustees to encourage teachers to bring God back into the classroom.

Mr. Connell also criticized what he termed the uproar over education costs. He said he refuses to worry about any activity over costs as long as the money spent on alcohol and tobacco equals that spent on education.

The convention warned that as a result of the education department's policy under Education Minister Dunlop, necessary education facilities and programs will have to be curtailed drastically or an increased load will be placed on local taxpayers.

Trustees criticized the reduction of provincial grants and asked the province for more aid. They also said they disapprove of the department's apparent policy of progressively using education costs to the municipalities.

Canada to Have 265 Seats In Next Parliament

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's post-election House of Commons will have three members more than the last and 24 more than the first House after Confederation.

A 1952 redistribution based on the 1951 population census gives membership to 265 from 262. The first House in 1867 had 181 members.

As a result of the redistribution, this is how membership will be divided in the new Commons, with the division at dissolution in brackets:

Newfoundland 7 (7); Prince Edward Island 4 (4); Nova Scotia 12 (12); New Brunswick 10 10; Quebec 75 (73); Ontario 85 (81); Manitoba 14 (14); Saskatchewan 17 (21); Alberta 17 (17); British Columbia 22 (18); Yukon 1 (1); Mackenzie River 2 (1).

Senate Unchanged

In the senate, where appointments are made for life, the number of seats will remain at 102, divided as follows:

Newfoundland 6; Prince Edward Island 4; Nova Scotia 10; New Brunswick 10; Quebec 24; Ontario 24; Manitoba 6; Saskatchewan 6; Alberta 6 and British Columbia 6.

Representation in the Commons is based on population. The representation of each province is determined on the basis of the relation of its population to that of the whole of Canada. There are some exceptions to that general rule.

The British North America Act—the basis of the Canadian constitution—states that no province may have fewer members in the Commons, then in the Senate.

Prince Edward Island, on the basis of population, would be entitled to two members in the Commons. However, since the island has four Senate seats, it retains four seats in the Commons as well.

Special Treatment

The Yukon and Northwest Territories are given special treatment. Up to now, the vast northern area has been represented by one member. In the new Commons, the Yukon will have one member and the Territories a member.

Saskatchewan joined the list of exceptions in the last redistribution. On the basis of population, the province's representation in the Commons, would also have dropped to 15 from 28.

A special provision was enacted to prevent the membership of any province from dropping more than 15 per cent in any redistribution. This meant that Saskatchewan lost three seats instead of five and will have 17 members in the new Commons.

Until 1947, Quebec was used as the yardstick for fixing the representation of the country as a whole. Under the BNA Act, Quebec was given a fixed 65 seats, and the representations of other provinces varied in accordance with the ratio of their populations to that of Quebec.

Under this system, membership of the Commons changed frequently up to 1985.

Growth Since 1867

Here are the Commons membership totals at the start of each Parliament:

1867 (Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick), 181; 1872 (Manitoba and British Columbia added), 200; 1874 (P.E.I.), 206; 1882, 211; 1887, 215; 1892, 213; 1896, 213; 1900 (Yukon), 214; 1908 (Alberta), 221; 1911, 221; 1917, 235; 1921, 235; 1925, 245; 1930, 245; 1940, 245; 1945, 245; 1949, 262; 1953, 265.

Provincial representation has fluctuated considerably through the years.

Ontario started with 82, went as high as 92 and now will have 85. Nova Scotia had 19 originally and went as high as 21. It will have 12 in the new Parliament.

New Brunswick had a high of 16 late in the last century and now will have 10. Manitoba started with four, rose to 17 and now drops to 14. British Columbia began with six, rose to 16 in 1933 and now gets 22. Prince Edward Island had six originally and then fell to four in 1904.

Saskatchewan, starting with four, rose to 21 in the 1930s but now falls back to 17. Alberta had an initial seven which rose to 17 in 1933. The total has remained unchanged since then.

Quebec has had 65 members from 1867 to the 1940 election when it gained eight new seats through the change in the system of redistributing membership. It gained two additional seats in the latest redistribution, bringing its total to 75.

PLEDGE NATO SUPPORT

ANKARA (Reuters)—Greece and Turkey today pledged all-out support of the Atlantic Pact and their friendship agreement with Yugoslavia, as Greek Prime Minister Alexander Papagos ended his state visit here. In a joint statement the two countries promised to "extend their efforts unremittingly" to build up collective security under the two pacts.

Lovers' Walk Behind Parliament Buildings Has Lost Appeal

By ANTHONY DICKASON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Lovers these days prefer highways and autos to byways and grottoes.

Indicative is the most famed lovers' walk in Canada, an intriguing three-quarter mile path hugging the face of the cliff behind the Parliament Buildings here.

For years the many rustic benches lining the walk were popular sitting-out spots. Some folks merely meandered along the undulating path that hangs, ribbon-like, on the southern cliff slope of the Ottawa river.

Banned to Public

Today the walk is banned to the public; cut off from local citizens and interested tourists by locked iron gates. Broken wine and beer bottles scar its length. In places the walk has tumbled into the river below. For this reason it was closed prior to the war as "dangerous."

But even before this, popularity of the "walk of the lovers" had waned. Oblivious to any advent of the horseless carriage spelled partial doom. People, in out of love, became disinterested in the natural loveliness of the close-to-home walk.

In 1937, a local paper commented that the walk was "not what it used to be 25 to 30 years ago."

However, not all its appeal was forgotten. In 1947, former Prime Minister Mackenzie King, always a lover of nature, wrote the public works department inquiring anent the path. He was told it had been closed for some years and that repair work was not considered economically feasible.

Each year snow and ice plus natural erosion have crumpled the natural ledge. From an original width of six to 12 feet it shrank in places to less than four feet. This, together with the uncontrolled growth of trees and bushes, made the path nearly impassable.

Raft Man's Short-Cut

A hundred years ago the big, bare feet of study raftsmen trod the walk as short-cut to their homes in Lowertown, today's residential place—from their job of ferrying timber down through Chaudiere rapids, a mile and a half upstream.

Many years later when Ottawa was chosen as Canada's capital by Queen Victoria, Hon. William Macdougall, public works minister in

Royal Highland Games Great Athletic Event

By IAN McEWAN

BRAEMAR, Scotland (Reuters) —Visitors from all over the world will boost the 500 population of this quiet little highland village to about 30,000 when Scotland's greatest athletic event, the Royal Highland Games, takes place here Sept. 3.

Sightseers will jostle through the single-street village, situated on the banks of the River Dee, to a grassy bowl 1,100 feet up to see brawny Scots displaying their strength.

Last year the games attracted 40,000 persons. This year that record is expected to be beaten by 10,000 or more.

The organizers say that applications for the Coronation year games have been "phenomenal and unprecedented," with many from Canada, Australia and the United States.

The little grandstand in the Princess Royal and Duke of York Memorial Park, where the games are held, was filled in four days when bookings opened this month. Some 4,000 ringside seats went quickly while standing room, too, now is nearly all taken.

The form of the games has changed little since they were started nearly 1,000 years ago. They consist mainly of pipe band contests, highland dancing competitions and feats of skill, such as tossing the caber.

Being a highland meeting, one of the main attractions is tossing the caber, a heavy pine log. Braemar has a special one. It is 21 feet long and weighs 224 pounds.

The highlight of the day is always the arrival at the games of the Royal Family, "the Royals", as the locals call them.

Their visit is never announced beforehand. But the crowd always seems to know when they leave Balmoral, the royal home on Deeside, eight miles from Braemar, to drive down into the village.

The villagers hope that the Queen and Duke of Edinburgh will attend the Coronation games this year along with four-year-old Prince Charles and two-year-old Princess Anne.

Eligible Voters Greatly Increased For Election

OTTAWA (CP)—The number of eligible voters in Canada will hit a peak—perhaps topping the 8,500,000 mark—in the Aug. 10 general election.

The election will be the 22nd since Confederation in 1867 and there has been a steady increase in the number of voters in every contest since 1900.

In the last election—June 27, 1949—a total of 4,851,076 more votes were cast than in 1900. There were 7,803,629 registered electors in 1949 and 5,903,572 of them voted.

Based on natural population increase and immigration, preliminary surveys indicated that there will be approximately 8,500,000 eligible voters this year.

Huge Increase

In 1900, a year in which women had no franchise, the vote total was 953,686. The increase since then reflects the extension of the vote to women, the heavy rise in the country's population and generally-increased interest in government.

In 1900, when the main election issue was the trans-continental railway problem, the vote rose to 1,-930,186. It jumped again to 1,173,-934 in 1926, when tariff problems joined with the railway issue to sharpen voting interest. The thorny question of reciprocity with the United States pulled the voters out again in 1911 and the vote total climbed to 1,307,536.

Three factors in the war election of 1917—the proposed union government, conscription and the women's franchise — resulted in the sharpest rise in the popular vote up to that time. The ballots totalled 2,960,325, including some 250,000 or more soldier votes.

Women generally voted for the first time in 1921 and their ballots swelled the total to 3,119,206—1,-235,977 more votes than were counted in 1917.

Rate Slowed Down

The rate of increase slowed down in the 1925 and 1926 elections, in which the main interest stemmed from constitutional questions, trade and tariff matters. In 1925, the popular vote totalled 3,168,413 and in 1926 it inched up to 3,373,062.

The depression years brought with them the complex problem of unemployment and focussed attention on Canada's domestic economy. The popular vote climbed to 3,362,481 in 1930 and then swung over the 4,000,000 mark for the first time in history in 1935, when 4,406,854 ballots were cast.

In 1940, when the Liberal government successfully appealed for re-election to carry on the war effort, a total of 4,830,289 voted.

In the 1945 general election, fought mainly on war and post-war policies, the number of voters totalled 5,368,130, including 250,678 service votes.

CAMPBELLFORD

Farming Leader, E. L. Anderson, Goes to Milliken

CAMPBELLFORD—A man who has had a remarkable record of service in this community in the field of agriculture, E. Lindsay Anderson, has announced his resignation as leader of the Campbellford Calf Club and secretary of the Northumberland Holstein Club. Mr. Anderson has accepted the position of herd superintendent at the Massy-Harris Farms, Milliken, Ontario, where one of the top Holstein herds in the Dominion is being built up.

Mr. Anderson has been leader of the Campbellford Calf Club for the past two years and has been secretary of the Northumberland Holstein Club since its inception in 1934.

"The Calf Club work has given me more pleasure than anything in my experience as breeder of a judge," said Mr. Anderson. One of his club members, Bill Pethenick of Campbellford, was the Bank of Commerce gold watch for the highest scoring member in Northumberland County last year, Bill and his brother, Eldon, have been well up in the All-Canadian junior judging competitions for past few years.

Several Campbellford 4-H club members have been at the top or near the top at the Belleville and Peterborough contests over the the past few years.

Mr. Anderson refers to G.E. (Gerry) Nelson, Brighton, chairman for the east-central Ontario district as his prize exhibit, since Gerry was for seven years, a member of the calf club here.

Promoted

During the past five years Mr. Anderson has been either president or vice president of the Quinte District Holstein Breeders' Association, and is a member of the bull buying committee of that organization.

With the exception of six head which he is taking to M and H Farms with him, these including the silver seal producer, Glendale Opal Posch, the entire Glendale herd is being sold.

The local herd was established by Lindsay Anderson's father in 1921. Lindsay Anderson built the first purebred Holstein soon after he graduated from high school. Mr. Anderson gives a great deal of credit for the development of his herd to his father, who is still hale and hearty at 80 years of age.

PICTON

Annual Service Held on Sunday At White Chapel

PICTON. — The historic White Chapel, on the high shore road, one mile east of Picton, was the scene of the annual service Sunday afternoon. Despite a 32 degree temperature, the edifice, which was built in 1809, was filled to capacity. Rev. F. J. Whiteley, of Picton United Church conducted the service. He was assisted by Rev. Carmen Sexton of Milford.

The chapel was built on land donated by Stephen Conger and has been a place of continuous worship since 1809. Now, annual services are held but not so many years ago services were held each Sunday. The interior is much as it was when built. There are great hand-hewn beams holding the flat balcony, and the pulpit is reached by seconding steps. In the cemetery around the church lie many of the county's early settlers. It is also recorded in history that, on one occasion, annually, as it is believed to be the oldest shrine of Methodism in continuous use in Canada.

Says Christie Under-Sexed, Fascinated by Dead Bodies

LONDON (CP)—A psychiatrist said today that Dr. Reginald Christie—who admits killing seven women in a grisly sex-murder drama rivalling the exploits of Jack the Ripper—was under-sexed and fascinated by dead bodies.

Dr. J. A. Hobson told a tense and packed Old Bailey courtroom that Christie was more indignant when testimony placed him beside a tavern than he was at evidence of the gruesome slayings.

Hobson was called to buttress the defence contention that Christie was insane when he committed the murders with strangling cord and gas tube. He said Christie's fascination for dead bodies started when, as a boy, he saw the dead body of his grandmother.

Hobson followed Christie in the witness box after the long-jowled defendant told the jury there was "no reason, no sense" in the slaughter.

Christie's lawyers described him as "timid as a mare when he's going to be kills people."

Nervously working his long fingers, Christie haltingly admitted garrotting three more women, a total of seven at his first murder trial progressed through its third day at Old Bailey. Tuesday Christie admitted killing his wife and three other women.

Uses His Hammer

The 55-year-old wartime special constable said the seven victims are the only members-women-he's lying about." He testified Tuesday he "may have" committed even more slayings than those he recounted in the witness box.

Christie technically is on trial only for the murder of his wife, Ethel, whose body was found under the floorboards of the house. His lawyer says he is "guilty but insane."

The seven admitted victims also include three "unknowns" whose bodies were found in a walled-up cubbyhole in the apartment, two other women whose skeletons were dug up from the garden, and the wife of a neighbor, Mrs. Beryl Evans.

Defence counsel Derek Curtis-Bennett asked Christie whether, while showing his flat to prospective renters, he was "conscious of the fact when talking with them that on your premises there were four dead bodies."

"I never gave it a thought," Christie replied gently.

Leier, Curtis - Bennett asked. "Did you leave the house conscious that you have left four bodies you were responsible for killing?"

Didn't Think

Cross - examining, Attorney-General Sir Lionel Heald questioned Christie about the end of his wife:

"You killed her consciously and deliberately?"

Christie mumbled: "I didn't say whether it was conscious and deliberate. I must have been."

Sir Lionel pursued: "You knew what you were doing perfectly well?"

The defendant said softly: "No, I didn't think at all."

Christie said he put his wife's body under the floorboards "because I did not want to be separated from her and lose her. That is why I put her in the house."

Tuesday, Christie wept as he told the court he strangled his wife with a stocking because he "did not mind seeing her suffer from a convulsion.

Head Against Floorboards

Curtis-Bennett, referring to the bodies found at the death house, asked: "You wanted to be sure that at the moment of each case you do not remember what happened?"

Christie answered softly: "No, I do not remember."

The lawyer continued: "You were not conscious of doing wrong?"

"No," the defendant said.

Revenue Surplus Of $327,649 Shown by N.B.

FREDERICTON (CP)—A revenue surplus of $372,649 for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1952, and a reduction in the net debt were reported in New Brunswick's annual financial statements issued today by Provincial Secretary-Treasurer D. D. Patterson.

The net debt at the fiscal year-end was $19,133,409, a reduction of $2,343,259. Actual revenues exceeded estimates by $3,803,651 while expenditures were $4,747,183 higher than estimated, mostly because of capital expenditures charged to revenue account.

It is believed that the New Brunswick electric power commission showed a deficit account of $348,059.

Trustees Want More Money For Education

HIGWIN INN (CP)—The Urban and Rural Trustees' Association Tuesday decided to by-pass the Ontario department of education and go directly to Premier Frost and the cabinet in an attempt to get more money for education.

A resolution urging this move was passed by the association at its annual convention here because delegates said real estate will be unable to carry the burden of increasing education costs much longer.

Dr. G. A. Wheable, president of the Ontario Education Association and superintendent of education at London, Ont., said many school boards will be sunk unless we can do something right away to start preparing for the tidal wave of pupils which will soon hit our secondary schools."

He said the education department is not to blame because it can only budget the money allocated to it by the government.

Question Presented

A written question presented during a question period asked what steps could be taken to stop from having all the grade A teachers. It was stated that Toronto gets the pick of the teachers from Normal School every year, leaving the less experienced teachers for the smaller centres.

G. A. Pearson, Ontario's superintendent of elementary education, said it is a serious problem. Fundamentally it was a case of salaries and living conditions in the various communities.

"I don't know how we can avoid the situation," he added.

Not a Panacea

A. R. Pyack of Hamilton, vice-president of the Ontario Association of Architects, told the convention that a standardized set of blueprints for school construction is not the panacea to reduce school building costs.

Mr. Pyack said such plans would affect only about three per cent of the total cost of schools. If such a scheme had been in use in 1945, the great economies achieved in school construction since the end of the war would not have been possible.

Court Rules Man Able to Conspire With His Wife

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario Court of Appeal ruled Tuesday that in effect a man can conspire with his wife to commit a crime.

It said in a judgment the common law established in England during the reign of Edward III that a man and his wife cannot conspire together because they are one person in the eyes of the law is a legal fiction "that has no place in our present society."

The Appeal Court handed down its ruling in dismissing an appeal by Harry Kowbel, sentenced to five months in jail for conspiring with his wife, Beatrice, to commit forgery.

Mr. Justice R. E. Laidlaw, who wrote the MAJORITY decision, said a married woman in Ontario "is not under any disability to contract with her husband and may even make an agreement with one another in the same manner and for the same purposes as though they were separate persons."

Packing Firm's President Dies

A nephew of the late Senator Pat Burns and a son of Thomas and Honora Burns, he was born at Kirkfield, Ont., and moved with his family to Minnedosa, Man., in 1891.

Mr. Burns moved to Calgary in 1901 and joined the staff of P. Burns and Co. Ltd., which then employed only 26 persons.

He later became general manager, president and chairman of the board of Burns and Co. Ltd., president of Palm Dairies Ltd. and Consolidated Fruit Co. Ltd.

Under his direction the company expanded its operations from Alberta and British Columbia into meat-packing plants at Regina, Prince Albert, Winnipeg and Kitchener.

McCURRIN FOR LIBERALS

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP)—The West Middlesex Liberal Association Tuesday night unanimously named Robert McCubbin, MP for West Middlesex, as the party's standard bearer for the riding in the federal election Aug. 10. This was Mr. McCubbin's fourth nomination to contest a federal election. The Springbank district farmer was successful in the other three.

Stop Too Soon In Many Efforts To Save Drowned

TORONTO (CP)—Artificial respiration should be kept up for at least four hours, if necessary, in attempts to revive apparently-drowned persons, Dr. Gordon Bates, director of the Health League of Canada, said in a statement Tuesday.

"It has been more than 10 years since a league committee reached this conclusion," he said. "Yet it is surprising that the lessons learned at that time seem to be frequently to have been forgotten and that, time after time, one reads newspaper reports of artificial respiration having been stopped too early."

Dr. Bates said there is hope of reviving persons who have been in the water as long as a half an hour and even though the usual signs of life—pulse, heartbeat, reflexes—are absent.

Would Increase Tax Exemptions

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia Tuesday advocated exemptions in personal income tax of $2,000 for single men and $3,000 for married men with an additional $750 for each child.

Interviewed on his way to a Social Credit party conference at Toronto July 25 and 26, Mr. Bennett said the purchasing power of Canadians must be increased if increased production is to be used up.

The best way to increase purchasing power is by raising income tax exemptions thereby boosting take-home pay without increasing cost of production, he said.

Ten Persons Die In Mau Mau Raid

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Ten persons including six whites were believed dead today following a Mau Mau attack on a farm house.

Officials said 15 of the anti-white terrorists burned down the house Tuesday night and the white occupants—a mechanic, his wife and four children—were thought to have died in the blaze.

The attackers also killed three African employees at the farm. A fourth African was escaped into the bush, died later of exposure and shock.

Executions Follow Berlin Riots

Smoke billows from a burning building in the Potsdamer Platz section of East Berlin during demonstrations by the people against the red-ruled government of East Germany. The building was set afire by demonstrators. There are fresh reports from East Germany that thousands are again rioting and demonstrating against the government and red troops. Dozens of arrests and firing squad executions are reported. — Central Press Canadian.

Unusual Kindness Shown Orphan Boy by Reds Behind Iron Curtain

By DON DOANE

BERLIN (AP)—Unusual kindness is the lot of a homeless East Zone boy in the Communist-ruled Curtain briefly today to let an 11-year-old orphan boy slip out of Red-torn East Germany to a haven with relatives in West Berlin.

With all his belongings in a rucksack, on his back, little Peter von Delkowsky came all alone from Schwerin, 120 miles to the northeast. When he reached the east-west Berlin border, he met kindness instead of bullets.

A Communist official gave the child a hand-written pass and Communist people's police escorted him across in a radio patrol car.

This was the same border Russian troops and East German police have sealed with tanks and machine-guns ever since the workers' revolt against Soviet rule began last Wednesday. On this same border a 15-year-old boy was shot to death by people's police Monday for jeering and throwing rocks at them.

Peter's story was one of the few touches of human kindness to come out of the last week's epic of bloodshed.

His father a German officer of noble Russian descent, was killed in the war. His mother was "taken away" by the Russians in 1945 and never returned. He lived with his half-deaf, 65-year-old grandmother in Schwerin.

The grandmother became ill recently, and the Communists wanted to put Peter in an orphanage. Both she and the boy balked. They ventured a dangerous experiment.

She packed Peter's rucksack, gave him what little money she could spare, and told him what to do.

He went to the rail station by himself and bought a ticket for Berlin.

When Communist police checked the passengers' papers as they approached Berlin, Peter pretended to sleep. They didn't bother him.

Reaching East Berlin, he met a kind person after another. A man helped him ride the subway to midtown near the western frontier. A woman gave him lodging for the night.

Then he encountered the government's neighborhood watchdogs—the "truzzuverteidigungsman." He is supposed to see that every one who enters his precinct has the proper papers and registers with the police.

Little Peter must have touched his heart. He wrote a letter describing Peter's plight and asking that he be passed through the border guard.

Finally he reached his aunt, 26-year-old Tatjana von Delkowitsky, in West Berlin. She is jobless. So is her fiance. They don't even have enough money to build up "a patriotic working class."

Albanian refugee sources in the west long have reported widespread unrest in the little Adriatic country.

Soldier's Wife And 3 Children Perish in Fire

VANCOUVER (CP)—A soldier stunned by tragedy returned Tuesday night to the army camp where all four members of his family perished in a short but lethal fire.

The soldier, Sgt. Robert Lecuyer, was flown back to his home after news of the tragedy was broken to him while he was away for summer training in Calgary.

Mrs. Eileen Lecuyer, 22, died with her three children Tuesday after making a courageous attempt to save them as they slept in the upstairs of the Lecuyer home at the nearby Royal Canadian School of Military Engineering.

All were suffocated. An RCMP officer said in describing the 15-minute fire, of undetermined origin, that "there wasn't much flame—just smoke."

100 Are Killed As Indo-China Train Wrecked

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—Railway officials announced today that about 100 or more persons were killed when a passenger train plunged 50 feet through a sabotaged viaduct Tuesday in east Indo-China.

Two locomotives and 18 cars crashed down into a ravine at the "Col des Nuages (pass of the clouds)," a mountain pass on the route between the ancient Annamite capital of Hue and the port of Tourane. The pass has frequently been the scene of attacks by the Communist Vietminh rebels.

Rescue crews still searched the wreckage today and fears were expressed that the death toll would rise. There was no estimate of the number of injured.

Albania Peasants May Keep Crops

LONDON (AP)—Another Soviet satellite announced concessions to its population today. Albania's government, via radio Tirana, said the peasants no longer have to hand over their harvest to the state.

The broadcast said the Red regime hopes thus to build up "a patriotic working class."

East Germans Are Invited To Discuss Their Grievances At Red-Sponsored Gatherings

By TOM REEDY

BERLIN (AP)—East Germany's shaky Communist government invited its rebellious subjects today to air their grievances in Red-sponsored public discussions.

The new policy obviously was designed as a safety valve to keep the east zone from exploding again into open warfare, but the Soviet radio Berlin commented that the discussion sessions also would give the government a chance to explain its "new course."

The Russians, however, gave no major sign of lifting their iron grip imposed after the open rebellion began a week ago. Martial law still prevailed and a curfew emptied the streets nightly.

The Russians made only a few minor concessions, allowing East and West Berliners who work across the gun-ringed frontier to cross at three special points, and releasing 800 West Berliners caught in the Soviet zone during the revolt.

Maj.-Gen. P. T. Dibrova, Soviet commander in East Berlin, lifted the ban on public meetings to permit operation of the East German satellite government's new discussion program.

The east regime's dominant German Communist party secretary-general, Walter Ulbricht, announced that disgruntled senior workmen in plants and factories would have a chance to air their complaints before a special meeting.

Radio Berlin commented that "many still do not understand our new course" and that at the meeting "explainers appointed by the government engage immediately in this important work to develop democracy on the German Soil."

To Unfold Plans

East German Premier Otto Grotewohl told a workers meeting that new plans would be unfolded in the next several weeks to carry out the regime's promises of improvement in the working man's lot.

Already the Communists have abolished the recently-ordered 10 per cent work speedup, restored cheap rail and bus tickets for workers, increased pensions and separated sick leave from annual vacations.

To the rebellious farmers, the government has promised an end to collectivization and a review of the oppressive crop quota system. Even the secret police have also pledged revival measures for almost-scrapped light private industry. The Reds said they had turned 40 nationalized plants in Leipzig and East Berlin back to their former owners Tuesday.

SUPER-LUCKY CLOVER

OTTAWA (CP)—Four-leaf clovers? William Berthelet, 70, Tuesday found a four-leaf clover growing beside a five-leaf clover which was growing beside a six-leaf clover. He plucked the three oddities of nature from the lawns of Rideau Hall, residence of the governor-general.

LIBERAL CANDIDATE

HAMILTON (CP) — John P. O'Reilly, barrister here for 28 years, Tuesday night was chosen as Liberal candidate for Hamilton West in the Aug. 10 federal election. He will be opposed by Allen Fairclough, Progressive Conservative who held the seat in the last House, and Alex Muir, CCF.

Girls in Circus Must be Healthy

While a circus performance embraces many types of allurement, its basic formula is "girls, horses, clowns and elephants," with plenty of each category, especially girls.

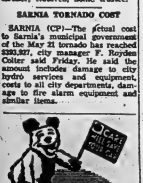
The girls with the Ringling Bros and Barnum & Bailey Circus, coming to Belleville, Wednesday, July 1st, must not only be pretty but pretty healthy, too.

For, although the Big Show may remain glamor and grease-paint and pictures in the papers, it is also hard grinding work. The circus girl must be prepared to face all kinds of weather, to travel constantly, to stay lovely through dust and mud, biting wind and blinding heat. At performance time she must be ready to march in a "spec," change with lightning speed to "fly" in an aerial ballet, change again to ride in the elephant number, then to serve as a foil in a clown act, and so on until the glittering and well-earned finale.

As arduous as the routine becomes, it is always the experience of a lifetime for girls with The Greatest Show on Earth. Which is why the Ringling roster in recent years has included such varied and attractive specimens of Womankind as a junior League deb from St. Louis, an ex-Army nurse from Dallas, a model from Manhattan, a restaurant hostess from Ohio, a farmer's daughter from Indiana, a refugee from a German concentration camp and scores of others from far and near.

With a host of new acts and features from Europe, together with four great new spectacles, including a magnificent $200,000 super-production, the world's largest travelling amusement organization is now mightier than ever in appeal to young and old.

Performances begin at 2:15 and 8:15 P.M., with the doors open at 1 and 7.



100F OFFICERS CHOSEN

TORONTO (CP) — George E. Harrison of Ripley Thursday night was elected grand warden of the Ontario Grand Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, at the biennial organization's annual convention.

SARNIA TORNADO COST

SARNIA (CP)—The actual cost to Sarnia's municipal government of the May 21 tornado has reached $393,827, city manager F. Royden Colter said Friday. He said the amount included damage to city hydro services and equipment, costs to all city departments, damage to fire alarm equipment and similar items.

ST. LAURENT

Mr. Drew said the Liberal government is "old and tired in office." It is time for a change, an opportunity to examine the books and institute a reorganization of government.

Not Historically Correct

Mr. St. Laurent's statement Monday night that Canada's economic strength, world stature and unity were achieved when Liberals were in office was not historically correct.

Mr. Knowles said Canada no longer can afford to be without a national health insurance program. The $500,000,000 Canadians spend yearly plus another $200,000,000 would finance such a program. The $8,000,000,000 increase in production of wealth since 1949 would pay defense costs, ordinary government costs and health and security measures proposed by the CCF.

It also was only fair that the old age and blind pensioner share in the 58-per-cent increase in perchcion of wealth by having pensions -increased to $60 a month from the $40 set in 1948.

Mr. Knowles said the national health insurance plan could be financed from the $500,000,000 a year already spent on health care by individuals, together with another $100,000,000 or $200,000,000.

"No single step would do more for the peace of mind, the happiness, the economic efficiency of the Canadian people than the inauguration of a national health plan such as we of the CCF have been urging."

In Montreal, Leon Balcer, Progressive Conservative member of the last Commons for the Quebec constituency of Trois-Rivieres, said federal taxes can be reduced by a large government.

The statement was contained in a half-hour speech prepared for broadcast over the CBC's French network on time allotted for political speeches.

Mr. Balcer, president of the Young Progressive Conservatives of Canada, urged support of his party in the Aug. 10 general election and mobilized the strength of Liberal members from Quebec during the last parliament.

Promises Health Plan

Trade Minister Howe said a Liberal government would introduce a sound, workable health insurance scheme as soon as it can be done without putting too big a burden on the Canadian people.

He spoke at an Ottawa West nominating convention which picked George McIlraith, his parliamentary assistant in the last Commons, as Liberal candidate for the election.

External Affairs Minister Pearson said at Strathroy, the signing of an armistice in Korea may be the forerunner of more serious international situations that the United Nations may face.

Addressing a political rally of West Middlesex Liberal Association the president of the United Nations general assembly claimed recognition by the UN of Red China is a problem that most certainly will have to be considered after hostilities are ended in Korea.

"The recognition of Red China by the free nations of the world is a controversial issue," he said. "After an armistice in Korea it is likely that a round table conference will be held among all the countries, and this meeting, I should think, would take the form of a political conference."

Wants Debts Paid

Agriculture Minister Gardiner says the federal government can budget for $300,000,000 a year less than at present, but then no progress would be made in paying off Canada's debts.

Mr. Gardiner also referred to Mr. Drew's promise to restore the overseas markets for farm products.

Canada, because of her federal system of 11 governments, was handicapped in making and keeping her commitments to Great Britain. Britain preferred to buy elsewhere because of a guaranteed supply and cheaper products.

But this worked no hardship on the Canadian farmer because Canadians were able to eat all of the butter, cheese and bacon produced in Canada and almost all the beef and the prices of these commodities in Canada were considerably higher than they were on the overseas markets.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking along with Lucky Leroy Shooster hitting trees and things with 2 sticks, and he was bragging about how lucky he is, and I said, Well if you are, go ahead and prove it. Make something lucky happen, I said.

Okay, here's the bank, Lucky Leroy said, and I said, What of it?

You wait here a while and you'll see, Leroy said. Just because I'm with you I bet we'll be lucky enough to see some holdup men run out with bags full of money and make their getaway, he said.

And we waited and nothing kept on happening, and I said, Aw, I'm getting tired, I'm going home.

Well hay, I tell you what, Lucky said. We'll go inside the bank and say, "This is a stickup" and I bet we'll just be lucky enough to have the man push a pile of money at us to save his life, and then I'll tell him we were only talking to ourselfs, and I'll pull this stick out from under my sweater to prove I was just saying, "This is a stick up my sweeter," and we'll get a big reward for honesty.

Soundin like a good idea if it worked, and we went in and got at the end of a line of people moving to cash checks and things, and we got nearer and nearer to the man behind the window with the money, making me nervius and nervioser, and all of a suddin there was only 2 people ahead of us—and I said, Aw, let's beck with it, this line is moving too slow, I aint going to wait.

Then there's no use of me waiting either Lucky Leroy said, I can't pretend to be talking to myself, he said.

And we got out of line just in time, Leroy saying, Anyway, we had the excitement, didn't we? You have to admit that was lucky dont you be said.

MARMORA

I. O. D. E. Hears Monthly Statement

MARMORA. — The monthly meeting of Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E. was held in the Masonic Hall on Thursday evening with the Regent, Mrs. G. H. Rennie, presiding over a good attendance of members.

The flag was brought forward and the prayer of the Order repeated.

Letters Read

Two letters were read by the secretary, one from the Provincial Chapter, mentioned that it had learned that the communist party were running 80 members as candidates in the coming federal election and that members should be alerted and urged to exercise their franchise to support only such candidates as would uphold their democratic principles.

The second letter was from the local recreational committee asking the chapter to sponsor a minor hockey team next season.

Mrs. C. R. Whittemore presented the monthly financial statement which was most satisfactory.

The conveners were thanked by the Regent for their co-operation during the past month—one of the busiest in the history of the Chapter. Their reports followed.

Mrs. C. Hickle gave that of the Flower and Gift committee.

The Regent read the report of Mrs. A. M. Jones, treasurer, of the Marmora Girl Guides' Association, acknowledging total receipts from various local organizations to total $42.50 of which $12.50 was donated by the chapter. Mrs. J. R. English reported on Christmas cards. Mrs. M. Borland for the Sewing committee, came next, and she mentioned as having on hand, material for personal comfort and nursery bags and asked that these be made up and during the summer a quilt of small pieces be made.

Mrs. J. H. McCrodan reported that she had a quantity of wool on hand.

At a previous meeting the chapter decided to recess for the summer.

The motion was carried that in lieu of the usual bake sale, penny boxes be given out and the equivalent of $1.00 be collected from each member.

Donations

A donation of $10 was voted to the National Shipping Fund as well as a donation of $5 to the Marmora Agricultural Society.

Other donations included $25 to Marmora Public Library for purchase of children's books; $50 towards defraying cost of drapes, $100 to the Artificial Ice Fund and $5 to the Minor Hockey League.

It was decided to again operate a booth at Marmora Fair.

Further mention was made of the cooking school to be held Sept. 17 and 18 under the auspices of the Propane Gas.

The next monthly meeting will be held on September 10.

Two new members were admitted into the Chapter.

Mrs. C. Brady, hospitality convener, reported the receipt of hospitality cards for two members who are shortly going overseas.

Refreshments were served.

Will Refuse Base For U.S. Planes

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Denmark's most powerful political party, the Social Democrats, in a surprise policy change Tues. killed plans for U. S. airmen and fighter planes to operate from Danish bases.

Former premier Hans Hedtoft, the faction's chairman, told a party congress here that "as conditions are, we cannot accept this offer."

"We feel that it would not improve the broad rallying around the Atlantic pact to which it must be our task to contribute," Hedtoft added.

The Social Democratic bloc is the largest in Parliament, holding 61 of the 151 seats. The party's opposition means the proposal could not secure parliamentary backing.

British Experts Convinced Heavy Water Can be Made In Harnessing N.Z. Geysers

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — The idea of harnessing underground volcanic forces which feed New Zealand's geysers to make heavy water in the nuclear fission of atomic piles may sound as fan-fetched as Jules Verne, but British experts are convinced it can be done.

The British and New Zealand governments have embarked on a pilot project to put the theory into action on the recommendation of Sir John Cockcroft, leading British atomic scientist.

The plan is to use underground steam from the geysers to heat the earth island, for the dual purpose of producing electricity and making heavy water, a substance used as a moderator in atomic piles.

A New Project

Tests have been going on for three years with the idea of using the steam to make electricity, but the heavy water project is new and tests resulted in an intensified program to locate the larger quantities of steam needed for the enlarged scheme.

For control of the underground volcanic forces have escaped through the "natural valve" of New Zealand's thermal area, a weak point in the earth's crust where a variety of weird phenomena testify to the force of the internal pressures now. There are geysers, boiling lakes, bubbling mud pools, steam blowholes, acres of quaking earth interspersed with steam vents and many colored terraces stained with chemicals thrown up.

At Rotorua, chief town of the thermal regions, the Maoris long ago built villages on the edge of hot pools, using them for natural central heating and primitive pressure cookers.

After Europeans arrived they put down a few shallow bores to get steam for water heating. But until now the chief value of the thermal activity has been as an attraction for thousands of tourists.

For Electric Power

Three years ago the government decided to make a bid to end a serious electric power shortage by trying to harness these natural forces. A wide survey of the thermal areas was made with modern devices.

The steam belt runs from the volcanoes in the centre of the north island in a 25-mile wide strip through Wairakei and Rotorua right out to the east coast and from there some distance out to sea to White Island, an active volcano a few miles off the coast.

The whole of the 150-mile long area offers prospects of steam production, but the most promising site was thought to be in Geyser valley, near Wairakei. Here a series of test bores has been put down to check whether a steady supply of steam is available and what problems from chemical impurities, corrosive steam and the like, are likely to arise in using the steam for electric power.

Last year when Sir John Cockroft director of Britain's atomic station at Harwell, visited New Zealand, he strongly urged the making of heavy water as well as electricity. Heavy water has important advantages and also the great attraction that atomic piles using it do not need so much expensive uranium. Huge Scheme

Now a $15,000,000 project has been started to establish the world's first electricity and heavy water plant.

Tests for steam so far have been highly encouraging. Most of the steam found has been "wet," not the higher quality "dry" steam used at Lardarello in Italy for electricity, but methods have been found for extracting surplus water, and indications are that infinitely more steam is available than in Italy.

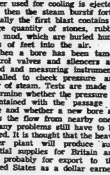
The prospecting process is both spectacular and somewhat hazardous. Giant drilling rigs like oil derricks are used. The drills go down into the layers of superheated crusts until they tap pockets of natural steam trapped there at enormous pressures.

Sometimes the heat becomes so great that the drilling bits burn out and the bore can be driven no farther. One big 10-inch bore went down to 2620 feet before efforts at cooling the bit failed. Another has since been driven even deeper.

Dramatic Moment

When drilling ends, then comes the most dramatic moment—the blowing in of the bore. First the water used for cooling is ejected, and then the steam bursts forth. Usually the first blast contains a large quantity of stones, rubble and mud, which are buried hundreds of feet into the air.

When a bore has been tamed control valves and silencers are fitted and measuring instruments installed to check pressure and flow of steam. Tests are made to determine whether the pressure is maintained with the passage of time and whether a new bore affects the flow from nearby ones.



Many problems still have to be solved. It is thought that the heavy water plant will produce substantial supplies for Britain and also probably for export to the United States as a dollar earner.

Recover Quebec Stolen Car Here

Recovery of a stolen car before the vehicle is reported as stolen is always considered good work on the part of police, but when the persons suspected of its theft are picked up, it's an even better job of police work.

Provincial Constable Howard Tasker spotted what he thought was a suspicious looking car while patrolling on No. 2 Highway. Driving ahead to stop the car for checking, he was surprised when the vehicle suddenly stopped and sped in the opposite direction. Taking up the chase, the officer overtook the car and held the occupants for investigation.

As it turned out the car had been stolen near Sherbrooke, Quebec. Provincial police from that province came to Belleville and returned the two men, Marcel Perras, 20, and Louis Ouilet, 19, to face charges of car theft.

U.N. President Recipient of Gift At Bata Plant

BATAWA (Special) — Dr. C. K. Hsu, president of the Bata Shoe Co. played host to the Hon. Lester B. Pearson Wednesday afternoon offering him the hospitality of the community and presenting him with a "Trent Valley" fishing reel as a gift to remember his visit to Batawa.

For the president of the United Nations Assembly it was like returning to headquarters because the Bata people had decorated their community centre with the flags of all the United Nations. The Minister of External Affairs was taken on a tour through the rubber room of the Bata factory where he met some of the workers and exchanged conversation with them. The U.N. leader appeared in his exceptionally good spirits and his vigor taxed some of the followers in the official party. The distinguished visitor showed interest in the engineering factory, where he took particular interest in the production of precision parts for the famous all-weather jet fighter, the CF-100.

Because the Hon. Mr. Pearson was delayed in Kingston where he addressed a gathering the night before, the majority of the workers in the plant missed seeing him and hearing his short but interesting message. A number of people from Trenton waited outside the factory main entrance for better than an hour waiting for the distinguished member of Parliament to arrive.

Paid Tribute To Czechs

In his talk the President of the U.N. paid tribute to the Czechoslovakian people on becoming new Canadians. He noted that it was not hard for old "Canadians" to be Canadians because they were born there. The Koreans could be Canadians because they were born there. The Koreans could be Canadians because they were born there. The Koreans could

Used Car Stocks in U.S. Greater Than at Any Time

By DAVID J. WILKIE

DETROIT (AP)—Nearly everybody interested in the destiny of the automotive industry is jubilant at the used car situation these days.

Used car stocks in the United States are greater now than they have been at any time. The bankers and finance companies are urging a sharply restricted credit in the handling of used cars. The auto makers are launching their advertising agencies know on the promotion of used car sales and many dealers are concentrating upon used car sales.

There probably is nothing the franchised new car dealer needs less right now than used cars. Yet you can read or hear occasionally that this or that dealer "needs used cars."

One of the things that suggested used car sales have been neglected to some extent in the post-war period is that their ratio to new car sales has declined sharply. Before the Second World War used car sales averaged three for every one new car transaction. Currently they are said to average less than 1.5 to one.

The tremendous accumulation of used autos, of course, grows out of the great volume of new car sales so far this year. Official figures for the first four months plus authoritative estimates for May show that close to 2,750,000 new cars were sold from Jan. 1 through May 31.

Some bankers and finance companies say this pace cannot be maintained throughout the year; some say that indeed drastic corrective measures the used car pile up means trouble for manufacturers and retailers alike.

The used car situation obviously could seriously affect new car sales in the months ahead.

One observer said this week that whatever measures finally are adopted to ease the used car situation the program will have to be subsidized by the car buyer. He would do this, it was explained, chiefly by accepting considerably less for his used car than he expected to get or than has been allowed in the earlier months of the year.

Would Extend Public School Up to Grade 10

REGWIN DON (CP)—Lloyd Spalding, secretary of the Ontario Urban and Rural School Trustees' Association, suggested yesterday that public school education be continued to Grade 10—now second form high school.

The Hamilton board of education administrator told the association's 34th annual convention in the Muskoka resort area that the plan would encourage students to get their Grade 10 graduation certificates and prevent many students from leaving high schools in their first and second years of study.

He suggested Grades 7 to 10 be termed senior public school, or an intermediate school between public and high schools. The plan, he said, would cut education costs by reducing the need for expensive secondary school buildings and equipment, and by reducing the need for specializing teachers.

He said a few communities now operate such plans.

A somewhat similar proposal of the royal commission on education in Ontario was "doomed to failure," he said, because it involved religious and political opinions. This was the idea that Grades 1 to 6 be elementary, 7 to 10 be secondary, and 11 to 13 be secondary on the junior college level.

Mr. Spalding said that under his plan some revision in the elementary curriculum would have to be made. It might be necessary to increase shop instruction and re-examine the emphasis on vocational training.

Mr. Spalding is resigning from his post as secretary-treasurer of the trustees association at the end of the convention because of the pressure of business with his own board.

Briefs From U.K.

BOURNEMOUTH, England (CP)—The "last word" in model railway systems was built here by two enthusiasts who put in 12,000 hours of labor. It carries 23 trains at once, with changing speeds and routes controlled by a system of 173 electro-magnets.

LONDON (CP)—Arthur Sims, 82 will march past the royal dais at the July 5 review of ex-service men and women. Sims, who has attended four coronations, rejected a suggestion that he use the special enclosure for aged and disabled men. He joined the Royal Navy in 1877.

CANVEY ISLAND, England (CP)—Butchers on this little island in the Thames estuary, badly stricken by last winter's floods, distributed free meat to their customers recently. The meat was a gift for flood victims sent from Australia.

LONDON (CP) — The British broadcasting council will ask the government to establish television education in British schools. The first subjects to be taught experimentally by TV would be current affairs, geography and science.

WRITTLE, England (CP)—Rev. J. O. Nicholas sat in the centre of this Essex village by his damaged church bell and personally collected £275 for a new one. A beam sales away by deck-watch beetles had crashed into the old bell.

WOLVERTON, England (CP)—Rev. Ferguson Francis, 48-year-old pastor of the Congregational Church in this Buckinghamshire parish, was married at the church to a 19-year-old girl whom he met while coaching her for a lay preacher's examination.

LONDON (CP)—The British and Foreign Bible Society, with an estimated pre-war deficit of 40,000 Bibles throughout the world, reports it now has supplied 36,000,000 of them. Ten new languages have been introduced, providing Scriptures in 818 languages.

SUTTON, England (CP)—Nearly 1,000 articles were entered at an art exhibition in this Surrey community, ranging from traditional lace work to a 14-foot sailing boat built in a back garden.

ADDINGTON, England (CP)—Nobody knows who owns the village green in this old Kent community. Until it has been ascertained, the council will not have ordered to clean up rubbish.

LONDON (CP)—Recorded nightingale songs played in Berkeley Square for Coronation visitors have disturbed some residents. Now the nightly schedule of broadcast song has been cut from six to four hours.

Eisenhower Must Decide On Aid Program

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower probably will have to decide this week whether he wants to put heavy financial pressure on America's Allies to speed agreement on a West European Army.

The House of Representatives last week voted to withhold by law about a billion dollars in foreign aid funds until European Defence Community (EDC) treaties are ratified. Sunday, Senator Robert Taft (Rep. Ohio) suggested a compromise which would give the president discretionary authority to do the same thing.

Legislative leaders may find out at a White House conference Wednesday whether the president believes such a financial threat to the European commitment would be wise.

The EDC treaties, ratified so far only by Western Germany, would call up 500,000 from six countries for service in a European army.

Urges Patience

Livingston T. Merchant, assistant state secretary, told the Senate foreign relations committee in testimony on the foreign aid bill that he believes "the logic of events" will bring ratification of the EDC treaties'also by France, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Merchant said:

"We must not, in my judgment, become impatient and make the passage of EDC and ratification by a certain date a condition precedent for aid. . . ."

The testimony of Merchant and other officials, taken behind closed doors by the committee, was made public during the week-end.

In it Gen. Omar N. Bradley chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, was disclosed to have told senators he believes Russia is "pulling back" in the cold war. He said that the U.S. already is stockpiling equipment and supplies in West Germany for the arming of German divisions if they are ever created.

Taft is Critical

The hearing transcript included Taft's statement that it is "ridiculous" to claim the U.S. is saving money by financing the manufacture of fighter planes in Britain and France.

Taft said funds those countries receive under the offshore purchases program represent economic aid which will be used "for socialistic purposes in England and for something else in France."

In the fiscal year ending June 30, large contracts reported let total $272,000,000 worth of equipment in Britain, and $263,000,000 in France.

Money was a question also in the state department's new approach to Communist encroachment in the Near East. The idea is to offer separate arms-aid agreements to the Arab countries as a stop-gap to obtaining ultimately a formal Middle East defence alliance.

U.S. Farm Price Supports Struggle Nearing Showdown

This is the first of two stories on the U. S. agricultural situation. Wednesday's story deals with the role of farm organizations.

By OVID MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bitter struggle in the United States farm world today is moving toward a supreme test of President Eisenhower's campaign pledge to give farmers a new agriculture program.

The fight is being waged from the farms to the halls of Congress with make-or-break intensity. The final decision will come next year when Congress must extend or revise present laws governing the farm program.

Around Price Supports

The fight revolves around the federal government's program of high and rigid price supports for the basic crops of wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco, rice and peanuts. This program evolved during 20 years of Democratic administration.

But the Eisenhower forces, led by Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson, want to revise it because they are convinced high and rigid price props encourage the production of huge surpluses, promote products out of markets.

In its simplest form, the Benson philosophy holds the farmer should rely more on his own good sense and business ability and less on government subsidy to realize a truly-sound farm economy.

Small Philosophy

On the other side, opponents claim the high support program was built up carefully over the years and reflects what the farmer is $2.30 a bushel. If a farmer can't sell his wheat at that price, he can take a government loan of $2.30 a bushel and store his grain on his farm or in commercial warehouses.

Surpluses Piling Up

But under this program huge surpluses are piling up. There are around 600,000,000 bushels of wheat already stored in bins, warehouses, elevators and even old liberty ships. The corn surplus runs about 800,000,000 bushels and tons of butter are on storage.

Congress decided that the crops designated as basic—wheat, corn, cotton, rice, tobacco and peanuts—must be supported at 90 per cent of parity.

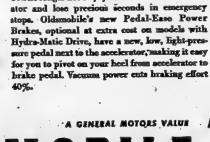
This support device included the practice of making loans to farmers on those portions of their crops which they held off the market. For example, the parity price of wheat is $2.30 a bushel. If a farmer can't sell his wheat at that price, he can take a government loan of $2.30 a bushel and store his grain on his farm or in commercial warehouses.

But under this program huge surpluses are piling up. There are around 600,000,000 bushels of wheat already stored in bins, warehouses, elevators and even old liberty ships. The corn surplus runs about 800,000,000 bushels and tons of butter are on storage.

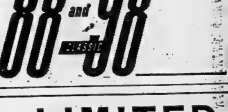
This abundance—for which there is no ready market—is a real problem. Some see it as a threat to the entire farm program if the general public should ever rebel against paying farmers for producing crops which have little chance of being sold in the open market.

That is—where the Eisenhower-Benson argument wins perhaps its strongest support. It isn't likely that any program would survive if it became unpopular with the public.

But even with price supports and last year's record farm production, the U. S. farmer has been realizing less and less for his effort. While farm prices have fallen in the last two years, the cash expenses of the farmer have increased.



In addition, the foreign market for U. S. farm products has slipped from a high of $4,000,000,000 last year to an estimated $3,000,000,000 this year. That's means another left on the domestic market.



POWER STEERING—Until you're tried it, you can't even imagine the miraculous driving ease of Oldsmobile Power Steering! It actually takes 80% of the effort out of steering, yet leaves you the vital "feel" of the wheel—you always know you're in full command of the car. Thanks to Power Steering which is optional at extra cost, you can take hair-pin curves, sharp city corners or pull into "tight" parking spaces without any effort whatsoever!

NEW POWER RIDE—As a fitting companion to its 165 horsepower "Rocket" engine, Oldsmobile has a new, Power-Ride Chassis—heavier, more durable than ever. From front to rear, it's engineered to bring you a smoother, more comfortable "Power Ride"—wherever you go! Features like Centre-Control Steering, 6-point stabilization, angle-set rear springs, a higher-capacity rear axle and a more rugged frame and frame combine to provide better road balance and stability than ever before. See your Oldsmobile dealer—take the wheel of a Super "88" or a Classic "98"!

NEW PEDAL-EASE POWER BRAKES—Now pull up to a safe, sure stop with the touch of a toe! You no longer need lift your foot from the accelerator and lose precious seconds in emergency stops. Oldsmobile's new Pedal-Ease Power Brakes, optional at extra cost on models with Hydra-Matic Drive, have a new, low, light-pressure pedal next to the accelerator, making it easy for you to pivot on your heel from accelerator to brake pedal. Vacuum power cuts braking effort 40%.

Musial Rips Back To Form To Lead Cardinals In Game-Winning Splurge

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

MORE MOORE!

Once in a while followers of the beat-beating game come upon a bout that has a bit of excitement attached to it. Others are those that emanates from managerial tantrums others anything that has a clean bearing on the affair.

Take this Archie Moore – Joey Maxim clash scheduled for tonight, the winner of which will grab the world's light heavyweight gonfalon.

From a strictly sentimental point of view this corner hopes the aging Mr. Moore, a "goat" of the beer-fight fraternity, is never there was one, landmarks Mr. Maxim as head it will take him six months to get back to normal. And while he is doing that, he (Mr. Moore), can include the canny Jack Kearns, Maxim's wily pilot, in the feud.

This department holds no brief for any flicker in these wacky days of manager-controlled beefs. As a matter of fact we would rather see a general mail-brawl between those alleged "brains" of such fighters as Marciano, Walcott, Kearns and the rest of the members of the "Managers' Guild", than many of their ten per-cent meal-tickets.

And as a preliminary you can chuck in the television "experts" who tossell the bouts from a choice ringside seat. We still believe that professional boxing, televised and radio'ed is like professional hockey. There are three tilts. One you see, another you hear and the third one you read.

It is not good policy to "bite the hand that's feeding you," but at least some of those radio and televising announcers can show a little mental respect for the fans. It can be realized that the opposition at least has a right to be in the same league as the home-town heathren. They can still demand that the fighter be a credit to the Americans use for beer. They actually call it by that name.

The odds favor the 36-year-old Archie for the 15-round re-match between the two fighters. The critics generally picked the ancient Moore to duplicate the victory he scored seven months ago in St. Louis, the native city where he fought his first professional bout sixteen years ago.

If you pay any attention to the ranting of Jack Kearns, the former Jack Dempsey mentor, who left one of his tonsils in Chicago after the Tunney "long count", he will have you believe it was not a boxer that beat his boy, but the weight problem.

It seems that Joey, to use an old maxim, loves the food things of life, especially when they are on a plate in front of him.

According to the lilting of the Kearns tonsils, Uncle Joey laid in plenty of groceries instead of laying his tootsies on the asphalt in road-working jaunts. Kearns did not admit that both he and his pudgy meal-ticket counted the veteran Moore too lightly.

That is until a few days before the fight when alarming reports reached the Kearns' camp anent the hitting and herring ability of the foe. Then, (this is Kearns talking), it was too late. Maxim had shed forty pounds in the process to be the official weight of 175 and he did it too quickly. The poor lamabe was weakened, said Kearns, through crocodile tears. (He gets the large economy size at the corner drug store.)

"This time," announced Kearns proudly, figuring the Korean truce talks would cease while he combated, "My boy didn't have to shed forty pounds. He has been training easily for weeks and trimming down from 187 didn't weaken him." We're glad Mr. Kearns posted his alibi before the fight and not the usual way.

Kearns acianly believes that his old Maxim will pull an upset and defeat the courageous Archie. Maxim has the reputation of "being able to take it." It's just as well. If such is the case, because he'll have trouble hankering out of the way of the fast-punching Moore. And wheel chairs are not standard ring equipment.

Which, on the other hand, is cool and confident... He has been training hard and has not been bothered with the weight problem as has the Kearns' Kutie.

It seems to us that both Kearns and Maxim should know when they have had enough. Instead they asked for Moore, and will probably get it.

Timothy Geohagen, the fighting Irishman, will combine his strongman talents with the size and power of Don Leo Jonathan against the family name of Lord Layton and Lord Lyzion in the wrestling headliner at the Memorial Arena on Friday night.

Geohagen bends cold steel in his teeth, holds a heavy man aloft on a chair and is a proficient hypnotist. Any or all these qualities would seem to be very handy for any team hopeful of upsetting the artful aristocrats.

Robert Duranton, a young 225-pounder from Paris, France, will be in the semi-final against ruthless Richard Raines. Duranton has a marvellous physique, with 19-inch biceps, and won titles of Mr. France and Mr. Europe several times. He'll need more than a knock-out appearance to stay in with Raines and reports are the boy has it.

Blast Brooklyn, Belt Bucs Jolt Giants in Fiery Rally; Robin Roberts Tabs 12th Win

By Ben Pheegar
Associated Press Sports Writer

It finally got hot enough in St. Louis for the Cardinals to catch fire and the word was out to the rest of the National League today to start looking for an extinguisher.

The Cards, last NL club to win a world series, have taken seven out of eight games since coming home a week ago.

They roared through Brooklyn three straight, added three out of four from Pittsburgh and Tuesday night whomped New York league with a seven-run barrage in the first inning that carried them to a 15-8 triumph.

One of the happiest things from it St. Louis' viewpoint about the winning splurge has been the heavy hitting of Stan Musial.

Hampered all spring by a severe slump, Musial finally seems to have found his form. He's batted five doubles, a home run and seven singles in the seven games to pace on the home stand. His overall average has risen from .251 to .274.

The heavy hitting Tuesday night allowed Harvey Haddix go all the way for his ninth victory, even though the Giants got to him for 11 hits and eight runs.

The Cards moved within half a game of the slumping second-place Brooklyn Dodgers with last 5-3 to Cincinnati on Grady Hatton's pinch-hit home run, and within 3½ games of league-leading Milwaukee.

Toughie to Lose

The Braves got a beautiful two-hit pitching job from Warren Spahn too, but lost 1-0 to the last-place Pittsburgh Pirates. Robin Roberts won his 12th game as he pitched Philadelphia Phillies to a 6-1 decision over Chicago.

In the American league the first-place New York Yankees increased their lead over Cleveland to 11 games although they lost 11-3 to Chicago.

Cleveland dropped a day-night pair in Boston 6-4 and 3-1. The night game ran 10 innings before Milt Bolling doubled home the winning run.

St. Louis edged Washington 4-3 and Detroit's Steve Gromek whitewashed Philadelphia Athletics on four hits 5-0.

In the Cardinal-Giant slugfest Haddix bounced with two on in the first inning and his catcher, Del Rice, hit a grand slam circuit blow at the Cards' corner with seven more runs in the fourth inning. Musial had two for the night in the evening.

The Dodgers, getting good pitching from Billy Loes, were breezing along with a 1-0 lead until the ninth when Hatton connected with a man on base. Junior Gilliam had given the Dodgers the edge with a homer in the fifth.

Spahn lost his heartbreaker when Ted Kazanski bounced a single, the second Pittsburgh hit, with two men on base in the eighth. Bob Hall pitched the shutout scattering six hits.

The Yankee defence fell apart for four errors, three of them in the fifth inning against the White Sox. The Chicagoans turned every one of the miscues to their advantage. Allie Reynolds absorbed most of the punishment for his third loss.

Sod-Turning Recalls Williams' Olympic Feat

By Don Matheson
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Percy Williams, a Canadian Olympic hero who amazed the world with his speed in Amsterdam in 1928, today is to turn the first sod for the 30,000-seat stadium being built for the 1954 British Commonwealth and Empire games here.

And there's a strong movement in sports circles to have the stadium named after him.

Here are some headlines from the front page of a Vancouver paper of August, 1928:

"Double sprint victory not achieved since 1912."

In 1928, a poll of Canadian sports editors and sportscasters conducted by The Canadian Press named him Canada's outstanding track and field performer in the half-century.

His doubleheader victory in the Olympics was judged with the Toronto Maple Leafs' comeback in the 1942 Stanley Cup victory finals against Detroit as the most dramatic sports event of the period.

But no alley, street, lane, courtyard or boulevard has been named for Percy Williams. Not too many remember his double win in the 100 and 200 metres.

The movement to name the stadium for him was started unofficially by sports writers here.

Stanley Smith, general chairman of the 1954 games, says:

"I feel that some civic recognition for Percy, I am very favorable to having the stadium named for him."

International Tennis Stars Seek Title

TORONTO (CP)—Stars from the United States, Europe and Canada are expected to compete in the Canadian tennis championships here July 13-26, it was announced Tuesday.

Included in the big array are Australia's Mervyn Rose and Rex Hartwig, the Mexican and Japanese Davis Cup teams and Felicisimo Ampon from the Philippines.

Also on hand will be the 1952 Canadian champions. In this list are Dick Savitt of Chicago, 24, who swept the singles, doubles and mixed double last year, and Melita Ramirez, 21-year-old kindergarten teacher from Mexico City who won the women's singles.

Canadian entries include Lorne Main of Toronto, Lawrence Mackay and Paul Willey, both Vancouver; Bob Bedard, Sherbrooke, Que.; Henri Rochon, Montreal, and Don Platt, Jim Bentley, Bean Saunders and Don Fontana, all Toronto.

London Defeats Brantford 6-2 To Regain Lead

By the Canadian Press

London Majors edged ahead of Kitchener Panthers Monday night into first place in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League by defeating Brantford Red Sox 6-2. The Majors have sharing top position with the Majors.

In the only other league game, Waterloo Tigers continued their winning streak by defeating St. Thomas Elgins 11-7. It was the Tigers' fourth successive win and their 12th win against eight losses, leaving them second in the league.

Tommy White pulled London through with some fine relief pitching following starter Bob Trower with the score tied at 2-2 and the bases loaded. Ron Smith, White gave up only one hit the rest of the way. He also stacked home two London runs in a four-run sixth-inning rally.

The St. Thomas game was a postponement from May 25. Lasting two hours 58 minutes, there was scoring in the second, third, fourth and seventh.

Gaylord Maple drove in the loser. He was relieved by Bob Starmes in the sixth. Other Elgin pitchers were Jim Gilmour and Bill Byham.

Waterloo's Billy Flick was top hitter for the game, batting in four runs. George Yorke, who won his first game of the season after two losses, hit a triple in the second to drive in two runs.

Gaylord Maple has announced that they have dropped pitcher Cecil Kaiser and outfielder-infielder Sam Bankhead and have signed on Kenny Young and Fred Crissey, pitchers, and Jerry Moore, outfielder.

Other teams also announced changes. John Russian has been replaced as manager of Galt Terriers by Harry Jacobs of Windsor, former senior intercounty player, president Walter Reid of the Galt Baseball Association said.

Brantford Red Sox have lost Bob Thurman, a star pitcher, outfielder and slugger. He has left for the Dominican Republic Baseball League.

St. Thomas Elgins, at the bottom of the league with Galt Terriers, announced that they have signed George Kolazo of Clarence, Pa. He will play shortstop with Joe Barbera, second baseman.

'Marlene' Is Lone Canadian Survivor Favorite for British Women's Open

PORTRUSH, Wales (CP)—Canada's Marlene Stewart, the young golfing champion from Penfield, Ont., emerged today as the lone Canadian survivor on a major threat to take the British women's open amateur golf championship.

The 20-year-old Canadian woman golfers playing in the amateur as part of a golfing tour of British isles defeated Mrs. Mary Bell, third- and fourth-round play over the Royal Portheard links here. Two other Canadians were eliminated earlier.

The 5-foot-old Miss Stewart defeated Miss K. H. A. Lever of North Wales 4 and 3 in the third-round match and went on to defeat Miss M. Smyth of Ireland by two holes in the fourth quad.

She goes into the quarter-finals today.

Barbara M. Devlen, Vancouver, went down before Englander Miss Elizabeth Price at the 19th hole in a fourth-round match after defeating Mrs. Brock Park of Bermuda, 4 and 2, in the third round. Miss Devlen is the Canadian team captain from Toronto, felt to Mrs. J. Fallon of Ireland, 4 and 3, after defeating Jeanne Bisgod of Switzerland.

Dainty Chisholm, Montreal, was beaten by Lena Faulk of the powerful Stoics, 5 and 3, in the fourth round after surviving a third-round match, 3 and 2, against Amy Bowden of North Wales.

Mary Gay of Waterloo, Que., was defeated in a third-round match by Jean Donald of Scotland, 5 and 3.

Miss Stewart is obviously a danger to the best of the other British women golfers. She may draw opponent in England's Elizabeth Price, noted for her brilliant golf in the Curtis Cup matches this year.

Miss Price's game against Canada's Miss Devlen was one of the best. The Canadian was out in a one-under-par 36 but only one up. Twice afterwards she was two up but Miss Price fought back to level at the 18th. On the 19th the English girl got a muddy niblick shot four feet from the pin and sank the putt for a birdie three to win.

Miss Stewart's tussle with Mrs. Park was another weather match and had the Irish girl out in front with her driver Canada's Marlene Stewart's game. Like Miss Devlen, Miss Stewart never put a foot in trouble, played brilliantly to win by two holes.

Miss Gay was out-putted by Miss Donald in a three-putt-on-for-this title five years ago.

Royals Blast Syracuse 10-7; Leafs Nip Cubs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Maybe the 1953 edition of Montreal Royals hasn't got any Jackie Robinsons, Roy Campanellas or Don Newcombes, but the club is winning games to keep pace the International League ladder—and that's what counts.

Tuesday night the Royals banged Syracuse Chiefs about 10-7 behind some heavy hitting. Ever since the Royals took over the leadership, they have been pretty consistent winners — their lead varying between three and four games.

Montreal now is 2½ games ahead of Buffalo Bisons, who split a doubleheader with Baltimore Orioles. The Bisons nabbed a 4-3 decision in the opener at Buffalo, but the Orioles came from behind-batting battle in the nightcap 8-4.

Bill Tuttle's fourmaster provided the edge for the Bisons as John Weiss won his third game in the opener. Another Canadian circuit blast accounted for all three runs of Weiss.

In the afterpiece, Jack Mayer whacked a bases-clearing triple and Stan Jok clinged a two-run double to lead the Orioles to victory. Al Lakeman, Jack Phillips and Jack Crawford belted homers for Buffalo.

Rochester Red Wings kept on Buffalo's tail by downing Ottawa Athletics 12-8 at the Canadian capital with a six-run splurge in the 16th inning. Ed Kirkpatrick started the game into extra innings when he hit a three-run homer in the ninth.

Cot Deal and Jim Hughes each sparked the big 16th for the Wings. Deal was followed by Jim Hughes Harry Walker who was put out of the game for bench jockeying. Deal hit a long fly to Al Pinkston in centre field and the Negro dropped it letting men home. Deal scored and third. Kress singled in two more.

Toronto Maple Leafs beat out Springfield Cubs 11-8 before a happy home-town crowd, but had a tough time doing it. The hustling Cubs outhit the Leafs 15-11 but the lead changed hands three times. Lew Morton and Ed Stevens hit homers for the winners, Morton's a three-run wallop.

At Montreal, relicfer Cal Mills scored his second triumph in three starts. Rocky Nelson, who walloped three homers Monday night, hit safely twice in three trips to the plate.

Kingston Rinks Win Top Honors At Tournament

Kingston and Belleville rinks took all the honors in the women's trebles tournament held at the bowling greens on Tuesday afternoon and evening. The women of the Belleville Club provided a most delicious supper and then the second game had been played and a large gathering saw the prizes in the evening.

The greens were almost perfect due to the constant care that has been given by the greenskeeper, Jack Smith and the visiting ladies were loud in their praise of the hospitality of the host club. There were 26 rinks in the tournament and drawn from Cobourg, Kingston, Stirling, Trenton, Deseronto and Belleville.

Mrs. Agnes Rutherford of Kingston with Mrs. Hugh Gault and Mrs. Morley Gault as members won the big three-game high with a score of 43 plus six, while Mrs. F. Lowe, Mrs. D. McConnville with Mrs. Edney as skip finished second with a score of 42. Third high was Miss Winnie Smith, Mrs. W. Gilbert with Mrs. C. L. Hyde as skip. The two-game high score was taken by Mrs. Mary Lynch, Mrs. C. A. Mott with Mrs. Harold Cross as skip while the one-game high score was won by Mrs. D. Row, Mrs. M. Park with Mrs. George Watkin as skip.

Mrs. Charles Mott conducted the draw with the assistance of Ray Grant, while Mrs. Gordon Vanschoi was president of the women's section welcomed the visitors.

Those represented at the tournament were: Mrs. J. Rutherford, Kingston; Mrs. L. Carew, Belleville; Mrs. M. Card, Kingston; Mrs. G. Brown, Trenton; Mrs. H. Thompson, Belleville; Mrs. H. Cross, Kingston; Mrs. C. H. McBride, Trenton; Mrs. Baker, Trenton; Mrs. C. A. Smart, Kingston; Mrs. Marion, Cobourg; Mrs. C. Crowe, Kingston; Mrs. E. Erskine, Cobourg; Mrs. E. Cowan, Kingston; Mrs. H. A. Cross, Belleville; Mrs. R. Edney, Kingston; Mrs. Cliff Argue, Belleville; Mrs. Frank Correll, Deseronto; Mrs. Lorne Lockwood, Brighton; Mrs. Ralph Elston, Kingston; Mrs. J. Jackman, Belleville; Mrs. C. L. Hyde, Belleville; Mrs. J. Hunter, Kingston; Mrs. T. Fraser, Stirling; Mrs. Blanch O'Connor, Belleville; Mrs. C. Cooke, Stirling; Mrs. G. Watkin, Belleville.

Eddie Goes For Four-Base Clouts And The Gals Go for Bashful Eddie

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Eddie Mathews is considered a worthwhile catch by the gals here and in other spots around the National League.

It's not hard to understand.

Young Mathews, in addition to being the Milwaukee Braves' third baseman and the major league's home run leader, is a curly-haired lad with a rosy complexion. He's also what comedy.

Tweed Defeats Ivanhoe 7-3

TWEED — In a close game on Monday night Tweed defeated Ivanhoe 7-3 at Tweed. In the late innings the game turned into a pitcher's battle as only one run was scored from the fifth inning on.

Tweed took an early lead, scoring four runs in the first inning on four hits and two walks. They added more to their score second on a pair of hits and two Ivanhoe errors. Ivanhoe scored in the fourth, counting two tallies on a walk and four hits. Tweed scored their final run in the bottom of the sixth after Ivanhoe had garnered their last score in the top half.

Longevin started on the mound for Tweed. He fanned five in his six innings' stint, but was in danger several times because he issued eight walks. Cassidy relieved for the final three innings and struck out five. He walked only one batter.

Arleworth was Ivanhoe's starting pitcher. He pitched four and one-third innings, struck out five and walked one. R. Ray came on in the fifth and he fanned five while giving up one free ticket.

Track Record Shattered In $15,000 Race

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—El Lo's Forbes shattered the Maryland half-mile track record Tuesday night in winning the richest harness race, the $15,000 Laurel invitational free-for-all pace.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Forbes's brilliant star, a 4-to-5 favorite, led all the way in covering the mile in 2:02 flat and whipping Meadow Rhythm, world's mile-track record holder, by three lengths. Hanover Hall's Star was third, 1¾ lengths back.

Piloted by 66-year-old Henry Chaker, El Lo's Forbes was timed in 32.4 for the first quarter-mile, 59.2 for the half, and 1:29 1-5 for three quarters before turning back Direct Rhythm's super effort in the stretch.

'Long Layne' Told to Turn

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Rex Layne was told Tuesday either to give up his spot on the Wednesday night Archie Moore-Joey Maxim title fight card or forget a bottle next month with the Canadian heavyweight champion.

Layne's manager, Marv Jenson, said the ultimatum came from Jack Berry, Edmonton promoter, who claimed Layne's scheduled fight against Earl Walls of Winnipeg, Oct., at Edmonton July 2.

The Utahn told Jenson he was attempting to get Berry to change his mind.

Jenson said "it was Layne's intention to remain in the fix accepting a place for his fighter on the Moore-Maxim card, even though Layne previously had to postpone the Walls fight for a week because of illness.

It's not hard to understand.

Young Mathews, in addition to being the Milwaukee Braves' third baseman and the major league's home run leader, is a curly-haired lad with a rosy complexion. He's also what comedy.

"You've been successful in catching and handling a baseball bat-band," a 17-year-old girl wrote recently to the wife of one of the older Braves' players. "If it isn't too much trouble, would you mind writing me and telling me how I would go about getting Eddie Mathews?"

The young lady wasn't kidding. Neither are the hundreds of others who hang around outside the club-

Pt. Anne Defeats Glen Roy Jrs. 9-5 To Share Lead

Point Anne Centremen parlayed 11 walks and eight hits into a 9-5 victory over the Glen Roy Juniors last evening at the Glen Recreation Field to move into a first place tie in the league standings with the Glens.

The loss was the first suffered by the Glens in two seasons of regularly scheduled play.

The Centremen made excellent use of six walks in the third and fourth frames which they mixed with Paddy Gilmour's line drive home run to left for three runs in the third, and Roger Mallory's two run double off the right field chalk in the fourth to amass seven big runs and overcome a 3-0 deficit which the Glens ran up in the first two frames.

Bobby Green who started for the Glens was rocked after three and one third innings, and nine disastrous walks, charged with two hits, seven runs, and the loss. Relief pitching Doug Radner took over and toiled the rest of the way yielding six hits, two walks and two runs, while striking out three.

Bob Hunter went the route on the hill for the Cementmen. He survived a dropped fly ball in the field, and successive singles in the third frame by Green, Gary and Batchelor that were good for three runs, to pick up the victory.

Batteries:

Peter Green tagged a slow ball in the fifth frame for a home run and Frank Day got credit for a homer in the eighth on a ball that rolled to the centrefield fence over the prostrate form of the centrefielder who stumbled trying to make the catch.

Point Anne picked up their final two runs in the eighth inning on a walk to Mallory, and singles by Gilmour and John Green.

Ron Fralick was batted at the plate by the opposing pitchers. Doug Hall and Bobby Hunter of the Centremen were bombed by Green and Radner, while Mallory and Carr stopped a couple of Hunter's fast balls with the fences.

Midget Baseball

Jim Ryan pitched a six-hitter for the "Lumberjacks", striking out twelve. Hall toiled on the mound for Point Anne, also striking out 12.

The hitters for the winners were Ryan and Schickler, each with two hits with Ryan bolstering his own cause by hitting a double. Fr. Corrall Sleeper and Tweedy all connected for singles.

Dave Jones, Glen Roy shortstop, came up lame in the sixth inning trying to beat out a high bouncing ball in the infield.

Best at the plate for the winners was Gilmour with two singles, a home run, a double record and three runs batted in to his credit in five trips. Mallory had two for four. Carr and Coyer with two for five led the Glens.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The bridge puzzles of the past generations are as entertaining to-day as ever. As when South must take all 13 tricks with hearts as trumps, and west leads the club king in this deal:

NORTH
♥A K Q J
♦Q J 10 9 8 7
♣None
WEST	EAST
♠K J 10	♠9 8 7 6
♥5 4 3	♥None
♦None	♦8 5 4 3 2
♣K Q J 10	♣8 5 4 3 2
SOUTH
♠None
♥10 9 7 6
♦A K
♣A 7 6 5 4 3

Solution lies in two principles of play; unblocking and suit establishment for shuffing. The operations are not easy to see here. Even though you see all the cards in the four hands.

Since west will ruff diamonds, the job must be done with care to pull the trumps out of west. Since the only entries to dummy in most is trumps, such blocks the establishment of dummy diamonds.

Lacking a south spade to enter dummy, pulling four trump rounds at once will not work. Because the south two diamond tops will block dummy diamonds. So unblock diamonds while dummy has entries.

One south diamond top could easily go on the dummy spade ace. It is the second south diamond top that presents the main problem. Find a way to get rid of the second south diamond top and you have it.

If dummy had more than one south diamond top, south's blockey could be cast on it or them. Therefore, shorten the south trumps. How? By ruffing two rounds with south trumps.

On trick one which south club ace wins, start shedding a dummy spade. Cast a diamond on it. Dummy wins a trump round. Ruffs a small spade. Dummy wins another trump round. Ruffs spade queen.

Now you have one less trump in south than in north. Take two trump rounds in dummy. They pull the last in west. On the last of these, fire a south diamond top. On spade ace fire the other. And dummy is now in the lead with diamonds cleared.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Two men who will not be hidden in the shadow of their famous wives—are Vittorio Gassman and Michael Wilding.

Gassman is an intense, handsome young Italian with a classic profile. Wilding is also handsome, but in a suave, English sort of way.

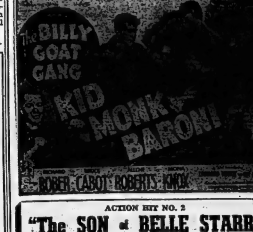
Gassman is married to Shelley Winters and Wilding to Liz Taylor. Both men have made their mark in their native lands and now are establishing themselves with the North American film audiences.

Gassman has been called Italy's best young classical actor. A strapping six feet two and 200 pounds, he is a man who knows what he wants. He wanted to be adept in the classics, and he plowed through performances of 93 plays, including Ibsen's "Ghosts," "Romeo and Juliet," "Othello" and many other Shakespearian offerings. Now that film fame has beckoned him, he is not giving up the theatre.

"I think it's a mistake to abandon the stage," he said. "An actor can learn to grow only before an audience. I am particularly interested in the classics; the stage is the best place I can find to do them."

His drive a hard bargain with MGM, which likes to own its talent exclusively. He wouldn't sign unless he received the right to spend six months of each year with his theatrical company in Italy.

"After I signed with the studio, I had to make a quick trip to Italy because my actors were leaving me," he said. "They thought I wouldn't be coming back after signing in Hollywood."



Gassman made another trip and stayed. Recently, appearing in a widely-acclaimed "Hamlet." This caused his absence during the birth of his daughter, Vittoria. He's back making "Rhapsody" with Liz Taylor. After another film, he'll return to his Italian company, this time taking Shelley with him. His plans include taking his Italian "Hamlet" to New York.

Wilding is another fellow who is intense in his work, although he claims to be lazy. He has just completed "Torch Song" with Joan Crawford.

"During a year under contract, I have worked three weeks," he explained. "That's very pleasant for a lazy fellow like myself."

But although he is reluctant, to go to work, he also has enough ham to make him want to continue.

AT THE CAPITOL—Leonard Nimoy looks stunned after being floored by Richard Rober (centre) while members of the Billy Goat Gang seem amused by it all in the new Jack Broder film "Kid Monk Baroni," opening Thursday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program in glorious color "The Son of Belle Starr" starring Keith Larson. Both hits at this theatre.

"Once I get started on a picture, I resent it when we have to stop at six," he said. "I'd like to keep on acting until midnight."

Wilding is one of England's best light comedians, and he possesses the fact that Hollywood has lost its touch for evoking laughter.

"Except for the broad comedy of Martin and Lewis or Abbott and Costello—which I like very much," he remarked, "there aren't any funny pictures being made here. I mean the wonderful things that people like Robert Montgomery and Cary Grant used to make."

PROFESSOR FOR 22 YEARS

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. William L. Holman, 74, professor of bacteriology who taught a generation of University of Toronto medical students during 23 years, died in hospital Monday. Born in Summerside, P.E.I., he was well known in the medical profession for his contributions to bacteriological research.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which November 23 to December 22 your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 25, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Could be top period for your particular activities, bring good monetary returns if you function rightly. Selling, catering to public especially successful.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Many personal wishes may not be all gratified but it is a cheery outlook for immediate future. Be most careful how you handle risky matters.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Advice to Taurus pertinent here. Good educational progress, social affairs highly favored. But don't rush events.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Your Moon's aspects warn against foolhardy action, allowing moody spells to dominate your ways. Be calm, confident.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Strive to make headway, but don't forget others' foibles. Indications now point to fine returns for energetic efforts.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Giving advice that could react unfavorably may be your chief problem now. Study likely results before acting. Seek facts, not hearsay.

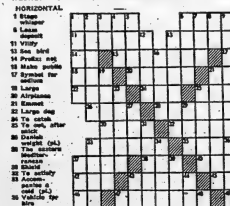
September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Day that will try your powers of control, irritate if you are not calm, resolute to avoid being disturbed. Watch your health, and expenses, too.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Unexpected circumstances may tend to upset plans. However you can handle them, so don't let them unnerve you.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — An energetic, keen stand will carry you through to success. Your schedule may be crowded, but with smart thinking you will come through with flying colors.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Some pleasant influences, especially for personal affairs. News in afternoon may help you to happy solutions. Romance, marriage sponsored.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Planets auspicious generally for necessary undertakings. Be warned against loose handling —of affairs. Take extra care!



February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Being helpful to those that need it will bring untold pleasure, happiness. Usual tasks can be taken in stride.

YOU BORN TODAY: Generally affectionate, loyal, fond of religion, home, odd traditions. May be inclined to stubbornness, especially if opposed. However, prayer and developing your good sense of humor should help you correct these faults. Can succeed at any honorable occupation to which you set your mind and talent. Birthdate of: Gen. Henry H. Arnold, World War II air force fame; John Horne Tooke, politician, philologist.

FIRE GUTS GRIST MILL

KEENE, Ont. (CP)—A fire at a three-storey grist mill here Saturday threatened to spread throughout this village, 12 miles southeast of Peterborough, before an estimated 300 villagers and farmers came to the scene to extinguish the blaze. The grist mill, idle for seven years, was gutted

Sweden Building Giant Shelters At $90,000,000

STOCKHOLM (CP)—Sweden is building 200 giant shelters under her granite cliffs and mountains where her warships and aircraft will be stored and serviced safely in the event attacks by a future war.

The shelters, costing a total of about 450,000,000 crowns (about $90,000,000), will also accommodate Sweden's civilian staffs, chief radar stations and other essential military and civilian services.

More than $40,000,000 worth of these shelters have already been built.

After the first atom bomb fell on Japan, Sweden's military leaders made a secret inventory of all the country's cliffs and mountains strong enough and high enough to serve as "roofs" for underground shelters, powerful enough to resist attack. They wanted something bigger and better than the underground u-boat pens built by the Germans in the war.

Had Only to Enlarge

Nature had already done some of the excavation work. In many cases, man had only to enlarge, deepen or improve.

Because of this, the experts estimated, the total cost of the "operation fortress" could be kept down to $90,000,000. Of that total, about $22,000,000 is being spent on "stores and workshops," $17,000,000 on "harbors and inlets and docks." $13,000,000 on "battle positions," $12,800,000 on "fuel stores," $9,000,000 on "camouflage," $7,000,000 on "aircraft detection units," $4,500,000 on "staff premises" and $4,200,000 on "shelters for diverse purposes."

Secret Work

Above ground, are runways for aircraft landing for attention or taking off for operations. The aircraft are towed by jeeps through tunnels in the mountainside wood shops.

Alongside the workshops, are hangars where aircraft can be stored, safe from atomic and other forms of attack.

The "battle positions" include underground coastal artillery units complete with radar and other devices, placed at strategic points along the route which a sea-borne invasion force would take if it came from the east.

Deutsche Mark Established By Allies in Healthy State

By HANNS NIEBEGURG

FRANKFURT (AP)—Five years ago this week the Allies introduced a drastic monetary reform to defeated West Germany and created the Deutsche mark.

The mark ever since grown into one of the world's healthiest and most stable currencies. The flourishing economy it supports has topped almost all pre-war production records.

West Germany's industrial production rate now hovers at about 130 per cent of the 1936 level when the country entered a rearmament boom for Hitler's war. There even are prospects that the Bonn republic will capture industrial supremacy in Europe this year.

Credited with having brought about this spectacular recovery are the $1,605,634,000 United States Marshall aid grants and other American assistance, the industry of the German worker, the Korea war, and a liberal economic policy labelled "social market economy."

Ardres Campaigner

The man who introduced this liberal economic policy is Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard, born of the most active campaigners for a free economy among all European currencies.

Interest rates, prices controls still exist but at the Swiss exchanges, most sensitive European currency barometer, the Deutsche mark remains virtually solid at 4.41 to the dollar, slightly above the official rate of 4.20.

The monetary reform ended a primitive type of barter economy in Germany which relied heavily on barter and which the American agent largely as its basic "currency."

Introduced in 1948

June 20, 1948, the new currency was introduced in the Western zones. Old currency was declared deposits were revalued one Deutsche mark to about 15 old Reich marks. Germans were allowed a maximum cash quota of 40 marks (90.35).

Shortly after, the Soviet zone introduced its own Deutsche mark, now worth about one-fifth of the western version.

There are today more than 1,000,000 jobless in West Germany but authorities say that most of these are over-aged or physically unfit.

The housing shortage will remain for years in a country where 8,000,000 dwellings were smashed by Allied bombs or in battle and millions others damaged.

But despite these facts, Germany's building economy is highlighted by these features:

Germany tops all European countries in reconstruction and now has a "home a minute" program with a target of 500,000 new dwelling units to be built in 1953. Income Increases

The national income from 1949 to 1952 rose by 25 per cent and now is at 1,085 marks ($258.21) per capita. At the same time, the government's social contributions for the war - victims, pensioners and pensioners rose from 10,900,000,000 marks ($2,570,600,000) to more than 18,000,000,000 marks ($4,284,-00,000).

Germany practically no foreign trade in 1948, the Germans boasted up to the end of 1952 of more than $4,000,000,000 last year. Exports in 1952 reached an all-time high in April, 1953, with exports exceeding imports by 274,-000,000 marks ($65,000,000).

Germany ranks among the world's biggest shipbuilding countries and has increased automobile production more than 300 per cent since 1948.

German steel manufacturers predict that the steel output soon will be second only to the United States and Russia. Production records are also expected in the coal, chemical and machine tool industries.

Fired Two Shots

STRATFORD (CP)—Police said Elwood Bailey, 52-year-old deaf mute of St. Marys, was in comfortable and relatives at bay for nearly four hours Tuesday night and fired two shots at them.

They said the man took a rifle from a hardware store, went to the home of his brother, Evander, where he lived, and refused to give up the rifle despite pleas by members of the family.

He was eventually overpowered and lodged in police cells here.

HELPS FITNESS

HALIFAX (CP)—The physical fitness division of the Nova Scotia education department plans to sponsor tours of the province by high school athletic units for the third summer in a row. The tours, designed to acquaint the youngsters with their province, began in 1951.

Rhee Hopeful 'New Channels' May be Opened

SEOUL (AP)—President Syngman Rhee said today that forthcoming talks with Walter Robertson, U. S. assistant secretary of state, may "open new channels" to settlement of the tangled Korean truce problem.

In an interview tape recorded by NBC correspondent Edwin Newman, Rhee said talks may open new channels so an armistice "may be more agreeable to us and perhaps more honorable to the United States."

Robertson, the state department Far East chief, arrived in Tokyo today on a special mission to the truce crisis. He brought with him a secret letter to Rhee from Secretary Dulles and is expected to arrive in Seoul to see Rhee Thursday.

BRITISH NAVAL HEAD

LONDON (Reuters) — Vice-Admiral John Felgate Stevens has been appointed British commander-in-chief, America and West Indies station, it was announced Tuesday. The appointment also carries with it the post of deputy supreme Allied commander in the Atlantic. He will take up his new posts in October, succeeding Vice-Admiral Sir William G. Andrewes.

MEAT FIES KILL

LONDON (Reuters)—Two persons have died and 1,131 have been poisoned in a recent outbreak of food poisoning in Lancashire from meat pies, Health Minister Ian Macleod said Tuesday. The pies became contaminated with a virulent form of salmonella, a poisonous bacteria.

CAMPBELLFORD

Canadian Legion Street Dance Attracts Many

CAMPBELLFORD — The annual street dance and carnival sponsored by Branch 173 of the Canadian Legion was held on the Legion grounds on Saturday evening.

The event attracted large crowds, although early in the day it was feared a storm which threatened the district would cause postponement of the event.

Money raised by the carnival is used to further the Legion's program of building playgrounds and equipping them for children in the district.

REPAIR RED SHIP

HONG KONG (AP)—A heavy police guard barred newspaper men today from the 7,000-ton Chinese Communist ship Nan Hai, here for engine repairs and believed to be the first Chinese Red ship to put into Hong Kong in almost two years. The Nan Hai crept into the harbor before dawn Tuesday from Canton and anchored at a commercial buoy.

Staff Honors Retiring Editor Of the Telegram
TORONTO (CP)—Members of the staff of the Toronto Telegram gathered at a dinner Tuesday night in honor of Reginald McEwen, retiring as editor of the Telegram after 39 continuous years of service.
ARTHUR McEVOY, whose gently humorous comments were widely quoted long before he became editor in 1942, was given a matched pipe set. He surprised it was a tribute to the length of service of his current pipe rather than his pen.
The presentation was made by A. W. J. Buckland, president of The Telegram, who said Mr. McEvoy's integrity and consistent fairness had inspired his associates over the years.
At the dinner were Burt Richardson, former editor of the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix, who succeeds Mr. McEvoy, and W. T. J. Salder, whom he succeeded.

WON VC TWICE

WARE, England (Reuters)—Lt.-Col. Arthur Martin-Leake, 79, first man to win two Victoria Crosses, Britain's highest military award, died at his home near here Monday, it was announced Tuesday. Col. Martin-Leake, a medical officer, won his first VC in South Africa in 1902 for rescuing a wounded officer under fire. He won the second in 1915 for rescuing wounded men lying near the German trenches in the First World War.

MARLENE STEWART

19-year-old golfing sensation from Streetsville, Ont., wife, British Women's Amateur golf title.

PORTRUSH, Wales (CP)—Miss Marlene Stewart, Canada's golfing prodigy, today won the British women's amateur open with an easy victory over Ireland's Philomena Garvey.

"Little Miss Magic Leaf," as the gallery christened Miss Stewart over a classy international field in her first big tournament outside North America.

Stroking coolly all the way, she won the 36-hole final round on the Royal Portrush links seven up, with six holes to go. She was never in danger from the 14th hole. As in all her matches, the 19-year-old former Canadian Open champion from Postfill, Ont., just kept on playing near-flawless golf, gradually shaved every time her Irish rival faltered.

Finished Yet Hot

The first break came at the 14th, where Miss Garvey finished her second into a bunker. At the halfway mark, Marlene was six strokes ahead and, though her lead was shaved once after lunch, she was never in real danger.

The result came as a surprise to the gallery, most of whom had never heard of Miss Stewart when the tournament started last Monday.

Miss Garvey, six times Irish champion and a veteran of the war, came from the fishing village of Ballray in County Louth. This was the second time she had been finalist in the British open. In 1946, at the age of 17, she was runner-up to Mrs. G. W. Hetherington, an Ulster golfer.

Miss Stewart, stroking beautifully, finished the morning 18 holes six up on her Irish opponent. She played them in better than par figures, 72 to Miss Garvey's 78.

In the afternoon the Fostfill nine now her margin widened when Miss Garvey lost the 20th hole. But with a spectacular iron second and a three-yard putt, the Canadian star sunned her six-hole lead with a birdie 3 at the 21st-yard 32nd hole. Another three at the 22nd made her seven up.

The 27th is the Canadian was still seven up after halving the four previous holes with her Irish opponent in par figures.

The 29th ended Miss Garvey's hopes when her drive on the 31st-yard Marlene, who started the Canadian golfing world in 1950 by becoming the youngest winner of the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union's Close and Open championships, has won 28th, 29th and 30th with Miss Garvey to end the match with the last six holes unplayed.

Never Threatened

The fact that Canadian, six inches shorter than her Irish opponent, hit her ball further on the last five holes of the first 18 and was never seriously threatened after that. She had those five holes in better than par figures to complete the first round in 72.

Up to the 13th it had been up and tuck. Miss Stewart, wearing a grey skirt and white shirt and the vivid peaked tartan beret, was one ahead at the ninth.

Birdies Tenth Hole

She won the 10th in a birdie 3 there, lost the 11th but failed to match Miss Garvey's approach and putting on the long 12th and 13th.

The 14th halved, chiefly due to Miss Garvey's brilliant chipping. In the 15th the Irish girl threatened her tie shot and thereafter was in constant trouble.

On the last green she missed from a yard. Miss Stewart shot her honeyed putt in 36 to Miss Garvey's 41, which gave the Canadian an 18-hole total of 72, the match was played in brilliant sunshine.

The 19-year-old machine golfer from Postfill, Ont., was the first Canadian to win the title and is the British women's amateur, and the way she played it had the gallery agog in spells in full cry.

Royal Guard of Honor Gets Lost As Cheering Scots Greet Queen

GLASGOW (AP) — The Queen rode today into the heart of the Scottish industrial area and received the wildest—and friendliest—welcome to be given her in this country.

Thousands broke through the police lines cheering "Hello, Liz" and "Welcome" as she and the royal guard of honor got lost—many times—in the crowds that thronged the sidewalks.

Police were at least 30 casualties. Women and children were caught in the crush and the 72 Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders in the royal guardsmen collapsed, too.

The Queen was smiling and calm as her car and the escort surged slowly within reach of the royal car entering George Square in the centre of this industrial city.

Mounted police nosed their way through to clear a path. Police trying to hold back the throng were heckled as they shoved through to see the Queen."

The Queen wore a neat navy and white ensemble. Her swing-back duster coat of navy taffeta was cut with the usual length, deeply cuffed wide sleeves. It swung to show the pale gold satin lining underneath.

Servant that Scottish nationalists would stir up demonstrations during the Queen's visit have failed to materialize. But the royal tour went into its third day.

Tonight, while fond of the pretty young sovereign, object to her title as Elizabeth I—putting it out the first Elizabeth reigned only over England before the English and Scottish crowds were joined.

Some mail boxes bearing the insignia "Elizabeth R" painted months ago but all has been scrubbed and gay since the Coronation tour got under way.

CHRISTIE TO HANG FOR KILLING WIFE; HELD NOT INSANE

Mild-Mannered Clerk Told of Slaying Seven

LONDON (CP) — John Christie, mild-mannered 53-year-old clerk, who admitted strangling seven women and concealing their bodies at his dingy Notting Hill flat, today was found guilty of one murder and was sentenced to die on the gallows.

Christie was tried specifically only for murdering his 54-year-old wife, Ethel, but frankly admitted strangling seven younger women in outbursts of sexual hysteria over a period of 18 years.

A jury of nine men and three women rejected his plea of insanity and found Christie guilty after one hour and 2 minutes to reach their verdict.

Christie smiled at his counsel as he entered the dock to hear the verdict. He merely compressed his lips when asked if he had anything to say before sentence.

He stood gripping the front of the dock on hard the veins on his hand showed as the usher called for silence while the bewigged judge donned the black hat symbolical of the death sentence.

Closes Case

Christie's face blanched and he clenched his lean jaws as he heard Justice Finnemore, 63, sentence him to the neck until dead."

As the judge's solemn voice rolled on, the 5-foot-6 man stood, his face expressionless, and preceded his two guards down the steps to the cells. But as he disappeared from view, he turned and waved, and his head to his face as though about to weep.

He was sentenced by Justice Sir Donald Finnemore who had turned the case over to the jury at 4:40 p. m. (11:40 a. m. EDT) after a summation in which he described Christie as "cunning, unscrupulous and callous" as "horrible and horrifying."

Christie's counsel had described the slayer as "mad as a March hare" and pleaded that he be found to an insane asylum instead of to the gallows.

The jury, during his summation after the 3½-day trial, mentioned the seven women Christie admitted. Christie was sane though eccentric and the defence medical testimony was to be definitely out of left mind.

The judge said: "I do not know whether any jury before in this country or perhaps in the world, has had to consider a man charged with murder go into the witness box and tell the jury: 'Yes, I did kill this victim. I killed six others as well, and I am glad to say I did.'"

Finnemore addressed the jury of nine men and three women in Old English style and said: "The defence counsel made an impassioned plea for a verdict of insanity, but insane" and the crown prosecutor countered with a flat demand for a verdict of guilty.

Christie Detached

Christie was detached throughout the three morning as Derek Curtis-Bennett, one of Britain's most experienced criminal lawyers, demanded: "The man's crazy isn't he?" and painted a killer who slew his wife without motive beyond a desire to ease her sufferings as described in a convulsion.

Election Pot Simmers Down; Coldwell Predicts CCF Gains

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

The election pot, boiling vigorously for the last few days, simmered down, slightly Wednesday night. Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, was out of action until tonight. Prime Minister St. Laurent kept up the Liberal assault on the Drew election manifesto.

And in Regina, CCF leader M. J. Coldwell indicated in an address that he expects his party to be in a "strategic" position after voting Aug. 10. The CCF, he said, has a lot of seats and the CCF make substantial gains.

Mr. St. Laurent, on tour in agricultural western Ontario, stressed his labors at the Progressive Conservative promise of a national agricultural board to set "fair" floor prices related to farm production costs.

Described as Plank

He described the plank to a Wingham, Ont., crowd as "a vague promise." If it meant a board setting floor prices whether there was a market at that price, "how long do you really think that form of socialized agriculture would last. . ."

If it meant the government buying up all the crops in the farmer and selling at a lower—a subsidy—"you all know what that means. It almost no hope at all of selling our farm products in the competitive market if they were subsidized by the government."

The CCF was solely administrative, how did it differ from the present Liberal policy of support board? If it was to spend millions without control by Parliament, how did that fit with the plank of restoring the supremacy of Parliament?

He promised farmers compensation from the federal government for the effects of hog cholera in southwestern Ontario is comparable to that given wheat producers in Saskatchewan from last year's outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease.

Mr. Coldwell, whose party held 13 seats in the last House, said he expects substantial gains because "the CCF platform covers every piece of good social and economic legislation. I say it without fear of contradiction."

Liberals and Progressive Conservatives voted down CCF social and economic proposals, then took up the issues when they became popular.

Canada needed a national health insurance plan, a national housing program, federal aid to education, lower taxes and better social security, Mr. Coldwell said.

Taxes on low income groups should be dropped to two per cent from 5% and mortgage terms should extend to 30 years from 20.

Takes Swing at Manifesto

He took a swing at Mr. Drew's 16-point manifesto, describing it as "the most political piece of document" since William Aberhart, first Social Credit premier of Alberta, "fooled people for a month."

Mr. Drew makes his first bid in Quebec for support with an address in French tonight in Quebec City. He shifted to the ancient capital Wednesday night from Ottawa. He moves to the West then, returning to the Maritimes and ending in Quebec province during July.

At Colette, Sask., John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament, told a political meeting he would abide the wheat board and only brought it back in 1941 under pressure from farmers.

The board should have a strong representative committee, but it should aim at better grain prices. He said he favored abolishing the 15-per-cent sales tax and increasing income tax exemptions to $1,000 for single persons and $3,000 for married taxpayers.

Hon. Jean Lesage, Resources Minister Winters said the Progressive Conservatives could not reduce the 15-per-cent sales tax and still pay as promised in their election manifesto without cutting social benefits.

Publication of Army Secrets Reveals Interesting Weapons

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Somebody's security slip was showing today with publication of secret testimony about United States military secrets by army officials before a senate appropriations committee.

Military secrets which popped into the open included information about:

1. A new weapons-carrying vehicle, nicknamed the "mechanical mule" carrying the official designation "ontos," to be used variously, including as a weapon for "very high-powered" recoilless rifle and for quick movement of troops by aircraft weapon against low-flying planes.

2. A plan to provide "much longer range" for the 280-millimeter cannon which now has a 20-mile accurate range and fires either atomic or conventional shells and a new shell, slightly smaller than the calibre of this gun, which will be fired from a special 8½ range "by about 50 per cent."

3. Development of a "two of which are under test, of a type expected to be ready for service production by after building task.

4. A lightweight radar for battlefront use, which would help detect enemy attempts at infiltration of the lines by small groups now used by the Communists in the Korean war.

Long-Range Radar

5. A long-range radar IFF (identification, friend or foe) which could speed the identification of aircraft long before they are within range of the anti-aircraft guns of guided missiles.

6. A floating portable bridge, to be carried on top of a tank as a shelter for the crew while being used to cross enemy fire.

7. A steam outboard motor for small boats, which would speed the crossing of rivers when the noise of gasoline outboard motors would warn the enemy.

Army officials expressed amazement and appeared appalled when copies of the 1,587-page printed testimony release by the appropriations committee of the House of Representatives reached the Pentagon press headquarters.

500 Stamped Secret

Among the pages was information which the Pentagon had stamped secret by the Pentagon. It was not immediately clear how the material got into the hands of the committee but it was part of a much larger section of testimony sent for publication.

The U. S. Army remembers well the sharp criticism which followed congressional probes on safeguarding security issued a few weeks ago when Secretary of Defence Charles Wilson.

But the guardians of security appeared to have short memories in dealing with items in the testimony. Rep. Cannon, D., Mo., and J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff, testified that more than 800 tanks" have been consumed in the Korean war. On page 1,000 another witness, General Ridgway, said more tanks are not being ordered now because losses had been negligible, made the armor "off the record"—hence, it was not printed.

Security cropped up on some odd subjects. There were "off the record" remarks, for discussion on such topics as the number of Communist prisoners held in Korea and feed for the courier pigeons of the signal corps.

AIDS FARMERS

NEW DELHI (CP)—More than 400 "rifle pistols," each capable of irrigating about 10 acres of farmland, have been distributed in arid delta areas of Madras in recent weeks. The rifles pistols provide water for about four months when the regular irrigation canals are dry.

Two Mounties Killed

OTTAWA (CP)—Two members of the RCMP were killed Wednesday night in the crash of an Otawa Flying Club Cessna aircraft in a field near Uplands airport here.

Names of the dead were withheld pending notification of next-of-kin. The men are believed to have been on an off-duty pleasure flight.

The aircraft, a single-engined monoplane, was wrecked. The wings were shorn off and the engine torn away.

PLAN ANOTHER WORKERS' RALLY IN EAST BERLIN

Think Soviet Steel Will Stop New Revolt

By TOM REDDY

BERLIN (AP)—East Germany's shaky communist government today announced plans for another workers' rally in East Berlin, apparently hopeful that carefully organization and Soviet steel would prevent this one from developing into another open rebellion.

Party bosses called on workers of the city's three key sectors—the boroughs, Mitte, Friedrichshain and Kopenick—to show their support at a mass demonstration Friday for the regime's announced plans to make things better for the working class.

Approval for the gathering was granted by Soviet Maj.-Gen. P. T. Dibrova, commander of the Red army division which crushed the violent June 17 rebellion following a similar communist - provoked demonstration.

As the shaken communists marshalled the workers with one hand, they threatened with the other. Official radio broadcasts that ringleaders of "the bloody uprisings" must be sent to prison for years or will be severely punished.

29 Executions

The first executions in the communist-ruled area have now been set. Twenty - nine persons were added to the toll today. Kurt Unbehaun of Leipzig was put to death by hard labor by a German court.

Arrests continued—400 in Dresden, 115 in Freital and 78 in Thale. The Red Cross began tracing families of workers convicted of striking, the first cases at Cottbus near the Polish border.

Talks Suspended

Friday's planned rally was scheduled after a test run with 10,000 blue - shirted youth of the Communist Free German Youth. The youth gathering Wednesday saw Premier Otto Grotewohl's regime in a heavy wreath of propaganda loyalty pledges.

The Red army has lifted its "no public assembly" orders and the ban on Communist party rallies. Otherwise, martial law imposed on East Berlin June 17 and 18 days ago still held. The east - west border through the four-power city of Berlin remained shut off to casual interzone travel, with only persons with special passes allowed to cross the border allowed to cross.

Soviet, East German other top men in his government and party meanwhile, embarked on a tireless campaign to blame the uprising on agents of the West.

In plant, mill, mine and bureau, government leaders have been holding meetings with private industry, restoration of confiscated property, and "free trade" factories," reinstatement of former owners of the "people's" plants, the opening of prison doors in some cases.

Speaking at Boehlen, near Leipzig, Wednesday night, Grotewohl declared that the people and the government was to blame for the June 17 revolt because it had lost touch with the working people.

'Showdown Now' With Communists Is Rhee's Demand

'Our Hopes are Almost Gone' But Wants Right to Fight

By SAM SUMMERLIN

SEOUL (AP)—President Syngman Rhee today demanded a "showdown" with the Communists now, even at be scared a showdown with his biggest ally, the United States.

Speaking from the capital and echoed by the cheers of 200,000 South Koreans, Rhee again demanded unification of North and South Korea by treaty or by guns and refused any truce without it.

Rhee's speech came on the third anniversary of the Korean war—a day that only a week ago was expected by many to be a Korean armistice day.

Hopes Almost Gone

Rhee spoke defiantly from the battle-scarred capital building in his aging, scratchy voice.

"Our hopes are almost gone," he said, referring to his own terms for truce.

"There must be a showdown with the Communists now.

"If we win it, we shall surely win," said Rhee, Korea will be united.

"If not, we will fight on to crush the enemy until every one of us dies."

He said South Korea should be given the right to fight on alone if by ourselves . . . to decide our own fate by our own hands."

Talks Suspended

The armistice talks themselves remained suspended until the Allied answer a violent Red protest over Rhee's release of the 27,000 POWs. There was no indication when the next meeting would be called.

Meanwhile, Gen. Mark Clark, UN commander, said in Tokyo the Allies have achieved their avowed purpose by stopping Red aggression and pushing the Communists back across the 38th parallel—the jumpoff point of three years ago.

In an anniversary message to the UN command and its men of 16 nations, Clark said the ultimate goal remains:

"An honorable armistice, followed by the peaceful unification of Korea."

Canadian Ship Returning Home From Korea War

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Canadian destroyer Crusader is on her way home after 12 months' service in Far Eastern waters, Allied navy headquarters announced today.

Vice-Admiral Robert P. Briscoe, commander of all United Nations naval forces in Korean waters, sent a message to the Crusader, saying:

"Your determination, irrepressible spirit and skill have earned you the admiration of all. You are a credit to the Royal Canadian navy and to the United Nations. Well done."

Eisenhower's Representative Reaches Seoul

By SAM SUMMERLIN

SEOUL (AP)—A personal representative of President Eisenhower arrived in Seoul today with an urgent, secret message aimed at winning President Syngman Rhee over to a quick truce on Allied terms.

The U. S. state department's Far East chief, Walter S. Robertson, will meet Rhee before the critical face-to-face talk that may be a showdown between South Korea and its biggest ally, the United States.

Robertson arrived just after Rhee demanded a "showdown with the Communists now" as he spoke from the capital, echoed by the cheers of 200,000 South Koreans. Rhee again demanded unification of North and South Korea by treaty or by guns and refused any armistice without it.

Says Church Led In Resistance To Communists

BOSTON (AP)—The church was the first point where resistance to communism in East Germany was openly noticeable and preceded the recent worker riots there, Lehrman Hans Lilje of Germany's Lutheran said Wednesday.

Bishop Lilje is president of the Lutheran World Federation embracing 60,000,000 Lutherans. As Bishop of Hannover, he is spiritual head of 3,000,000 church members and 1,100 pastors, a number of whom are in the East German zone.

The bishop is here as principal speaker at the 36th biennial international youth conference of the Augustana Luther League for 5,000 young people from all parts of the world.

The Lutheran Church, he said, openly opposed the Communists and denounced the tactics from the pulpit and in church papers.

Churchill's Driver Denies His Horses Snarled Up the Coronation Parade

Driving following the crowning of the Queen at Westminster Abbey, unmistakably got into a tangle on the way to Trafalgar Square. Some of the carriages bumped together and until they were two abreast instead of proper in line.

Speculation saw the prime minister's carriage pull out of the procession because of the confusion.

It seems that after the traffic jam he found his carriage at the end of the procession—the spot of honor reserved for the state coach of the Queen herself.

Churchill accordingly had his coachman edge over to the side to wait until the parade had passed. And then they drove off to 10 Downing street, the prime minister's official residence.

Ontario Business College Notes

As in other years, Ontario Business College will be closed during July and will re-open Tuesday, August 4th. Already prospective students are making plans to enter in August or September. Among these are six young men in various parts of Canada, frequently coming in daily for information about the courses.

In a letter from Montserrat, British West Indies, the writer states: "Knowing your College has trained many successful West Indian business men, I would like to send my son to you at an early date." Arrangements have been made for the young man's board and lodging, and he is expected in September or October.

The College was visited this week by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Allan of Calgary, Alberta, Mr. Archie Strong, Woodstock, N.B., and Miss Helen Hill of Ireland. Mr. Allan attended O.B.C. forty-two years ago and had a successful business career in the West. Mr. Strong came to O.B.C. from New Zealand in 1918. Miss Hill came from Bermuda three years ago to take courses here and is now employed by Butterfield's Bank in Bermuda. Her father and brother are also O.B.C. graduates. Another recent visitor was Mr. R. W. Burnaby, who came here as a student from Nova Scotia over fifty years ago.

Steady Demand

There is a steady demand for O.B.C. graduates in all responsible business positions. In one day this month there were requests for nine persons for office work.

DUTCH TRADE BANS

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) Netherlands delegate D. J. van Balkom told the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations Wednesday that Holland has prohibited any Dutch vessels from calling at any port in Communist China or North Korea when carrying arms, ammunitions or implements of war or strategic goods. This step was taken in accordance with the UN assembly decision of 1951 laying down an embargo on shipment of war supplies to the Reds.

A man who has risen from obscurity and comparative poverty to becoming a leading industrialist, designer and manufacturers the biggest earthmoving equipment in use today, who has given his personal fortune for the promotion of Christian work, and who spends his week-ends flying from city to city preaching the Gospel, is something of a phenomenon even in the United States.

This is the record of Robert Gilmour LeTourneau. Born in Vermont, he spent his boyhood in Minnesota, and the years of his early manhood in California, where he laid the foundations of his amazing career in a small automobile repair business. Mechanical knowledge already acquired, he soon had orders rolling in for the revolutionary machines which he designed and built. A healthy discontent with the tools available for his job at moving dirt caused Mr. LeTourneau to improve and invent until he had a better tool. This he would sell to some other contractor who cast envious eyes on it, and then build himself another and even better machine. By the time he had established both contractor and manufacturer, still at last the increasing demand for his equipment put the contractor out of business, Mr. LeTourneau's interests concentrated on the task of designing and building ever bigger machines and other rigs for shifting dirt quickly and at low cost.

First Plant at Stockton

His first plant was at Stockton, California, and in 1935 he built a new factory in Peoria, Illinois, and as his business grew he added plants at Vicksburg, at Toccoa, Georgia, Vicksburg, Mississippi, and at Longview, Texas. During World War II the LeTourneau Company secured out a total of equipment, valued at 191 million dollars, or approximately 130,000 units. In recognition of his services to the United States government these orders totalled years, and of his engineering attainments as well, Mr. LeTourneau was awarded the Certificate of Merit, by General R. Lee Emery, of the Army Air Forces, which he received in Washington in 1948.

As a young man, Mr. LeTourneau had a very spiritual experience, as the result of which he dedicated his life to be "God's business man." In 1935 he told Mrs. LeTourneau set aside 90 per cent. of their gross profit wealth to establish the LeTourneau Foundation in Texas, which promulgate and disseminate the Gospel of Jesus Christ throughout the world." In May, 1947, the Foundation was valued at seven million dollars. Since it was formed it has contributed to other organizations engaged in Gospel work over two and a half million dollars, and has spent a similar sum in carrying out its own program of Christian testimony.

In addition to giving his money, Mr. Le Tourneau also devotes his time to evangelistic work, spending every week-end in preaching the Gospel. He uses his own private planes for these to-plant journeys and for this week-end ministry, logging a total of approximately 200,000 miles a year. His famous address "Up From Bankruptcy" in which he tells the story of his own life, has been given to every state in the Union, and continues to draw large audiences wherever it is announced.

Cornwall Would Greatly Benefit From Seaway

FINCH, Ont. (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier said Wednesday night that construction of the international Rapids section of the St. Lawrence seaway and the Canadian side of the river would make the city of Cornwall the head quarters for the whole operation.

It will mean much to Cornwall and Stormont, county, said Mr. Chevrier who spoke to a nominating meeting which chose him as Liberal candidate for Stormont for the fifth time.

The minister said a canal for Canadian territory will mean that Cornwall will become the headquarters not only for the Canadian Lawrence canals for all the canal extending from Montreal to Prescott.

He said he believes the project is nearer to completion than ever before, but that some uncertainties remain as to the role of the United States.

Pat Maracle Blanks Wooler With Three Hits

Playing errorless softball behind the masterful three-hit hurling of Pat Maracle, Trenton moved into another Belleville District League win column with victory collected last night, blanking the Wooler nine by a 7-0 score.

The dusky hurler was never in better form. He had the Wooler batters practically eating out of his hand for the entire nine innings. Singles in the first, sixth and seventh were the best the opposition could garner from his slants.

Maracle sent down fourteen via the strikeout route and was never taxed on the task of developing more than three. He aided his own cause by smashing out a double and single to his own credit at the plate.

It was a beautiful piece of chicken hurling. Twice the opposition had runners on bases but Maracle bore down to strike out the side. In the sixth inning with McColl on third Maracle tossed ten pitches to retire the next three batters.

The Ox Pointers put the game on the ice in the first frame when they sent five runners galloping across the plate after shellacking McComb starting Wooler hurler for a clean half dozen clouts. A triple by Doug Hall, Johnny Green's double and singles by Genereaux, Gilmour, Pat Maracle and Buchanan did the trick.

They added another in the third when Maracle slammed Johnny Green who had gone to second on a fielder's choice, safely grabbing first on a fielder's choice.

Johnny Green bunted safely in the fifth and raced around on Buchanan's single after Wood's second sacrifice of the game had sent him to second.

McComb lasted eight innings for the losers, giving up thirteen hits and walking three. Barney McColl took over in the ninth, and was promptly touched for a pair of singles with no damage resulting.

Johnny Green paced the Ox Point offensive with two doubles and two singles. Hall had four hits and single with Maracle donating a double and single. Genereaux, Mallory and Buchanan had two singles each.

Austin, Gravitt and May were the only Wooler batters to connect safely with the enemy slants.

The score:

Wooler	000	000	000	—	0	3	1
Point Anne	301	010	00x	—	7	15	0

Maracle and Green; McComb, McColl (8) and Harder.

Membership Drive To be Undertaken By United Church

TRENTON (Special) — The North Trenton United Church plans a drive for a membership now that the congregation continues to increase under Sunday School superintendent Earl Bonter. Induction of new members is expected to take place in September when the Board of Elders will finalize arrangements for a membership drive to take over the ministerial duties.

The church was founded as the North Trenton Community Church and later dedicated in the name of the North Trenton United Church.

Earlier this week the church group known as the Community Workers entertained their husbands at a banquet held recently in the basement of the church.

Fire Dept. Called

A neighbor called the fire department, when he noticed signs of fire issuing from the roof of Harold VanMeer's house on Wall Street. The owner, working in his garden, had noticed signs of fire but went upstairs to warn his wife and another woman living in the house. By this time the three people reached the backyard they were surprised by two fire engine sirens wailing, pulling up at the side. Good neighbor Pat Meadows, who turned in the alarm, forgot to lean over the back fence and tell them help was on the way.

- Loss was confined to the roof and attic near house.

Officials recorded the cause as accidental.

Headquarters Opened

With the kind permission of R. J. Beamish Company the Trenton Centennial Committee rooms were opened on the main street yesterday. The headquarters is situated in the former Eaton corner attic near door to Bridge St. Officials may register there and request information from the congenial volunteers.

Dr. C. L. Wood Guest Preacher At St. Andrew's Anniversary

CAMPBELLFORD. — The 117th anniversary service of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday last, was featured by torrid summer heat, but nevertheless large congregations turned out for both morning and evening services.

Dr. Wood has been a missionary to India for the last thirty years. He resigned for six years in Bombay presidency and for the last twenty-four years he has worked among the Hills of Central India. He is a graduate of Queens' University and is one of the outstanding linguists of India, having obtained a higher missionary outdoor supper and garden party was held on the manse lawn, in a beautiful setting in the evening. Welcome remarks from the Sunday long provided by a delightfully cool breezes affording perfect weather for the ideal outdoor feature of the week-end at St. Andrew's.

The supper tables were well filled and the booths at the garden party which followed were made easily, refreshments and flowers, received good patronage. The Campbellford Citizen Band provided music, under the capable baton of Bandmaster Donald D. Bennett, A.T.C.M.

Interesting Program

During the band intermission the following program was given, with Mr. Walter Badgley as chairman: piano solo, Carol Cassell; tap dancing, (Donna Sharp's graduating four little girls; accordion solo, Gerald Taylor; banjo selection, Mr. Harold Spencer; piano solo, Marion Twiss; baritone solo, Mr. Ernest Archer; tap dancing, Donna Sharp's pupils.

Tweed Wins 13-3 Over Madoc

TWEED—A three run fourth inning and a five run fifth, along with a defensive collapse by Madoc, gave Tweed a 13-3 win over Madoc in their second victory in five starts.

Mumby smashed a bases-empty double in the top of the fifth for the fourth frame and then contributed a single in the five run second in the fifth. They coasted home with two more in the seventh.

Madoc scored two runs in the first, fifth and sixth.

Pigden went three balls in going the route for the winners. He walked six, and struck out six.

Pigden went the distance on the hill for the losers. He walked seven batters, gave four but was victimized by loose support.

Rivers and Pigden were the three led the winners at the plate while Mumby had a double and homer in four tries.

Bantam Baseball

Schwab's bantam baseballers kept their undefeated record intact on the home front when they win last evening with a 5-4 decision over Deva Ins in seven innings.

Schwab's were trailing 4-2 going into the sixth, but singles by Coe and Chick and O'Neil's triple to centrefield gave them the tying run with O'Neil scoring from third on an overthrow from the field.

Gordie St. Louis walked himself out of the hole in the second when he caused four straight passes. Then Elliott came to the rescue and over the rest of the route walked only one and gave up five hits for two runs to claim the decision.

Chick with a double and single, Coe with two singles, and O'Neil with a triple, were the hitters for the winners. Bennett led the losers with a double and two singles.

Gordie St. Louis opened the scoring in the second inning with a walk and the theft of second, third and home.

A MODERN FAIRY TALE

"The Rural Scene," a "journal of opinion" published at Midland, Ontario, prints a charming little article on the joys of country life and the farmer's appreciation of the natural beauty which surrounds him as he earns his daily bread.

At breakfast, "The Rural Scene" reports, Bill Tiller "told his wife, Mary, that he had never seen a more beautiful sunrise. Now, after two hours steady tractor work, he rested. The beauty about him satisfied his soul. The cars of summer visitors began to flit along the road to town. Why these people went to town so often always puzzled him, as did many other things about them. He felt sorry that they did not really live."

There is only one thing wrong with this picture of rural life. Many rural residents will have difficulty in recognizing themselves, or any of their neighbors, in Bill Tiller.

It is a sad fact that familiarity too often breeds contempt. The farmer who, in the slush of spring, the dust of summer, the cold of fall and the chill of winter, lifts his eyes to marvel at bursting buds, swooping swallows, fiery leaves and snow-draped pines, is the exception. So, too, is the man who can relax his mind from the task he is boring to one ten-thousandth of an inch and let himself absorb the marvel of sleek steel and pulsing power all around him.

Of course, these men love their work and their workshop, be it under the high vault of heaven or the stout steel beams of an industrial plant. Their love for it is ingrained in their very souls—and is the stronger for that. The farmer does not say to his wife that he has never seen a more beautiful sunrise, nor does the machinist address the foreman in that strain; but files him when he surveys some mighty new mechanical monster installed for his hands to guide.

One fact, however, of the country is not confined to the countryman, nor admiration for the work of man's hands to the city dweller.

The man you find strolling through the dying drifts in late March, knee-deep in grass beside some little brook in June, pushing his way through flaming sumach in the fall, braving the knife-edge of the wind on a high hill in January—that man is just as likely to work in an office as on a farm.

And who raises wondering eyes to the skies on Broadway, inspects a plant cell across a great gorge, watches fascinated in the throb and hum of a factory? Probably a farmer.

Should we be surprised at this? No, for whether they dwell in the city or the country, most men have in them the capacity to wonder, to respond to beauty whatever form it may take. They are flesh of each other's flesh—and "The Rural Scene" does none of them a good turn by suggesting that only the farmer appreciates Nature.

SOME FAMILIES!

The Ontario Urban School Trustees Association and the Ottawa Collegiate Institute Board see eye to eye on at least one subject, a state of affairs which is doubtless most gratifying to both organizations.

The Association approved a resolution from the Board deploring "glamorous headline and news treatment by the press on such family concerns as divorce, juvenile delinquency, sex crimes and the use of narcotics."

Our immediate reaction is to voice a mild objection to this use of the word 'glamorous'. Our natural tendency is to associate this word with shapes like Marilyn Monroe and we have never yet seen a headline shaped like Marilyn. But such quibbling over trifles is swallowed up by sheer amusement when, a few words further on, we learn that the Ottawa Collegiate Institute Board regards divorce, juvenile delinquency, sex crimes and the use of narcotics as "families of interest".

What kind of families do they have in this nation's capital anyway?

ALAS, POOR DOROTHY!

The debris of clippings on the editorial desk has just unearthed one of those skeletons of journalistic misfortune which are better buried in the wastepaper basket.

Before depositing the remains in their last resting place, we cannot, however, resist the temptation to expose them for public inspection, as a sort of horrible example of the hazards of editorial omniscience.

Miss Thompson was discussing the Korean truce situation. She said:

"The North Korean Government, via its military commander, is the primary negotiator of the truce. The South Korean Government was not.

"If Russia dictated to General Nam, nobody can prove it.

"But that the U.S.A. is dictating to South Korea is widely publicized.

"The psychological effect on Korea and Asia is to demonstrate that President Rhee is an American 'puppet', but that General Nam can speak and negotiate with the West as an equal."

Three days later, on Thursday morning, newspapers throughout the world carried screaming headlines announcing that the "puppet" Rhee had defied the U.N. and released 25,000 anti-Red prisoners.

Alas, poor Dorothy!

Majors and Mrs. Woolcott, who have been in charge of the Salvation Army here for the past year, have been transferred to Peterborough. They will be succeeded by Adjutant and Mrs. Martin of Saint John, N.B.

Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Moyes, Trent Road, celebrated the 25th anniversary of their wedding on Friday, June 23, and were honored by an informal surprise party at their home, which was arranged by the members of the Trent Road club in connection with Holloway St. United Church. The party was most enjoyable and Mr. and Mrs. Moyes were presented with a handsome silver cream and sugar set along with a silver lunch tray and tea. They also received numerous other beautiful silver gifts from individual members of the club and friends.

A slight drop in the number of people on relief in this city is noted by the Central Relief Bureau. At present a total of 225 families are listed at the Central Bureau. During the past winter the average number was somewhere in the neighborhood of 300 per month. Seasonable employment since the beginning of June is believed to be responsible for the decrease in the number seeking relief.

Fire caused by a bolt of lightning which struck a log house at the plant of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Co. here, Saturday afternoon about 2.30 o'clock resulted in damage to buildings, equipment and products estimated roughly at about twenty thousand dollars, or a million dollars. Distilling had been discontinued for the week-end only and was to be resumed in about two months' time. The loss is practically covered by insurance. The Belleville fire department, with the fire fighting force at the plant fought the fire until nightfall.

The paving of Station Street will be commenced immediately.

Dr. Robert M. Boyd, recent graduate of McGill University, Montreal, has returned to his home here to spend the vacation.

Such weather as the present was never mentioned in the touching ballad, "The Good Old Summer Time." It is far from being balmy.

Mr. C. Ashley is spending some time in New York City.

Mrs. J. H. Bettes St. is visiting friends in Toronto.

Mr. Samuel Anglin, a former student of the Belleville Collegiate of Toronto, is spending a few days here with friends.

Mrs. D. F. Hall, of Bay, formerly of this city, has left for her home in Winnipeg, Manitoba, after visiting relatives here for the past month.

THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

It can't be long now until the art of music shall be revolutionized by the use of the modern composers rest content with all the old fashioned violins, cellos, horns, woodwinds, many of which are centuries old in design and haven't been altered a whit since Bach's time—in a world wonder. Don't the musicians realize we are living in an age of invention? Surely all the ways of making sounds were not perfected by our ancestors?

When you see a modern composer struggling his darndest to make symphonies with old fashioned instruments, you feel as you would at the sight of a man trying to make fire the old fire a wheel barrow. If a musician is not content with the sounds a violin can make, but has to grind and squash away at it in a blind and wonderful effort to get something more, something new, out of it, why doesn't he get busy and invent something that will really squawk to suit him?

The other day I heard a concert by a famous orchestra under world famous conductor playing some works by Bela Bartok and Hindemith. It was pitiful to listen to those poor fellows struggling together to get new noises out of old instruments. It just wasn't in violins, horns and woodwinds to give what they were asking and it grew completely frustrated. In a few years, when modern music is the rule of the day, there will be no noise-makers in keeping with this supernatural music. Even these works of Bela Bartok, Hindemith and sundry others will be treasured by the few as the world as the examples of what composers had to put up with in our time, with limited equipment they had for making the real atonal racket they had in mind.

That the modern musicians have created a fine art is not to be doubted even by the most unenlightened of us. But it seems preposterous that they should confine themselves to instruments constructed in the new day that is dawning, those who want what the moderns have got can hear it on modern instruments. And those of us content with the old can stick mer in the sound of violin, horn and woodwind, undistressed.

Just Who Is a Tourist?
(Sudbury Star)

What constitutes a tourist within the records of the the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity?

A departmental report says that more than 250,000 United States "tourist cars" entered Ontario in the first five months of 1953 — 112,000 more than in May — according to provincial travel records to new highs both for the month and year.

But is a tourist a tourist when he is not? The dictionary defines a tourist as one who travels from place to place for pleasure or for culture.

What about that, Mr. Cécile?

Film Board Head Colorful

(By John Bird writing from Ottawa in The Hamilton Spectator)

It takes a good man to remain gally human and to survive as much academic criticism as does Albert William (Bud) Trueman, president of the University of New Brunswick, who is about to become Dominion film commissioner at Ottawa. He leaves Fredericton for Ottawa, where he is going to Australia as Canadian high commissioner.

The news of the activities which Dr. Trueman attended as a student, or graced as a professor, is forbiddingly long. Schooled in Truro, Nova Scotia, he was nurtured in Mount Allison, New Brunswick, graduating in 1927, took his M.A. at Oxford in 1932, and studied at the Universities of Chicago and Columbia. After schoolteaching in the Maritimes, Province of Quebec, he professed English at Mount Allison eventually heading the department. He made his mark as president of the University of New Brunswick in 1945-1946. He returned to the Maritimes as president of New Brunswick in 1948.

Today, at 51, Bud Trueman has a tall, silver figure, black hair greying to pepper and salt, with a salient, weather-beaten countenance on a cleanly chiseled face. He runs to good form in the sports he plays as well. He is quick-tempered and will take no nonsense where his duty lies, but he is kind to a fault, but also to himself, is aroused. He has shown himself quite capable of telling the board of governors of the University of New Brunswick precisely to go to hell in the Red River. He is well known to have stood up to Dr. Colin Mackenzie, the Dalhousie vebrook, chancellor and financial champion of the Dalhousie-King's-Mount Allison trio which is often known as "Beaverbrook College"), and to have given him a piece of his mind to view even after a Kilkenny spat.

The most important thing to know about Albert Trueman is that he has always been a success in the academic world, has never been spoiled or corrupted by success upon the side of the "profs," the governors and the administrators, but not the students. At that line which, though invisible, is the most important in the political life of any university, namely the line between students and "profs," Bud Trueman's place, Trueman has been found firmly on the students side even when he appeared to be one of the profs. More than one youthful student has been saved, or at least crippled, but saved from being fired, by Bud Trueman's benign but straight face, sternly rebukes the student, punishes him severely, but temperately, with such understanding of undergraduate foibles as a vivid recollection of the exuberance of youth.

Part of the explanation is that Bud Trueman has an attitude of youthful wonder at the world which is unspoiled by cynicism. Such as was natural in a boy from a small town in the Maritimes finding himself wafted to Oxford, to Chicago, to Columbia.

Dr. Trueman takes on the National Film Board at a difficult moment in its stormy history, soon both its headquarters and its operating units are to be transferred from Ottawa to Montreal. The film board, so long under fire on political grounds and former Director Ivens right with the Cabinet and even with Parliament, will still be under attack on the score of expense. Nor is the line between private enterprise and national financed film-making sufficiently clearly yet set to satisfy parliamentary opposition and business critics.

He moves to Montreal with difficult and costly. There is real division of opinion as to whether the N.F.B. should be moved at all, since this is the national capital. The deciding argument was the fact that Ottawa, still a cross between a rather small town and a capital city, provides a very wrong intellectual climate for that industrial art we call documentary film production. Nor has Ottawa any such reservoir of talent as has, let say, Toronto, Winnipeg or Vancouver. But, since the films are made to be seen by people in the uglish, the film board now gravitates to Montreal, the great bilingual city.

However, at the very same time when the N.F.B. is preparing to move, there is a great broadcasting undertaking, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, is bringing its operations from Montreal and Programming men from Toronto and Montreal to Ottawa, because it feels that this is the national capital and that the directors and English networks can best be done from the centre.

Bud Trueman's appointment as Film Commissioner will please those students by and large swore by him. The faculty liked him well enough, but he was unpopular with the board of governors. Part of these troubles lie in the fact that there is a miserable dichotomy, the university proper and the technical college, one in Fort Garry, and the junior departments of the university, engineering, medicine, architecture, were in Winnipeg, seven miles away. Students and faculty were shuttled to and fro, often twice daily in sub-zero weather, trying to keep the two parts of the university together. Trueman was in his Fort Garry days given to the task of bringing students by and large swore by him. The faculty liked him well enough, but he was unpopular with the board of governors. Few females were surprised when he resigned from the University of New Brunswick by his own choice as president of a smaller but still a large university.

As film commissioner, Trueman should find his board of directors easy enough to deal with. He has been known to himself. Now he will have to cope also with the Canadian Broadcasting Parliament. It is a good bet that the committee of the Commons studying the film board's annual reports from time to time, will enjoy Bud Trueman as a witness. Such duty is forthright, he is full of quiet fun and genial gamest. But he is capable and makes it his business to know his job. What if he does fly off the handle some time or other?

British Call Back to Reality Mentality

(Christian Science Monitor)

Poetry wrote Paul Valery, is a holiday of the mind. Certainly the British people, after almost 15 years of war, austerity, and drawn-out battles over "tax shares" and "productivity," with a glowing holiday from habitual cares.

But the very day following the Coronation, The Times of London ran institution as solidly British as the Crown itself. The case not to look back but forward and call back to the problems of productivity. The great ceremony, it pointed out, could be considered only as having become a national dedication to new realism.

We rather like the fact that the papers are not trying to Lose-don to see the festive decorations and keep alive the "poetry" of the occasion are determined to enjoy themselves out of the holiday spirit—a share they have richly earned—and to have a wonderful ball. But we appreciate the sterling character that distinguishes The Times's sustained admonitions to face reality squarely—and that looks on the world gaze from the gilded coach of state.

A borrowed screwdriver from his communist neighbor's fellow-worker in an auto manufacturing plant? Or the Democrat who runs Republic who decided to drive over to Niagara Falls for a couple of hours to have tea with Aunt Kate?

Is a tourist the businessman or travelling salesman in the United States who visits Canada on business?

How does the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity decide who is a tourist and who is not? The dictionary defines a tourist as one who travels from place to place for pleasure or for culture.

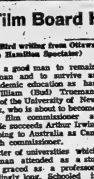
Could Post Man in Britain

(Winnipeg Free Press)

A human "postage parcel" is a novel and quaint idea which was recently it was possible in Britain to walk into a post office, pay the postage, and have a human parcel could be "posted" to the designated destination.



Reviewing this past custom Mr. Punch, in Parliamentary Table Talking: "This business of human parcels dates back to the very beginning of the postal service in Britain ago in Tudor times. In those days the mails, such as they were, always carried letters on horseback. But parcels were carried by carts rather than the letter. Then later on, when letters became more numerous, they, too, were carried by the post, it was the letters themselves that were carried. In old days the service was often used by the Secretary of State in the case of sending off important prisoners. The reprieve would be carried by the fastest rider in the land for life. It also had a little drawing of a gallows on the back of the ched each stage its time of arrival and departure had to be marked on the back.

"But the post office was still responsible for the conveyance of people who wanted to move around. There are several instances in the Diary of Samuel Pepys. Diary. He says there: Went to the Port House to hire a horse, and there was provided with a horse and a mounted guide. The Postmaster provided him sections or wtages, and one guide would cover each. The guide would ride with the horse to the next guide, and that went on until London was reached. The distance was not cheap, even in those days. The fee was 10s. a day, and for most out at threepence a mile, plus expence for each guide.

"The service survived until several years ago. In one case, just before the war, someone brought a small boy to a post office in North Wales and asked that he be to be delivered somewhere south of the river. He arrived safely and cheerfully at his destination, the most famous instance of the human parcels' service was in 1908. Ten

DISPLACEMENT OF CARTILAGE BETWEEN VERTEBRAE

Dr. Brady

Between the bones of the spine (vertebrae or vertebrae if you like to show your erudition) from the axis down to the sacrum are found two packs of cartilage elastic fibro-cartilage called discs. Each of these constitute nearly one-fifth of the length of the spine. They cushion the bones of the spine against severe jars — acting as shock absorbers.

Dislocation or displacement of an intervertebral disk in the low. or spine (herniated disk) is a common cause of the pain from which the old timers generally muffed as "sciatica."

Although protrusion (dislocation, displacement, hernia) of a cartilage disk is usually caused by an injury, the symptoms often come on at the time of the injury but. months or sometimes years later.

The chief symptoms are low back pain, pain down the back of the hip and thigh, often worse at night, and tenderness to pressure over the affected area.

It is the routine practice nowadays to make fluoroscopic (visual) or X-ray picture examination of the spine in cases of "sciatica" or "sacro-iliac sprain."

If the intervertebral disk is protruded or herniated its surgical removal generally gives complete relief.

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IT CAN BE DONE!

The wonderful thing about youth is this: It doesn't know how to give up! Which reminds me of a statement by Henry Ford. He once said: "Im looking for a man who is with an infinite capacity for not knowing when he is beaten."

Most of our modern conveniences and miraculous inventions were called impossibilities. They were created by men who never heard about the word "can't be done." It's the forward vision and the undefeatable spirit that has brought civilization we enjoy. That which so distinguishes our free way of life is the constant challenge.

A recent visit to the Ford Motor Company's research laboratories at Dearborn, Michigan, was a revelation. There I saw great space devoted to figuring out the future. Experts in dozens of departments explained each process's significance. We can easily envision the kind of future, but we know that miracu-lous things are being worked out. Things that a few years ago the best backs couldn't be done have already been accomplished.

The favorite song of the skeptic is: "It can't be done." Then some quiet fellow from distant nowhere goes ahead and does it! It's this kind of person who has always brought a new light into the world. How are you going to meet a challenge? Well, I don't know how I am going to do it—but it can be done, and I'll find a way.

If you don't know what it is that can be done, then have a look at road ahead and lots of space for thought and experimentation. You aren't a failure until you accept yourself as such! The road to great achievement is not a well-paved road, but it's "passable," thank God, as thousands have proved it to be.

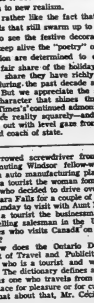
Cheers for those who say that it can be done! Here are the pioneers of all life. They are the John the Baptists of a better time and a future.

Strength for the Day
DR. EARL DOUGLASS

WITH GRATITUDE

A letter on my desk begins with these words: "Dr. Albert Schweitzer once said that the greatest sign of victorious living was not to take life for granted but to take life with gratitude."

Often we remind ourselves that there is an awful, foreboding mystery about human existence that is loaded with misery. Its fabric rots with unavenged injustice. The saint goes to the gallows or to the stake, and his executioner dies quietly in his bed. There is no justice in life.



But just as there is a horror about unfairness, there is also a glory about dawn, and a radiance about noontide, and in human affairs the blessings outnumber the afflictions—deeds are done and deeds of love and beauty occur to finally to claim its own.

What a comfort of talking life for granted! We are all guilty of it—especially those of us who live under free institutions and under the spiritual liberty of Christ's Church. Often our health is taken for granted, and the love that surrounds us, and the loyalty of our friends; and if for a moment there is a slight misunderstanding in any of these, we cry out bitterly against the injustice of life. Let us take life with grateful hearts! Let those of us who live loving God sustains it, a loving God who delights in it as in the purpose He has always had in mind for his children.

Dandelion Courageous
(Stratford Expositor)

Certainly the dandelion is an enterprising and courageous botanical bit. Given half a chance it will grow almost anywhere. Is its persistence to be deplored? Then why make this very same characteristic a virtue among men? Instead of disdainfully the blossom does offer a striking picture, regardless of what it may do to prospective lawns. Its tenacity is amazing, so that it flourishes, come the hottest summer or the coldest winter.

It can be acquainted with the formula or recipe, dandelion blooms can be the basis of a potent beverage.

CAMPBELLFORD

SUFFERS BROKEN BONE

CAMPBELLFORD — Melville Finch, age 44, of RR 2, Harold, suffered a broken collar bone on Wednesday afternoon when he fell while pouring cement at the new Niagara, British line which sank off the New Zealand coast early in the Second World War. A total of 24 gold bars worth an estimated $350,000— have been recovered. Divers hope to get after 11 more believed to be still on the Niagara.

BANCROFT

Millbrook Man Falls from Truck, Skull Fractured

BANCROFT — Crawford Hall, 43, of Millbrook, suffered a fractured skull and facial cuts Monday afternoon when he fell from a truck in Highway 62 at Cormermere. After treatment in the Bancroft Red Cross Hospital, Hall was rushed to Civic Hospital in Peterborough, where his condition was described as "serious".

Hall was a passenger in a truck driven by Kenneth Sherwood, of Port Hope, when the accident happened. The pair were proceeding to Killaloe. The truck was rounding a curve when, it is believed, Hall grabbed for the window handle for support. He caught the doorhandle instead and the door opened, throwing the man out of the vehicle onto the road.

After treatment by Dr. S. S. Lamb in Bancroft, the injured man was taken to Peterborough. He was unconscious during the trip.

Provincial police at Killaloe are investigating the accident. Hall is a timekeeper with the McFarland Construction Co. now working on the cutoff from Highway 35 to Highway 28.

Seeking Driver

A hit-and-run driver was causing $100 damage to a parked car on Highway 62 at Maynooth early Monday morning, police are being sought by Bancroft OPP. Pte. Ken Bell said that the unknown driver backed his car into to another vehicle parked on the south side of the road and continued it into a third car owned by Ernest Ellis of Maynooth, which was also parked. The second car involved was not badly damaged. Nobody was injured.

Hurt in Blast

Glen Reid, of Bancroft, working on construction on Highway 28, three miles west of here, was injured by flying rocks from a dynamite blast at 11.20 a.m. on Saturday. He was taken to the Bancroft Red Cross Hospital, where he was treated for hand and leg injuries by Dr. S. S. Lamb.

Two Hit-Run Accidents

Two hit-and-run accidents late Saturday night injured one man and caused extensive damage to a car. At midnight, a car driven by Miss Hailey Allen of Combermere, going east on Highway 62, two miles east of Maynooth, was struck by an unknown vehicle, proceeding west, which failed to stop. Extensive damage was done to the car.

Ten minutes later, an onlooker, Frank Godda, of Combermere, was knocked down by an eastbound car. This car also failed to stop.

Godda, who suffered facial and bodily injuries, was taken to the Bancroft Red Cross Hospital and treated by Dr. S. S. Lumb. Both accidents are being investigated by Provincial police.

CHRISTIE CASE

Terming Christie "an object of pity rather than of horror," Curtis-Bennett told the jury, "He is a man who should be locked up for the rest of his life."

During the trial, now in its fourth day, Christie confessed to gassing or garrotting at least six women in waves of sex lust and what was described as the mercy killing of his 54-year-old wife, Ethel.

Technically, he was on trial only for killing his wife. His formal plea was "not guilty."

Crown Case

"We have very clearly proved that Christie did deliberately and intentionally kill his wife on Dec. 14. He killed her by strangling her with a stocking and he knew perfectly well what he was doing."

The prosecution contended that Christie deliberately tried to conceal her death by lies and forgery.

Wednesday three psychiatrists clashed over whether Christie, a bespectacled meek-looking man with a lean jaw and owlish features, is insane. One for the defence thought so. Two doctors for the prosecution didn't.

Christie, dead broke and worn out, was picked up March 31 after a week-long county-wide hunt. It all started when a tenant moving into Christie's tenement apartment discovered a half-nude corpse in a walled-up kitchen cubbyhole while cleaning up the place.

Police tore apart the sleazy building at 19 Rillington place in the Notting Hill district of London and dug up the garden. They found the wife's decaying corpse beneath the parlor floor and removed three bodies of young women from the cubby-hole. In the garden they unearthed two skeletons.

Before the trial, Christie confessed to the murders and admitted a seventh slaying, that of the pretty young wife of a neighbor in 1949.

He capped his admissions by saying he "may have" killed even more women.

Sees Insanity Proved

Curtis-Bennett said of Mrs. Christie's death: "There could not have been a better case than that to prove Christie's insanity. It is the murder of the most completely insane kind of the lot."

Wednesday, Curtis-Bennett told the strangled his wife with a stocking to put her out of misery during a convulsion. He claimed he kept the body under the parlor floor because he couldn't bear to be separated from Mrs. Christie.

"This is not a case for nurses to show a motiveless purposeless killing of a helpless wife," told the defence lawyer continued.

Curtis-Bennett's statement lasted just over two hours. Court then was followed by Heald, who said that after three days of evidence the jury must "almost wonder whether the whole thing is a dream."

Heald dismissed the defence contention that Christie forgot what was right or wrong, and said: "We find time after time he does something in the circumstances that it is very convenient to him to say afterwards he did not know what he was doing."

Heald stressed that Christie testified "I don't suppose I should" after he was asked whether he would have garrotted his wife if a policeman had been in the room.

He told the jury a similar question was put during the Bentley trial and added: "that was the test adopted by one of the greatest criminal lawyers we ever had in this country, I am not afraid to apply that test and I believe his lordship will tell you that it is a proper test to apply."

He added emphatically:

"If you do apply it—well, is not that the end of the matter?"

'SHOWDOWN NOW'

Rhee has said the Allies agreed to unify Korea and drive out the Reds, but top Allied statesmen disagree, branding it as Chiefs advancement.

In Seoul, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, 8th army commander, said in an emergency message that UN soldiers have "no thought of separating from the Republic of Korea forces."

Rhee has written Clark that he would grant his 16 divisions from UN command rather than agree to a truce on present terms, but he said he would advise Clark before doing so.

Crowds totalling 1,000,000 or more poured through the streets of South Korean cities in massive but orderly government-called demonstrations.

In Seoul, they jammed the capitol grounds to hear Rhee as he stood protected by rooftop machine-guns. They were not needed.

U.S. Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs declined an invitation to the rally. He was said to have informed the government he could not be present at a rally demanding unification by force rather than peaceful means.

Reiterates Terms

Rhee drew wild cheers and applause when he reiterated his terms for approving a truce:

1. The Red Communist forces and the UN pull out of Korea at the same time.

2. A political conference to negotiate full peace for Korea be limited to three months.

3. A mutual security pact between South Korea and the U.S. insuring American aid if Korea is invaded again.

The president said if his demands are accepted "we would not object to a truce but will go along with our allies."

But there was an ominous note when he added:

"However, no response has come as far and, if not officially so announced, we consider these proposals no longer hold good and our hopes are almost gone."

Weddings

FLETCHER—MASS

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Sunday, May 31st, at the United Church parsonage, Madoc, by the Reverend J. F. Lane, when Iva Adela Mass, of Boulter, Ontario, was united in marriage to Malcolm Craig Fletcher, also of Boulter.

MOORE—MASON

A wedding of interest took place in London, Ontario, on Saturday, June 20, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. F. Mason, when her daughter, Barbara June Mason, formerly of Belleville, became the bride of Robert George Moore, of London, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moore. The Reverend A. Gillies, of Centennial United Church, officiated. The home was beautifully decorated for the occasion with pink and white peonies.

During the signing of the register "O Promise Me" was played.

The bride, beautifully attired in egg shell blue nylon lace over taffeta, with matching halo headdress and fingertip veil, entered the living room to the strains of the Wedding March. She carried a white Bible, from which cascaded white satin ribbons knotted with pink rosebuds.

Mrs. Glen Crawford, of St. Mary's, Ontario, sister of the bridegroom, was matron-of-honor, gowned in pink sheer with white accessories and wearing a corsage of pink roses tied with blue satin ribbons.

Mr. Robert Mason was best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Pompadour Room of the Latin Quarters. At this was also the bride's 20th birthday. Those were happy guests present from Centralia, Toronto, and London. The bride's mother received wearing navy sheer with navy accessories and pink rose corsage. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore lilac sheer with white accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

After the reception, the happy couple left for Niagara Falls and points west, the bride travelling in a turquoise linen suit with white accessories and corsage of pink roses. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Moore will reside in London where the bridegroom is on the staff of the Coca Cola Company.

The bride's gift to her bridegroom was a gold watch; to her bridesmaid, a white nylon purse; and the bridegroom's gift to his bride, a set of luggage, and to the best man, a lighter.

Prior to her marriage the bride was honored by three miscellaneous showers; as well as being the recipient of a Duncan-Flyfe style coffee table from the staff of the Coca Cola Drug store, of which the bride was a member for the past two years. She also received a beautiful wool blanket from the staff of the Mission Villa Hospital, of which the bride's mother is a member.

Fashion Show, Tea and Sale Sponsored for Hospital

FICTON — Wednesday was an ideal day, bright and warm, and that afternoon saw in the neighborhood of 500 ladies wend their way to Picton Armouries. Sponsored by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, and of the County Hospital, assistance in staging the gala event was given by the churches of the town and the Women's Institute branches of the country.

The Armouries presented a lovely scene with its bright decorations and the summery finery of the ladies. Tea tables had blue streamers on white, the hospital colors. Vases of roses, pansies and other flowers centred each table where 65 hostesses entertained groups of friends. The two long tables, where tea was served by Mrs. H. W. Bedell, Mrs. A. E. Calnan, Mrs. F. H. Minaker, Mrs. C. A. Pulbow, Mrs. F. E. Reddy, Mrs. John Mallory, Mrs. H. J. McFarland and Mrs. A. O. Wood were covered with tall vases of roses, delphinium and peonies.

The ladies' table, done in pink and white, was in charge of Mrs. G. C. Caughey and Mrs. K. E. McQueen.

Offers Many Styles

The apron booth offered many styles with Mrs. C. A. Pulbow and Mrs. George Williams in charge.

Garden carts, filled with mystery items were wheeled through the crowds by Mrs. Gordon Mc-Quickly under the direction of Mrs. F. J. Webster and Mrs. Gordon B. Whatten.

The raffle was in charge of Mrs. R. J. Williams and Mrs. G. J. Colliver. Mrs. Sidna Nourse headed the decoration committee. Mrs. Richard Hadden received the reservations. Fees were received by Mrs. H. R. Baxter, assisted by Mrs. Alan Baxter.

The guests were received by Mrs. S. W. D. Hart, president of the W.H.A. and Mrs. Allen Arnold, superintendent of the hospital.

Bright With Flowers

The stage was bright with baskets of flowers and there was soft music as models showed the latest in hats and furs. This was under the direction of Mrs. Harry Slaven and Mrs. W. deC. Hepburn. The models were Miss Barbara King, Miss Cora Manton, Miss Helen Rankin, Mrs. George Andrews, Mrs. Bongard, Mrs. Walter S. Fraser, Mrs. Douglas Porter, Mrs. R. W. Eves, Miss Rosemary Carman, Susan Hepburn, Katharine Anderson, Joan Benson, Germana Arthurs, Mrs. F. Sullivan, Mrs. Robert Walmsley, also junior Misses Kindra Hepburn, Penny Taylor, Ingrid Ackerman and Elizabeth Gallagher.

During the afternoon, vocal solos by Mrs. R. Hendrikse, of Belleville, were much enjoyed. Mrs. Mary Deacon was accompanist and one of her compositions "Song of the Wind", was sung by Mrs. Hendrikse.

Servers represented the supporting organizations, with Mrs. W. J. Hall and Mrs. G. C. Walmsley as conveners. Included were thirteen members of the County Nurses' Association.

Women of Moose Elect Officers

The Women of the Moose, Belleville Chapter 433, held its first meeting of the month in the Moose Hall recently with a good attendance. The meeting was called to order by Senior Regent, Mary Peoples.

Birthdays of the month in the Loyal Order of Moose Ladies' Auxiliary were remembered with a cake and candles and the following were present: Mrs. A. D. Archibald; vice-president, Mrs. A. G. Tooth; secretary, Mrs. W. Jeffery; treasurer, Mrs. H. Seldon.

The program for the evening was in charge of Miss J. Tickell and Mrs. W. H. Hurst the topic being "The British in Egypt".

Miss Tickell dealt with the geography and history of Egypt showing that it is the crossways of the world. The population is made up of 91 per cent Moslems and eight per cent Christians.

Five thousand years ago Egypt lit the torch of civilization in the world. In 640 the Arabs invaded Egypt and changed the political and economical situation of the country. From 1500-1700 Egypt was used as a base for Turkish operations against Portugal.

In the 18th century Napoleon took Egypt to try to hit at Britain, and especially her trade route to India. Britain chased Napoleon out of Egypt in 1801. He didn't stay in the country. However, she took an interest later when she found that Egypt was speaking to the French scientists and men of letters.

Self Government

Self government was instituted in 1919 by a constitution set up Lord Kitchener, who was the first governor; however, in 1914 martial law was suspended and Egypt was declared a British protectorate. She country became a base for army operations during World War I.

During this period, nationalistic spirit grew and at the end of the war Egypt demanded that the British evacuate. This measure was side-tracked by the British government.

In 1922 the protectorate was ended and Egypt was declared a sovereign state.

Mrs. Hurst dealt with the rise and fall of the monarchy under King Fuad, and his son King Farouk. This was followed by internal trouble, the Egyptian army, under the command of General Naguib, took control of the country and forced the abdication of King Farouk.

A most interesting discussion followed. The club will resume its meetings in September.

Women's Study Guild Given Analysis Of Egyptian History

The annual meeting of the Women's Study Guild took the form of a pot luck supper in the garden at the home of Mrs. W. A. Campbell, 14 Mount Pleasant Road. Seventeen members enjoyed a most pleasant social get-together before the business meeting.

The president, Mrs. W. N. Hurst presided and pointed out that the aim of the study club was to study current events in the light of Christian principles.

The Worship service was conducted by Mrs. Stanton whose theme was "You can change the world". She enlarged on this by giving the story of the Christophers and their aims and purposes to better mankind by small helpful individual deeds.

A report was given on one of the members, Mrs. A. G. Tooth, who is in Toronto at the present time and had attended the Coronation.

The letter from the various committees were read and approved. The treasurer stated that during the year the Guild had contributed to the Stratford Shakespearean Foundation, the Unitarian Service Committee; the Mental Health Association, and the Save the Children Fund.

1953-54 Officers

The slate of officers for 1953-54 was presented and adopted. The following were elected: Mrs. A. D. Archibald; vice-president, Mrs. A. G. Tooth; secretary, Mrs. W. Jeffery; treasurer, Mrs. H. Seldon.

The program for the evening was in charge of Miss J. Tickell and Mrs. W. H. Hurst the topic being "The British in Egypt".

Fellowship Club Holds Season's Final Meeting

The Fellowship Club of Hollow Street Church met in the church parlors on Wednesday. A pot-luck supper was much enjoyed by members and visitors.

Mrs. Bruce White presided over business period. The usual business was transacted.

Devotional period was taken by Mrs. William Anderson and her group; also a reading was given by Mrs. Anderson, "The United Church or Canada Believes".

This was the last meeting until September.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her Mother Is Problem—and Rival, Too

Dear Miss FAirfax:

I am a girl of high school age, and my mother has been divorced from my father for several years. I have got used to being without my father, but what I can't get used to is the way my mother is acting now. She is going with a man who works out of the city and just comes here every two or three weeks. When he comes to see my mother, they both get drunk. It is bad enough when they just stay in the house and drink together, but when they go out and other people see them I am so ashamed. I think everybody is town talks about them. I am afraid to say anything about it to my mother, so perhaps you could tell me what to do about them. P.J.

Dear P.J.:

This is too big a problem for a teen-ager to handle all alone, and I think you should confide in some older person you like and trust.

Since you say that you think everyone in town knows about this, it seems to me you would not need to feel you would be betraying any confidence if you did talk it over with someone. Perhaps one of your girl friends has a mother whom you like and who you think is just the sort of mother a girl should have. If so, that's a suggestion that you ask her if you could talk to her about your home problem. Think over all the mothers you know and see if there isn't one you feel you could go to for advice without feeling too self-conscious about it.

You might also send a little letter like one you wrote to Alcoholics anonymous in your city. This is an organization which tries to help people who drink too much, and you might get some advice from them on the best way you could help your mother.

Try both these plans I have suggested, and I think through one or another you may get some help. I'm sure that you'll feel better, at least, if you have talked about your problem with some kind and understanding older person.

A Boy Of 6 Isn't Too Tung To Learn Diplomacy

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Maybe you think it's funny for a 14-year-old boy to have a problem about a girl, but the trouble is, the father of the girl I like is very strict with her, and does not allow her even to talk to boys on the phone.

I would like to see once in a while, but I don't know how I can, and I wondered if you could give me a suggestion.

This girl is 14, too. — J.C.

Dear J.C.:

While a girl of 14 is pretty young still for very much in the way of dates, I think that this father is perhaps over-strict in not allowing his daughter even to talk with boys on the phone.

Possibly, if you go at it right, you might be able to win the father's liking and confidence enough so that he would allow you to take the girl out once in a while to appropriate places.

Instead of having the girl ask her father if she may go out with you, as most boys are apt to do, I suggest that some time you try the experiment of calling him up yourself, or even going to the house, and asking him very nicely and politely if you might be permitted to take his daughter to the early movie on a Friday or Saturday night, for instance. Or perhaps you might better ask for this privilege on a Saturday afternoon, for the first try.

Not infrequently, parents who are very strict with their daughters can be won over if boys are thoughtful enough to take the trouble to try and make friends with the parents, and I think it would be worthwhile for you to make this effort. If you don't do this, then I am afraid you are licked from the start, so far as getting an opportunity to take the girl out is concerned.

Guests Are Welcome

By Mary Moore

It's all very well for food columnists to sound off in a superior manner on the simplicity of week-end entertaining. You and I know it isn't always. We also know it is costly. We know we can absorb the cost and cope with the detail, but we can't stand the confusion that breaks out just before mealtime.

I know that I wish everybody would go out in the garden, but I do want Pete to set the table or carry out the trays, and I do want Marianne on hand to make the salad and the coffee. It sounds cut and dried but that's my system when I'm surrounded.

But . . . there is plenty of behind-the-scenes preparation on the day before and in the morning (if I can get away from the typewriter), and I know full well that you have your systems too, and possibly they are better organized than mine.

Today I am going to give you a few recipes that I prize that I think will make your week-end entertaining easier, and not too budget-busting. I hope you will love me for them.

Jellied Veal

The cost of a veal shank is about 35 cents per, pound this week. Buy two or three. They will cost about $1.50 or $1.75 in all. Ask the butcher to break them for you. Wash them and put over in large kettle with cold water. Add 1 tbsp. salt, 6 tablespoons each chopped celery leaves, onion, carrot, parsley and either 1-4 teaspoon pepper or 3 or 4 whole pepper berries. Bring to boiling, reduce heat and let simmer until meat falls from bones—about 2 1-2 to 4 hours. Strain liquid. Remove meat and bones and rind in large platter and carefully pick out all of the bones. Put through fine knife of grinder, what little fat and cartilage you have. Some of you will want to have the veal in pieces. Others may want to grind it coarsely and add a little ground rind and cartilage. Which ever way you choose, put them together again.

Measure the strained liquid. Do not use more than 4 cups. While veal liquor will jell the finished loaf, it is wise to add gelatin to make it slice neatly. Soak 2 tablespoons gelatin in 1-2 cup cold water for five minutes, then dissolve it by stirring it over hot water. Stir the dissolved gelatin into the 4 cups veal liquor, add the ground or cut meat. Now add salt—about 2 or 3 teaspoons—but taste before you add it all. The salt leaves its sparkling effect this is cold. Add pepper too to taste—and grind it fresh if you have one of the grinding gadgets. You may pour it into molds ready for it is ready for chilling and setting. If you want to garnish your molds place sliced hard cooked eggs on the bottom and carefully pour in 1-4-inch layer of the meat liquor and chill until this is set. Then fill molds with the meat and liquid. Chill until set firmly.

Keep these loaves carefully refrigerated.

Lemon Syrup

This is good for iced, tea, lemonade or mixed fruit drinks.

Wash 6 lemons, roll them to soften them, grate off the yellow part of the rind. Cut them in halves and squeeze out the juice. Add rind and add 2 cups sugar and 2 cups water and boil, covered for ten minutes. Cool. Add strained lemon juice. Store in covered jar. Use 1 part of this syrup to 4 parts of water for lemonade. Use 2 tablespoons to sweeten and flavor each very tall glass iced tea.

Summer Pound Cake

One and one-half cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1-4 teaspoon soda, 1 1-2 cups sugar, 1 cup butter (no substitutes), 1 1-2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 1-2 teaspoons lemon juice grated rind 1 orange, grated rind 1-2 lemon, 3 large eggs, yolks and whites separated, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar. Butter and flour tube or loaf pan —these should be medium-large. Sift together the sifted flour, half the sugar, and the soda. Add the butter which should be room temperature and cream it into them thoroughly. Beat in egg yolks, one at a time, and the salt. Add cream of tartar to the whites and beat until they will hold a peak softly. Then begin sprinkling remaining sugar over, while beating until all is used and whites are stiff. Pour whites over first mixture and fold in until barely mixed. Pour into prepared pan. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. Time depends on size of cake—about 1 1-4 hours. Cake shrinks from sides. Test with broom straw if necessary.

Lots of news is evident in the new fitted coats. Apart from their new and refreshing look they are quite different from the pyramids and tents we've been wearing. This one is in navy wool in a roughtextured weave. The cardigan neckline sports a tiny white pique collar which is detachable. The gentle slope of the shoulders is further emphasized by the cutin-one cape which dips in back. Line of the cape terminates in figure-molding seams on either side of the front closing. Hip pockets, which extend at the hipline, are stiffened to hold their shape.

Notes To Thank For Baby's Gifts

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

Many friends and relatives have sent me lovely gifts for my newborn baby. Some sent gifts of money.

1. When I write the thank-you notes should I address the notes to both the husband and wife? And do I include my husband's name in the signature?

2. Please give me a sample note for (a) the usual baby gift, (b) the money gift, and (c) birth congratulation cards.

(1) Address the envelope to "Mrs. Philip Smith" . . . write the note to "Dear Dorothy" . . . sign your note "Susan." In the body of the note thank the husband too, and also include your husband's appreciation.

Suggestion for thank-you note for a present to your baby:

Dear Dorothy, How wonderful of you and Phil to be so good and kind to our newcomer! The bonnet is a beauty, so exquisitely pink and soft, extremely becoming to our little blond Cynthia . . . she will wear it with great comfort and pride. Phil and I thank you both, most, most gratefully. And we hope that you will come soon to "meet" the baby, and see how happy she is wearing your charming gift.

Love to all there, from all here.

Affectionately,

Susan

For a gift of money:

Dearest Aunt Josephine,

Bob and I are so deeply touched by your and Uncle George's goodness to us, your dear thoughtful gift and your very generous expression of your thought for our new baby. You were both wonderfully kind, and Bob and I thank you, most heartily. There are several things that our Cynthia would find most welcome, and shortly I will sally forth to choose for her a gift she will cherish . . . and I shall tell her about you dears and and your goodness in giving it to her. And—I'll write you then all about it, and ask you to begin all over again to be thanked!

We all hope that good fortune will bring you both this way very soon! In the meantime, all love, dearest love and thanks to you both from both of us.

Lovingly, Susan.

To thank for a card of congratulation:

Dear Frances,

You and Bill were so kind to send us the warm-hearted message . . . Bob and I appreciated it so very much, and we're saving it to show our Cynthia when she can read your pleasant words! Please come in soon to make the acquaintance of the newcomer.

Cordially,

Perfume For Her Birthday

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

My daughter is to have her fifteenth birthday soon, and she fixed upon "yearns" (her word) to have me give her some perfume as one of her presents. What kind would be proper for her? — Mother

A light garden-flower fragrance would be delightful and suitable for this very-young lady . . . no heavy perfume like gardenia, and no heavy Eastern extracts. A mistily delicate toilet water might be better than perfume, if she would be contented with this.

Queen Mother, Princess Will Visit Rhodesia

By STLEY HAWKINS

SALISBURY (Reuters) —South-ern Rhodesia is busy preparing to the last detail for the 16-day visit of Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret to the colony in the first half of July.

The tour, starting and ending with Comet jet airliner flights be-tween London and Salisbury, will mean an historic year for South-ern Rhodesia which in April voted to join Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland in a Central African Federation and now is celebrating the 100th anniversary of the birth of its founder, Cecil Rhodes.

The Queen Mother's itinerary in the colony is the climax to six months of festival throughout the Rhodesias com-memorating Rhodes.

Leading centres in the colony away from Salisbury, the capital, are two such as Gwelo, Umtali and Fort Victoria are working ready for royal visits which will include garden parties, laying a founda-tion stone of the new Rhodes University and visits to missions, villages and townships.

Two days after landing at Salis-bury's new airport July 1, the Queen Mother and Princess Mar-garet will be in Bulawayo for a ceremonial opening of the Rhodes exhibition in which Britain and 17 governments on the African con-tinent have joined.

At the exhibition's 2,000 - seat theatre royal the Queen Mother will open auditorium - in Africa, the Queen Mother and Princess Mar-garet will attend gala perform-ances by Britain's Halle Orchestra and a pageant of Rhodesia based on the life of Cecil Rhodes.

From Bulawayo, the royal train will travel overnight to Gwelo, largest mining and industrial centre in the Rhodesia midlands, later moving on to Umtali, amid beautiful scenery on Southern Rho-desia's mountainous border with Portuguese East Africa.

Day of Rest

Some 20 miles from Umtali, the Queen Mother and Princess Mar-garet will have a day without en-gagements at the Leopold Rock hotel, built after the wartime Italian internee labor nearly 2,000 feet above sea level amid the mountains and valleys of Rho-desia's great Vumba range.

The hotel took its name from a family of Leopards which used to sun themselves on a rock near the site before it was built and opened in 1946.

From the hotel the royal party will continue their journey by road to Fort Victoria, oldest European settlement in Southern Rhodesia and one of the first places identi-fied with the pioneer column dis-patched by Rhodes into this part of Africa in 1890.

To Visit Ruins

Seventeen miles from Fort Vic-toria, the Queen Mother and Prin-cess Margaret are to visit the Zimbabwe ruins, one of the world's riddles of history where remnants of an early settlement still stand unidentified after half a century of investigation.

The ruins, vaguely known to early Arab and Portuguese travel-lers, have been linked by some authorities with Ophir, source of gold for King Solomon's temple, but others put them much later, belonging to the period between 900 A.D. and 1539 A.D.

BLOOMFIELD

FINDS HUSBAND DYING

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Daniel Scott, 42, was found fatally wounded in the kitchen of his home on Tuesday by his wife, Laura. A sawed-off 22 calibre rifle with a home-made wooden butt resem-bling a revolver was found by his side. Dr. A. R. Routledge, Middle-sex coroner, said it was a case of suicide.

Women's Institute

CANNIFTON - CORBYVILLE W. I.

The Canniffon and Corbyville Women's Institute held their June meeting in the town hall. The meeting opened with the pre-sident, Mrs. Georgo Shorey, in the chair. There were 12 mem-bers present and one visitor.

Cards of thanks were read, al-so a letter from the Rhodes. It was decided to hold the picnic on August 12 at the Club Ca-dars. The district annual is to be held here in June. After the business was over the meet-ing was handed over to the Home Economics convener, Mrs. Moore.

There was a contest on the parts of the human body which was won by Mrs. K. Ewing. Mrs. Brintnell of Carmel, demonstrat-ed hooked rugs and other rug making. It was greatly enjoyed by all.

Bountiful refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. F. Bleecker and her helpers and a social half hour enjoyed.

The next meeting will not be held till September.

WELLMAN'S W.I.

The June meeting of the Well-man's W.I. was held on the 17th. at the home of Mrs. Jack Cun-ham.

The president opened the meet-ing. The motto: "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall" was sung by Mrs. William Matthews.

Mrs. Douglas Clancy gave the report of the district annual held at Ivanhoe on May 28th. Read-ings were given by Mrs. Arthur Beckett; "The Coronation Pray-er"; Miss Emma Raiola, "The Queen is Crowned" and Mrs. F. Beckett sang a solo, "Till We Meet Again". Douglas Clan-cy gave the topic "History of Farmer Institutes."

Refreshments were served by the hostess and the lunch com-mittee.

Women's Activities

ALLISONVILLE W.A.

BURR'S — The hall at Allis-onville took on a festive appear-ance for the June W.A. meeting when this organization entertain-ed the visiting associations: Victoria, Centre, Ameliasburg, Crofton, Melville, Bowerman's, Wellington and Rose Hall.

Baskets of peonies about the platform and vases of flowers on each of the tables in the ten tables lent their fragrance and beauty.

Mrs. S. Clark presided and in warm phrases welcomed the guests. The devotional was tak-en by Mrs. Leon Caughey and Mrs. M. Parks.

The visiting groups were re-sponsible for the program, which was of a high order, as follows: vocal solo, Mrs. Townsend, Vic-toria; Mrs. W. Howell, accom-panist; reading, Mrs. B. Alyea, Wellington; vocal sacred duet, Mrs. J. Kingsley and Miss M. Gordon, Melville, with Mrs. A. Kinnear as accompanist; piano solo, Mrs. W. Howell, Centre.

Mrs. Arnold Cross pleasingly introduced Mrs. Walter Elliott, of Stirling, who brought a worth while message. Her theme was chosen from the recent Corona-tion ceremony, "Millions," she said, "had watched the crown-ing of Elizabeth II, with varied feelings, some indifferently, some with a sneer, many with rever-ence and love, and not a few perhaps wishing they could be her place, surrounded with all the splendor and pomp, possibly not realizing all the sacrifice and the weight of the wearing of a crown entails. The whole cere-mony has a religious signifi-cance."

Her remarks centred around the crown. The crown was first mentioned Biblically in Exodus 29: 6 when Aaron was crowned for the priesthood. The words in II Samuel 12: 30 "And all the people shouted and said 'God Save the King'" sound a famil-iar strain at this time and make one realize something of the ex-cient origin of the crowning ce-remony. The sacred symbolism of the crown jewels was descri-ed and the number of them told.

Her address closed with a text chosen from a favorite verse tak-en from Rev. 2: 10, "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life." She closed with: "may we all remain faithful and may our crowns wear not only jewels but stars."

Vocal Solo

Vocal solo, Mrs. J. Hocksta, Crofton; Mrs. W. Sulder, accom-panist; reading, Mrs. Rae Fer-guson, Bowerman's; vocal solo, Miss Mona Pierson, Wellington, Miss Ann Dorland, accompanist; vocal duet, Miss Wilma Cunning-ham and Miss Vivian Hand, Rose Hall; Mrs. L. McCartney accom-panist.

Mrs. Clark thanked all for their contribution to the pro-gram.

Tea and refreshments were served and a social half hour spent. Mrs. H. Nash, Wellington, W. A. president, on behalf of the visit-ing associations voiced in choice words their appreciation to which Mrs. Clark replied.

CENTENARY 3 T's M.C.

CENTENARY — The June meeting of the Centenary 3 T's Mission Circle was held recent-ly in the church. President Mrs. Fred Edmondson was in charge. There were 13 pres-ent.

It was decided that the Mission Circle would be in charge of the novelty booth and dish pond at the strawberry and ice cream so-cial. Lorna Ray and Mrs. Fred Edmondson contributed to the birthday box. It was decided that Mrs. Ralph Losey be the corres-ponding secretary.

The next meeting will take the form of a picnic with Mrs. Gor-don Garrison's group in charge. A discussion followed concerning the preparation for the novelty booth and dish pond and it was decided to assign Doreen Ray and Margaret Slavin to look after the fish pond with Mrs. Keith Sills and Mrs. Ralph Lon-sdale in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Anderson and family, of Belleville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Anderson and Jack.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cole, Georgo and Gary spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Russell Dow-ell.

Mr. Albert Holmes was a week-end visitor with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Holmes.

Mr. Jack Pratt has returned from a pleasant holiday with his son in Rochester.

Mrs. Roy Longwell was a Tuesday evening visitor with Mrs. Floyd Gorsline.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Gorsline spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Pat Hogan.

Winnipeg Child Arrives Home After Abduction

The girl, missing for 24 days, listened as George Prevost read her a story on the plane coming from Vancouver.

Mrs. Bernadette Verzitis first reported Linda missing 25 days after Prevost took her for a holiday. The pair were found registered as George Brown and daughter in a Vancouver hotel Sunday by police who traced a telegram Prevost sent to a friend in Churchill, Man., asking for money.

At the airport, the girl was taken home and Prevost was taken to the city jail in custody. He was to appear on an abduction charge today.

Hotel employees in Vancouver said Prevost treated the child better than many fathers.

Political Asylum Granted Medic Of Polish Ship

LONDON (Reuters)—British authorities today granted political asylum to the medical officer of the Polish liner Batory, who jumped ship in an English port last Saturday with his captain.

No ruling has yet been made in the case of the captain, Jan Cwiklinski, 52. He is being held in jail here pending a decision by the home office.

The two men were missing from the pride of the Polish merchant marine when she sailed Saturday from Newcastle-on-Tyne, where she had been undergoing a refitting.

The desertion of the medical officer, identified as Dr. Tuk-laster, soon became known, but it was not until Tuesday night that word leaked out about Cwiklinski.

The Batory sailed with her first officer in charge.

Management Secret of Success With Livestock

SASKATOON (CP)—An Ontario agricultural expert says success in the livestock business can be attained only by striving for perfection in nutrition, management, production and efficient handling.

"Our livestock is only as good as our livestock housing," Prof. F. H. Theakston of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, said in an address Tuesday to a panel group at the annual meeting of the Agricultural Institute of Canada.

Mr. Theakston said recent outbreaks of disease made it even more important to provide clean, adequate housing to safeguard the health of animals and increase the quality of Canadian stock.

Tornado Showed Civil Defence Need in Disaster

EDMONTON (CP)—Maj.Gen. F. Worthington, federal civil defence co-ordinator, said Tuesday the tornado that hit Sarnia in southwestern Ontario last month illustrated the need for civil defence.

Maj.-Gen. Worthington said Sarnia had to call out the armed forces because it had no civil defence organization to help cope with the tornado's aftermath. Just across the border in Michigan civil defence personnel were able to handle the situation without outside help, he said.

The civil defence chief spoke at the opening of a new civil defence school here to lead a provincial rescue training school here.

PLAN ANNEXATION

OAKVILLE (CP)—Council Monday night authorized annexation of 1,976 acres of Trafalgar township. If the law is passed by the Ontario municipal board, this town will be increased six times its present size and will embrace the new Ford plant.

Mother, 7 Children, Live in Car Father Sought for Non-Support

DETROIT (AP)—A 30-year-old mother and her seven children today began their third week of life in an auto.

Mrs. Martha Nolan has been making a determined effort to keep her family together although she has been unable to find suitable living quarters. Her husband, John, is sought on a non-support warrant.

"The welfare department is helping feed the children, but I was told the welfare department shelter is filled up," she said.

At night Mrs. Nolan drives the car under a streetlight in the city's Chandler Park. Police who patrol the park area keep an eye on the family to protect it from harm during the night.

A $22 weekly welfare cheque is mailed to a nearby grocery where she buys her food. "I can get vegetables at the park but the children haven't had a hot meal for two weeks," she said.

Mrs. Nolan said the children are forced to wear bathing suits since they ran out of clean clothes.

The Nolans separated in November and the wife and children lived with friends in an apartment. Mrs. Nolan said she arranged to meet her husband in Cleveland, May 26, but he disappeared. Mrs. Nolan and the children, ranging in age from 12 to 5 years, have lived in the car ever since.

WELLINGTON

Mrs. Fearman, of Calgary, is spending some time here the guest of her brothers, Mrs. N. Clinton and Mrs. Hanover, at Clinton Lodge.

Mrs. Oscar Bovay spent a day in Kingston recently, and while there called on Mrs. Sam Yourt, in the General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Bovay and family are spending their holiday at Rideau Lake.

Mrs. Osterhout, Diane and Janice are guests of her mother, Mrs. George Bailey for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Lloyd are visiting their daughter in Parry Sound for a week or two.

Master Donald Ogilvy spent several days with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Way, Bloomfield.

Miss Agnes Mandeville and Miss Emily Mandeville, of Buffalo, are spending their vacations at their cottage here.

Mr. and Mrs. Reid Williams, David and Danny, of Detroit, Mich., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Ward and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Moore and young son, Harry, of Detroit, arrived on Saturday to spend the summer at their home here.

Mr. Jack Ogilvy had the misfortune to slip while delivering milk the other day. His hand came in contact with a broken milk bottle which made it necessary to have five stitches to close a cut on one finger.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker and family, of Oshawa, spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. Will Teskey.

Mr. and Mrs. Chandler, of Toronto, are guests for a time of their daughter, Mrs. Andy Walker and family.

Mrs. Ralph Morden and two children left for Nova Scotia on Monday to visit her relatives there.

After visiting her sister, Mrs. Mac McArthur and family, of Welland, Mrs. Craig Platt returned home on Saturday. Her sister, Miss Maxine McArthur, accompanied her and will stay for a considerable time.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smith and son of Belleville, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Archard and family, of Brighton, were the guests over the week-end of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Archard.

Visitors on Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bovay's were: Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bovay, Dennis and Nancy, of Picton; Mr. Ross Bovay, Mr. Lin Conboy and Mr. Ross Rickatts, of Oshawa.

Mrs. Jim Little, of Belleville, is spending a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eckert Peacock.

There were lots of people from surrounding towns and country trying to find a cool spot in the village park on Sunday.

Miss Ruth Heaven, Regt N., of Kingston, was a guest of Mr. C. F. P. and Mrs. Heaven, at the rectory over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wright and Aoda entertained on Monday night Mr. and Mrs. Foster Jackson, Kenneth and Marlene, Mr. and Mrs. David Jackson, of West Lake; Mr. Allan Noble, of East Lake; Mrs. J. G. Smith, Wellington, the occasion being Mrs. Smith's birthday.

Mrs. Bob Boyce and two sons left for Toronto on Sunday to spend two weeks with friends there.

Mr. and Mrs. Trumpour, Mr. and Mrs. John Watt and Mr. and Mrs. George Baitley spent the week-end in Harcourt. The men spent their time fishing, but the only thing caught was one good case of laryngitis by Mr. Baitley.

Mrs. Bob Riley and three children left on Monday to visit her relatives in Toronto.

Mrs. Arnold Welbanks entertained five ladies: Mrs. Stella Gibson, Mrs. Dick Rundle, Mrs. Reg. Moore, Mrs. Tom Heffernan and Mrs. Percy Anderson, all of Picton, at the Anglican ladies' tea last Wednesday afternoon.

Among the Wellington ladies who enjoyed the garden tour that the Bloomfield W.I. sponsored were: Mrs. G. Stoneburg, Mrs. R. Dorland, Mrs. F. Phillips, Mrs. C. Broadbridge, Mrs. L. Garratt, Mrs. G. Gibson, Mrs. A. Post, Mrs. G. Maybee and Lynn, Mrs. McMasters and Mrs. Ford and Mrs. Nelson. All report a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Whaitam, of Toronto, were guests over the week-end of his mother, Mrs. C. Carter and Mr. Carter.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Upton are spending a few days with their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. B. Upton, Jr., of Lindsay.

Mr. and Mrs. Fergus McCabe and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Upton.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Thomas and two sons and Mrs. Margaret Leale, of Rossmore, spent the week-end with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wannamaker.

Little Miss Barbara Palmer, of Consecon, is spending her holidays with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wannamaker.

Miss Norma Channel is spending a few days this week in Ottawa.

FRANKFORD

There was a full attendance including several new members. The rector conducted the devotions and Mrs. Secker read the Scripture passage.

After a business discussion, the president called on the rector to present Mrs. Benedict with a leather-bound copy of the revised version of the Bible. This was to the family from the Guild and the W.A. Mr. Secker expressed the best wishes of both groups to Mrs. Benedict and her family as they move to their new home in Niagara Falls.

Contests were conducted by Mrs. H. Foster and refreshments were served.

On Sunday morning at Holy Trinity, Frankford, the service was a children's service to mark the close of the term of the church school. All the pupils were in the choir pews and led the singing of special children's hymns. June Pearson sang "Jesus, Tender Shepherd, Hear Me." Sharon Foster read the 23rd Psalm; Betty Burkitt read the lesson, and Grace Pearson and Margaret Cooney read the prayers. Freddie Benedict and Bill Foster took up the collection.

The rector spoke on the subject "Inheritors". The large congregation was urged to support the work of the school and to encourage the youth to take their part in the worship of the church as they so ably did in this special service.

The school held its annual picnic at Oak Lake, on Saturday. Swimming was popular. Bountiful refreshments were served and enjoyed by all. Mr. C. Cooney kindly had his motor boat out and was kept busy giving all a refreshing cool ride on the lake. A downpour of rain and a severe storm only served to cool off the pickers. The kindness of car drivers and teachers is commendable.

READ

READ—Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Williams and family, of Detroit, visited his sister, Mrs. Mary Jarrel and family over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Power and Shirley, of Toronto, were the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Power and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Corrigan and Mr. Lorne McKenny, of Oshawa, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. W. McKenny.

Mrs. Dennis Callaghan had the misfortune to break her hip.

Mrs. Phillip Shannon passed away at her home on Monday. Sympathy is felt for her sorrowing husband.

Miss Catharine Hunt, of Belleville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Walsh.

TO VISIT TITO

LONDON (AP)—Ex-prime minister Attlee has accepted "in principle" an invitation from Yugoslav president Tito to visit Belgrade next August, Attlee's secretary said Monday night. The secretary added that the exact date of the visit is still to be fixed.

REDNERSVILLE

REDNERSVILLE — The congregation of the United Church enjoyed a program and an ice cream social on Friday.

Mrs. W. Howell charmed all with her opening number an overture of famous favorite melodies. Mr. J. H. Cranston of Toronto, played "The Warsaw Concerto," and responded to an encore.

Vocal solos were given by Mrs. Fraser, Miss Marilyn Adams, Mr. Gordon Babbitt, Mrs. James McKay and Jean Fraser. Mrs. Townsend gave two readings and Harry McKay played an Irish Air with variations.

Rev. J. C. Townsend was master of ceremonies and the Woman's Association members are to be congratulated on the success of a pleasant evening.

Miss Georgina Booth, of Trenton; Miss Doris Holmes and J. H. Coleman, of Toronto, were week-end visitors with Mrs. J. F. Hutchinson and boys at the Panter cottage.

The Rev. and Mrs. T. S. Townsend were at Mount Pleasant church Sunday, where Mr. Townsend was guest speaker and Mrs. Townsend was soloist.

Male members of the United Church choir sang three special numbers at the Fathers' Day service on Sunday morning.

Hungary Practically in Prison By Action of Soviet Machine

By RICHARD O'REGAN

BUDAPEST (AP) — Hungary, five years after a coup d'etat brought communism to power, is a flower among Russia's dreary East European satellites, but a flower imprisoned and wilting.

Its jailers are 25,000 rarely-seen Russian troops and the all-powerful Hungarian Communist leaders who are driven in curtained black sedans.

Prisoners are more than 99 per cent of 9,000,000 Hungarians who appear to have just enough to eat.

Budapest, once queen city of Eastern Europe, today is almost as shabby and depressing as the cities of postwar Germany. Gone are the smart Paris-style salons, the sidewalk cafes of the famous embankments and the Magyar women who gave Budapest more beauty than any city in Europe.

Suppressed, too, are Budapest's traditional gaiety, its carefree love of life.

In their place, the Communists have shuttered thousands of shops, ripped off the names of their owners and replaced them with the state stores whose poor quality goods are out of reach for virtually every one but the few upper and middle classes of communism.

Over the entire new society, Hungarian communism has imposed the grim conformity of Bolshevist dress.

To American correspondents visiting Budapest from Vienna, itself the over-crowded capital of a poor land, the Hungarian capital is depressing. But it is said to be a dreamland compared with Prague, Warsaw, Bucharest and Sofia.

It has the same atmosphere of war. Truckloads of soldiers, singing in the Russian style, roar through the streets at night. Brown uniforms of the military branch of the secret police mingle with blue-clad civil police.

There is hurried construction of buildings meant to house the instruments of communism. Row upon row of bare, but cracked streets and sidewalks remain unrepaired and unswept.

Of new developments, outstanding are the two-block square complex of the Hungarian defence ministry and the nine-storey dazzling Communist headquarters of the state police.

North Koreans Do Not Want To Fight Anyone

By ROBERT GIBSON

PUSAN, Korea (AP)—Four tattered, weary North Koreans who escaped Thursday from an Allied prison camp said Wednesday they don't want to fight anyone. They just want to go back to their farms.

The four are fearful men of little hope.

They have not seen their families since 1950 when they swept them from their quiet rice fields. They don't know whether their wives and children are alive.

But as they sat huddled in a clickroom behind the chapel of a ramshackle Christian church here their leader spoke for all when he said.

"We do not want to fight the Communists any more than we wanted to fight South Koreans. We do not like fighting.

"I want a farm. I want my family. I do not want prison again."

The leader is a man of 39 with deep, tired eyes and a shock of thick hair. His companions are young.

"Now I look for just a place to go," the leader said, "my friends in the south are there. Only army has a place for us. That is where we will go. There is no other place."

He said his membership in an anti-Communist prison camp club would mean his death in North Korea. He is afraid that a South Korean Communist agent will kill him regardless of where he goes.

Five Injured, One Seriously, In Car Crash

SEAFORTH (CP)—Five persons were injured, one seriously, in a rear-end collision here Wednesday after a retired United Church minister stopped his car to deal with a bee that stung him.

Injured were Mrs. Edna Offenstein, St. Catharines, broken ankle and rib and possible fractured jaw, whose condition was termed "fair"; her daughter, Honey Offenstein, 17; both in Scott Memorial Hospital here; and three Exeter residents, Mrs. Fred Delbridge, fractured left forearm and shock; Mrs. Maude Heywood, possible chest injuries, in South Huron Hospital, Exeter, and Mrs. Myrtle Cook, fractured right hand.

The three Exeter people were riding in a car driven by Rev. C.W. Down of Exeter. His car was struck by a vehicle driven by Miss Offenstein.

PROTEST SHOOTING

BERLIN (AP) — British Maj.-Gen. E. P. F. Colleton protested Wednesday to the Soviet commandant of East Berlin over the fatal shooting of a 19-year-old German boy by Communist police.

Erich Grelin, Wolfgang Boehling, was killed Monday while a few hundred yards in the British sector. He had been shooting taunts and throwing rocks at Red police guarding the Russian sector border.

Toronto Youth Rescued After Plane Crashes

SUTTON, Ont. (CP)—Miss Cox, 21, one of four Toronto youths who spent more than 14 hours in Lake Simcoe last summer after a boat collision, Wednesday was rescued from the same lake with two companions after a plane he was piloting crashed seven miles northeast of here.

Bill Graham and his brother, Jack, two of the three youths who were with Cox in last summer's accident, rescued Cox, Karen Dewbridge, 18, and Ted Smith, 23.

Cox suffered a fractured pelvis and face cuts. Smith and fractured right leg and possible broken arm, and Miss Ostrander, cuts. All three were taken to Toronto General Hospital where they were reported in satisfactory condition.

The small seaplane, owned by Central Airways, stalled and went into a spin and crashed about 300 yards offshore. The Grahams, who were watching from a rowboat near their cottage, were first on the scene and found Cox and his passengers clinging to the plane's pontoons.

Budget Surplus $24 Million Says Finance Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott estimated Wednesday the government had a 1952-53 budgetary surplus of $24,000,000.

This is one-half the $48,000,000 Mr. Abbott forecast in his budget speech Feb. 19, but almost triple the $9,000,000 he predicted at the start of the fiscal year. This is the government's seventh consecutive surplus.

The fiscal year ended March 31. Usually the final revenue and expenditure figures are not available for month later.

However, Mr. Abbott said in a statement that the "bulk of revenue and figures will not be available until about the end of July, it now is possible to give approximate figures.

"These figures show total budgetary revenues of $4,361,000,000, expenditures of $4,337,000,000 and a surplus of $24,000,000."

Reds Not Traitors Says Tim Buck Canada's Top Red

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Garson and Tim Buck, Canada's top Communist, became involved recently in an election-time squabble over an RCMP document calling Communists traitors to this country, it was disclosed today.

The justice department released an exchange of letters in which Mr. Buck charged that a booklet entitled "Law and Order in Canadian Democracy" constituted a "lying defamation . . . of a legal political party."

Mr. Garson replied that description of Canada's Labor-Progressive party in the RCMP booklet is both apt and correct.

Mr. Garson denied a charge by Mr. Buck that the booklet was published to help Liberal party electioneering. The booklet filled a wide public demand for "an authoritative contribution to public knowledge of these important problems."

The letters were dated May 27, and June 13. The booklet is a reprint of a series of papers by the RCMP and judicial officials which first appeared in 1946.

FOR WOMEN ONLY

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Juan Marron says he lived to be 100 because he avoided matrimony. "Marriage is for women only," he said on his birthday Wednesday. "A man should have nothing to do with it."

Dr. D. H. Arnott Given Damages Of $7,000 in Suit

SASKATOON (CP)—Chief Justice F. T. Brown of the Court of Queen's Bench Wednesday awarded Dr. David H. Arnott of London, Ont., $7,000 and costs in his libel suit against the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Saskatchewan.

Dr. Arnott, Canadian manufacturer of the Koch treatment for cancer, based his suit on an article in the college's quarterly about the treatment, which involves injection of a chemical compound.

The judgment confirmed the findings of a jury which decided at the close of a two-day trial here May 14 that Dr. Arnott had been the victim of libel without malice.

Dr. Arnott had asked for unstated damages.

In his 18-page judgment, Chief Justice Brown held that the statements made in the college quarterly in December, 1951, were "of a most reckless character made against a member of a great profession in good standing in the province of Ontario."

He noted that the quarterly did not mention Dr. Arnott specifically but only the Koch treatment, terming it "quackery."

THE WAR CRIMINALS

BONN (AP) — The Western powers still hold 788 German war criminals in jail, Walter Hallstein, state secretary in the chancellor, told the West German Parliament today. But these countries have released 2,284 during the last 3½ years.

Prime Minister St. Laurent 'Gets a Bang' from Campaign Rattling Off 9 Talks in Day

By JOHN LEKLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ABOARD ST. LAURENT TRAIN (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent says he "gets a bang" out of election campaigning.

"Stimulating" is the way the 71-year-old liberal leader describes it at the end of the first three days of his trans-Canada vote catching tour.

"I'm enjoying it," he said in an interview Wednesday night as Wingham, Ont., near the end of a crowded day in which he made nine speeches or off-the-cuff talks at spots ranging from the pitcher's mound of a ball diamond to a railway station baggage truck.

Most of these were talks to little gatherings along the route of motor travel through rural Huron and Wellington-Huron ridings. The prime minister would get out of his car, speak to anywhere from a handful to 150 or so people and then a couple of dozen handshakingly prone ones—before moving on.

Most of the prime minister's hearers in the smaller roadside gatherings have been youngsters of school age and under, among whom he seemed to relax as he talked in two-syllable language about such things as the Queen, the Coronation, the need for national defence and other general matters.

Almost invariably, he has schoolished them that their part in helping out is to pray for peace.

"Good kids, either standing around or sitting on the grass at various points, waved flags, licked ice cream cones and received occasionally—loudest when Mr. St. Laurent proclaimed a half-holiday from school.

At rural Harriston Wednesday night, about a dozen of them jumped on to a railway baggage truck on which the prime minister had climbed to get off an impromptu speech to a crowd at the station.

As the youngsters of from five to 12 years crowded in on him and hung to his coat-tails to keep from falling off the wagon, Mr. St. Laurent kidded with them, advised some conspirators how to avoid the glare of the photographers' flash bulbs and otherwise filled in time for the station crowd while waiting the arrival of his behind-time train.

He seemed to enjoy it.

PERON ON JOURNALISM

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) — President Juan Peron, inaugurating a school of journalism Wednesday, said journalists must be truthful and honest, patriots and Argentines and if they know something about journalism so much the better."

1,600 Jail Guards Quit Their Jobs In Seven Years

TORONTO (CP) — Col. Hedley Basher, deputy minister of reform institutions, said Wednesday more than 1,600 guards have left provincial institutions during the last seven years, segregating about 15% months each in service.

Some of the reasons are that men can get better pay elsewhere, not everyone enjoys the type of work and younger men do not take kindly to discipline, he told the Ontario legislature's select committee studying reform institutions.

Salaries for guards in provincial institutions, he said, range from $1,940 to $2,340 and from $2,160 to $2,760. They work eight hours a day, 48-hours a week. "We are not keeping pace with industry in our salaries," Col. Basher said.

Earlier, Dr. C. S. Vennard, psychiatrist of the department of health and consultant to the attorney-general's office, said some hardened criminals and psychopaths may be confined together, but they should be segregated from other prisoners. Segregation, however, was not for those mentally ill persons. Many were helped by association with others.

12-Year Term Quashed By Appeal Court

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal Wednesday quashed a conviction against Arthur McKay, 34, of Windsor, sentenced to 12 years in penitentiary for the attempted armed robbery of a Canadian Bank of Commerce branch in Windsor last Nov. 12.

McKay is the second of three Windsor men convicted Feb. 13 by a jury under Mr. Justice A. M. LeBel to be freed on appeal. Earlier this month the Appeal Court quashed the conviction of Norman Quinlan, 42, for lack of sufficient evidence.

Mr. Justice LeBel said at the trial that Quinlan had been the "mastermind" of the gang that tied up 22 bank employees and then fled at the approach of two Brinks Express Company employees. A third man, Robert Wood, did not appeal his case and is serving 27 years for a series of armed robberies.

The appeal judge split on the McKay decision. Mr. Justice F.D. Hogg wrote a minority report. Messrs. Justices R. E. Laidlaw and J. K. Mackay ruled that the evidence against McKay was wholly circumstantial.

Civil Servants No Longer Need Retire When 65

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government Wednesday washed out the arbitrary retirement age of 65 years for civil servants: raised the age limit for hiring after personnel and lowered the age at which younger persons may be employed.

Under an order-in-council published in the Canada Gazette, previously-prescribed age limits may be waived when qualified candidates within the limits are not available.

In effect, this means that the previous age restrictions of 18 to 35 years for hiring have changed and now are 17 to approximately 40 years.

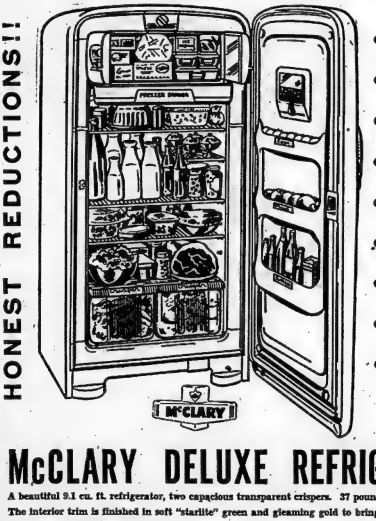
OK BEVERAGE ROOMS

CHESLEY, Ont. (CP) — Voters Wednesday approved men's and women's beverage rooms in small majorities but sufficient to pass the resolution. In one of the largest turnouts this community has ever seen, more than 1,600 out of 1,158 voters went to the polls.

Series of Canada Savings Bonds Will be Offered

OTTAWA (CP)—The finance department announced Wednesday that an eighth series of Canada savings bonds will be offered for public in October.

Payroll savings plan arrangements for bonds now are being used by approximately 2,900 firms across the country, representing 88 per cent of all establishments employing more than 100 persons. Sales of the seventh bond series as of June 15 totalled $272,000,000.



DIVIDEND FROM JURY

NEW YORK (AP)—A jury filed out of the courtroom Wednesday to deliberate a case and was back announcing its verdict just 22 seconds later. It freed Fred Tyler, 42, a Negro bowling alley pinboy and lunch dealer's helper, of a charge of illegally possessing a knife. And, having noted the defendant's torn shirt and threadbare jacket and trousers, the jury handed him $11. Tyler, in tears, thanked the jurors.

Clothes Make Clown, Says Kelly

Not so long ago, someone asked Jean Carson, wardrobe mistress of the Ringling Brose. and Barnum and Bailey Circus, to describe the costume worn by famous tramp clown Emmett Kelly.

"I don't honestly know how to describe it," Mrs. Carson replied. "I think it all started when he borrowed an old pair of pants 25 years ago. It's got plus and knots and clothespins and baling wire. It's just a mess, and that's the only way to describe it."

Indescribable or not, Emmett's raffish duds will be on view again with the Greatest Show on Earth, coming to Belleville, Wednesday, July 1st.

There's been a strong rumor around the circus that Emmett's outlandish get-up was run over by a herd of unwashed elephants on a dusty lot prior to his donning it. Emmett would like to scotch that story once and for all.

"The truth about my clothes," he says with that wonderfully inert look on his pug-nosed pan, "is that they're just old. I got them in 1932. The coat belonged to a sideshow giant; the pants were the property of a boss hostler who got tired of them. I bought the hat at a rummage sale in New York in 1934. The shoes are regulation clown brogans, size 30."

After more than 20 years of service, Emmett's pridefully parlous garments are beginning to flap beyond redemption. He is busy breaking in another hobo outfit, carefully culled from a choice collection of rags and tatters.

The world-famous Kelly and 96 other topflight funmakers are prominent on this year's gigantic program, and they have much to do in the stupendous new $300,000 musical super-spectacle.

The performances with scores of sensational new attractions, stars and beautiful troupes from Europe, will begin at 2:15 and 8:15 P.M., in the world's largest and comfortably air-ventilated. The doors will open at 1 and 7.

The world's largest circus is coming to town on its own long trains of double-length steel railroad cars, silver enameled and streamlined in Ringling Red.

There are 1400 people, nine herds of elephants, hundreds of horses and the largest of all travelling zoos, featuring the famous young gorillas, Bargazina the Second and Mlle. Toto.

Sunday Service Closes Mission At Stirling

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

RAWDON — "The Adventure That Never Dims" was the subject of the closing service of the Hunter mission, delivered Sunday evening in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, by the Rev. Gordon Crossley Hunter, Schomberg.

Mr. Hunter aptly described a great Bible beauty contest when Esther was chosen queen and illustrated how she was called of God to save her people. She listened to God's voice and eventually the Jews were saved from destruction.

The speaker gave excerpts of how various prophets were called of God and said: "God has a will and purpose for each life." The disciples were chosen from various walks of life which all proves "that we are the sheep of His pasture and that we do not belong to ourselves."

In this era a very small percentage of young people choose service for God's kingdom as their life's work, he today, our way of life is to get all we can for ourselves.

Definition of Success

The 1953 definition of success is to get money you haven't earned, to buy things you don't need, to impress folks that you don't like.

Mr. Hunter ably described the vast work carried on by Dr. Albert Switzer, missionary to Africa, and made a plea for more missionary enthusiasm and challenged his audience to live for Christ's life to God's service.

Mr. George Carlisle thanked Mr. Hunter on behalf of St. Paul's for preaching the Hunter mission.

After the service Mr. and Mrs. Hunter attended the fellowship hour in the church dining hall.

MADOC

Recent Bride Honored By Reception

MADOC—On Friday afternoon, Mrs. Allan Burris held a reception at her home for her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Ray Burris, a recent bride. The rooms were prettily decorated with standards and bouquets of pink and white peonies.

Mrs. Burris receiving with her daughter-in-law, wore a blue lace gown with matching accessories. The bride wore her wedding gown of white net and lace over white satin. The bride's mother, Mrs. J. Drummond, of Marmora, who received with them, we gowned in shell pink crepe.

Attending the door were Misses Erma and Joan Burris, who also alternately provided music during the afternoon.

The guests were served in the dining room. The table which was appointed with a cloth of lace and madeira, was centred with a bowl of pink roses and sweetpeas and tall white tapers.

Pouring tea were, Mrs. Owen Burris and Mrs. Earl Burnside; Mrs. F. Lane and Mrs. Ken Coonan.

Assisting in serving were, Mrs. Tom Burnside, Mrs. H. Bird-wood; Mrs. J. McGown, Mrs. Ken Nicol, Mrs. H. Nickle, Miss Miriam Spencer, Miss Shirley Hatch and Mrs. Alton Foster, of Tweed, while a tripping around among the guests were the two little flower girls, Mildred and Mary Rivers with their pretty Kate Greenaway gowns of yellow silk and net.

Severe Storm Strikes Madoc

During the severe thunderstorm on Saturday evening, considerable damage was done in Madoc village. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Adams was struck and considerable damage done. Coming into the house the lightning came down the stove pipes, tore up the linoleum on the floor, broke a mirror in the ornament, destroyed considerable bedding and electric appliances, travelling across a lot it entered Miss Marion Robertson's home through a floor plug and burned a spot in the floor, others had fuses blown out, lights burned out and telephones put out of order.

Presentation Made

On Tuesday afternoon, the members of St. Peter's Presbyterian Ladies' Aid met in the church parlors and presented one of their most willing workers, Mrs. Bellinger, who is leaving Madoc, with a gift.

Miss Vankleek, in an impromptu address, spoke of the fine work Mrs. Bellinger had done in the church during her stay in Madoc, after which Mrs. F. Allen presented her with coronation memento, a china cup and saucer and silver tea pot stand.

A pleasant social hour with the guest of honor followed.

Quite recently, the neighbors and friends of Mrs. Bellinger met and spent the afternoon at the home of Mrs. Arthur Parks and presented her with a gift of china.

Mrs. Bellinger, her son, Herb and grandson, leave on Monday to reside in Smiths Falls.

10-Year-Old Girl Becomes Mother

Mrs. Ester Stobliffe, superintendent of a home for unwed mothers in Youngstown, Ohio, holds the new-born daughter of a ten-year-old mother, youngest in the history of the home. The infant, born in a normal delivery, weighed five pounds, 14½ ounces. Father of the child was reported to be a 30-year-old man, a close friend of the girl's foster parents. — Central Press Canadian.

IVANHOE

Pantry-Shelf Shower Honors Bride-To-Be

Ivanhoe — A "pantry shelf" shower was held in the S. S. rooms of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, West Huntingdon on Monday evening, when the congregation gathered to welcome two Dutch families, who for the past few Sundays have been worshiping at St. Andrew's.

Rev. W. H. V. Walker was chairman for the short program and on behalf of the congregation extended a warm welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Broekens and family and Mr. and Mrs. Johann Zoldema and family.

Community singing was led by Mrs. Barton Haggerty. Two readings, "Radio Program" and "Friendship" were given by Miss Margaret Wright. "Jesus Loves Me" was sung by the Mission Band.

The remainder of the program was presented by the new Canadians, who delighted the audience with their solos, duets and group singing, all in the Dutch language.

A talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Broekens, who prior to coming to this country played a piano accordian in an orchestra of 100 musicians, played many familiar selections, among them were "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean," "Swanee River," "Home on the Range", "The Loveliest Night of the Year" and the National Anthem. She was accompanied by a younger son of the family, who also played a guitar.

Mrs. W. H. V. Walker graciously presented the families with the gifts wishing them health, happiness and prosperity in this land of their adoption.

Mr. Johann Zoldema expressed grateful thanks on behalf of the other members of the family.

The program was concluded by singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." Refreshments were served by the members of the W.M.S.

Chicago White Sox Make Mighty Bronx Bombers Resemble Other Clubs

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

It's a trifle out of season, but for all that hockey is but a mere twelve or thirteen weeks away it previews season opener on a criterion. Anyway, the Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League, says a piece in the Hockey News, is rumbling down tideaway for entries for the reorganized loop this coming semester.

Says the piece:

"The announcement of operation was made at a banquet held in the Little Hall of Fame in Ottawa recently with officials of the league, club representatives, and leaders of the hockey world in attendance.

"Smith's Falls, where Kidnan came within an ace of rolling all the way to the Allan Cup this year, will be a definite starter, while others from last year's loop who will be back again are Pembroke Lumber Kings and Cornwall.

"Thorne, the fourth team in the loop, is a question mark at the moment and nothing definite will be known until the fall.

"The league, however, hopes to strengthen the circuit by giving Brockville a franchise next season. The Brockville team played host to the Ontario-New York League and the venture apparently was not too successful.

"It was hoped that both Brockville and a team from Kingston would be available for next season, but according to officials of the league, the OHA will not allow Kingston to compete in the Ottawa District, even though geographically it would seem to be the better plan.

"A five-team circuit including Pembroke, Smith's Falls, Cornwall, Brockville and Kingston would be a terrific boon to senior hockey in the Ottawa Valley and would be just the thing to give the ECHL a badly needed shot in the arm.

"Kingston now competes in a senior "B" league comprised of teams in southern Ontario but would like to move into the Ottawa Valley circuit if possible. It doesn't look too promising."

Refusal of the Ontario Hockey Association to allow Kingston to participate in the Eastern League would mean that the Limestoners would have to break away if they wanted to join the downriver loop.

We can scarcely anticipate that, although hockey people do some strange things at times. The Ontario senior "B" champions, who played inspired hockey during the latter part of the season and the post-season tournament, will have to get some reinforcements, if the Smith's Falls Kidcans, that went to the Allan Cup semi-finals last year, is a sample of the league roster.

And the traditional goose that deposited so many golden eggs in the lap of the Kingston Community Centre and Marse Johnny Carr-Harris' proteges, last season, would get a severe slap in the feathers.

The Goodyears sensational international series that swept all semi-final "B" opposition out of the way, converted Kenilworth into a hockey-mad centre last year. And it is readily conceivable the red-hot Kingston fans will pick up where they left off last April.

We cannot see where the Kingston requirement has any fault to find with the senior "B" set-up of 1953. The club would get a lot more home games in the bi-sectional group than it would by joining the proposed five-team Eastern Canada League. It would be gratifactory of us to send a brand of hockey, but judging from the near-sellout crowds that packed the Community Centre last season, the senior "B" brand was plenty good enough.

In fact it was a far better calibre of hockey, according to reports than that played in the New York-Ontario League in which Brockville played last season.

But as we said before, hockey people do funny things at times. And this would come up just as we were readying the annual declaration of war to be hurled at Minister J. Redden the minute the skates rattle on the lootsams.

CONGRATULATIONS, FELLAS!

That sports cartoon featuring Randy Turpin, captioned with the hyline "Bob McCormick", which appeared in the Toronto Telegram last Saturday was a product of the artistic talent of Belleville's "Robert".

The cartoon, exceptionally well executed, caught the critical eyes of the newspaper's art editors with the result that Bob had an assignment for a cartoon a week.

Bob evidenced a flair for drawing early in life, exhibiting a fine natural talent with drawing pad and pencil. We have seen some of his early work, and his marked ability for detail and originality, we felt, would sooner or later gain him a spot in the commercial field.

He is a graduate of the Ontario College of Art, Toronto, and a studious application to his craft, together with months of arduous practice, brought out an outstanding natural ability.

Bob's efforts, as evidenced in last Saturday's cartoon, mark him as one of Canada's up-and-coming sports cartoonists. His work, in the department's humble opinion, ranks with some of the best we have seen.

More power to his pencil.

Whip 'Casey's Crew' 2 in Row For Seasonal Six-Four Edge; Brewtown Braves, 'Bums' Bow

By BEN PHLEGAR

Associated Press Sports Writer

After watching New York Yankees blow two in a row to the hustling Chicago White Sox about the only conclusion you can come to is that somehow the players pet on the wrong uniforms.

Certainly the outfit that wore the big "NY" on their suits the last two days bears no resemblance to a world championship club. And the White Sox look every bit pennant contenders instead of third place talent.

The Sox not only have gained a 6-4 season's edge over the Yankees. They've succeeded in making the New Yorkers beat themselves. In Tuesday night's 11-3 route the Yanks committed four errors, three in a single inning.

It was fairly pitching Wednesday. Starter Jim McDonald found the plate only once in 13 pitches and was yanked in the shower in the first inning with the bases loaded and nobody out.

Chicago cashed all three of those runners, plus two more in the inning, and coasted to an 8-4 victory.

So the Sox have proved that even the mighty Yankees are only human.

Tribe Wins

Cleveland came out on top in a 31-hit slugfest at Boston Wednesday, whipping the Red Sox 13-9. St. Louis scored five runs in the last two innings to edge Washington 7-6 and Detroit won its third straight 8-3 over Philadelphia.

Milwaukee Braves lost their third in a row 19-1 to Pittsburgh, but maintained their three-game league lead over Brooklyn. The Dodgers were beaten 7-4 by Cincinnati when Gus Bell homered with two on in the last of the ninth. Harry Perkowski of the Redlegs allowed only two singles and faced only 25 batters in 4 1-3 innings of sparkling relief pitching.

New York whipped St. Louis 5-0 as Sal Maglie scattered eight hits and Philadelphia won its 10th game of the season from Chicago 6-3.

Jim Hegan, Dale Mitchell and Bob Avila each contributed three safeties to the 17-hit Cleveland attack. Mitchell drove in four runs as did Del Wilber and Tom Umphlett of the Red Sox. Wilber homered with two on in the seventh for Boston.

Bees Bash Braves

The Tigers jumped on Charlie Bishop for four runs in the first inning including a home run by Steve Souchock. Ned Garver went all the way for his sixth victory. The Pittsburgh Braves managed only seven hits off pint sized rookie curveballer Roy Face, who posted his third victory without a loss for Pittsburgh. The Pirates defeated the 15-31 Braves for their fifth Milwaukee pitchers.

The Phillies pounded Chicago pitching for a dozen hits, seven of them for extra bases while Karl Drews held the Cubs scoreless until the ninth.

Marvellous Marlene Moves Into British Ladies Final

PORTHCAWL, Wales (CP)—Marlene Stewart, the 19-year-old Canadian girl who "doesn't make mistakes," shot deadly effective golf Wednesday to move into the finals of the British women's open amateur golf championship.

The little Foothill, Ont., girl downed English and Scots opposition to advance to the 36-hole final today against Ireland's Philomena Garvey.

"She has a very good chance of winning," veteran Ada Mackenzie of Toronto said after Marlene reached the finals with the 2-up victory over Jean Donald, Scots internationalist, at the Royal Porthcawl links.

"She played wonderful golf Wednesday — all-round golf," added Miss Mackenzie. "She just never lets her opponents get ahead. She doesn't make mistakes. She's got what it takes."

Miss Stewart had two birdies in the first five holes to take an advantage that never was less than one. She was out in 37, compared to 39 in her morning round when she defeated England's Elizabeth Price 6 and 4.

Miss Donald she faltered with overputts on two greens, her recovery shots either off mark or missing opportunity by her opponent.

Miss Garvey disposed of Helen Price in the quarter-finals, losing only the fifth hole to the girl who recently had been acclaimed Britain's woman golfer of the year.

Remember When

Maxie Rosenbloom became undisputed world's light-heavyweight champion 23 years ago tonight by outpointing Jimmy Slattery in a 15-rounder at Buffalo. The title had been thrown open by the resignation of undefeated champion Tom Loughran in 1929, and Slattery claimed the title by a win over Lou Scozza. Rosenbloom's victory over Slattery put him on top.

Kansas Flyer Seeks Elusive Four-Minute Mile

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—It is more than likely that the dreamed-of four-minute mile could be run Saturday if it were possible to bring together Wes Santee, John Landy and Roger Bannister in what some inspired historian almost certainly would tag the "mile of the century."

"It is difficult to doubt that at least one of the great trio, given decent conditions, would rise to the challenge and cross the fabled mile barrier of 4:00 flat. We know now that it can be done and that it should be a matter of when.

These reflections arise from the fact that Santee, the greatest miler the United States has produced, is making his last big run of the season in the national AAU meet beginning Friday at Dayton, O. Unfortunately, the two men who might force the Kansas flyer to the four-minute goal will be far off but probably will turn in only a routine timing.

Landy, the Australian with the flowing stride, is attending classes at Melbourne University. Bannister, England's candidate for the highest honor now open to a track man, is similarly busy preparing for his medical exams.

Landy, on his record, is the fastest of the three. Last Dec. 16 in Melbourne, against the same competition, he ripped off a mile in four minutes, two and one-fifth seconds flat. The following month, similarly unpaced, the silver-thatched Aussie had times of 4:02.4 and 4:04.2.

Santee ran the fastest mile in American history last June 5 in an invitational meet at Compton, Calif., doing the trick in 4:02.4, while defeating two such noted distance stars as Finland's Denis Johansson and Belgium's Gaston Reiff. The Jayhawker says he fully expects to get under the magic "four."

Mimico Mounties May Retire From Senior Lacrosse

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mimico Mountaineers are reported seriously considering their senior Ontario Lacrosse Association club owing to the lack of local lacrosse players and loss in interest.

Mrs. Chuck Rowan, secretary of the Association, says the league has no knowledge of a cessation of operations, it was rumored at Hamilton Wednesday night the club would disband after Mountaineers took a 23-8 beating from Hamilton Tigers.

In the only other game of the night, the leading St. Catharines Athletics defeated Brampton Excelsiors 13-12. Skip Teal broke a 12-12 tie at 12:57 of the last period for the victory.

Hamilton led its game by quarter scores of 4-1, 11-3 and 14-7.

Seeded Players Win Rounds At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (CP)—Australian and American seeded players had an iron grip on Wimbledon Wednesday night with the only strong challenge coming from Jaroslav Drobny, the bespectacled, left-handed Czech exile seeded No. 4.

After three days' play in the all-England tennis championships the seeded players, with the exception of eight-ranked Enrique Morea of Argentina, have won their matches. Morea lost Wednesday to Ian Ayre, another hard-hitter from Australia 6-8, 6-4, 11-9, 6-3 in the second round of the men's singles.

Ken Rosewall, 18-year-old Australian seeded No. 2, dropped a set before eliminating Robert Abdesselam of France 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2.

Southpaw Mervyn Rose, seeded No. 3 and also from Australia, knocked out England's Norman Lewis 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Sixth-seeded Lewis Hoad, another Australian and one of the most promising youngsters to show in years, blasted Narenda Nath of India, 6-3, 6-4, 6-1.

Philadelphia's Vic Seixas and Wladyslaw Skonecki, a self-styled Pole now of London, engaged in a slugging match. Seixas won 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Drobny had a tough assignment in beating Bernard Bartora of San Angelo, Texas, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

Rex Hartwig of Australia knocked off Geoff Paish, 20, of British Davis Cupper, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2.

Sixteen women's second-round singles matches brought the defeat of Beverly Baker, No. 12, in all four seeded players won. Shirley Fry, Akron, O., Mrs. Dorothy Head Knode, Alameda, Calif., No. 5, Britain's Angela Mortimer, No. 6, and Mrs. Nelly Adamson, France No. 8 came through safely.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Reading — Gus Bell, Cincinnati, homered with two on in the last of the ninth to give the Redlegs their second straight victory over Brooklyn 7-4.

Pitching —Harry Perkowski, Cincinnati, allowed only two singles and faced only 25 batters in 8 2-3 against Brooklyn.

HOGAN WHIPS CARNOUSTIE

DUNDEE, Scotland (AP)—Ban-tam Ben Hogan Wednesday took aim at the tough Carnoustie golf course where the British open will be played July 2 then went out on it and shot a 34-35—69. The little American master of the links was surprised when told that he had never been broken in championship play over the 7,000-yard course.

Wheat Payments Down $46 Million

OTTAWA (CP)—Farmers' cash income declined to $533,100,000 in the first three months of 1953, a drop of $46,700,000 from $579,800,000 in the same period last year, the bureau of statistics reported today.

Substantially smaller wheat payments were the principal reason for the sale of potatoes, tobacco and sugar beets were down between 15 and 20 per cent.

The drops were offset in some measure from the sale of wheat, barley, eggs, dairy products, cattle and hogs.

Wheat board payments to wheat farmers totalled 32,383,000 in the three months, compared with $48,-080,000 in the corresponding 1952 period. The bureau said the drop resulted from a month's delay in making payments on retroactive wheat price boosts to farmers.

Ontario $168,000,000 ($197,100,000); Quebec $66,382,000 ($71,617,000); Manitoba $20,612,000 ($40,788,000); Saskatchewan $214,205,000 ($312,-600,000); Alberta 302,531,000 ($326,-982,000 ($326,200); Prince Edward Island $6,221,00 ($6,700,000); Nova Scotia $7,982,000 ($7,518,000); New Brunswick $9,233,000 ($11,600,000).

Doucett Meets With Farmers To Discuss Issue

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—George Doucett, minister of highways for Ontario, met with a committee from the Ontario Federation of Highways Association Wednesday to discuss problems of both the farmers and the department along the route of the east-west superhighway through Kent county.

The minister and aides, engineers and land-evaluators in his department heard requests of the delegation presented by their spokesman, Lawrence Kerr of Harwich.

Among the requests, the association asked that an agreement of sale be made with the affected property owner before any fencing or construction takes place on where a diversion channel is scratched, such cases should go to the municipal board at once.

Mr. Doucett said there are no regulations compelling the farmer to fence his property if he has no stock and does not need the fence.

Wilson McCubbin, solicitor for the highways association, questioned the advisability of following the proposed route of the highway through Kingsville and Harwich as it would cross some 14 miles, striking all farms at an angle. The highways' minister promised that his department would check to see if another route could be possible because "there's lots of time."

He said the Ontario municipal board will arbitrate claims immediately any case where a settlement cannot be made.

Federation Wants Bargaining Rights For Civil Servants

QUEBEC (CP)—The Civil Service Federation of Canada passed a resolution Wednesday urging that the federation press for federal government to grant collective bargaining rights to civil service employees.

Delegates at the annual convention of the federation heard the federal government and Prime Minister St. Laurent for denying the federation these rights.

The group asked for collective bargaining rights as endorsed by the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act. Under the act, the organization would be permitted to strike to back up demands.

Calls For Decision

An amendment to the original resolution, proposed by D. Cross of Kingston, asked that a decision be given giving the union power to call a strike.

The amendment was defeated and the resolution adopted by a standing vote and applauded.

Delegates protested Finance Minister Abbott's reason for not giving civil servants a raise in the last session.

They said a letter from Mr. Abbott, outlining his views, did "not satisfy" them.

In his letter, Mr. Abbott said the federal government has kept pace with industrial wages. He added that extenuating circumstances made further increases in civil servants' salaries impossible.

725-Pound Man Weds Nurse from Ontario

BUCYRUS, O. (AP)—A man who weighs 725 pounds married a 163-pound woman Wednesday.

Charles "Jersey" Kinsey, 32, whose waist line measures 120 inches, married Beverly J. Hickman, 24, a practical nurse of Bothwell, Ont., at nearby Galion.

Kinsey, a service station operator, wore a size 73 shirt. He stands five feet, 11 inches tall. The bride, who spent two years in the women's division of the RCAF, is four inches shorter.

Foot-and-Mouth Disease Control Cost 26 Millions

OTTAWA, Sept. (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner says estimates for his department hit a high of $74,000,000 last year and the cost of fighting the foot-and-mouth disease outbreak among Saskatchewan livestock boosted the final total expenditure to more than $100,000,000.

This amount, Mr. Gardiner told an election campaign rally of 3000 persons here Tuesday night, was the most money spent on agriculture in Canada's history.

HEROIC NURSE

NEWHAVEN, England (CP)—The "passport's grave" of a heroic Irish-born nurse was discovered in the British Army's Royal Pioneer Legion, which has had it suitably marked and cared for. The nurse, Dorothea Mary Elizabeth Collins, aided Allied troops in Paris prisons during the Second World War.

Will Send Report

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—A report on an inquiry into the collision of the 4,054-ton Scottish steamer Saskatchewan with the 7,000-ton Greek freighter Chrysler, department of transport officials said Wednesday. The inquiry opened Monday in Toronto.

No inquiry will be held into the disappearance of Wallace McCamus, 42, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., purser on the Scottish steamer Saskatchewan and believed drowned in the collision.

The vessel, carrying a $300,000 cargo of wheat, sailed out of Canada Steamship Lines' Public Elevator in Lake Superior, 15 miles from here, Tuesday night to 600 feet of water. The Norwegian steamer at the vessel's starboard at 2 a.m.

50TH ANNIVERSARY

OELO (CP)—When the largest steel plant in Norway, Christiania Spigerverk, celebrated its 50th anniversary last month, the Government donated the equivalent of $120,000 to scholarships and to charities for persons who have been employees. The 1,120 workers enjoyed a dinner dance.

Nervous, Tired, Rundown
Headaches, Stomach Rebelled

MISS MARGARET RUDDER

Is Delighted with Improvement in Health Since Taking Dynamo says Vitamin Rich Yeast Tablets Are Few Dozen—Then Nerves Calmed Down—Pains Went Away.

"I had nervous headaches, stomach upset, and was tired, rundown most of the time. It is made only from the Purest Brewers Yeast, rich in Vitamin B, known for their nourishment value, Dynamo Yeast Tablets helped me wonderfully from the first few days," declares Miss Margaret Rudder, 158 Talbot Street, London, Ontario.

"I had always thought that I had a nervous stomach and that was why I had so many headaches, but I got proof and then I knew that Dynamo Yeast Tablets were helping me. I kept on recommending that I keep on taking Dynamo Yeast Tablets because I felt so much better. My nerves are calmed down, my headaches have gone, my stomach is in fine condition, my appetite is excellent, my head is clear and I feel fine in every way that I don't remember when I have ever felt so well before."

Dynamo Yeast Tablets are sold by druggists everywhere. If you are not entirely satisfied with the results obtained from the first few packages, your money will be refunded by the druggist.

Substitute Regime For East Germany Has Been Set Up

Name Operative Commission To De-Communize Country

By TOM REEDY

BERLIN (AP)—East Germany's Russian puppet regime today set up what appeared to be a substitute government to head off a threatened slow-down obviously designed to forestall further workers' rebellion against communism.

With apparent Soviet approval, perhaps given him as a last chance to survive, the East zone's satellite premier, Otto Grotewohl, announced formation of a special "operative commission" with full authority to initiate and drive through measures designed to end the fires of revolt by improving the lot of the common man.

The commission's job, the Reds said its makeup and size were still being worked out, was to effect the spin East Germany's wretched economy back towards capitalism.

East of Red Drive

Preliminary plans made public by the Grotewohl cabinet Thursday night spelled the final collapse of the drive-communism drive that started last summer and rolled ahead relentlessly until it bumped squarely into the June 17 rebellion.

The cabinet ordered the commission to:

1. Step up the government's reserve shelves bare of food and clothing, throwing everything available into the consumer goods market. This wipes out the traditional Communist heavy industry system.

2. Slash appropriations for war-potential heavy industry by almost half and use the recouped government money to relieve workers' housing, health and welfare improvements.

Steel Farm Quotas

3. Junk the crop, livestock and food quotas which have forced many farmers out of business, compelled some of the best of them to flee to the West and burned deep fires of resentment through the agricultural belt. Redistribution or delivery of cattle, milk, eggs, potatoes and other foodstuffs now ranged up to 25 per cent, depending on the size of the farm.

4. Increase old-age pensions and sick benefits.

5. Raise wages for workers who voluntarily increase their production, abolishing the speed-up under the old compulsory work quotas.

Party boss Walter Ulbricht shook to his Red doctrine of communism even while bending all his energy to bring about a new turn to the right. He said Lenin did the same thing in the early days of the Soviet state when the new economic price was needed to keep Russia from collapse.

Start Roadmap Forms

Lesser communist officials through the zone were ordered to start toward restoring farms to original owners, privately operated businesses and collectivistic methods. They also gave back a number of small and medium size enterprises.

As an opening gambit in the drive to reach workers' hearts through their long-denied stomachs, the cabinet set 25,000 tons of meat, 54,000 tons of flour and 10,000 tons of sugar into the state shelves.

The Russian-commandeered additional supplies from the Soviet Union, Poland and Czechoslovakia to supplement the German.

New appropriations for civilians in the zone and for the army, police and rearmament in general—were a clear sign that rearming East Germany against the leading them finally had been recognized as a fuse of the revolt.

THE WEATHER

Internationally Minded Regime Seen Necessary

SEOUL (AP)—A South Korean government leader hinted today that nationalist Chinese troops might be welcomed here if an armistice is signed with South Korea fights on alone.

Yoon Chi Young, vice-speaker of this republic's National Assembly, was asked at a press conference about an alliance between South Korea and Nationalist China if the Communists and UN command should sign a truce.

"General Chiang Kai-shek through private channels has expressed a desire to help us. We are grateful for that," Yoon replied.

He added "there might be, a possibility" of such an alliance.

Reports circulated in Seoul that secret negotiations might be under way between the two governments to bring in Chiang Nationalist divisions to replace U. S. forces if the UN signs the present truce.

Such substitution of forces would speculate on how the Chinese troops would be transported from Formosa or how they would be supplied with U. S. arms and food.

The U. S. also supplies and equips South Korea's 16-division army.

Rhee often in the past has declared that bringing in Nationalist forces would only spread the Chinese civil war to Korea.

Nationalist Chinese ambassador to Korea, Wang Tung-wen, has called on Rhee several times recently. The ambassador was the only foreign diplomat who spoke at the big war anniversary rally Thursday.

PLANE WRECKAGE SPOTTED IN B.C. BY SEARCH CRAFT

Three Americans Aboard Missing Three Days

EDMONTON (CP)—Hope for the safety of three Americans missing three days in the rugged northeast corner of British Columbia rose today with an RCAF report that a search plane has spotted wreckage of a red aircraft northeast of Fort Nelson, B. C., 500 miles northwest of Edmonton.

The report, received here from headquarters of No. 12, Lt. A. N. K. Beauchamp at Fort Nelson, said there were no signs of life in the downed plane, but a panel laid out in the ground in an arrow-like shape indicated there were survivors and they were trying to walk to safety.

The Americans, James Kelly of Vancouver, Wash., pilot; Norval Taylor, Vancouver, Wash., co-pilot; and D. L. Dutton of Portland, Ore., were flying a four-passenger red Stinson aircraft.

They were reported missing when they failed after leaving Fort Nelson for Smith River, B. C., 195 miles northeast on the British Columbia highway.

Immediately here said a helicopter from Whitehorse, Yukon, will be sent to the area as soon as it is possible. Meanwhile, a supply drop will be made today at the scene of the wreck. Two men will parachute to the wreck or that they will return to Fort Nelson.

The panel on the ground pointed to the direction the survivors took, the RCAF said, but any attempt to walk the 32 miles to the settlement would be a hazardous undertaking.

It would be very difficult for a well-equipped ground party to reach the wreck, the RCAF said.

The aircraft which spotted the wreckage was unable to proceed in the direction indicated by the ground panel because of poor flying weather which has dogged the search since Monday morning.

Three Dakotas are taking part in the search. One was flown to Fort Rivers, Man., and the other from Namao, near Edmonton.

Plane Forced Down in Lake, Five Safe on Desolate Isle

TOBERMORY (CP)—Five persons were safe today after their plane was forced down in Georgian Bay, 100 miles northwest of Toronto.

The five, including a Miami, Fla., millionaire and his two sons, spent the night on rocky, desolate Lonely Island after the plane made an emergency landing Thursday.

The plane, owned by Central Airways in Toronto, was piloted by Gerald Farr, 31, and been chartered by Gilbert Owen, 40, of Miami. With him were his two sons, Philip, 9, and Richard, 7, and an unidentified woman believed to be the children's governess.

Word that the five were safe here today came after being relayed by a radio network operating from Lonely Island in Georgian Bay. Further details were lacking.

Scotland Yard Denies Claim Christie May Have Killed 17

LONDON (Reuters) — Scotland Yard today denied a report in the London Daily Sketch that John Reginald Christie, the London mass strangler, may have killed 17 women in all.

Christie, who confessed to killing seven women, Thursday was sentenced to life imprisonment for murder of his wife, Ethel.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said, "It is not our practice to discuss this case though sentence has been pronounced, because there may be an appeal. I would add that we have never thought or there being more than six bodies in this case, all of which have been identified."

Six bodies were recovered from the garden of Christie's home and occupied at 19 Rillington place, Notting Hill, a west London suburb. Seventeen women in all reportedly also admitted, was Mrs. Beryl Evans, 25, who was hanged in 1950 for strangling his baby daughter, Geraldine.

However, Evans also was charged, tried and convicted of strangling his wife.

Christie was a prosecution witness at the Evans trial but denied he killed the baby, a charge which Evans three years ago but laughed off then as "fantastic."

Said Insane Plea

The Daily Sketch said the bones of other victims had been found. At his trial Christie said Evans might have been other victims but denied killing them.

Meanwhile, the Christie trial, one of the most sensational in English court history, touched off a debate on capital punishment.

Interest in the controversy was the question: "Was an insane plea (Evans) hanged three years ago?".

Evans, an illiterate, lived in the same house as Christie.

Mrs. Agnes Probert, Evans' mother, in Merthyr Tydfil, south Wales, said in London home that Christie's conviction clears her son and she will ask the home office to reopen the case.

No Demand Inquiry

The demand for an inquiry will be pressed next week by a number of Parliament members. The Howard League for Penal Reform, Britain's leading prison reform body, has also demanded a reinvestigation.

All London papers this morning gave lengthy reports on the Evans and the Christie case.

Most papers also printed long psychiatric sketches of the 54-year-old clerk whose mild-mannered demeanor belied the life of sadism which he has admitted living.

The mass killer, who walled up his victims in his home, showed little emotion as he stood in the dock as sentence was pronounced. During the 84-minute jury deliberation he chatted with Sir Lionel Leach, one of the Australia — England cricket umpires.

When he was leaving the courtroom, however, he put his hands to his face for a few seconds.

His lawyer, Derek Curtis-Bennett, who pleaded for a guilty but insane verdict, said he will not appeal, within the 10 days allowed, after consultation of an appeal.

JOSEPH LANIEL APPROVED AS FRENCH PREMIER

Bermuda Conference Will be Held July 8

PARIS (AP)—Joseph Laniel today was approved as premier of France's 19th post-war government ending the 37-day governmental crisis that has also delayed the Big Three Bermuda conference.

The official announcement said Laniel had received 389 votes in the balloting which came suddenly this afternoon with hardly any debate on the brief program which Laniel presented this morning.

Only 214 votes were necessary to assure the premiership for Laniel, a Normandy industrialist and a member of the independent party, a small right-wing group. He is 63.

Prime Minister Churchill, President Eisenhower and Laniel plan to meet July 8 in Bermuda for a conference on the momentous problems confronting the three powers. It had been planned originally for mid-June but was postponed because of the long home office to reopen the case.

Rhee, U.S. Envoy Both Give Hints Solution Possible

Understanding About Truce May be Reached at Parley

By ROBERT D. TUCKMAN

SEOUL (AP) — President Eisenhower's special envoy and South Korea's president, Syngman Rhee, conferred at length today and it was hinted later they might reach an understanding on the armistice crisis.

The envoy, Walter S. Robertson, U.S. Assistant Secretary of State, told newspaper men after the 24-hour meeting:

"We hope we are making progress in removing misunderstandings." He said there would be further discussions with Rhee, but did not say when.

The Korean public information office quoted Rhee as saying the discussions had been "very good" and that an understanding might be reached.

Beyond that, there were no indications of how much they had eased the crisis created by Rhee's insistence on drastic revision of the armistice terms.

The truce terms on June 9 had removed their last major obstacle to an armistice when they agreed to the disposing of Chinese and North Korean war prisoners refusing repatriation by lot rule.

However, the expected full agreement was interrupted by the release and escape of some 27,000 anti-Communist Korean prisoners last week on Rhee's orders. Rhee insisted his government would "never accept an armistice on present terms. He demanded withdrawal of all foreign troops and mutual security pact with the United States as his "minimum conditions".

Gen. Mark Clark, UN commander visited Rhee earlier this week, but the 78-year-old president didn't budge. South Korean demonstrations against a truce became larger and early today U. S. guards killed two anti-Communist North Korean POWs and a guard wounded another when POWs in a camp near Pusan made a mass breakout attempt.

12,000 Reds Attack

On the battle front, 12,000 Communists attacked on the western and eastern fronts, but the major red blow on the western end of the line was thrown back. In the eastern sector fighting raged on.

After the first conference, Rhee said "Mr. Robertson has brought good ideas and our mutual understanding is being greatly improved."

In the afternoon Robertson called on the foreign minister, Pyun Yung Tai, one of the most outspoken opponents of a truce.

Pyun said later: "helpful vistas were opened."

Robertson made no comment on that meeting.

Replies to Queries

Before the conference, Rhee released written replies to queries from The Associated Press.

Asked by Rhee what conditions for accepting a truce at this time, Rhee answered:

"Simultaneous withdrawal of both

Duke in Kilt Steals Show At Edinburgh

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — The Duke of Edinburgh stole the show today when, dressed in the kilted uniform of a Scottish officer, he accompanied the Queen to a presentation of new colors to Scots troops home from Korea.

The Duke is colonel-in-chief of the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders. He wore the red and green yellow-striped kilt of the Cameron clan, green tunic with gold buttons, white belt and red sash, and a blue balmoral hat with a red pompom.

The Queen, wearing a white and yellow summer frock with white accessories, presented new colors to the 1st battalion of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, of which she is colonel-in-chief.

the Chinese and UN forces from Korea and a mutual security pact between the United States, U. S. and the Republic of Korea . . . Another proposal is that the political conference (after an armistice) be limited to a period of three months so that if no satisfactory result is agreed upon at the end of that period the question will be considered ended."

Asked whether he planned to release the 8,000 anti - Communist North Korean prisoners remaining in Rhee's custody, Rhee said:

"I have undertaken with the UNC (UN command) to have our guards co-operate with the Americans — to prevent further outbreaks."

The UN prisoner - of - war command has already announced that U. S. guards have replaced the Republic of Korea guards at all POW camps on the mainland.

World Fight On

Rhee made it clear he thought South Korea could fight on alone if U. S. forces were stopped. He said:

"If there is no other way to cease-fire than to sign the truce as it is, then I am ready. It is best for the U. S. to let the Koreans fight the Communists. If the Koreans believe they can win the war they should have our mutual security, ammunition and if not, the Koreans want to try anyway."

Asked what he thought the Allies would sign a separate truce with the Communists without South Korea, Rhee replied:

"I am sure the U. S. will, nor do we ask the U. S. to hold the signing of the truce either on the Communists' terms or with some alteration because of Korea's refusal to accept the truce."

Coldwell Says Liberals Fail To Keep Pledges

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

WHITEWOOD, Sask. (CP)—CCF leader M. J. Coldwell Thursday told the government of Liberal government of making wholesale promises to get votes and elections then leaving the electorate with countless unfulfilled promises.

In a campaign address prepared for a public meeting in this town 100 miles east of Regina, the CCF leader charged the government with "a deliberate attempt" to attempt to justify its' failure to carry out promises.

"They have also seen how the government, when alleged obstacles are met, has consistently, time after time in inventing obstacles," said Mr. Coldwell. "Take the Liberal party platform for a national health insurance scheme, Mr. Coldwell said that Mackenzie King in 1919 advocating such a plan since 1919. A CCF government would undertake without delay a comprehensive compulsory-sickness health plan, irrespective of ability to pay. The plan would provide full hospital, medical, and with full freedom in choice of physician.

Crosses Atlantic In 90 H.P. Plane

GLASGOW (AP)—Peter Gluckman, 27-year-old San Francisco watchmaker, landed at Renfrew airport early today after making a flight over the Atlantic in a tiny Luscombe plane.

The last leg of the trip was from Reykjavik, Iceland, to Prestwick, Scotland, for about 12 hours in the little cream-and-blue monoplane.

"I encountered early morning fog over Scotland and had to circle Prestwick airport, where I had intended to land," Gluckman said. "I knew I had enough fuel to off for London later in the day if conditions here are favorable."

Gluckman has flown 85 hours since he left San Francisco about a month ago. He is to fly to Oklahome, Michigan, Ontario, Quebec, Labrador, Greenland and Iceland.

STRING ATTACHED

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)—Retiring as secretary of the Canadian government merchant marine, John Dunkley received a gold watch from Hon. Lionel W. A. Reynolds, commission chairman, with added "your counsel and advice will be sought by us for many years yet."

U.N. Has Not Abandoned Hope For Korean Truce

OTTAWA (CP)—Dag Hammarskjold, UN secretary-general, said today an early truce in Korea that UN authorities have not abandoned hope for a truce in Korea.

Mr. Hammarskjold is in Ottawa for one-day talks with External Affairs Minister Pearson, president of the UN assembly.

He was non-committal on most questions, but when a reporter asked him whether UN authorities are still operating on the premise that there will be a truce in Korea they have abandoned hope for a truce, he replied that hopes have not been abandoned.

Mr. Hammarskjold said the basic reason for his visit is the "inside of UN business" and discussions and arrangements for a session of the assembly, which must be held after an armistice.

Reporters raised the question of India's call for an emergency armistice session. This, said the secretary-general, is the job of the UN commission there.

Any decision for an emergency session would rest with a majority of the UN members, he added. He declined to comment on whether the Soviet Union and the Indian request.

He had not talked of any reply from President Syngman Rhee of South Korea to Mr. Pearson's recent visit to Seoul, but seems to be giving a Korean truce and keeping one.

DIES UNDER TRACTOR

Minor Tornado Hits Kent County, Barns Flattened

CHATHAM (CP)—A minor tornado struck Kent county early last night, flattening a barn and smashing several trees near Cuttle, 30 miles southeast of here.

The twister ran for about a mile through the county with high winds and electrical storms accompanied hundreds of trees and flattened wheat fields.

Cowering behind the wall of a barn, Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Ironmonger Wall Bojko, described the twister as a roaring sound for 30 seconds after knocking a nearby barn from its foundations.

"I see it as a big funnel . . . all white, across the road. I looked from the wall — I figured I could see out the door of the barn — I saw the big funnel," whoosh. Lots of light and thunder," Bojko said. "It knocked down a big barn. It was a big barn. Clean flay."

Mrs. Hunter, 13, and Jim Soliway, 12, two school boys who were bicycling along a road about a mile from the Sanitary property said "it was white and looked like a big whirlwind coming."

The barn was lifted off its foundations, crushing and damaging cattle in the 80 head.

Damage to county and township crews worked throughout the night to clear debris from roads while fields may amount to thousands of dollars.

Wire Trouble Causes Delay In News Items

Due to wire trouble early today, a number or sports features and International news items was not received in time to meet the deadlines.

The trouble was attributed to electric storms which took place in the vicinity of the Belleville area which affected wire facilities between here and Toronto.

Storm Cuts Off Buffalo Power

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—A violent thunderstorm with winds up to 70 miles an hour lashed Buffalo Thursday night causing power failures in three hospitals and hundreds of homes.

The storm followed a day of record heat with the 1879 record of 96 tied for the second time and to a 91-degree reading.

Hundreds of electric wires were ripped from poles by wind or falling trees and branches.

Operating rooms at Mercy hospital cared for emergency patients by flashlight and candle as did wards to warm babies in incubators and released oxygen by hand from tanks in oxygen tents.

Power was restored in a few minutes.

Russians Shot German Workers And Bound Their Bodies to Tanks

BONN (AP)—Russian soldiers shot down German anti-Communist demonstrators in Industrial Magdeburg, then bound their bodies to tanks and drove through the city in an attempt to cow the population of the Soviet zone, a refugee in East Germany. Twenty persons were killed there in the new day's rioting.

This was reported in letters received by the West German government from the Russian zone and published today by the West German information bulletin. The government said it vouched for the authenticity of the letters.

The letters stated that while organized strikes and riots against the Communist government occurred for three days, beginning June 17, through the great industrial triangle of Leipzig-Halle-Bitterfeld which includes such cities as Magdeburg, Halberstadt and Quedlinburg.

The disorders flared after the population heard of the explosive fall of the 17 in Soviet East Berlin which touched off the zone-wide rebellion.

"On the same day, letters related, tens of thousands demonstrated in Magdeburg.

"Russian troops and German Communists opened fire without firing on the crowd. Approximately 20 persons were killed including some policemen. Thereupon the bodies of the slain Germans were bound to tanks which drove through the city.

"An armed policewoman shot two children and the crowd turned on her and literally trampled her to death."

Canadians 'Saturday Nighters' Says This British Editor Blighter

LONDON (CP) — A British weekly called South Today blasted Canadians as the dullest people in the Commonwealth.

"How is it," the paper asked, "that Canadians have got a reputation for creating a brave new world when all the evidence is against them?"

The damning article, signed by "Curious Citizen," lists Commonwealth personalities such as South Africa's Bobby Locke in golf, Australia's Sir Donald Bradman in cricket and New Zealand's Edmund Hillary in mountain climbing, and says Canada's record looks dismal by comparison.

Former premier Mackenzie King is the only Canadian to interest him, Stephen Leacock was funny, Truth says, but his writings is old-fashioned now. Toronto-born Mary Pickford, Deanna Durbin of Winnipeg and Yvonne de Carlo of Vancouver made their mark on entertainment-wise, but they did it outside Canada. As for Canada's only co-discoverer of insulin, is the only Canadian to rate international.

"My experience of Canadians is that they are dull dogs," continues the article adds. "They spend the week grousing the dollar. They spend Saturday night temperately-cously disposing of it."

Truth, nominally independent but Conservative in outlook, is edited by Vincent Evans, former Fleet street newspaper man. The article bears no signs of a tongue-in-cheek piece like the examples given seem to indicate a light-hearted approach.

OUT OF SCHOOLS FOR LONG HOLIDAY

Close to 2,500 public school children as well as several hundred attending Separate school will lay down their school books today as classes close for the summer holidays period. Belleville Collegiate will also close officially although many of the students whose exams have been completed have been away from classes for several days.

So it's "happy holiday time" for all children of school age until classes resume early in September.

PROPERTY DAMAGE QUITE EXTENSIVE

Considerable property damage to two vehicles resulted Thursday night as result of a collision occurring on No 2 Highway near the Ontario School for the Deaf. Cars driven by Elmer Scott, 5 Wellington Crescent, west of Consecon Rahilly, Queen Street, Trenton, were involved. Details of the accidents were not learned.

Five Persons Killed

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — Five persons were killed in a head-on collision on a straight stretch of road Wednesday night at Kilborn about 40 miles west of here.

RCMP officers, who withheld the names of the victims until next-of-kin were notified, said the automobiles were from Saskatchewan and Northern Manitoba.

Two men and a woman were killed in the crash and two young boys—sons of two of the earlier victims—died in hospital at Kilborn early today.

400 Contacts Made in Exercise By Radio Club

Over 400 radio contacts were made in a 24-hour period last Saturday and Sunday, in an exercise staged at Little Lake near Brighton by the Quinte Amateur Radio Club.

During the exercise one transmitter was set-up in each of the following bands: 80 c.w. 75 fone; 40 c.w. 40 fone; 20 fone; six metre fone and two metre fone.

Three stations were on 115 volt A.C. gas generators and four regular vessels on battery operated dynamotors. HCE46 loaned two trucks with drivers and the 115 A.C. gas generators for the exercise. Total personnel taking part in the exercise included 15 operators plus three mobile stations.

Purpose of the exercise, sponsored by the Amateur Radio Relay League, an international radio organization, was to test emergency equipment under field conditions. Test could prove satraining for civil defence.

Electrical drivers and static hampered operations somewhat.

BEES AND FAME

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—New Zealanders think there must be something remarkable in bee-keeping, since bee-keeper Sir Edmund Hillary and a native guide reached the top of Everest. Another beekeeper, Maurice Gordon, won the World Ploughing championship, and will try for the King's Prize at Bisley in England in July.

Harold C. Mott Installed As Rotary Pres.

In an atmosphere of "Churchillian" oratory and the accompaniment of winged "night maudens", members of the Rotary Club installed the 1953 slate of officers at a "Ladies' Night" dinner held at Tobe's County Garden Thursday night.

Upwards of 150 Rotarians and their wives attended the function that saw President-elect Harold C. Mott, accept the gavel of officialdom from retiring president George H. Campbell. The new president assumes office at the regular Rotary meeting on July 6.

The retiring president, who recently returned from an European tour, reviewed the past year, and complimented the directors on their accomplishments during his tenure of office. He paid special tribute to the work done for the club's crippled children fund.

"It has been a very pleasant year for me," he said, "and it was a distinct pleasure for me to work in close association with such a pleasant bunch of fellows."

Taking the gavel from his predecessor, President-Elect Mott made a brief address of acceptance. He had not much to say at the moment, he said, but in the near future he would come directly to the point as far as his office is concerned.

Presented With Pin

Past-president Campbell was formally presented with the official past-president's jewelled pin aid by Rotarian Dr. George Stobie, at the conclusion of the installation.

The lusty voices of "the best singing club" in the Rotary district, were in full community singing by Mrs. Morley Davidson with Alec Gordon accompanist.

Featuring the entertainment of the evening was the hilarious impersonation of Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill and Great Britain, by Rotarian Dr. Geo. H. Stobie.

Gifted with an excellent talent for mimicry, Rotarian Stobie practically "brought down the house" with an outstanding impersonation of the great British statesman.

Complete in apparel with the famous cigar held at the proper angle, the equally famous bow tie, tied "with a flair", and other familiar items of Churchillian garb, the Rotary Club's edition of the occupant of "No. 10 Downing Street" gave an "address" that was laugh-packed and garnished not only with the famous Churchill expressions, but the Stobie humor as well.

Dandelion the plant industry of Mrs. Bill Warham, and social amenities passed out another highly enjoyable Rotary "Ladies' Night" and installation.

A Mother and Son Are Reunited

One of the 25,000 anti-communist prisoners of war released from U.N. POW camps in Pusan by South Korean guards on orders of President Rhee, to protest against current proposed truce terms which would leave Korea divided, is shown in a reunion with his mother. The elderly woman fled from the communists in North Korea and made her way to Pusan, where she visited her son in camp. It was not difficult for her to find him. Upon their release, the prisoners scattered among a populace urged by president to give them aid. Although a roundup is being pressed by U.N. officials, it is considered a near impossible task as thousands could hide indefinitely in remote homes among the hills. — Central Press Canadian.

Canada's Industrial Might Shown in 3 Films at BCI

Close to 200 employees and friends of the Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing Company of Canada Limited, were given a splendid two-hour screening of Canada's industrial muscle and the part they are playing in making Canada great, in a showing of three films in the Collegiate Auditorium Thursday evening.

The pictures, showing recent installations of Stephens-Adamson rock crushers and conveyors in the Wabana iron mines on Belle Island, and technicolor sound features of the work being done in the development of Ungava, and Kitimat, were enthusiastically received by the audience.

Local workers were given a first-hand account and an eye-witness view, via the camera, of the operation of the Stephens-Adamson engineered and installed conveyor system at Wabana, described as the largest of its kind in the world and an engineering feat of the first magnitude.

10,000 Feet Long

This conveyor system is composed of a series of 10 different conveyors. The whole installation is more than 10,000 feet long. It raises ore from the shaft face two and one half miles under Conception Bay from a depth of 1,000 feet below sea level. The ore is transhipped from the operations on Belle Island to the Dominion Steel and Coal smelters at Sydney, Nova Scotia.

More than 2,500 tons of equipment were designed and fabricated in the Belleville plant, and installed in the mines at Belle Island by local men. The job took more than a year to complete.

The rich ore in the economy of Belle Island and Canada in general, played by the iron mines of Wabana was brought out when it was revealed that more than 10,000 persons including the mine employees depend directly on the $8,500,000 yearly payroll for their livelihood.

Double Mine Capacity

The installation of conveyors will almost double the mine's capacity to 2,500,000 gross tons of ore per year, bringing new prosperity to an entire community.

A tape recording of interviews with various men engaged in the installation of the equipment was cut following the showing of the Wabana film. Narration for the film was given by Bob vanZeveringen, field manager of the company, and chief of the installation crew at Wabana.

Belleville Rink Wins Tourney At Deseronto

A Belleville rink, composed of Mrs. C. Argue, Mrs. Gordon Vince and skipped by Mrs. H. Cross, won the three-game high at an invitation tourney staged by the Deseronto ladies' bowling club on Wednesday.

A rink composed of Mrs. Nora Kyle, Mrs. C. Mott and Mrs. G. Thompson, attended the Deseronto tourney but did not win prizes.

On Thursday, at the regular ladies' afternoon bowling, a rink of Mrs. Boyle, Mrs. Nora Kyle and skipped by Mrs. J. Scott, took top honors, followed by the rink of Mrs. K. Smith, Mrs. L. Hernon and Mrs. George Wilkin, skip.

Bridge winners were Mrs. D. Elvidge, Mrs. A. Lennox and Mrs. R. Clarke.

Hostesses for the Thursday afternoon party were Mrs. Ivan Gerow, Mrs. J. Scott and Mrs. D. L. Storey.

On Thursday night 24 men and women from the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club participated in a Hiney at Brighton. Everyone received prizes and lunch was served by the Brighton Club following the games.

Manitoba Student Wins Scholarship For Architecture

Canada's top annual architectural award has been won by Jamaica-born Vayden R. McMorris, 23, of the University of Manitoba. His design for a "significant and architectural setting to house representatives of the governments under the terms of a new constitution" in Kingston, Jamaica, brings him $1,200 and return passage for study in Britain. This is the seventh year of the award and the fourth time it has gone to University of Manitoba. Second and prize went to A. R. Ross, McGill University, and third to Raymond G. Johnston, of the University of British Columbia. The award is donated by the Pilkington Glass Company. — Central Press Canadian.

Obituary

THOMAS GILLIAN HARDY PICTON. — An hour after he fell from a load of hay, Thomas Gillian Hardy, 77, died from a cerebral hemorrhage at his home in Hillier. After a fall in which he suffered a cut which was elevated to by a doctor, he was able to walk about the home and listen to the radio. The end came very suddenly.

Mr. Hardy had spent all his life as a farmer in that district. He served several years on Hillier council and was a member of the United Church.

Survivors are two sons, Malcolm, with whom he made his home and Howard at Smithfield. Funeral services are being held Saturday afternoon at Wellington with interment in Hillier Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

HERRINGTON. — In loving memory of our darling daughter and sister Marilyn Herrington, who died June 26th, 1952.

Sad day, June 26, 1952, God saw best,
Sorrowful hearts left in the nest.
Where loveliness never dies.
She rests in the land of God's Own
With the blue and the gold of the sky.

And we, who have known and loved her,
Whose grieving brought us tears.
Will cherish her memory always
Down through the years.
—Sadly missed by Mother, Father and Sister

LAKE. — In loving memory of our dear son Jack, who passed away June 26th, 1948.

Now the years have flown by
Since he left us to rest.
And only those who have lost can know
The pain of parting without farewell.
The grief that never ends.
Yet God knows how we miss him,
But God knows how we miss him,
And whisper he only sleeps
Until we meet again.
—Sadly missed by Sister and brother. J30

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Prices edged higher today in fairly active forenoon stock market trading.

In industrials, gains were led back to firm ground by Loblaw's New which posted a fractional gain. Utilities and papers also tended higher but banks turned weak as Crown Trust eased 3/4 in light trading. Dominion Bridge advanced 1.

Uraniums slipped back this morning after sparking Thursday's market advance. New Brunswick base metals continued their recent weaker way as Anacon dropped 10 cents.

Junior golds weakened. Seniors moved slowly in trendless dealings while leading companies edged higher, led by Ventures.

The base metals picture was muddled as higher-priced issues turned in fractional gains while lower-priced stocks traded irregularly lower.

Trading in western oils centred mostly in non-index stocks with gains out-numbering losses in a 2-1 ratio. Among the list of winners were Canada Southern, New Superior, Jasper, Badger-Nelson and Home Oils. Losses in key index stocks like Canadian Atlantic depressed the declines slightly.

PRODUCE MARKET

Sales were steady at the egg market today and prices were firm. Quotations for graded eggs in fibre cases were: A large 64; A medium 62; A small 47; grade A 57; grade C 42. Wholesale to retail: A large 67; A medium 65; A small 53; grade B 52; grade C 47.

Butter solids: first grade tenderable 58; non-tenderable 55½; western second grade 55½; western third grade 53½.

Association Wants Regulations Altered

BIGWIN INN (CP) — Ontario trustees want the provincial government to change its regulations so that a teacher will have only one opportunity a year of resigning instead of the present two.

Harold Wagner, president of the Urban and Rural Trustees Association, told the organization Wednesday that the Ontario trustees council has asked the department of education and the Ontario Teachers' Federation to cancel the provision.

BIG SCHOOL

FREDERICTON, N.B. (CP) — More than 500 school teachers and other summer college students will attend the fourth annual summer sessions of University of New Brunswick Teachers' College here from July 6 to Aug. 15. It is the largest summer school in the Atlantic provinces.

Centennial Spirit Soaring As Opening Day Draws Near

TRENTON (Special) — The Centennial spirit is sweeping through the town like a wildfire only two days from opening day, Sunday, June 28.

Everybody is talking about the big celebration featuring some of the finest entertainment this locality will have a chance to see.

Take for example the army motorcycle team from Kingston. This band of Duty Riders comes with anything in Canada and have fashioned most of their display after a famous British team which has attracted world-wide publicity since the end of World War II.

And the army accustomed to doing things in a way others dare, sterling band entertainment with a 100-piece mass band playing a one and a half hour concert starting at 7.00 p.m. Saturday night. The motorcycle show commences right after the R.C.A.F. aerial and water exercise ending at 2.00 p.m.

All those people who have heard and read about the daring exploits of the Duty Dancers will have a chance to see them in action off the waterfront on Clarmon during the week. They will be part of a water show included in the eight day program.

Arrange Strong Card

The Zigman Boxing Club has arranged a strong card of local boxers for their first show since they organized and built a fine training centre on Bentinck street. Town and district boys have been matched to provide one hour and a half card Friday night, July 3. Some of the boys were going through their paces last night under the skilful eye of "Hob" Smith, a Kingston boy who made Trenton his home through the R.C.A.F. Promoter Jack Zigman, a classy fighter a few years back, stood at the ringside viewing the talent.

Jack and "Hob" figure their fighters are ready to put on exhibitions equal to any boxing bouts seen here in two years.

Entertains Employees

Last night O. C. "Buster" Alyea and family entertained the employees of R. W. Powers and Son and their wives at a social evening at the Quennyay Hotel. First the gathering dined and then were shown colored slides of Mr. and Mrs. Alyea's trip to Bermuda trip last spring. Mr. Alyea who filmed the many elegant scenes provided the commentary while his daughter operated the machine.

Boy Burns

The first baby boy born in Trenton Memorial Hospital after midnight Saturday will be known as the Centennial Child. He will be presented with a silver silver drinking mug by Vic Auger, proprietor of Auger's Men's Wear.

Have Pictures Taken

The board contestants are going to have their pictures taken so reproductions will be available for posting in windows on the main street. It is gratifying to see that the merchants have joined in with the Centennial celebrants and the results are shown in some mighty fine feet in rhythm with Ro. 4 Repair Depot Band and a massed army band will swing away from Dufferin Street school, down King Street, along Division and Dundas Street to break off at College St. school.

Personnel From Kingston

Army personnel from Kingston will be headed by by 84-piece massed army band which is making its first public appearance at the Trenton Centennial. Others going on a summer tour, R.C.A.F. personnel from Trenton, under parade marshal W.O. I Dick Carver will be accompanied by No. 6 Repair Depot Band. The band is under bandmaster F/S K. A. Cole who organized the group of approximately 30 instrumentalists this spring. The depot bandsmen are volunteer musicians who practise in off-duty hours. F/S Cole is typical, being an aero-engine mechanic.

The Trenton Air Station is another big show man and evening meals for the large army contingent here will not only send members to participate in the parade, but the sending of a team of motor cyclists.

A staff rider display team of 23 cyclists will give a half hour program filled with thrilling demonstrations of trick riding at 3 p.m. at the ball park. The team from the Royal Canadian School of Signals and Royal Dragoons has patterned their show after the famous British Army Royal Military Corps Display team. Feature items are a demonstration by sixteen riders on one motorcycle, pyramid riding with five bikes abreast and riders standing on each others shoulders, individual trick riding manoeuvres and a demonstration of backwards and forwards riding. The program will be highlighted with a jump through a flaming hoop.

A model aircraft display will follow the bicycle demonstration. In the ball park. It is expected that model enthusiasts from No. 2 Aircraft Depot will take part in the activities.

Thirty-six aircraft, representative of every type based at the Trenton Air Station will take part in a giant flying display at 2 p.m. The show will open with a fly-past including Harvards, Expeditors, Mitchells, a Mustang, Dakota, a Lancaster a C 119 and 726 Silvers.

Aerobatic Display

Two Harvards will take part in an aerobatic display with F/Lt. Ross Reid doing the commentary on the various dips and dives. The Mustang and Silver Star will be also featured in two separate aerobatic displays. The Norseman will do a water take-off. Also on the government wharf and the Silver Stars will be seen in a novel fly-past.

Highlight of the air show will be a five para-drop into the Bay of Quinte. Included in the list of participants F/Lt. Gordon MacDonald, R.C.A.F., Station Trenton Nursing Sister, and para-rescue personnel, Cpl. Savage, Cpl. Crawford, LAC Hogeboom, and LAC Bourdon. Two marine section launches will pick the jumpers up after their drop into the water.

A giant fireworks display will at 11.30 p.m., conclude "Armed Services Day" activities.

Armed Services Day of Centennial Set for July 4

The Centennial Committee of Trenton — the "Air Force City" — has set aside Saturday, July 4 as "Armed Services Day" in celebration of the town's one hundredth birthday.

One segment of the armed services, the Royal Canadian Air Force, has contributed a great deal to the growth of Trenton.

Thirty-three years have passed since construction first started on RCAF Station Trenton in 1920. Long flat fields and the nearby Bay of Quinte for seaplanes made the site ideal for an air station which was partly completed in 1932 and welcomed its first squadron from Camp Borden. During this same year, the government employed relief workers in a building and aviation program which was interrupted by World War II.

Known as the "University of the Air," the station houses one of Canada's most important Air Force units, Training Command Headquarters.

Across the field from RCAF Station Trenton is No. 6 Repair Depot created in 1940 to provide facilities for service and maintain Canada's growing Air Force. Here, building was an almost continuous process for many years to keep abreast of the unit's responsibilities.

The three Air Force units and the Royal Canadian Army join to make their day a great day to remember in Centennial year.

The day will open with a military parade at 10 a.m. March-

Lieut. Prays War in Korea Will End Soon

CHICAGO (AP)—"This will be my last letter to you," the lieutenant wrote his wife from Korea. "But I know, because it will not be mailed unless I am killed today."

The lieutenant, James Ford of Chicago, asked a last favor of his 23-year-old wife, Jean, whom he married only eight months ago. "Pray that this shall end soon."

It ended soon for James Ford, as he suspected it would. But as he wrote in June 13—4 days and 2 hours before leaving on a hazardous patrol deep behind Communist lines—his thoughts were of others.

"I pray each night that they will sign a truce so these young kids can get away from this blood, a-leside it is now, for we are that in here at 1ff and 19 before they c: now what life is all about. It'.

Wants to See Govt. Re-elected

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Farquhar Oliver, Liberal leader in the Ontario Legislature, said Thursday night Canadians should elect an "internationally - minded" government such as the Liberals.

Speaking at an election campaign rally attended by Prime Minister St. Laurent, Mr. Oliver said the party in power also should be one that would trade well with other countries. It should help in social security and in providing work for Canadians.

"None of us wants the welfare state," he said, "but we want the most social security that our national income can provide with safety."

SHOULD WE TRADE WITH REDS?

If the "cold war" ever warms up or freezes over or whatever a cold war does when it becomes less warlike, we shall be faced with a new billion-dollar question.

Should we trade with Communist countries?

"U.S. News Report" says we shouldn't—but will. After a Korean truce, it declares, "a stampede will begin for sales of goods to Russia, China, all the Iron Curtain countries."

The 1953 General Assembly of the British Trades Union Congress, on the other hand, passed a resolution advocating such trade between East and West.

But the general council of the same body has now announced a report which in effect maintains it doesn't matter much, because such trade would not be significant in volume.

It lists several barriers. There are, of course, strategic embargoes on British exports, which the council feels should be maintained "in the present international situation." But that is only one obstacle. There are similar strategic barriers on the Communist side, and in peace or cold war these embargoes are likely to continue, insofar as they relate to goods which are scarce in Red-ruled lands. High prices of Communist exports, the probability that these lands are unable to supply Britain with needed goods in quantity, and the improbability of Communist countries wishing to provide a major market for British goods are all listed as other bars to trade.

Communist countries have never accounted for a substantial proportion of British overseas trade, the council reports. In 1948 Communist bloc took a little more than one per cent of British exports and provided 2½ per cent of British imports. By 1952 exports fell to below one per cent, while imports from the Red lands held 2½ per cent.

These figures appear to provide an effective answer to those who would paint British trade with Communist countries as a major breach in the economic blockade of those lands, and to nothing to answer the principle involved. Should we trade with the Reds? It is not an easy question to answer — but every man will probably have his own reply and hope that the experts see things his way.

BRAVE WORDS—BUT ARE THEY TRUE?

They were brave words that Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany used as he spoke at a memorial service for the victims of the East German revolt against Communist rule.

"With weapons an unarmed, defenceless people can be beaten to the ground," he said, "but their will, their determination, will never be broken."

History has shown that thought many times before, in a wide variety of noble phrases.

History has proved that sentiment true, hundreds of times, in dozens of lands.

But is it still true today?

That is the horror of slavery on the twentieth century pattern. There is mounting evidence that tyranny, aided by science and scientists, has forged a terrible new weapon, that by indoctrination and applied psychology the tyrant can, today, hope to produce a situation in which what was true in the past will not hold true in the future.

If that is true, then is man indeed doomed, bound in mind as well as body by the shackles of his own growing understanding of himself and his fellow-man.

AN UNFORTUNATE ATTITUDE

An external affairs official at Ottawa has stated that Canada is "none too happy" about U.S. proposals to give surplus farm products to other countries.

We are "none too happy" about the Ottawa official's statement.

It is easy to follow the argument that the possibility of a gift from the U.S. may stop importing country from purchasing food from other nations—and that this reluctance to buy may reduce Canadian exports and the imports of other agricultural countries and thus injure their economy.

But surely, in a world so full of hungry people, among lands so poverty stricken that they cannot afford to buy the food they need to keep all their inhabitants healthy or even alive — surely there is some place where surplus food from the United States may be eaten without bringing a reduction to Canadian sales.

Perhaps we are unpatriotic—but we feel a little bit ashamed that any Canadian is "none too happy" at the prospect that some starving wretch may eat—and not pay.

TABLE MANNERS

My mother taught me manners.
In my very early life
I learned when I was eating I must never lick the knife.
The blade was meant for cutting.
That is, I took for granted.
The other proper instrument for eating is the fork.

Fault to fault, with patient teaching, the control years ago.
I mustn't sop the gravy, and the tea I mustn't blow.
I remember how she scolded
every time that she looked up
And caught me drinking coffee with the spoon still in the cup.

But there's one thing mother taught me—eg old custom
I'd have banned—
'Twas when friends come to the table every gentleman must stand.
I've obeyed her, and I've stood there while some tale was being told,
With the knowledge while I waited that the soup was getting cold.

I go visiting when dining and some friends of mine I see
But I waive the old time teaching and I say: "Still seated be.
I have merely come to greet you and to shake you by the hand,
But you needn't mind your mothers who instructed you to stand."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ARE YOU AN ADVERTISEMENT

Advertising has become a great art. Millions are spent every day to arouse people to buy what is offered in print, over the radio, on TV, in magazines, on car cards, even on billboards. So extensive has advertising become that no intelligent person will deny that it has an intention of buying just because of the enticements displayed in devious ways by advertising.

Trade-marks become symbols of honesty, integrity, and quality guarantees. Arguments, catchlines, and slogans are used to the point where they become a reader or listener to buy. And people do buy! Not always wisely but too well they do. Honesty, however, in advertising goes a long way to the greatest permanence. A good advertisement must carry confidence and character within it. By and large, if the product must be outstanding.

Every human being is, somewhat the same manner as a writings or spoken advertisement. He is also an advertisement. People look for the character and quality of another in their guarantee that the person is worth while as a friend or associate. Wise employers are forever seeking out men and women in competitive concerns that they may employ in their employ. They have advertised themselves so prominently that they need no further advertisement.

I have been interested in the meteoric career of the great Pittsburgh home-run king and noted baseball slugger. Recently he has been taken over by the Chicago Cubs baseball team. It will be interesting to see what effect that new acquisition will have upon the morale and spirit of the baseball club. His fine character and affability have made him friends in every attraction no one can do more than speculate upon what will happen now. Already the new baseball player he is a top advertisement in himself

Are you as advertisement? Have you honesty and quality interwoven into all that you do? Are people attracted to you? Do you give them reasons to be? Are you daily "selling" yourself—making people want you around, one to whom they may give their love and confidence? To "Bob" Uppgraff, himself a noted advertisement, I owe the subject of this Talk

Mademoiselle UNICEF

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT
Copyright, 1953, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

In the average American home blessed with young children, the parents have three constant problems.

One is to induce the children to eat properly — to down the cod-liver oil, and to persuade the other is to make them dress properly—rubbers in the rain, mufflers in cold weather. The third is to get them to the doctor or dentist—on schedule.

But, for most American children, the spinach, the rubbers and the doctor are available.

For more than half the children on earth they are not.

There are about 900 million children under 15 years of age on earth today. More than half—about 500 million—live and die in want.

The youngsters may never have tasted milk, or worn shoes or visited a doctor. But they are familiar with hunger and cold and disease.

The only organization that even begins to answer their needs is UNICEF—the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

Its total expenditures have been less than the cost of a single battleship.

What in the world, you may ask, can UNICEF do with so little money?

That is a long, complex heart-warming story.

It began in 1946. In Europe there were 30 million children in dire need as a result of the war.

First, they needed food. UNICEF found it in supply lots, the cheapest, most nutritious food available, most of it left over in winter three million children in 11 European countries hardest hit by the war received enough milk to keep them alive.

They needed clothing, too. UNICEF got raw materials — cotton, wool, flannel — and in these countries made them into dress, suits and shoes.

Tuberculosis was reaching epidemic proportions. UNICEF joined the World Health Organization in a preparation called BCG, launching a campaign to mass vaccination against tuberculosis in children.

That program has developed into history's largest mass vaccination campaign.

Since then UNICEF has become permanent.

A boy in the Philippines is cured of night blindness through UNICEF vitamin A capsules. An Italian child wants to know if UNICEF is the American word for "cow." Africa, 840,000 children get skim milk to combat a dietary deficiency disease known as Kwashi-orkor. India goes to maternal and child welfare centers. And in refugee centres and drought-stricken areas 700,000 children get milk to keep them alive.

Then the milk from fish—liver oil. An important target is rickets, but the overall aim is to set up projects as a means to better general health.

All the time that the UN food and agriculture organization is helping people how to increase milk production so the program will become permanent.

Remember, the key word in much of what UNICEF does.

The first thing is to show people what is best to do. But the next and perhaps most important step is to train local technicians to handle the procedures, scientifically. After that, the technicians train other technicians in an ever-widening circle.

UNICEF already has given direct aid to 43 million children in 64 different countries. Current projects under those figures call for 60 million children in 72 countries. UNICEF has grown up as a temporary agency, a sort of step-child whose future is in the hands of others.

The "E" still stands for emergency, but there are still 500 million children in want are emergencies, too.

My hope—and the only practical salvation for those 500 million children—is that UNICEF will be made permanent.

Perhaps the people in a tyrant on a border between Jewish and Arab territories symbolize one reason for my hope. UNICEF has sent food to the refugees. Both Jews and Arabs, being disrupted the area and children, are hungry.

Not long ago, the five-year-olds decided to show their gratitude. They painted on a cardboard, bits of colored stone and glass, the flag of UNICEF, fashioned and dressed a 10-inch high figure. Gleefully they then stands on an altar in the kindergarten, where all can see and remember that UNICEF means benefactress.

Her name? "Mademoiselle UNICEF."

Mademoiselle is go on helping them—and helping all the other millions of children who so desperately need her.

'Debunker' Is Annoying

(London, Eng., Times)

Some of the most famous and familiar sayings when run to earth in dictionary of quotations are found to bear the stigma of being "attributed." The Duke of Wellington, for example, on the playing fields of Eton is "to say the least of it doubtful." Nelson seems little doubt that he never said "Up, Guards, and at 'em" although in his case there be must have said and probably did say, "Hardy, my lad." Regarding a more peaceful battlefield Dr. Johnson said a bitter thing lately fallen. George Hirst has broken all our hearts by declining to say that he ever said "I will get them in my singles." He will get them by the bowling which would thus "deliberately deny the truth." Even Shakespeare, though we certainly have heard of Yorkshire doing so before now, is not quotations with the cashire match. Yet with all our debunking "quotations are made and bunked" one by one we had held fast to Sherlock Holmes' "dear Watson." And now there comes along an iconoclastic and disenchanting person who says that he can find no trace of it. Mr. Ellery The Spectator from the scene of the Baker Street rooms in Conan Doyle's Clerk) who roundly asserts that Sherlock Holmes never used those words. What is worse a hurried and imperfect search seems to bear him out. In "A Study in Scarlet, the earliest of all the writings, is the passage "Wonderful!" I ejaculated. "Commonplace," said Holmes. That is the best that can be made of a bad lot on the spur of the moment. Heaven forbid that I should be misunderstood as to deny that those now almost sacred words can be discovered but only do not seem to be there. Holmes often more far more im-

What's Price Of Stolen Kiss?

(By Jose Scherr in "This Week" Magazine)

Juries are called upon to set prices on many startling trespasses. Here are some of their strangest quotations.

Is $1,000 too much for a girl to collect for a kiss stolen by her boss driver? No, because "you wouldn't think it was worth that if you had been your sister or mother that was kissed." said the Supreme Court of Wyoming.

If a debutante gets $10,000 for a broken leg, should a scrub woman get $1,000? No, because medical science has never proven that a scrub woman and a debutante suffer less from injuries than members of high society," said the New York Supreme Court.

Is $2,000 too much for a girl to get for a broken heart? No, not when by a telephone repairman who "entered her apartment by mistake? Yes, because the encounter with the telephone man should be worth far more than $2,000 worth of fright, said the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Is a car on a girl's calf too obscurely located to warrant payment? No, said the Pennsylvania court it causes her? No, because on rear, fenders and hitler, front looks than faces, said the New Jersey Supreme Court.

Should a bridegroom get the $20,000 he demands for forgetting to go to the wedding when he left his memory in an automobile accident? No, said the Illinois court, solation for losing a bride said the Connecticut Supreme Court.

Is $5,000 too much for a girl to collect for being spanked by a millionaire boss? No, because because a girl's dignity suffer more from having indignities done to her by a rich man, said the New York Supreme Court.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

MALNUTRITION AND LOW BACK PAIN

Malnutrition doesn't mean the poor creature hasn't had enough to eat, nor does it occur more frequently among the poor than among the well-to-do or middle class.

Today we prefer to call malnutrition, undernutrition or nutritional deficiency. The great majority of the time here in America are restricted in their choice or selection of foods only by their own ignorance.

To the best of my knowledge no physician or nutrition authority today questions or disputes the dictum of Sherman that the ordinary mixed diet of American and European, at least among dwellers in cities and towns, is probably more often deficient in calcium than in any other chemical element.

Calcium that is. Otherwise known as lime. The chief component of bone, meat, oyster shell, egg-shell, limestone, chalk, coral, quicklime, slaked lime, whitewash.

There is more calcium (lime) in the body than any other mineral element, approximately two pounds in the body of a man weighing 130 pounds. Most of it is in the bones, but small and indispensable amounts are present in the teeth, nerves, muscles, tissues and blood, and in the watery walls of the healthy child cells.

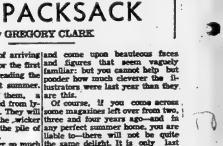
There is more calcium (lime) in a tablespoon or glassful of milk than there is in a tablespoonful or glassful of lime water.

You know what lime water is, don't you? No, no, not a substitute for lemonade. It is a mild, anti-acid, formerly added to the baby's bottle to prevent excessive curdling of milk and now commonly used when milk or without it to sweeten sour stomach or relieve hyperacidity. To make lime water put a lump of unslaked lime (no matter what size) in a quart of water in crock or jar, stir briskly, and let it stand until the undissolved lime settles at bottom. Pour off the clear upper liquid—that's lime water.

But remember, the strongest possible clear lime water contains less lime than one gets in as much milk, skim milk or buttermilk.

In adults, Sherman points out (in his famous textbook Chemistry of Food and Nutrition), there may be a long-continued loss of calcium without the appearance of symptoms because the losses from the blood and soft tissues may be replaced by calcium taken from the bones.

Now, incredible though it may seem, I have more than the one book. Besides Sherman's masterpiece I have the 2nd. edition of Treatment of the Patient Past Fifty, Year Book Publishers, '44, by Ernst P. Boas, M.D. Dr. Boas makes this pertinent statement: "Loss of the normal calcium of aging and disease in older persons is a very important factor in inevitable results of senescence may well be the result of prolonged continued loss of calcium through the years.



Which means we are again at the end of our tether for today and still the question of low back pain dangles—I'm sorry but maybe it's lucky for you poor souls that I have no room for it all. Cut that piece out and keep it in the pocket reticule until the next fragment comes along. Not that I have a cure for low back pain, I'm just a job for your physician or surgeon. My province is prevention.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the pleasures of arriving at a conclusion about a book at this time season is in reading the old magazines from last summer. You will find a pile of them, likely cured and faded from lying all winter in the cold. They will be on the shelf under the kitchen table, or stashed under the pile of drying verandah chairs in the shed.

You will find them ever so much better than this year's magazines. The articles will be better, the fiction better, which you must have seen half a dozen times last summer on rainy afternoons, spring out of the faded pages with a pencil. Perhaps it's because I'm older ago. Life was really a live paper last year, but although the coverage on last year's events in Korea with correspondents and photographers devoted to the ladies, with their luscious food advertisements in color over which you can almost feel for drooly minutes on end, are far more interesting, now that the pages are a little crinkled and the covers torn. You turn the pages and come upon beauteous faces and forms that seem vaguely familiar: but you cannot help but remember how unsure the illustrators were last year than they are this.

Of course, if you come across some magazines left over from two, three and four years ago—and a by perfect summer home, you are likely to find that not the quite the same delight. It is only last year's publications that give you the thrill. But remember that next year, it was those year-before magazines that delighted you; and the year before's. There is some sort of mystery in the fact that it's only the year years last counts.

It could be that we are lagging behind our publishers, or our publications are getting too far ahead for us. It takes a year's lapse to bring us into focus with our time. Anyway last year finished a delighted two or three days mulling through all last year's magazines, and wondering how wish you joy of yours. They have a fine savor.

PRACTICAL MEN MAKE TROUBLE

So-called "practical men" have a marked contempt for dreamers, artists, academicians, and saints. The practical man is the fellow like this have a screw loose somewhere. If he had his way, he would close up art galleries, and fill them with well-meaning folk who believe are patheticially in need of the strait jacket and padded cell.

A good case can be made from the scrolls of history demonstrating that so-called practical men have got us into most of our serious scrapes. Alexander of Greece was practical; so were Julius Caesar, Napoleon and Hitler. Economism has not only a philosophy for human society but a plan for changing society in such a way as to make it human conditions. Of course when it is put into practice, unemployment, and the exploitation camps, purges, and murders follow which no one questions about the rights of the people.

It was Disraeli who declared that there are two men who practice the blunders of their prejudices. Such men are generally conservative as those practical dreamers who can lead us into every conceivable calamity to impoverish and enslave us. But heaven preserve us equally from the practical man who is not quite sure that they could manage world affairs with their feet on the desk. Society was only wise enough to put them in power, and could help us

Highways Minister Doucett Will Meet County Council To Further Discuss Road Issue

Ontario Highways Minister Hon. George Doucett will meet in the Consaer future with Hastings county councillors at a special session to discuss the Madoc-Foxboro county road which is proposed to be taken over as a provincial highway.

Local members of the provincial legislature, W.E. Sandercock, Hastings West, and Roscoe Robson, Hastings East, will also be invited to attend the meeting.

This was decided Thursday at a special meeting of council called to discuss a "deal" offered by the highways department, in which it promised a million dollars would be spent on rebuilding the Madoc road if the county would assume maintenance of one of the two north and south provincial highways.

Minister Offers Deal

The "deal" was offered by Highways Minister Doucett to a citizens committee at an interview in Toronto on June 15, when it was requested the province take over the Madoc road. Later the country roads and bridges committee headed by Reeve Percy Foster of Trendinaga township recommended that the county assume maintenance of the road in return for more section of No. 14 highway in return for the Madoc road being taken over by the province. Yesterday the entire county council was called to discuss the matter.

Shire Hall was jammed full all day as residents of neighborhoods, both for and against the recommendation came to Belleville to hear the discussion.

A telegram from Madoc, read by Cal. Kincaid, Rev. H. Good, Dr. R. S. Beatty and Arthur Gardiner, pointed out the dangerous condition of the Madoc road with its many hills and turns and also referred to the Bellrock-Tweed bridge at Moira Lake, which had been the scene of a fatal accident. No Thought Of "Deal"

The delegations stressed that there had been no thought of "deal" in the minds of the citizens' group "deal" in the minds of the citizens' committee which waited on Mr. Doucett, but pointed out that the county assuming one of the provincial highways would be taking on only condition on which the province would take over the Madoc road.

"The Highways minister told us that Hastings did not rate three provincial highways running between No. 14 and No. 7 one of the delegation said.

Delegations from the villages of Marmora and from Rawdon township were heard. Both delegations approved the Madoc road being taken over by the province but were definitely opposed to any "trading" of roads, especially when their own No. 14 highway was the bargaining point.

Marmora Ex-Reeves, Vincent Lovell and Hugh Neal spoke for the Marmora delegation, supported as amendment to the roads and bridges recommendation calling for the Madoc road to be taken over provincially without any "strings" to be built as development road.

Back-Tracking

Speaking for the Rawdon delegation were Reeve Ross George Thompson, Wilfred Spencer, William Morrison Lindsay McKeown and William Dennis Reid. Reeve Thompson said that the offer to "switch" roads had been made by the highways department on previous occasions but had never been taken seriously. He pointed out that trading of roads would seem like back-tracking.

All declared in now uncertain terms that they would be unfair for residents in the area if No. 14 was taken back as a county road.

Provincial member for Hastings West, W.E. Sandercock said he would do all in his power to assist in having the Madoc road taken over by the department, but at the same time he did not want a road which had been a highway for 28 years to revert to a county road.

Must Protect People

"I have to try to protect the people in my own riding," he said. "They expect it."

Mr. Sandercock pointed to the heavy maintenance costs the county would be called on to keep up the Marmora road, between Vancouver and Nanaimo is being built here for the Canadian Pacific Railway. The 7,000 ton twin screw diesel vessel is expected to start service by May, 1955, with capacity of 800 passengers and 30 railway cars, or 100 automobiles.

He quoted Mr. Doucett as having said on several occasions that Hastings could have the Madoc road taken over, but that the county just assume one of the two north and south highways. He said that Hastings would was the logical one to be a highways as both No. 14 and No. 37 run into dead ends at No. 7, while the Madoc road served the north part of the county.

He pointed out, however, that because something was wanted desperately was no reason why something good should have to be sacrificed.

"I am in favor of the Madoc road, but definitely no trading," he said.

Warden Kincaid stressed there had been no thought of trading in the minds of the citizens' committee when it met in Toronto with its request. "I want to make that clear," he said. "Mr. Doucett also made it clear that we could not have the Madoc road taken over without a trade."

No Alternative

Referring to a statement of one of the delegation members that the Madoc road by the way has been made before the county, Reeve Earl Sager of Madoc township wanted to know why the offer had not been taken seriously.

"When Mr. Doucett says he will spend a million dollars on the Madoc road, that shows that he feels it is where the highways should be," he said. "I for one take no pleasure in the county taking over another road, but if we have to accept another road to get the Madoc road then I say we have no alternative."

Resolutions Read

Resolutions from 12 northern municipalities in support of one Hastings county Reeve Percy Foster of Trendinaga township recommended that the county assume maintenance of the road in return for more section of No. 14 highway in return for the Madoc road being taken over by the province. Yesterday the entire county council was called to discuss the matter.

Shire Hall was jammed full all day as residents of neighborhoods, both for and against the recommendation came to Belleville to hear the discussion.

A telegram from Madoc, read by Cal. Kincaid, Rev. H. Good, Dr. R. S. Beatty and Arthur Gardiner, pointed out the dangerous condition of the Madoc road with its many hills and turns and also referred to the Bellrock-Tweed bridge at Moira Lake, which had been the scene of a fatal accident.

No Thought Of "Deal"

The delegations stressed that there had been no thought of "deal" in the minds of the citizens' group "deal" in the minds of the citizens' committee which waited on Mr. Doucett, but pointed out that the county assuming one of the provincial highways would be taken on only condition on which the province would take over the Madoc road.

"The Highways minister told us that Hastings did not rate three provincial highways running between No. 14 and No. 7 one of the delegation said.

Delegations from the villages of Marmora and from Rawdon township were heard. Both delegations approved the Madoc road being taken over by the province but were definitely opposed to any "horse trading" of roads, especially when their own No. 14 highway was the bargaining point.

Marmora Ex-Reeves, Vincent Lovell and Hugh Neal spoke for the Marmora delegation, supported an amendment to the roads and bridges recommendation calling for the Madoc road to be taken over provincially without any "strings" to be built as development road.

Back-Tracking

Speaking for the Rawdon delegation were Reeve Ross George Thompson, Wilfred Spencer, William Morrison Lindsay McKeown and William Dennis Reid. Reeve Thompson said that the offer to "switch" roads had been made by the highways department on previous occasions but had never been taken seriously. He pointed out that trading of roads would seem like back-tracking.

Provincial member for Hastings West, W.E. Sandercock said he would do all in his power to assist in having the Madoc road taken over by the department, but at the same time he did not want a road which had been a highway for 28 years to revert to a county road.

Must Protect People

"I have to try to protect the people in my own riding," he said. "They expect it."

Mr. Sandercock pointed to the heavy maintenance costs the county would be called on to keep up the Marmora road. Also the road would be heavier traffic between Bethlehem Mines at Marmora.

Roscoe Robson, M.L.A. for Hastings East, said county councillors should have the interest of the county at heart and not be concerned about what road was in their division.

He quoted Mr. Doucett as having said on several occasions that Hastings could have the Madoc road taken over, but that the county just assume one of the two north and south highways. He said that Hastings would was the logical one to be a highways as both No. 14 and No. 37 run into dead ends at No. 7, while the Madoc road served the north part of the county.

But they did not want it at too great a price or at the expense of their neighbors. He was opposed to taking a highway away from West Hastings.

No Developed Road Wanted

Warden Kincaid referred to the heavy maintenance costs of the present Madoc road, noting that last year the county had spent $37,430 on the stretch alone. "It is time we got rid of it and get the money available, but even at that our ratepayers would be known as the "teaspoon gang," he said.

"I can understand that members in West Hastings do not want a road deletion, but we might also ask how long people can put up with the Madoc Road," he said.

"If it isn't a trade, then what is the answer to the problem? "We do not want a development road."

Reeve V. C. Graham, of Tweed, called the whole discussion "confusing" and suggested that if the council could not find the answer, then members of parliament find the road engineer.

Reeve Clarke Rollins, of Wollaston, felt the discussion was "confusing and misleading." As one of the men responsible for getting the citizens' committee organized, Mr. Rollins said there was no "deal" but merely one of any alternative or trade in the request to have the Madoc road taken over.

Vote Would Cause 'Split'

He said it was unfair that the people of the north should be penalized through lack of a good road to Toronto, and that at the time it was not fair that a highway should be taken away from West Hastings. He warned that a vote on the matter would result "in a split" in Hastings county such as was threatened years ago between the north and south.

"Surely our road committee, with the representation in the parliament can work something out," he suggested.

Following a general discussion regarding some procedure that might be followed to have the matter fully explored with a report to be made at the next regular session of council.

A short recess was called during which Warden Kincaid telephoned Highways Minister Doucett in Toronto. Returning to the session Mr. Doucett that he would attend a special session of council to be held in the near future.

Wooler Crushes Bobcats 16-2

Wooler's slow climb in the Belleville District Softball league standings gained added momentum last evening as they crushed a makeshift team of Bobcats 16-2 under the lights in Wooler.

The Bobcats were leading 2-0 in the bottom of the fourth frame when the roof caved in under a 5-run Wooler rally from which they never recovered.

Wooler scored another in the fifth, two more in the seventh, and four in the eighth to complete the rout.

The Bobcats picked up their first run in the first inning when Nolan led off with a walk and came around to score as the next three batters were retired. Doug Rogers blasted a home run with no one on for their final run in the fourth.

For led the 13-hit Wooler assault with two doubles and two singles in five trips. G. Alden had three singles in five tries, while Ireland smashed out a triple and two singles in four official trips. Carl Austen and Putnam hit home runs for the winners.

The Bobcats could glean only six hits.

The line-up:

Bobcats — Nolan cf; Temple ss; Ireland lf; Powers 1b; Rogers c; Peters 2b; Austen rf; Bond 3b; Powers rf; Baldwin p.

Wooler — Austen; Leavitt; McColl; Instead; Harder; Putman; G. Austen; Dyer and Fox.

Weddings

ERASBORNE—WILLIAMS

A pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora, on Saturday, June 20, when Nellie Jean Victoria, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Williams, of Marmora, was united in marriage to Thomas Sidney Erasborne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Seaborne, of Campbellford. Canon H. M. Brownell officiated. Pink and white peonies were used in the decoration of the church.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. Ray Wood, and during the signing of the register, Miss Jane Fox sang "I'll Walk Beside You".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white satin, featuring a net overskirt and Chantilly lace, a fitted bodice with Queen Anne collar, and buttoned down the back, and long sleeves pointed over the hands. She wore a halo-shaped veil caught with seed pearls and carried a bouquet of red roses and white mums.

The bridesmaids were Misses Eileen Young and Jocelyn Inkster. The former was dressed in mauve taffeta, having a net overskirt with matching headdress. She carried a salmon pink nosegay. Miss Inkster wore pink taffeta with net overskirt and matching headdress and carried a pink nosegay.

Mr. Lyle Campbell performed the duties of best man, and the ushers were Joseph Bailey and Herbert Williams.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the groom's mother received, wearing a gown of white silk with gold accessories.

The bride's mother was unable to be present at the ceremony owing to the serious illness of her granddaughter.

The young couple will reside in Campbellford.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Campbellford, Warsaw, Belleville, Veronia, Foxboro and Oshawa.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Gilroy of Coe Hill, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Wednesday. Observing the occasion they were hosts to approximately 300 friends during a "at home" during the afternoon and evening. The couple are shown cutting their golden anniversary cake.

Mr. and Mrs. W.N. Gilroy, Coe Hill, Fifty Years Wed

The Coe Hill community of North Hastings joined in its daily activities Wednesday to pay tribute to two of its better known citizens on the occasion of their 50th anniversary of married life.

During the afternoon and evening Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Gilroy were hosts to close to 300 friends attending their "at home" on the happy occasion.

Congratulatory messages from far and near poured into the Gilroy home all day as friends offered their felicitations and best wishes. The "at home" took place on the spacious lawn in front of the Gilroy home where dainty refreshments were served the guests by members of the Coe Hill United Church Ladies' Aid.

Life-long Residents

Mr. and Mrs. Gilroy are practically life-long residents of the Coe Hill community, where Mr. Gilroy has been in business for nearly half a century as general merchant and as a lumberman. Mr. Gilroy was born at Carrying Place in Prince Edward County and moved to Woolston with his parents when only five years of age. He was the youngest of a family of ten children, five boys and five girls.

Mrs. Gilroy is the former Margaret Hewton and was born in Faraday township, a few miles from where the Gilroy family lived. Mr. Gilroy is 78 and his bride of 50 years is 72.

Woolston township has come a long way in the three quarters of a century since the Gilroy family took up residence there. Then there were no roads and children attended school only during the summer months. And even summer attendance was often interrupted by hoeing and planting that had to be done at home.

Farmed on Homestead

For eight years after they were married Mr. and Mrs. Gilroy farmed on the Gilroy homestead four miles north of Coe Hill.

Then they moved to Coe Hill where Mr. Gilroy opened a store carrying a small line of groceries. Gradually other lines were added the premises were enlarged and soon Gilroy's General Store was known throughout the township. The business is still being carried on in the original location by a son-in-law, Mr. Herron season as high as 80,000 logs were sawn. Sawmill wages have increased from $1 and board per day.

But Mr. Gilroy still carries on the lumber business which he got into "by accident" close to half a century ago.

"His quest to buy lumber for S. L. Purdy and Son, then the leading lumber merchants in the north," Mr. Gilroy recalled. "Then I got left with a bunch of logs on my hands and I have been in the lumber business since."

Appearance Belies Years

His business as a lumberman has made the Gilroy name known through North Hastings and by lumber people in many parts of the province. Today the Gilroy sawmill operates as it has for the past 33 years and every morning sees the owner on the job before eight o'clock. At 78 he still drives his car with all the zest of a man half his age. He never wears glasses and his appearance belies his 78 years.

This season the Gilroy sawmill at Coe Hill will saw about 30,000 logs, purchased mostly from farmer residents of the township. Logs are hauled by truck distances ranging from two to 15 miles.

Purchase of sawn lumber are made throughout the North Hastings district.

The hey day of the Gilroy lumber operations was in the early 1930's, to as high as $14 per day for sawers and millwrights. Lowest wage paid today at the mill is $6 per day.

Holiday With Pay

In honor of the owner's 50th wedding anniversary, Mr. Gilroy's mill employees were given a holiday Wednesday—with pay.

But lumber is not the full extent of Mr. Gilroy's activities. He is keenly interested in reforestation as several hundred acres of young pines on Gilroy property attest.

"I never hope to realize anything from it, but it is a nice feeling that you will leave something when you are gone," he noted.

Keen Interest in Church

Mr. and Mrs. Gilroy have always taken a keen interest in church activities. Mr. Gilroy acted as Sunday School superintendent at the Coe Hill United Church for 40 years and still acts as church assistant. Prior to suffering ill health a few years ago Mrs. Gilroy also took an active interest in church work.

Mr. Gilroy has also been active in municipal affairs and at different periods served as reeve of his township. At county councils he served as chairman of important committees, including the chairmanship for the Hastings county home board of governors.

The couple have two daughters, Mrs. Ruby Doolittle and Mrs. Herbert (Inez) Lehigh, both of Coe Hill, and one grandson, Norman Lehigh, age 12.

STONE CHURCH W.M.S.

The June meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Stone Church, met at the home of Mrs. W. J. Tufts, Foxboro Road, with 18 members and five visitors present. The president, Mrs. Detlor, presided.

Fees were paid by the members.

Mrs. H. Whitfield gave a splendid report of the recent presbyterial held at Holloway Street United Church, Belleville, and Mrs. F. B. Phillips gave a reading from the Canadian Temperance Federation. Mrs. George Tucker also gave a good report on Christian Stewardship.

A duet by Marilyn and Jeanette Twiddy "Brighten the Corner Where You Are", was well received and timely.

The Scripture lesson and a good talk about the "Great Men of the Bible" was given by Mrs. Detlor, after which Mrs. Tufts gave a good lesson on enlistment for Bible study.

The missionary for prayer is Miss Greta Gould, of Formosa.

All noticed the power of religion in the recent Coronation. One must reach out to God to get Peace. The Bible is the greatest story ever told and only one world to study it.

After the meeting closed refreshments and a social half-hour were enjoyed by all.

Seventh Wedding Anniversary Marked By Presentation

Yesterday a happy time was spent at the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. J. Cathcart, in Foxboro, when 35 members and friends gathered to honor their daughter, Mrs. Frank Ross, and her husband, of Lethbridge, Alberta, on the occasion of their seventh wedding anniversary.

The highlight of the afternoon was a mock wedding with Mrs. Tommie Gilbert as the blushing bride; Mr. Steve Makay, the bashful bridegroom and the father, Mrs. W. Bushell. The officiating minister was capably enacted by Mr. George Dunberry.

Following the mock wedding, Mrs. George Dunsberry presented Mr. and Mrs. Ross with a set of dainty breakfast dishes, and their little two-and-one-half year old daughter, Miss Shelley Ross, with an engraved bracelet. Miss Shelley was baptized the Sunday previous by the Rev. J. C. Rose, by of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

In the evening, a sumptuous pot-luck supper was enjoyed after a delightful time spent in swimming and boating on the Moira.

Mrs. Ross, who has been visiting her parents for the past month, will leave tomorrow, accompanied by Mr. Ross and little daughter, for their home in Lethbridge. Mr. Ross arrived a week ago for a brief holiday in the east.

Riverside School Enjoys Picnic, Makes Presentation

The annual picnic of S.S. 17, Riverside School, was held at the Frankford Park on Wednesday. Previous to a sumptuous picnic dinner the boys and girls enjoyed a time of swimming and baseball.

After the noon meal, Miss Jean Abrams read an appropriate farewell address, and Miss Shirley Howes presented Mr. Rodgers with a handsome leather brief case and a leather belt, for which Mr. Rodgers thanked all for the beautiful gifts.

In the afternoon, prizes were awarded to the winners of the various races and swimming was enjoyed by all in the Trent River.

Belleville Presbytery Y.P.U. Holds Field Day

Despite humid weather, a large number of young people attended Belleville Presbytery Y.P.U. Field Day on Saturday, at Camp Quin-Mo-Lac, on Moira Lake.

Competing softball teams were Hallowell, Bloomfield-Wellers, Scotts-Wallbridge, Mt. Pleasant-Wellmans, Dorcas, Plainfield-Bethel-Zion, Calvin Hill and Gilead. Halloway, Scotts, Plainfield and Gilead went into the semi-finals, with Halloway and Plainfield teams reaching the finals where Plainfield won.

Field Events

In the field events, members of the Plainfield-Bethel-Zion union took 18 points to win over Scotts-Wallbridge by one point. The runner up was Mr. Pleasant-Wellman with 13 points.

The young people enjoyed swimming and picnic lunches during the day. Reta Christie, Presbytery Culture and Recreation convener, was in charge of events.

The Plainfield softball team and all young people finishing in first and second place in track events will represent the Presbytery in the Bay of Quinte Conference Field Day on August 1, Quin-Mo-Lac.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By HEATHER FARFAX

Wife's Compassion Are Used to Get Her Into Bad Habits

Dear Miss Farfax:

My wife and I have been married about three years, and I love her more than anything in the world, but she is the worried sick soul I don't know what to do.

You see, she is the kind of person who wants to run with the crowd and do everything they do. She loves to go dancing with them and is always buying new things to wear, but the thing that is worrying me most is that she seems to be getting the drinking habit, and it's making her very hard to get along with. The only way I can get along with her is to drink with her, and I have done this until I'm sick of it.

I have a good job and work every day, and I don't have any time for recreation. I am only 28 years old and my wife is the same age.

Please tell me what to do. — C.L. (Ont.).

I wonder if the basic trouble in your situation may not be this last thing you say: that you have no time for recreation. If your wife could not depend on you to take her out in the evenings to dance, she would up some social life to enjoy. It's quite understandable that she should have become lonely and looked for good times wherever she could find them.

It seems to me the very first thing for you to think about is whether it might not be possible for you to find a new job where you could have a normal amount of leisure time to spend with your wife. If you could do this, and then patiently try to find interesting things you could do together, and with your friends, in this leisure time, you might very likely be able to win her gradually away from her unsuitable companions. Surely a good workman such as you seem to be could find a job that would permit him proper time off.

A good way to start doing this would be to go to someone in your town, such as a minister, a doctor, or the head of some community organization, and ask him confidentially talk with him, explaining your situation and saying that you want to get into some work which would enable you to be at home more. I am quite sure you can find someone who would interest himself in your problems and help you to solve it, so I suggest that you set promptly about finding the right person.

She's In The Army . . . Now Can She Get His Address?

Dear Miss Farfax:

A couple of months ago, while visiting in a southern state, I met a boy whom I would like to know better. He is in the army, and because I happened to break my ankle and had to go home before I intended, I wasn't able to give him my address so he could write to me.

I can't write to him, because I know only his name and the camp where he is stationed, not his company or his serial number or anything like that. How could I find out these things, so I could send him a letter?

— Sweetie.

Dear Shirley:

Did this boy happen to mention his home town to you while you were talking with him? If he did, address a letter to him there and it certainly should be forwarded to him. Then, if he was interested enough to answer your letter, and wanted you to write him again, he would tell you the proper way to address it.

You might, of course, try writing a note to the commanding officer at his camp, giving him the boy's name and asking how he should be addressed, and if you get any reply: I'm afraid it's very unlikely that you would. You could also send a similar letter to the American Red Cross, which knows how to find out these things if they feel there is sufficient reason to do so.

If none of these suggestions work out, I'm afraid I don't know any sure way to have a letter reach him.

Fashion Flashes

NICE CHOICE for wear with a boxy suit is a blouse so good that it is done in sheer silk or sheer cotton, in a red or blue or black matelotick print on white. A pretty tailored bow finishes the low oval neckline, and there are cuffs on the short sleeves. Blouse is worn with oblong self-covered buttons.

IT'S SMART to take along a flower-trimmed organdy bag for action or sidboard use. Blue cord, and blue, gold and white beads intermingle in an intricate pattern down the front of a white wool cardigan.

A

PLAN GIFT OF SHIP

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Navy is taking the light aircraft carrier Belleau Wood out of "mothballs" for possible transfer to France for the defence department said Wednesday. A spokesman said France has requested the loan of a second small carrier. A sister ship, the Langley, already has been loaned to the French and renamed the Lafayette.

Answers to Beauty Question

Women often ask how large pores can be treated. One's answer is to apply a mild astringent, such a good quality witch hazel.

By HELEN FOLLETT

SALESWOMEN at cosmetic counters hand out toiletries to the cash customers and answer numerous beauty questions every day.

A common query seems to be, "What's the difference between a skin tonic and an astringent?"

The answer is that tonics have a stimulating influence and also contain an slight degree of astringents, on the other hand, are applied to improve the texture of the skin because they help pores to contract. They are also recommended to tighten sagging tissues. They should always be applied on a clean skin surface.

As cold contracts the skin naturally (ice is a good astringent for facials), it is wise to put these tightening lotions on after the face has had a cold water rinsing.

There seems to be an equal amount of confusion about astringent cream bases. Vanishing cream type foundations are satisfactory since they contain a dry skin. Put on little dabs here and there on cheeks, forehead and chin. Then, blend them until the entire facial area has been covered. Continue with friction until the cream has done a disappearing act. There will be enough left to give powder and rouge a firm hold. It should not be necessary to repeat make-up for hours.

For evening, when neck and shoulders require treatment, use a liquid powder foundation. It can also be applied to the face. When playing with this item, follow directions carefully. You may think you know how to use them, but chances are that the chemist who compounded them knows even better.

Liquid powders come in many tones and shades. It is necessary to select one that matches the natural skin coloring. Some are applied with a pad of absorbent cotton, then the skin is rubbed dry so that they are not used only to impart that soft, velvety

Question:

About Oct. or Nov. 1952 I cut out your receipts for Hermits and Brownies . . . but lost them and now want to make them again. I liked them very much . . . Mrs. A. D.

Answer:

Hermits

Three-quarters cup shortening (1-2 butter, 1-2 shortening is best), 1 1-2 cups firmly packed brown sugar, 3 beaten eggs, 2 1-2 cups sifted cake flour, 2-4 teaspoon baking soda, 1-2 teaspoon each cinnamon, nutmeg, salt, 1 cup seedless raisins, 1 cup chopped walnuts. Cream shortening until fluffy then gradually add sugar while creaming; beat in beaten eggs. Sift 3 cups of the flour, with the soda, spices, and salt and stir into mixture. Dredge raisins and nuts with remaining 1-3 cup flour, then stir them in. Drop from greased teaspoon onto buttered cookie sheet about 2 inches apart. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 15 minutes. Four dozen.

Brownies

One-half cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 beaten eggs, 2 oz. (2 squares) unsweetened chocolate (or 6 tablespoons cocoa plus 3 tablespoons melted shortening), 3-4 cup sifted cake flour, 1-4 teaspoon each baking powder and salt, 3-4 cup chopped walnuts or pecans (or seedless raisins). Cream the shortening until it is fluffy and gradually cream in the sugar. Beat in eggs and melted chocolate (or cocoa). Sift flour, measure and sift it with the baking powder and salt, then add it with the nuts. Spread in greased pan 9x8x2 inches and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 30 to 40 minutes. Cut into squares while hot with sharp knife. Sprinkle top with powdered sugar if desired. Remove from pan when cold.

Question:

Received your answer and want to thank you. I tried the marshmallows and they were a complete flop. They were stringy and sticky. When turning the mixture from the bowl of the mixmaster it stretched and stretched and my husband had a good laugh. (I used the dairy thermometer but it registers only 240 deg. Fahr. would that be the trouble?).

The recipe I use for Fig Bars is your Fig Filled Cookies: 1 1-2 cups shortening, 2 cups white sugar, 2 eggs, 3 1-2 cups sifted cake flour, 1 teaspoon each soda and vanilla, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1 1-2 cups sour milk. Cream together shortening and sugar. Measure sifted flour and sift it with salt and soda. Add dry ingredients alternately with the sour milk, beating smooth.

Since these bars are moist they mold after 7 or 10 days. If making half the quantity divide dough into 2 equal parts. Make each into long roll in hands and roll to 1-4 inch thickness, 2 1-2 inches wide and 8 or 9 inches long. Roll out on heavy wax paper. Put filling along its centre of the roll, wet lower edge all around and folding it with the wax paper fold the other half of the roll over, making a long slender roll. Seal edges using a fork. Transfer to fill covered cookie sheet, bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until golden.

Filling—(this quantity for half quantity above) 1-2 lb. figs, 1 cup water, 1-4 cup sugar, 1-2 tablespoons flour. Cut up figs, put sugar and water till mushy. Mix flour and sugar and add. Boil till thick.

Is a dairy thermometer same as candy thermometer. Could I have a recipe for nice cooking tongue? Thanks for pineapple recipe, it turned out lovely. How many calories in green string beans?

Dieting is hard, but your encouragement makes it a little easier for us fellas.—Vicky.

Answer:

Thank you immensely for this detail for making fig bars. I know others beside myself will clip and make them.

No a dairy thermometer registers much lower than a candy thermometer. You should have a candy thermometer that registers 400 deg. Fahr. I am sending you the recipe for Boiled Tongue. One-half cup green or string beans contains 40 calories. The stretchiness of the beaten marshmallow mixture, I think, indicates it was boiled too long. You should remove it from the heat the instant the temperature reaches 240 deg. Fahr. If you would like another much more involved recipe let me know.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. BEECKMAN

Here It Is Again . . . The Best Man "Racket"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

Recently my husband drew best man at the wedding of a friend of his. And my question is about what occurred? Of course my husband knew that he was supposed to take care of the clergyman's fee, but he didn't suppose that he was to take care of it by paying it himself! But when the groom didn't hand him the fee to give to the clergyman, my husband mentioned it casually, thinking that the groom was too excited to have remembered it. But not at all, the groom told my husband that the best man always provides the fee he is to give the clergyman, in the groom's name. (Previously, the bride-to-be had told my husband that the best man was expected to buy the flowers for her bridesmaids, and the corsages for both mothers. We did object to this as unnecessary strain on our very-limited budget.) Have you ever heard of such demands on the best man? — Puzzled.

The Best Man's "Fee" Will Vary

Yes . . . unfortunately I have heard many times about this persistent, and really dishonest "fraternity" regarding demands on the best man. Do many readers write to complain about this racket? Very often when a groom invites his best man to be also his brother, to be his best man, he seems to have chosen him for his "sound financial standing", not to give him the honorary position that being a best man is supposed to be. It's an outrage . . . and the only way to meet such an awkward possibility for the best man to make inquiries as to what is expected of him. Actually the best man has only two "financial responsibilities": (1) to provide the attire, whether his own or to be bought or to be rented, he is to wear at the wedding; and (2) to give a wedding present to the bride-to-be. It is the groom who provides the fee to the clergyman.

Printed Engagement Announcements Need Vie In Good Taste

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I have just received my engagement ring, and when my fiance comes home for his next leave, my mother and father are planning to give a small dinner to announce the engagement.

1. Is it necessary to invite any of my fiance's relatives other than his mother and father?

2. Should the printed engagement announcements sent to all relatives on both sides who are not invited to the dinner, and to friends of his and mine?

1. How many of your fiance's relatives invited to the dinner depends on convenience, and also on how many of your relatives are invited. You should invite only his mother and father if you are inviting none of your relatives.

2. Printed or engraved engagement announcements are not in good form or in good taste. Before the engagement dinner you should personally tell the news to or write notes to your relatives and friends, and your fiance should tell or write his relatives and close friends . . . these notes do not have to be invited to the dinner. In the notes you should tell how he chose the secret until the date you tell them is to be the announcement-date.

Some of the most beautiful yet practical clothes seen in many a season are of hand-woven ribbon fashions that are distinctly an investment. Ann Fletcher, a leader in hand woven design, veers away from the usual afternoon and evening things to do a distinguished daytime costume of sweater and skirt. The black cashmere pullover is embellished with collar and cuffs of black and white ribbon hand-woven in a wide effect. The skirt is woven of the same ribbon. This is a town or country costume that is as easy to pack and smart and useful to wear in town or en route.

Experts Say

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fussy housewives needn't fret too much if hubby comes home after a week-end fishing trip with a mess of fish—freshwater or salt. The fisheries department at Ottawa has come up with what it says is a sure-fire way to cook fish without causing odors.

Take Hippers, for instance, one of the smellier types of fish. Simply wrap in aluminum with the ends twirled to ensure tightness and bake in a 450-degree oven. Five minutes is usually plenty of time.

No Smell Left

"There is no smell left, even in the oven," says Helen McKercher, the department's senior home economist. "The natural juices and the smoked flavor are preserved in the fish."

The method can be used for all kinds of fish. It is ideal for Atlantic salmon which now-is reaching the market. Besides eliminating odor, there is no need to scale or pass. The salmon is wrapped and put on the broiler.

Cooking Time

Economists recommend 10 minutes' cooking for each inch of thickness. A nine-pound salmon would take about two hours. Smaller fish need about twice as long.

Miss McKercher insists that fresh fish has no odor. Too often the smell starts before the cooking because fish is not fresh.

Women arriving at the fisheries department for a demonstration and hoping to be led to the laboratory by a fishy smell have been disappointed. Even after eight or 10 fish in the oven the air is odorless.

Freshness depends on good storage at a reasonable cost, Miss McKercher uses fish at least four days after they are caught. If housewives refused to buy fish with the slightest smell, she says, they would soon see that the fish was kept well preserved.

A bit of salt and rinsing in warm water removes odor from the hands. Dishes should be washed in a vinegar solution—two tablespoons of vinegar to a pint of water.

Treat Sauces

Even a basket of fishing by Canadian Line. Materials the following sauces is suggested to add zest to trout.

Cherry-almond sauce: One quarter lb. salted almonds, one quarter lb. butter, one half cup dry cherry wine and one quarter teaspoon tarragon herb.

Blanch almonds by dipping quickly in boiling water, then peel; shave with sharp knife. Melt butter in deep saucepan; add almonds; brown 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; add sherry wine. When thoroughly heated, pour over trout. Serve piping hot.

Wife Preservers

Warn your children never to swerve a bike that gets away and blows into power lines! Tell them to leave it, but to tell you about it so that you can report it to the power company. If the bike, held by a dangling leg or wire, has a power line, the child touching it may receive a fatal charge of electricity.

Greek Government Asked to Judge Beauty Contest

A beauty contest now being held in Athens to elect the lucky girl who will go to Long Beach, California, as Miss Greece of 1953 to try for more fame and fortune, is being given such wide publicity that this picture of the contestants wearing bikini bathing suits came under the attention of government and church leaders. As a result, the premier was petitioned by the bishops that beauty contests be banned once and for all before "causing irreparable harm to the morals of Greek youth." The contestants are posing with Mr. Andreacopolous, one of the judges and president of the Greek Writers' Guild."— Central Press Canadian.

Develops Hibernation Technique

Dr. Henri Laborit, French surgeon and medical researcher, is shown at Val-de-Grace Hospital, Paris, where he and colleagues developed "artificial hibernation" to a degree never before attained. The art of "A.H." is reported to have practically eliminated the often fatal effects of operative and post-operative shock, cutting battle casualties in Indo-China and frequently saving lives of premature babies. Medical authorities suggest it may be a major development in medicine and surgery. — Central Press Canadian.

WALLBRIDGE
Revisits Early Home After 42 Years

WALLBRIDGE. —Mr. and Mrs. Haley Allan of Calgary, Alberta, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris. Mr. Allan was born in Wallaceburg and attended O.B.C., Belleville, and is a nephew of Mrs. Martha Harris.

He went west 42 years ago and this is his first visit east since that time. He owns and operates a large lumber company and hardware store in Calgary and on Thursday last Mr. and Mrs. Harris accompanied them to Bancroft and to Tory Hill, where at one time his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Allan lived.

Father Purchased Timber

His father purchased 600 acres of timber at Tory Hill and worked getting out timbers for a number of years when a forest fire burned a large part of their timbers and it was then their son, Haley, decided to go west after taking his course at the O.B. College.

He also has two brothers, Ed and Ern, who live near his home and a sister, who visited here last winter from Eston, Sask.

They have many relatives here and he was glad to be able to visit his aunt, Mrs. M. Harris, who is in her 97th year and she enjoyed seeing her nephew after all those years.

Mr. Gordon Carr and Miss Isabel Galbraith of Trenton, spent Sunday evening with Mrs. Dorothy Wannamaker.

During the hot weather quite a number are enjoying bathing and boating pleasure at the beaches.

Mrs. German Moore spent the past week with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Moore of Norwood.

The farmers were busy during the past week cutting hay as the weather has been favorable.

Mrs. Dorothy Wannamaker spent Sunday with her aunt, Mrs. Keith Aida of Stirling and Sunday evening entertained Mr and Mrs. Spence and family of Frankford at her home.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hendrick on the arrival of a baby boy, June 23.

Girls' Supper Club

Members of the Supper Club met at the home of Mrs. Roy Woods it being the eighth meeting for the summer. Ten girls were present.

The meeting opened in the usual way followed by the business period in which it was decided to have a group supper on July 1, in the church dining hall.

Judging was then discussed on the characteristics of a good tea biscuit and tea biscuits that were brought from their homes were put into different variations.

Their leader demonstrated and discussed "Home table service, and table manners". It was emphasized that table etiquette is an art of everyday livi g.

"Little Coronation" is Held for Queen in Scotland

In Scotland for a round of state ceremonies to mark her Coronation, Queen Elizabeth II is shown during an impressive thanksgiving service in St. Giles' Cathedral, Edinburgh, as she handed back the crown of Scotland to the Duke of Hamilton. By this presentation — a solemn and moving covenant of dedication — Scotland pledged itself anew to the service of the Queen and country. Representatives of all walks of life — fisherfolk, miners, merchants, judges, knights and peers of the Scottish kingdom participated in national service of dedication.

Retiring U.S. Atomic Chief Warns Reds War Would Bring Rain of A-Bombs of All Sizes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gordon Dean has bowed out as head of the United States atomic program with advice to Russia that starting a war would expose her to a rain of U. S. A-bombs "of almost any size."

Dean addressed his final press conference Tuesday before his retirement next Tuesday as chairman of the three-member commission, a post he has held for four years.

"It would be a great pity," he said, "if Russia started a war because she assumed the United States did not have the power to retaliate to the point of destruction."

Then, in contrast to the theory once held that bombs no weaker than the "nominal" ones dropped on Japan could ever be made equivalent to the energy released by the explosion of 20,000 tons of TNT—Dean said the U. S. now has a whole family of A-bombs.

Variety of Bombs

He said of "the development of a family of atomic weapons—a family which includes new designs of almost any usable energy release, small or large, and of almost any size."

He suggested it might be helpful if an official indication of the "magnitude" of the U. S. atomic weapons stockpile was given. But he didn't subscribe completely to proposals that the number of bombs be published.

Knows About Russia

Dean also looked at the other side of the picture. He said it might help the civil defense effort, which has been lagging, if Americans were presented with an official U. S. estimate of Russia's atomic capabilities.

Yes, he said in response to a question, he had the information [illegible] but it was not up to the AEC to release it. He said that was something for the White House, the national security council and other policy-making agencies to decide.

President Eisenhower has designated Lewis L. Strauss, a member of the AEC since it was formed in 1946, to succeed Dean.

Truckers Fined, Lacked Licences

CHATHAM (CP) — Disregarding a defence argument that Ontario has no control over inter-provincial transports, Magistrate Ivan R. Craig convicted three Ontario transport operators Thursday for hauling freight without a public commercial vehicle licence.

The three, Fred Norton, Stoney Creek; Bruce E. Gould, Beverly Hills, and W. A. Snyder, Toronto, were each fined $20 and costs.

Pleading guilty to a similar charge, Biggar Brothers' Transport, Winnipeg, was fined $200 and costs. On a charge of failing to register their vehicle they were fined $50 and costs. Both fines were the maximum provided.

Evidence was that the three operators, associated with the North Star Transport Co. Ltd., Toronto, were engaged in hauling freight between Eastern and Western Canada.

South Koreans Repulse Reds At 8 Outposts

By MILO FARNETT

SEOUL (AP)—At least 13,000 Chinese Reds hit Allied lines on both ends of the Korean battle front today, but South Koreans hurled back most of 10,000 Communists who attacked eight strategic outposts in the west.

U. S. Sabre jets shot down two Communist MiG jets and damaged one in air battles over North Korea this afternoon.

The large-scale Red assaults opened the fourth year of war on this battered peninsula.

Heavy fighting still raged on the east-central front where 3,000 Communists attacked Republic of Korea positions near the junction of the Pukhan and Kumsong rivers.

Concentrate on Koks

The 8th army said the new attacks left U. S. and other Allied troops virtually unscathed and concentrated on KoK positions.

The man weight of the Red assault fell on Allied lines blocking one of the old invasion routes to Seoul. But the army said most of the Chinese were thrown back from eight important hill outposts west of Yonchon, in the Little Nori and Old Baldy sector.

Reports from the front said the Reds had lost 3,700 men killed and wounded up to 7 a. m.

The South Koreans lost some ground during the night, but regrouped and counter-attacked, driving the Reds down the hills, the army said.

Koks Counter Attack

In the east, 3,000 Chinese knocked South Koreans off three front-line positions near the Pukhan-Jumsong river junction. Counter-attacking KoKs drove to the crest of one hill at daylight and were fighting hand-to-hand for the other two, the 8th army said.

The air force said 141 fighter bombers hit the attacking Reds up to early afternoon.

Mrs. Coldwell, Wife of CCF Leader, Dies

OTTAWA (CP)—Mrs. M. J. Coldwell, wife of the leader of the CCF party, died early today at her home here. She was 64.

Mrs. Coldwell's death was unexpected although she had been ill for some years. Mr. Coldwell, on an election campaign tour in Saskatchewan, is returning to Ottawa by plane.

Mrs. Coldwell's illness prevented her from taking an active part in her husband's political life although she retained a keen interest in politics.

She had been a resident of Ottawa since 1935, coming here with her husband when he first was elected a member of Parliament.

She was born in Exeter, Somerset, England, and was married to Mr. Coldwell in England in 1912. She came with him to Smedley, Sask., where they moved to Regina and Ottawa.

Survivors, besides her husband, are a son, John Major Coldwell, an employee of Trans-Canada Air Lines at Moncton, N.B., and a daughter, Mrs. Douglas Cameron of Ottawa.

Forecasts Day All Lutherans Will be United

SEATTLE (AP)—Rev. V. J. Eylands of Winnipeg, president of the Icelandic Evangelical Synod of America, Thursday expressed confidence the day will come when the Lutheran Church will speak as one voice.

He said progress is being made, but he doubts that a union will be effected in his lifetime.

Dr. Eylands was here for the synod's first convention on the west coast. The synod is an affiliate of the United Lutheran Church of America. It has churches in Minnesota, North Dakota, Washington, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and British Columbia.

As a mark of progress toward union, he cited the existence of 20 different Lutheran groups a few years ago, compared with three now. He said varying national backgrounds and interpretations of doctrine have kept the Lutherans apart.

Guards Kill Two When Anti-Reds Seek to Escape

PUSAN, Korea (AP)U. S. guards killed two anti-Communist North Korean prisoners and wounded another early today when prisoners in Camp 2 near here attempted a mass breakout, the UN Command's 8th army command announced.

The command said prisoners in one enclosure made two attempts to break out shortly after midnight. Both were broken up and none escaped.

There were no casualties among U. S. guards.

The camp holds 400 to 600 prisoners, but the command did not say how many were involved in the escape attempt.

The command also announced that five POWs escaped from Camp 7 near Masan shortly before midnight. No details were released.

U. S. guards first learned of the escape attempt at Camp 2 after they noted prisoners moving "suspiciously in the compound."

An American officer found a group of prisoners hiding in a ditch outside the compound fence.

Another guard spotted two or three anti-Communist prisoners advancing on him from another ditch. The three times he ordered them to halt, using their own language, according to the army command.

The North Koreans kept moving toward him. He fired at them, presumably causing the death of two and injury to the other.

Holiday Outing Is Fatal For 2 Young Girls

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Two young girls lost their lives and three youths were hurt severely in the head-on crash of a car and truck on No. 3 highway about four miles east of Crumlin early today.

Marion Todd, 19, of Winnipeg, died of head and chest injuries and Doreen Wiesner, 19, of London, died of head and leg injuries in Victoria hospital.

Brian Collins, 17, of London, driver of the truck, is in critical condition in the hospital with head and chest injuries and a fractured right leg. Louis Tuttle, 19, also of London is in hospital in serious condition with head injuries.

The four young persons were on their way home to London following a holiday outing at Niagara Falls when they collided headon with the truck.

Robinson's vehicle had eight tons of corn aboard and was headed for Rochester. Hit and run was strewn over the highway and traffic was tied up for about an hour.

The first girl had been visiting in London with Mrs. Richard Greenslades a relative. She was going to return home today.

Hot "Showdown" Message for Khee

Walter L. Robertson, U.S. assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs, waves his fedora on arrival by air in Tokyo from Washington. Accompanied by army chief of staff J. Lawton Collins, Robertson is carrying a secret "showdown" message from President Eisenhower to Syngman Rhee in Seoul on the armistice the South Korean president jeopardized by the mass release of over 25,000 anti-Communist prisoners of war. Secret message may open new channels in tangled truce terms. — Central Press Canadian.

Toronto Tely Signs With Guild

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Telegram and the Toronto Newspaper Guild today signed a contract covering about 140 employees of the newspaper's editorial department.

The contract, effective July 1, provides weekly increases ranging from $3 to $45, with an average of just less than $9.50. At the top of the 11 wage classifications are assistant city editors with a minimum of $120.

Reporters, photographers, picture-desk men, artists and reporter-photographers start at $90 and reach $80 after two years.

The contract, first between the Telegram and the American Newspaper Guild (CIO-CCL) affiliate, runs for one year.

Other provisions in the contract provide for disability pensions, checkoff for union dues and three weeks vacation after 10 years service.

A foreword to the contract said it is the first agreement in which a publisher undertakes to consult with the guild on ways and means for effecting economies other than lay-offs in the event the financial stability of the Telegram should be impaired.

I.L.O. PARLEY ENDS

GENEVA (AP)—The 36th international labor organization conference wound up its three-week session Thursday after agreeing to discuss holidays with pay provisions at next year's meeting. The 60-country body called for laws to ban underground work in mines by children under 18 in countries not having such legislation.

Nehru Is Seeking to Force U.N. Assembly Meet on Korea Over Strong U.S. Opposition

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)— Over strong United States opposition, India tried today to line up support from a majority of the 60 United Nations for an immediate UN general assembly session on the Korean truce crisis.

Prime Minister Nehru of India told newspaper men in Cairo it was time for the UN to "make it perfectly clear that the UN command is master of the situation and nobody else—not President Syngman Rhee."

Many diplomats here agreed, however, that the U. S. opposition would prevent any assembly meeting until the Americans are ready for it.

Some observers speculated that Nehru's call for the session, made in a talk Thursday to the assembly president, L. B. Pearson of Canada, was the premier's way of pressuring Rhee to agree to a Korean armistice.

UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold was flying to Ottawa today to discuss Nehru's message with Pearson.

An assembly resolution in April directed Pearson to call the group back into session after an armistice or whenever a majority of the nations agreed Korean developments required a meeting.

Seen as Harmful

Chief U. S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., said, however, he could imagine nothing more likely to prejudice current U.S. efforts toward an armistice than the assembly meeting at this time.

Officials in Washington also said they did not feel an assembly session would be useful at a time when the Korean situation was so not made public, but India's chief UN delegate, Rajeshwar Dayal, told newspaper men Nehru cabled that he thinks "the time is ripe" for the assembly to step in.

Not For Soldiers

In Cairo, where Nehru is visiting Egyptian President Mohammed Naguib at his way home from the Coronation, the Indian prime minister told a press conference that the questions raised by Rhee's actions constituted "too great a burden to be cast on the UN command—they are soldiers after all."

"These are high political questions," Nehru continued, "and the soldier's opinion is valuable, but he should not be asked to decide diplomatic and political questions."

Dear Mr. David,

In answer to your letter of June 4, we had planned to change to channel 5 and increase power around early fall. However, due to conditions beyond our control, there has been a delay in obtaining equipment and it is probable the change will not take place until Spring.

Our increase in power to 100 KW will definitely boost your signal but we are not sure, as yet, just how much.

Yours Truly,

CAMPBELLFORD

Coronation Album To be Compiled

CAMPBELLFORD— The final meeting of the Campbellford Coronation Day Celebration committee was held recently in the Parish Hall.

The financial report was read by treasurer Bill Hampel, showing a substantial balance in the fund after all accounts were passed.

Pageant Album

Several suggestions were made regarding the distribution of this balance and it was decided to form a committee to procure and compile a complete album of the pageant from the time of its inception to its final culmination on June 3rd. This album is to be a permanent record and will be placed in the Campbellford Public Library for the availability of the public at any time.

The Rev. John McKibbin, Major George Free and Mr. Bill Hampel were elected to form the committee and to conscript any members necessary to complete the album in the manner desired.

Presentation

After the business portion of the meeting was completed, a pleasant surprise was accorded the Rev. John McKibbin, with the presentation to him by chairman George Free on behalf of the committee and the public in general, of musical radio. Supplementing the presentation, Chairman Free read an expressive scroll, conveying the gratitude and appreciation of everyone to Mr. McKibbin for his generous and superlative essay in providing Campbellford with a day that will be recorded in the annals of local history.

Mr. McKibbin graciously accepted the gift in his usual humble manner.

A vote of thanks was moved by the assemblage to chairman George Free for his excellent work in supervising and conducting the committee from its inception. Similar appreciation was voiced to the other officers and to everyone who so assiduously devoted time and effort to the success of the Coronation Day celebration.

Guards Compound After Escape

A U.N. soldier is shown at his post in the guard tower overlooking prisoner-of-war camp No. 9 at Pusan, from which 25,000 anti-Communist prisoners of war, with the assistance of ROK guards, escaped through holes cut into the compound fences on June 18. The mass escape dashed hopes for an early armistice and brought demands by the communists for recapture of all escaped POW's as a basis for renewed armistice talks. — Central Press Canadian.

THOMASBURG

THOMASBURG—Several of the Thomasburg young people participated in the field day at Quin-Mo-Lac camp on Saturday held by the Young People's Union of the Bay of Quinte Presbytery.

There was a good attendance at Christ Church on Sunday a.m. During the service Rev. R. F. Gardam administered the rite of baptism to Robert Glenn, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Carleton.

The summer weather and ceiling out-of-doors is already taking its toll of the attendance at morning Sunday School. The United Church had its lowest attendance 36 for this season. Church service immediately following had a better record, Rev. Norman's address was appropriate to Father's Day. Church next Sunday will be in evening at 8 p.m. It will be communion service.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Thompson and family, Mrs. Ed. Thompson, Brian and Donald, spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Claude Thompson of Brighton.

Mrs. Hall, of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, visited her cousin Mrs. W. Adams and Earle on Sunday. Mrs. Blakely and Mrs. Hall were visitors also.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Morton, of Belleville and Mrs. W. Yatman were week-end visitors of Mr. and Mrs. H. Vance of Welland. Mrs. Vance has not been well for some time. All join in wishing her continued improvement in health.

Mrs. R. Kimmerly and son Percy were callers on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Jones.

New Rule Stops Announcers From Faking Radio Broadcasts

OTTAWA (CP) — Reconstructed radio broadcasts of sports events, in competition with live broadcasts, were banned Wednesday under new radio regulations issued by the CBC.

The new rule also prohibits announcers from "taking" the radio broadcast of a game by following it on television in a broadcasting studio.

Robert Keddy, secretary of the CBC board of governors, explained that the ban covers what purports to be live broadcasts of a game or other event.

These are usually done by means of telegraphed reports in rooms to the studio, with sound effects of cheering crowds dubbed in. They could even be done by watching a television broadcast, Mr. Keddy said, although this has not yet happened in Canada.

Must Be Identified

The regulation bans such broadcasts until after the event is over. If an on-the-spot broadcast of the event is available in the area. The reconstructed broadcast will have to be identified as such at least every 15 minutes.

A case in point came before the CBC board of governors last June 3 when Foster Hewitt, hockey broadcaster and operator of radio station CKFH in Toronto, charged that Toronto station CKEY was using material from his on-the-spot broadcasts of National Hockey League games outside Toronto in place of broadcasts of broadcasts of the games.

Harry Cooke, owner of station CKEY, denied the charge and said he and his staff were prepared to swear they had not used material from Mr. Hewitt's broadcasts.

M.R.S. President Supports

Mr. Hewitt said that during three games he deliberately announced penalties that were not given. He played recordings to the CBC board which he identified as those of CKEY which also described the penalties.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, supported Mr. Hewitt and asked that reconstructed broadcasts of games be prohibited. He described it as "piracy."

Mr. Keddy said the new regulation would not apply to broadcasts of running stories on sports events, such as golf and tennis, and agency reports on the Grey Cup game or baseball series, so long as they did not purport to be on-the-spot broadcasts.

Arctic Vessels Making Annual Trips to North

MONTREAL (CP) — Summer, with its accompanying heat, may be plaguing residents of "southern Canada," but if the heat is getting you down, read this:

The department of transport's icebreaker, N. B. McLean, sailed from Quebec at noon on her annual trip to Hudson Strait and Hudson Bay to open and maintain navigation facilities for shipping. Saturday, another government arctic vessel, the C. D. Howe, leaves Montreal on her annual supply mission to northern outposts.

Primary responsibility of the McLean is to advise shipping of the estimated positions of icebergs and growlers and assist maritime traffic in far northern waters.

Her crew will put into operation all lights and aids to navigation required for the safety of incoming ships. They will service the servicing and re-lighting of lights and the restaffing and re-supplying of all radio and light stations.

Aboard the McLean as she left Quebec were nearly 200 tons of cargo destined for delivery to northern outposts. An additional 300 tons will be taken on at Churchill, Man., where the vessel will refuel for the return half of her patrol.

To Visit 15 Posts

The vessel, scheduled to return to her home port of Quebec Oct. 7, will visit some 15 outposts along the north shore of the St. Lawrence river, the Strait of Belle Isle and Hudson Strait.

Northern outposts will be visited on both the outgoing and homeward journey of the McLean.

This season, the ship has a new skipper, Capt. Joseph Wilfrid Dufour, 43-year-old native of La Malbaie, Que., a veteran of government service in the north. He was promoted recently from chief officer to master, succeeding Capt. C. A. Caron, who has taken over the department's newest icebreaker, the d'Iberville.

The C. D. Howe, meanwhile, prepared for her 12,000-mile mission that will take her as far north as the Clyde, on the east coast of Baffin Island. There she will row devious with the d'Iberville which will push as far north as Cape Herschel, approximately 900 miles from the north pole, where a new RCMP outpost will be established.

While The Lions Waited

Sunday School Lesson:

By ROY L. SMITH

Hollywood has passed up one of its most dramatic and thrilling opportunities in failing to produce a truly great picture of the life of St. Paul. What an episode that final scene in jail would make! Lions Were Waiting.

The Roman Empire was not given to trifling with those who broke the law. The security of the realm depended upon a stern administration, a speedy application of the law, and nerves of steel.

The Apostle Paul had been sent up from Jerusalem with a bad record. He had been implicated in the worst crime in the catalog; he had been involved in riots. Nothing was worse in the eyes of Caesar. For a riot was only the result of swaddling clothes, and no one knew when it might come of age.

While Paul languished in his prison house in Rome awaiting trial, the lions might be waiting for him, licking their chops. No matter how influential the prisoner might be of the justice of his case, and the weight of the evidence, it was still a fact that the courts were clogged, judges were in a hurry, and justice could miscarry.

The One Joyful Man

The only actor on the stage who was really happy was the prisoner on trial. The guards were doing a piece of drudgery guarding a harmless hunchback who talked incessantly of his religion. Caesar never had a free moment, for cases were flooding in upon him for judgment from all over the Empire. Paul's friends were distraught with worry. But Paul, the prisoner, was elated.

And his elation was something that we find hard to explain it in a letter to one of his churches. "My imprisonment has turned out to be a monumental victory," he said. "Being chained to a different soldier every day I am getting a chance to preach to the army—such a chance as I would never have if I were at liberty. These Roman Christians seeing me fulfill, and expecting to find me downcast, have been profoundly affected by the fact that my faith has triumphed over my chains. They ask me 'How do you do it?' and that gives me a chance to preach to them and commend my Christ to them. Even those who are trying to malign and undermine me find it vastly more difficult to get at me when I am in jail."

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for June 28: "Paul's Joy in Christ," Philippians.

Never in all his life as a Christian had anything so fortunate happened to him, as being jailed in Rome. The day he spoke, free and unfettered, on Mars Hill in Athens, he accomplished nothing. It was an experience he regretted to the end of his days. But every day in his prison house in Rome brought new and effective opportunities.

Advantage Of A Great Purpose

This is the advantage of a great purpose in life. We cease to worry about the minor defeats and difficulties if they can be made to serve the dominant design of our life.

"The greatest 12 weeks of my life," the preacher said, "were those I spent in a cast in the hospital. I learned more about God, about my friends, and about myself in that time than in any 12 weeks in my life. If I had my choice, I would rather endure 12 weeks than any others I have ever lived."

The greatest progress we ever made were during those first five years when the going was the worst," said the young wife, of their early married experience.

"He made it the business of any man on the faculty, and that is why I learned so much more from him than any of my other professors," said the clergyman who had just achieved fame, concerning his mentor to whom he was so deeply indebted.

A man with a holy purpose in life can turn everything to advantage while the lions wait, because of that purpose.

RECORD FOR SAFETY

CHICAGO (AP)—The National Safety Council reported Thursday that United States air lines set a safety record for domestic operations in 1952. The rate was .26 deaths for every 100,000,000 passenger-miles. The best previous rate was 1.1 in 1951. There were five fatal accidents in domestic operations during the year resulting in 67 deaths.

Garson Critical Of Conservatives' Tax Cut Plans

WINNIPEG (CP)—Justice Minister Stuart Garson said Thursday night Progressive Conservative election policies "appear to consist of a solemn promise to reduce taxes by spending more money."

He spoke at a nominating convention which selected C. B. Scarcomoite Liberal Candidate for Winnipeg South in the June 30 federal election.

"Anyone who believes federal taxes can be reduced by increasing federal expenditures cannot hope to rate as an Albert Einstein," said Mr. Garson.

Earlier in the day, the minister said Canadians have no reason to get panicky in the face of the Malenkov peace offensive or the prospect of a Korean peace.

In an address to the Empire Club of Manitoba, Mr. Garson said highly responsible people believe the Russian leader's tactics marked a shift from military to economic warfare in the Communist cold war.

Contrasted with the problems which the free world had surmounted immediately after the Second World War, any difficulties arising from the Malenkov peace offensive "look trivial indeed," said Mr. Garson.

Advance Polls Will be Opened For Election

OTTAWA (CP)—Advance polls will be held for servicemen and some types of civilians in connection with the election Aug. 10.

Besides the service voting in the week before the election day, restricted groups of civilians and the RCMP will be able to vote on the Thursday, Friday and Saturday immediately before polling day.

Results of the service voting will be available Aug. 17 to be correlated with the Aug. 10 civilian vote. The count from the other advance polls will be added to the general results election night.

Besides the RCMP, those entitled to cast votes in the civilian advance polls are commercial travelers, fishermen, persons employed on railway, ship and air services and members of the reserve forces going to training camps.

Under the Election Act, these groups are entitled to advance polling privileges only if they are likely to be absent from their polling division on election day in the course of their duties.

The advance balloting—which takes place at 235 special polls—normally is relatively light. Only 11,000 votes were registered this way in the 1949 election.

Voters at Polling Places at Close Allowed to Vote

OTTAWA (CP)—Polling hours in the federal general election will be from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. local standard time. Where communities are on daylight saving time, the hours will be 9 a.m.-7 p.m. EDT.

As in the last three elections, voters who are at—but not actually in—the polling place at closing time will be allowed to ballot.

Before the 1940 election, only those inside the polls at the deadline were given ballots.

Employees who are electors must be given three consecutive hours—apart from lunch periods—to cast their votes.

This does not necessarily mean that the employee gets three hours off from his work. If the polls in his riding open at 8 a.m. and he is not due at work until 9 a.m., he can be given the three hours between 8 and 11 a.m.

Also, if his working day ends normally at, say, 2 p.m., the remaining part of the voting day may be taken into account in figuring time off.

It is provided that, whatever time an employee gets off from work, his pay will not be docked.

Will Not Promise Anything Says Prime Minister

CHESLEY, Ont. (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent said Thursday night the Liberal party's promise anything in the election campaign except to serve the people as well as it can.

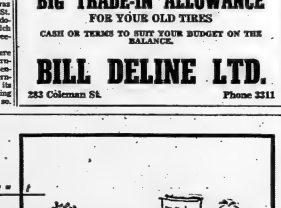
"The only promise we dare to make," the Liberal party leader, he said, "is to serve them honestly, to administer with wisdom as we have been given."

The prime minister, in his fourth address of the election touring, spoke at an afternoon meeting in this village 30 miles north of Owen Sound.

At Chesley, a town of 1,200 population with furniture industry, Mr. St. Laurent talked to children in the local public school, visited a hospital, made his rink speech and kissed a couple of babies before pushing along.

At the rink, he said he "anticipated that the people of Canada will continue their confidence in the Liberal party" in the Aug. 10 voting.

The prime minister said his own election in 1949 was a demonstration—because of the French ancestry—that there was equality of opportunity for all Canadians.



Steps Off Train

He hopped off his train at the village of Tara for an unscheduled whirlwind-stop talk to about 75 villagers. Driving to his next meeting at Southampton, he paused along the roadside at Allenford to speak to 200 youngsters lined up on the village school lawn.

At Southampton, a town of 1,800 persons in Bruce riding, the prime minister spoke to youngsters in front of their school and then to about 700 persons in the town rink after a Liberal convention that renominated Donald Rise, Commons member for the constituency. He handed out autographs to the children until his aides bore him away to keep on schedule.

His speech at Southampton was largely non-political with Mr. St. Laurent talking mainly about domestic and world affairs on which to said there was general agreement among all parties.

However, he made a reply there to opposition charges of government extravagance without mentioning them directly. The government, he said, has been doing its best to be "prudent" in spending money and will continue to do so.

Chicago White Sox Sweep Three-Game Series With Yankees; Tribe Wins

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

BAD NEWS

Winds sapbyring in from the faraway hockey pastures, plus a mild typhoon here at home bear no good tidings for the puck-chasing faithful.

Reports from the west have it that the Oshawa Truckers, one of the most powerful squads in the senior "B" group last season, sought entry in the Senior "A" group. Ing with Stratford, Brantford, etc., and were given the brush-off, but will take their case to the OHA or the CAHA if necessary.

Stouffville and Orillia, two members of last season's district senior "B" group are seeking entry in a set-up manor Toronto, while the Kingston Goodyears, or at least a Kingston team, reports visits, are looking with favor at the newly organized Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League.

Add to this the fact that Alderman Thos. McNevin has issued an ultimatum with the statement that he will not sponsor the Belleville senior entry next season, and you have a picture that looks anything but rosy for hockey here next season.

In a letter to this department published elsewhere in this edition, Ald. McNevin stated that he will "definitely not sponsor the senior "B" club next winter," because of changes made by Alderman Ben Thomas that the senior commission entered into a "criminal agreement" with the senior and junior "B" clubs.

And it is a little more than a rumor that Bill Cook et al will relinquish the sponsorship of the Junior "B" hockey club, since he has held for upwards of more years than he cares to mention.

If Alderman McNevin means what he says, and one of his attributes is sincerity, it will be a distinct blow to hockey in Belleville. We do not know of the reasons, or can even suggest, anyone who will take up the sponsorship cudgels for the senior team.

The sporting aldermen, who has spent plenty of his time and money on community sports during his past few years, did a splendid job with his softball and hockey proteges of last season. He took the Glen Ray junior softball team straight through to the first all-Ontario championship by his city, and he "worked his socks off" last winter in the manner of the "angel" role with the senior hockey club.

But good management, good business arrangements with the arena and players brought about the best brand of senior hockey ever seen in Belleville, and the best club to represent the city in over a decade. McNevin's Glen Roys came up with an outstanding seasonal performance, one that took them to the section finals where they were eliminated by the Kingston Goodyears, ultimate provincial senior "B" champions.

McNevin "gambled" in his venture with the senior hockey club. And he picked a winner, so to speak. The group arrangements, a brand new set-up from the traditional junior team set-up brought in teams from Oshawa, Stouffville and Orillia. You know the rest.

The group turned into a flaming dog-eat-dog affair with interest mounting higher with each game. The playoffs attracted near-capacity crowds both here and in Kingston, and the result was a turnstile-clicking symphony that was enjoyed by all concerned.

McNevin told this department some weeks ago, long before the Thomas charges were levelled, that practically every cent he had made from the senior hockey venture would be turned back into the club in an effort to produce a championship squad for the 1953-54 season. And he meant it.

Now the bombshell has fallen, and at the moment things look very dark for senior hockey here next season. Maybe the long-suffering curlers of the city and district will be able to come into their own after many years of patient waiting.

GOOD SPORTS, THE MAN SAYS

Dick Burrows proprietor of the Shannonville Speedway, is thinking of securing rubber raincheks. The pastboards he now uses are getting worn out, he claims. They should be. He has been forced to use them four out of the last five Saturday nights when Jupe Flavius put the quietus on his stock car shows. He pays tribute to his fandom saying that despite rain and threatening weather they have turned up in the hope conditions would change and the races be run. He is going to stage another meet tomorrow night, and trusts that Flavius has a date some where in Arizona or paris farther south.

BATTLE ROYAL

Those Blighties from Blighty, those Royal Regilians of Ramtoots, those blue-blooded Behemoths, those Monocled Maniacs, Lords Layton and Blears, m'Gash, may call their come-uppance here tonight when they tangle in a teammatch with Timothy Geohagen and Dauntless Don Jonathan, long and short Adonises of the ring.

"Tis me English roast beef I prefer on the hoof," warbled the stocky strongman from Donegal, himself a scion of Brian Boru. "Sure and it will be me and me partner who'll be "Terrorists" it up to hunks this avenin'. And we'll give 'em 'sleepers' for dessert."

Peewee Softball League Scores

Boots peewee softball team won their third straight victory retaining their senior record when they defeated Blairds Sports 23-3 in a league game at the West End Parkall.

Hook was the individual star of the game hurling the route for the winners giving up 13 hits, striking out four and walking nine. He smashed out a homer, two doubles and two singles. Keller and Rowbotham each had four hits for Boots.

Donovan and Hall shared the pitching for Blairds yielding 27 hits between them. N. Hill had three singles for the losers.

SAUER BREAKS FINGER

CHICAGO (AP)—Hank Sauer, Chicago Cubs' slugging outfielder voted the National League's most valuable player last season, has been sidelined with a fractured ring finger on his right hand. Sauer suffered the injury during a paper game Tuesday. The fracture was discovered Wednesday.

Score 4-2 Thrill-Packed Win To Cut Champs' Lead to Nine As Indians Rip Red Sox 15-4

New York, June 26 (AP)—Chicago's batting White Sox defeated the New York Yankees again today, scoring a thrill-packed 4-3 victory to sweep the three-game series. The result cut the Yankees lead to nine games over second-place Cleveland and 9½ games over the third place White Sox.

Chicago scored twice in the ninth inning to break a 3-3 deadlock and give Billy Pierce the decision over Johnny Sain. In the Yankee half of the ninth, much maneuvering by both managers resulted in a weird setup whereby Pierce left the mound to play first base while Hank Dorish faced two batters. Pierce then returned to the mound to finish the game.

Dorish yielded an infield single to pinch hitter Don Bollweg and retired righthanded batter Gil McDougald for the first out of the inning. Pierce returned to the mound, walked Gene Woodling but disposed of pinch hitters Johnny Mize and Bill Renna to end the game.

Chicago got five players at first base, a major league record. The previous high of four was set by Boston against Washington on Oct. 7, 1911 and equaled by Philadelphia against Detroit on May 30, 1941.

The Yankee defeat, their fourth straight and ninth in 11 games since their sensational 18-game winning streak, came on the heels of manager Casey Stengel's blasting of his players for lethargic play. Stengel particularly hit at Mickey Mantle, the young slugging star, whose batting has fallen off during the Yankee slump. Mantle failed to hit safely in four times at bat today.

Boston, June 26 (AP)—Larry Doby had two consecutive homers and 3-for-4 performance by his 15th of the season while driving in five runs each yesterday as the Cleveland Indians overwhelmed the Boston Red Sox 15-4, to square the four-game series.

And both Doby and Rosen collected their 15th on a single as the Indians pounded out 18 hits, seven of them, including Rosen's homer, in the eight runs it took to register their victory.

Doby's first homer came with Luke Easter on first in the sixth inning, when starter Mel Parnell gave way to reliever Ellis Kinder, who was tagged for the loss. On his next turn at bat, in the seventh, Doby cleared the bases against Kinder with two mates aboard.

Rosen's homer, a three-run affair, was at Mary Grissom's expense and completed the Cleveland scoring.

Cincinnati, June 25.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers stopped twice by the Cincinnati Redlegs with 9th inning homers, roared back today to their winning ways with a 12 to 3 victory over the locals.

Preacher Roe outlasted starter Herm Wehmeier of the Redlegs, a game of home runs. It was the fourth victory for Roe against two losses.

Wayne Belardi, Gil Hodges, Duke Snider, Pee Wee Reese and Carl Furillo hit for the distance for Dodgers. Bobby Adams and Jim Greengrass knocked the ball out of the park for the Redlegs.

It was Manager Charley Dressen's boys' third victory in 11 games.

Chicago, June 25. — (AP) — The Philadelphia Phils confirmed their 1953 mastery of the Chicago Cubs today as they blasted out their 11th decision over Chicago, 13-2. Jim Konstanty, backed by a 19-hit attack which included eight doubles, registered his seventh triumph.

The Phillies took a 1-0 lead in the first on a triple by Richie Ashburn and a single by Del Ennis. They added three more in the second which featured 19-year-old Ted Kazanski's first major league hit, a double. Kazanski, making his debut at shortstop, rapped out three hits in six at bats, including two doubles and he drove in four runs.

St. Louis, June 25. — (AP) — Bobby Hofman and Don Mueller hit the St. Louis Cardinals with a seventh-inning blockbuster today as they delivered pinch-hit blows good for six runs to lead the New York Giants to a 9-4 victory over the Redbirds.

The loss dumped the Cardinals into fourth place in the National League.

Giving the Giants the rubber contest of a three-game series, Mueller slashed a two-run double off Hal White to break a 3-3 tie and Hofman followed with a grand slam homer off Al Brazle, the third St. Louis pitcher in the decisive frame. Both Giant players were born in St. Louis.

By commanding with their opponents, the Giants had only one runner left on base in the game. They scored their ninth run while the Cardinals in the first six innings stranded 12 men and finally left 14 on base to New York's three.

The Giants jumped on top in the first inning with one run on a leadoff double by Whitey Lockman and a single by Al Dark. Daryl Spencer blasted a home run in the second. Afetal of seven runs tallied in the Giants' seventh inning, the first one coming on a single by Bobby Thomson after Monte Irvin had doubled.

Stan Musial hit his segenth homer of the year for the Cardinals in the eighth. Enos Slaughter was scored in the third on a walk and a double by Musial, in the fourth on a walk, sacrifice and single and in the sixth on a walk and two singles.

Milwaukee, June 25—(AP)—Frank Thomas' single and Dick Cole's double in the 12th inning today gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-4 victory over the Milwaukee Braves and a sweep of the three-game series, cutting the Braves National League lead to two games. Pinch hitter Johnny Lindell homered with two on in the ninth to send the game into extra innings.

Lynn Patrick To Coach All-Star Team

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Bruins announced today that Lynn Patrick has been named as coach of the National Hockey League all-star team that will play the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens, Oct. 3, in the seventh annual all-star game at Montreal.

Patrick, who was all-star coach in 1950, was named the second time because he piloted the Bruins to the Stanley Cup finals this past season.

Three Bruins will be on the all-star squad. Fleming Mackell was voted all-star centre, defenseman Bill Quackenbush, named to the second team, moves up to the spot vacated by Doug Harvey who will be playing for his own club, the Canadiens, and goaler Jim Henry replaces Gerry McNeil who also will play for Canadiens.

Campbellford Rink Wins Stirling Tourney

Under ideal weather conditions the trebles tournament of the Stirling Bowling Club was held on Wednesday afternoon with eighteen rinks in attendance from Belleville, Madoc, Trenton, Kingston, Peterborough, Campbellford and Stirling. The greens were in good condition and the women of the club served a most tempting dinner between games. Dougie Patterson conducted the draw in a most capable manner.

Webb Kingston with Charles Vice and Fred Rutherford as members of the rink won the three-game high score with Hugh Gault, "Rock" Gage and Morley Gault of Kingston being second high. Belleville, Madoc, Trenton, Kingston, Peterborough, Campbellford and Stirling. The greens were in Harold Parker, Wilfred Price and A. E. Womacott as skip won the two-game high score while a rink from Madoc, entered by F. O'Connor won the one-game high count.

There was a large gallery following the play during the afternoon and evening. "Davey" Davison of the local club had an entry in and won two games being defeated by the winner of the tourney in the second game.

'Greatest Thrill of My Life, I Could Hardly Believe It' Smiled Marlene After Victory

"SWEETHEART" OF CANADIAN GOLF

PORTHCAWL, Wales (CP) — A 19-year-old golfing miss from Fonthill, Ont., freckle-faced Marlene Stewart, won the British women's amateur golf title yesterday, the first Canadian to take the tournament in its 60-year history.

After it was all over, the cool little shotmaker — they call her "Little Bet" after the great Ben Hogan — could hardly believe it herself.

She admitted that it was "one of the greatest thrills of my life" to defeat more-experienced, 36-year-old Irish champion Philomena Garvey 7 and 6 in the 36-hole final over the Royal Porthcawl links. They were all square after the first six holes but Miss Stewart never headed after that.

"I don't think I have yet fully realized I have won," said the little, freckled golfing sensation who started Canadian scene in 1950 by becoming the youngest golfer ever to take the women's closed and open amateur tournaments in a single year.

"Marlene has been the talk of these ancient links since she reached the semi-finals by defeating two-time champion Scotland's Jean Donald, 1 up, and England's highly rated Elizabeth Price, 8 and 4.

"The telephone at her hotel rang constantly.

"I am thrilled about it all," she added. "It was a great match to win. In fact I'm thrilled about everything."

She added that she hadn't really expected to take the title, but felt confident when she came over with a team of six other Canadian women golfers for a tour of Britain, that she would make the semi-finals.

Bright Hope

"When I did get there, well, I was mighty happy."

After a rapid exchange of holes left them all square at the sixth in the morning round of today's final, Marlene put in a brilliant burst to win the next two from her Irish opponent. At the ninth, the Irish champion holed out from 15 yards and Miss Stewart came out in 36 to Miss Garvey's 37.

The sturdy little chestnut-haired Canadian with her serious, perfectionist style, regained her two-hole lead by winning the 10th in a birdie 4. After a perfect half at the short 11th the Irish girl won a hole back with a five-foot putt and at the 12th Miss Garvey matched a half in four by chipping dead.

Then the brilliant Marlene piled on the pressure.

She won the last five holes in better than par figures to complete the first 18 in 72 for a six-hole lead. Miss Garvey took 78.

The Irish girl shortened her deficit to four at the 29th but the little Canadian immediately hit back by holing the 31st in three to recapture her six-hole lead.

A great iron to the heart of the short 32nd gave Marlene another three to go seven up and then they battled stroke for stroke to halve every hole to the end in par or better figures.

The gallery had to admit that Marlene, a golfer since she was 15, had determination to burn.

Marlene and her six Canadian colleagues have still more tournament engagements in Britain before returning home in July. But this undoubtedly will be Marlene's greatest triumph against competition from 64 original entries, including top-ranking golfers from Wales, England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Belgium and the United States.

The other six Canadians were eliminated after five of them had survived the first two rounds.

Ada Blackwood, team captain of the Canadians, said of the little Ontario shotmaker: "Marlene just doesn't make mistakes." Those who witnessed yesterday's cool and decisive victory by the grey-skirted figure wearing a green Maple Leaf sweater and Stewart tartan beret, had to admit Miss Mackenzie was more than right. They marvelled at the driving power for one so tiny.

Marlene and the other Canadians will take part in the Ladies' Golf Union Commonwealth tourney at the Formby course in Lancashire, June 29, a team match between Canada and Ireland at the Royal Portrush course in Ireland, July 6, and a team match between Canada and Scotland at the Gullane course, July 8.

Now that they'll come home and Marlene plans to continue her studies in business administration at Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla.

Letter To Sports Editor

Senior 'B' Hockey

Sports Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

This in part is an answer to the charges made by Alderman Don Thomas that the Arena Commission had made what he stated a "criminal agreement" with both the junior and senior hockey clubs. Being a member of the Arena Commission and also the sponsor and manager of the Glen Roy Senior "B" Hockey Club for 1952-53 season, it might look to some people that I had tried to put some pressure on the Arena Commission to get the split we received. This I did not do.

The hockey club this year had a very successful year. Any player who played or was present at all the games received $252 each. A total of $4,536 was paid out to the players on each. As sponsor of the club without taking out any money for any of my expenses I ended up the season with $2,152. I intended to use this money to try and build a bigger and better club for the 1953-1954 season. Since this charge by Alderman Don Thomas has been made, I feel as an alderman and member of the Arena Commission there is only one thing for me to do and that is to give up the sponsorship of the Senior "B" Hockey Club and I might say that I will definitely not sponsor the Senior "B" Hockey Club. I have paid the penalties for the 1953 and 1954 season. I have all equipment at my place of business and will turn it over to whoever sponsors the 1953-54 club.

The sports minded people in the city of Bellville can thank Alderman Don Thomas if there will not have a sponsor and a good strong club for the 1953 and 1954 season. For the public's information the Memorial Arena received $1,295.39 more out of the Senior "B" Hockey club for the 1952-53 season than they did in the 1951-52 season. The players made a great deal more than the sponsor. Summing up the year's activities I would say the Arena Commission and management received a square deal in their decision and the finances of the club could not have been handled any more economically.

Yours Sincerely,
Alderman Don McNevin,
Manager of the Senior "B" Hockey Club.

British Writers Pay Tribute To Marlene

LONDON (CP)—With a touch of awe bordering on disbelief, British golf writers pay unstinting tribute today to a new champion, Canada's Marlene Stewart.

"Little Miss Robot" from Fonthill, Ont., the 19-year-old schoolgirl with the grown-up golf game, produced perhaps the most consistent play of her life to win the British women's open amateur championship Thursday at Porthcawl, Wales. And today the writers sing her praises.

"Apart from the immortal Babe Didrikson Zaharias, I have never seen anything so coolly calculated and correct as this child," writes columnist Desmond Hackett in The Daily Express.

"We have seen a girl who will surely become the greatest-ever woman golfer."

Pat Ward-Thomas, writing in the Manchester Guardian, calls the Canadian star "clearly one of the world's finest players for her age." The Times correspondent, in an article headed "Worthy Young Champion," says Miss Stewart played "quite exceptional" golf.

The Daily Mail says Marlene might have been any golfer in the world. "To look at this wonder girl," it adds, "one could not imagine that in her tiny hands a golf club becomes a weapon lethal to opponents."

The comments came as a postscript to Marlene's sizzling 7 and 6 victory over Philomena Garvey, Irish champion, in the 36-hole final played over the Royal Porthcawl links. Miss Stewart's victory was the most decisive in more than 30 years.

The record for the 60-year-old British women's open was established in 1922 when Joyce Wethered won 9 and 7 against Celia Leitch.

Golfers from the United Kingdom, New Zealand, Belgium and the United States competed in the four-day tournament. Six other Canadians entered with Miss Stewart did not survive the early rounds.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Here is the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 27, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Mars and other planets warn against makeshift action or management. Keep emotions, temper under strict surveillance at all times. Be calm.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — With thoroughness and accuracy you can bridge obstacles confronting you now. Your natural ability and ambition speak well for ultimate gains. Keep trying.

May 2 to June 21 (Gemini) — Hours before June 67 Probably upsetting tendencies and conflicts with money aspirations. Born after June 9th, suggest you be most careful in personal, domestic matters.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — May be tempted to hide behind a martyr's cloak. Won't do a bit of good. Present your ideas, action for scrutiny and you'll need no fear of criticism.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Avoid any attempt to obscure real issues or you will be trouble ahead. Buckle down, face all like a true Leoite can. Stars indicate you will show bravery.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—May have to face irritating situations not expected. But you can take it in stride. You have great fortitude, stamina, use well and you will come out on top.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—A day that demands much of what you folks can pride yourselves in—keen sense of perception, sound balance. There is need of extra concentration of effort.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Today's planetary aspects suggest more patience, will power to achieve ultimate goals. Important are vital issues pertaining to future security.

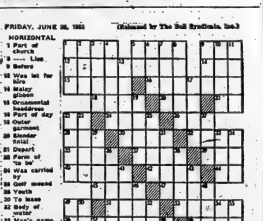
November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Turn to the better influences, good and increasing favorably. Of course you are the captain of the ship, and must know your way, guide it well.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Take things more as you find them and others will be more willing to assist. Be not smug or demand unreasonably.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Curb tendency to take things for granted or follow others' ideas too quickly. Think out new, original plans.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Extra care signing contracts, becoming involved in financial or other obligations. Be duly concerned about your intimate affairs.

YOU BORN TODAY: Sincerity, strength, humanness are two of your most valuable assets. You have a retentive memory and are a natural salesman. Ability to make and hold friends a really wonderful gift and worth preserving. Guard against worrying. Birthdate of: Paul Lawrence Dunbar, negro poet; Helen Keller, blind genius.



REAL RAINSTORM

U.S. Tightens Barriers Against Cheese, Other Products July 1

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Through a combination of embargoes, quota restrictions and higher tariffs, the United States tightens her import barriers July 7 against cheese, milk and other agricultural products.

Trade officials estimate the new curbs may reduce Canada's trade with the United States by more than $2,000,000 a year.

Canada in 1952 sold the United States about $2,750,000 worth of the dairy items hit by the curbs. After July 7, officials estimate, the shipments may be reduced to about $800,000 a year.

The drop may not be large when compared with Canada's total $2,300,000,000 exports to the U.S. last year, but officials see other implications in the move.

Others May Follow

"The dairy restrictions, they fear, may be the beginning of curbs in other categories of American imports.

Prime Minister St. Laurent in his opening election speech June 23 said high-tariff exporting to the U.S. are 'gaining strength.. He added:

"The utmost vigilance and the greatest available wisdom and skill will be needed if Canada's interests in greater trade are to be protected successfully in the U.S. and elsewhere in the world."

Under the new curbs Canada's small American cheddar cheese market will be cut by half. The American market for cheddar cheese milk will be cut to one-twentieth of the 1952 size and to dried whole milk market virtually eliminated.

Canada shipped about 1,300,000 pounds of cheddar cheese to the U.S. last year. Officials consider Canada will be fortunate if she gets in about 700,000 pounds a year under the new curbs.

Far-Reaching Cut

Import quotas for the whole world will be cut to 2,780,000 pounds a year from 9,200,000.

Canada's dried buttermilk market likely will be chopped to a few hundred thousand pounds from 11,286,000 last year. The new curbs set the quota for the world at 496,-360 pounds.

Canada, shipped about 1,500,000 pounds of dried whole milk into the U.S. last year. The new world quota is 7,000 pounds—a virtual embargo and the end of Canada's U.S. market in that product.

Other world quotas under the new curbs:

Butter—707,000 pounds; dried cream—200,000 pounds; dried skimmed milk—1,807,000 pounds; malted milk products—8,000 pounds; flaxseed and linseed oil—an added ad valorem tariff payment of 50 per cent of the product's value, on top of normal American tariffs—as other virtual embargo.

Dried Skimmed Milk

Canada may get a good share of the dried skimmed milk quota but practically no part of the butter quota since she never has been a big American supplier. She is not interested in the dried cream or malted milk product markets and the "eye-drop" quotas will discourage anyone from getting into that field.

She has fixed to ship, but the new tariff makes trade prohibitive.

The new curbs go into effect under a proclamation issued by President Eisenhower under section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustments Act, replacing section 104 of the Defence Production Act. Section 104, the cause of protests by Canada and other exporting countries, expires June 30. Congress said it will not renew it.

Canada has made unofficial and informal official protests on the new curbs, but the U.S. has an answer. The major problem in the U.S. now is heavy production and rising surpluses in government warehouses. To let the U.S. import guard down would undoubtedly invite more stockpiling, more price-support on American surpluses.

These American surpluses are "considerable," says the trade department and it concludes that it may be "some time" before Canada can expects to the U.S. "improve."

BULLET WOUND FATAL

SIMCOE (CP)—Edsil Padden, 56, of RR 4, Simcoe, died Wednesday night in Norfolk General Hospital of injuries suffered when he was struck in the head by a bullet. Found by a cousin, Bob Padden and Joe Rizzi, Padden, who lives alone on a farm six miles north-east of here, had apparently died August 23 as the result accidentally while cleaning it.

PICTON
Delaney Furriers Show Latest Fashions at Picton

PICTON—At the recent Fashion Show sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of Prince Edward Memorial held in the armouries, Delaney Furriers of Belleville showed the latest models in furs. The hats were shown by Mrs. Delaney, of Trenton.

An account of the showing says: "The stage was bright with baskets of flowers by Lockyer florists and there was soft music as the models showed the latest in hats by Alma Dawson, milliner of Trenton, and furs by Delaney Exclusive Furriers of Belleville. This was under the direction of Mrs. Harry Slaven and Mrs. W. deC. Hepburn. The facials were by beauty counsellors and field manager, Mrs. Foster ably assisted by her representatives in Picton district enhanced the beauty of Picton's models under the stage lights of the armouries.

There were five acts, and each of the twelve models showed numerous furs and hats but the final act was a wedding scene and this captivated the 700 audience, when the bride, Mrs. Robt. Walmsley, stood by the altar in a white rabbit cape-jacket, assisted by flower girl, Ingrid Ackerman, in a white rabbit ensemble, and ushr boy Teddy Hart in a grey ensemble. Commentator was Gordon Mitchell, in a beige suit and a set of stoles were worn by the mother, Mrs. George Andrews, in a taupe evening gown was wearing a ranch mink stole. The guests were all Picton models: Mrs. Ackerman wearing Chinese mink cape, Mrs. R. W. Eves wearing a grey persian lamb jacket, Mrs. Ryatt in a beige Canadian natural cape stole, Miss Rosemary Carmen in a natural raccoon coat 3-4 length, Mrs. Douglas Porter wearing ranch mink scarves, Miss Katherine Anderson in a shortie sheared beaver coat, Miss Susan Hepburn in a dyed Canadian squirrel jacket, Miss Joan Benson in a 3-4 persian lamb coat, and Mrs. Mantlin in a grey persian lamb coat; there were also four other children in attendance and these were: Misses Kindha Hepburn wearing a 2-skin dark Russian squirrel scarf, Penny Taylor in a white rabbit 3-piece ensemble, Elizabeth Caughey in a 3-piece brown coney ensemble and Joan Bongard wearing a brown coney coat. Mary Haylock was commentator for the fashion show and did a marvellous performance in introducing all the models and the firms that made the beautiful furs. In a succeed, Miss Haylock was ably assisted by pianist, Mrs. Mary Deacon.

During the intermission, vocal solos by Mrs. K. Hendrikse, of Belleville, were much enjoyed. Mrs. Mary Deacon was accompanist and one of the compositions "Song of the Wind" was sung by Mrs. Hendrikse.

At the conclusion of the performance each model was presented with gifts from Alma Dawson, milliner, Gordon Delaney, furrier, and Mrs. Foster, field manager for beauty counsellors.

WOMEN DEFENDERS

OSLO (CP)—Five hundred of Norway's voluntary Women's Army Services members attended the national convention of their association here. The organization has some 13,000 members, of whom about half serve actively in various non-combative defence capacities. They participate in regular exercises of national guard units.

PICTON
Gunner Receives Word of Death Of Two Relatives

PICTON — A member of the Royal Canadian School of Artillery here, Gunner Chester McLeod has received word that his father, Dalziel McLeod, 74 and his brother-in-law, Phillip McAuley, 43, have been drowned at New Waterford, Cape Breton, N.S. The two men were on a fishing trip.

D. McLeod visited his son and family here last summer and was expected again next month for a holiday here. His wife died last October.

Gunner McLeod is enroute to Nova Scotia. There are two other surviving children, Frank McLeod in New Waterford, Russell McLeod in Edmonton and Mrs. Philip McAuley, in New Waterford.

NO MUSIC LOVER

OTTAWA, St. (AP) — James Galvin was in a hospital today with 126 stitches over knife cuts which police said were inflicted by an irate neighbor, Louis Torres, about 65, was fined on $2,000 bond Wednesday on a charge of attempting to murder Galvin with a knife. Police said Torres told them he had objected to Galvin singing Spanish songs in his backyard.

ENGLISH HOLD-UP

LONDON (AP) — Masked men smashed a five ton dump truck into a small payroll truck, beat up the driver and his assistant, and drove off with £2,000 Wednesday in a holdup. Police said one man threw the dump truck while three others pulled up in another car in which all four made their getaway in less than a minute.

ACCEPT RESIGNATION

SASKATOON (CP)—The executive committee of the Saskatchewan Liberal party Wednesday accepted the resignation of Walter Tucker as provincial leader but left the matter of a new leader "in abeyance until after the federal election." Mr. Tucker is Liberal candidate in Southern riding in the Aug. 10 federal election.

Communists Send S. Koreans Reeling On 13-Mile Front

Score Gain of 14 Miles As Roks Strive to Hold On

By JOHN RANDOLPH

SEOUL (AP)—Thousands of Communist troops smashed last South Korean troops reeling back along a wide front today in a grinding renewal of the two-week-long Pukhan river offensive.

At least two Chinese divisions—more than 20,000 soldiers—are headed for the south on a 13-mile front on both sides of the Pukhan river, on the east-central front Friday night.

At one spot in the wild hills east of the river, the South Koreans were forced back 14 miles before they were fighting desperately to hold. This Red gain was another body to the two-mile bulge the Communists punched in Allied lines in the same sector earlier this month.

AP correspondent Milo Farneti reported Republic of Korea soldiers on the west side of the river reoccupied Hi Pass Hill—or Lookout Mountain—at the junction of the Kumsong and the Nam rivers, and another battle was in a fierce mid-evening counter-attack.

At daybreak Friday, 40 Allied fighter-bombers swarmed over Red artillery areas and dumped 500-pound bombs.

The U.S. 5th Air Force said Allied fighters shot down two Red MIG jets and damaged a third.

While the western front shook with a roar of new battles, the Chinese buried another division behind the Communist lines in Korea north of Seoul, is the west.

In a sneaky battle the Reds this morning forced the crack 1st ROK Division back from two hills it had captured in bitter counter-attacks.

With this new setback, the ballooning Red gain was further outlined. Farneti's dispatch showed the Reds holding three of five hills they originally attack two days ago.

The Red gains, however, were no, a blueprint for victory. They were nothing like the deep advance in the east.

Massed air and artillery strikes appeared to have halted the Reds' counter-attacks, which were costly for both sides. Chinese bodies littered the area. Allied units estimated 2,400 Reds killed in the western battle underlined the strength of a Chinese regiment.

The Chinese objective in the Pukhan battle appeared to be mauling and humiliating the RoK Army, was observers. The ROK infantry in this area is not vital to the Allied defence line.

However, any serious new Red gains around the Pukhan would endanger the Chorwon communications about 12 miles south which supplies most of Allied electricity.

The Reds might eventually imperil the supply route to Heart, break ridge on the right and the road linking Chunchon on the central front 15 miles away.

The big battle of the river began at 2:01 a.m. Thursday when a Chinese regimental attack against the hill positions. It was almost immediately apparent that the Reds had carefully exploited an wave after wave of Red infantry hurled at the defence line.

By 3:30 a. m. Saturday the ROKs were falling back and trying to stop the Reds on a U-line. No Allied counter-attack in this period, suggesting the ROKs had all they could do to hold off the enemy rush.

STOLE FROM POOR BOXES

HAMILTON (CP)—Peter Shagrow, 32, of Ottawa, also known as John Davis, pleaded guilty Friday to a charge of stealing $1 from two poor boxes at St. Cathedral of Christ the King and burning the latter tools with the money. He was sentenced to three years in penitentiary.

THE WEATHER.

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Skies are sunny over Ontario today in the relatively dry air mass that moved into the province Friday. This pleasant weather will be short-lived however as a developing disturbance over Nebraska, and today's warm spell is again causing warmer and more humid air to move in from the southern states. The warmer air is forecast to move into Southern Ontario Sunday accompanied by some thunderstorms activity. In Northern Ontario the thunderstorms are expected to be more numerous. In the path of the disturbance from Nebraska.

At 71 Entitled To First Vote In 26 Years

OTTAWA (CP)—One 71-year-old Canadian is entitled to his first federal vote in 26 years this Aug. 10.

He is John Castonguay, the returning officer for Ottawa-East retired after the 1949 general election and has been living quietly in Ottawa.

Under the law which lists chief electoral officers among those not entitled to vote, he cast no ballot from the time he received that appointment in 1927.

But this year he's an elector in the riding of Ottawa-East. His son, Nelson, however, comes under the ban. His 26-year term is Canada's chief electoral officer.

Mother Charged After Trying To Kill Self, Child

MONTREAL (CP)—A 23-year-old mother, snatched from the St. Lawrence river with her infant daughter after a wild trip through a bogus pipe, was charged Friday with attempted murder and attempted suicide.

The child, 19-month-old Dawn, was reported in serious condition in hospital. The mother, Mrs. Jeannette Roy, was arraigned in Criminal Court and preliminary hearing was set for July 7.

A police report, produced in court, said the woman wheeled the baby in its carriage from Lachine Park to Black's bridge over the Lachine canal—about three miles. There she threw the baby into the canal, the report said, then attempted suicide by leaping in herself.

The mother and child were drawn into a 45-inch surplus pipe, which carries sewage under the river, were swirled along 200 feet through the pipe and ejected into the St. Lawrence.

There seamen saw them and rescued them.

Two Passenger Trains Halted By Walkout

MONTREAL (CP)—Two passenger trains of the Rutland Railroad which operate into and out of Montreal were halted Friday by a strike of Rutland workers.

The strike had no effect on Canadian National Railways trains crossing the border, which operate between Montreal and the United States border and then over lines other than the Rutland.

A spokesman for the CNR said 11 Rutland trains from CNR lines in Canada, and because of the strike in Vermont the two Rutland trains from Montreal's Central station did not operate Friday.

Mystery of Similar Fingerprints Is Finally Solved by R.C.M.P.

OTTAWA (CP)—The mystery of the duplicate Indian has been solved.

From Deadman's Creek, B. C., came the story of Alex Jiganze, an Indian whose fingerprints were said to be "approximately" the same as those of another Indian of the same name hanged 34 years ago.

Indian folk of the area wondered if the Indian from Deadman's Creek, sentenced to six months in jail on an assault charge, was a reincarnation of the Indian who was hanged.

He's not, so said the RCMP. The Indian hanged was Alex Jiganze who the now jailed Indian is Alex Eneas.

Furthermore there was no similarity of fingerprints, RCMP says.

The mix-up was straightened out when Deadman's Creek records received documents pertaining to the old Jiganze case.

Attached to each card on RCMP files here on the Jiganze case of 34 years ago is a note stating that one or not Jiganze had been hanged. So Ottawa headquarters wired RCMP in B. C. to clarify its records.

It was at this time that Eneas got into trouble. Fingerprints of Jiganze and Eneas were first thought to be similar—and had Jiganze lived he would have been the same age as Eneas.

Thus local talk built a strange, but not a factual, case.

GOVT. PRODUCES $120,820,000 SURPLUS IN MAY

Down $20,700,000 From Last Year

OTTAWA (CP)—The government produced a surplus of $120,820,000 in its May budget accounts, boosting the total for the first two months of the 1953-54 fiscal year to $200,240,000.

The May surplus, however, was down $20,700,000 from $141,515,000 last year and the two-month total was down $40,900,000 from $241,129,000, Finance Minister Abbott said in a budget statement.

Abbott said the government's financial operations

"As I have pointed out on many past occasions, based on long years of experience, the government's revenues in the earlier months of each fiscal year are always large, while expenditures are always much more concentrated in the later months," he said.

Canada's annual $25,000,000 Colombo Plan grant was included in the May expenditures. Defence spending, however, showed decreases in previous months, was not.

Budgetary revenues rose in May by $408,852,000 from $462,193,000 last year, bringing the two-month total to $678,632,000 from $967,518,000.

Expenditures in May rose to $288,032,000 from $267,293,000, making the two-month total to $478,392,000 from $426,283,000.

Monday Favorite Day for Holding General Election

OTTAWA (CP)—Monday has come up as the favorite day of the week for the holding of federal election dates.

Election date of Aug. 10 for the election put Monday into the lead with 12 elections for balloting since Confederation.

The selection makes it seven Monday elections and six on the day since 1874, the first year in which elections were held on a single day. Five have been called on Thursdays and two on Wednesdays.

There have been none on Friday, Saturday or Tuesday under the one-day procedure began.

The six elections beginning in 1920 and including the present one, 1953, have been on Monday—the sixth—in 1940—was on a Tuesday.

Before 1874, elections took weeks to complete. The first was Oct. 15 from Aug. 7 to Sept. 30. The 1872 voting lasted 37 days.

THIEF GETS JEWELS

NEW YORK (AP)—A thief slipped into an unlocked hotel suite where Mrs. Raymond Stark, daughter of Governor Lehman, was sleeping and escaped with $2,500 in cash and jewelry valued at $40,000. Police said apparently the Starks and her husband neglected to lock the door when they returned to the hotel from a night club.

SENTENCED TO JAIL

BOSTON (AP)—Denis W. Delaney, former internal revenue collector whose ouster by President Truman in 1950 touched off the first of a series of tax scandals, was sentenced Friday to a year and a day in jail and fined $5,000 for accepting a $2,500 bribe and conspiring to defraud income taxes. Delay pleaded guilty.

Financial Reforms Could Make Tax Cuts Possible Says Low

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

With a promise of tax cuts and financial reforms to make them possible, Social Credit Leader Low launched Social Credit's election campaign.

And in a national radio address, he said the Social Creditors in Ottawa can show Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, and the Liberal government how to make the $500,000,000 tax reduction Mr. Drew announced as a major plank of the Progressive Conservative platform.

While Mr. Low mapped campaign strategy at a Toronto meeting with senior Social Creditors, including Premiers Bennett of British Columbia and Manning of Alberta, other political leaders stumped the country.

In Hamilton, Prime Minister St. Laurent said he is sure the federal and provincial governments can reach agreement on constitutional issues. This apparently referred to Mr. Drew's plea for "co-operative federalism."

Speaking at Sudbury yesterday that the Liberals don't want agreement with the provinces.

Mr. Drew, opening the western part of his campaign in Winnipeg promised "fair and sound" prices for agriculture through the national agricultural income stabilization plan mentioned in his manifesto.

CCF Campaign Halted

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, brought his campaign to a halt in Ottawa where his wife was ill and plans to return to Ottawa where his wife will for many years, died Friday at the age of 70.

Mr. Low pledged Social Credit to build the Alberta pipe line and that taxes except the two-per-cent levy on retail sales would be reduced. Personal income taxes and increase exemptions. This was meant to lower living costs. It would also encourage production and stimulate a spirit of independence among Canadians.

A Social Credit government would follow a financial policy providing for a national monetary authority to control currency and credit, issue money at a rate to ensure continuous production of purchasing power sufficient to distribute and consumption and credit to establish and reasonable" terms for agriculture and industry.

Such a policy also would provide safeguards against inflation and deflation, lower interest rates, lower down payment and interest for home building.

Mr. Low said Mr. Drew's tax cut proposal "is quite possible and practical," but he differed with Mr. Drew as to how it would be produced. It could not be done by orthodox means.

"We Social Creditors can show both Mr. Drew and government exactly how, by wise management and through our Social Credit financial proposals, to reduce taxes by $500,000,000 a year without in any way reducing present social security payments or essential services."

Will Agree Some Day

But Mr. St. Laurent said he is certain that "some day" the federal and provincial governments will agree on methods of financing the constitution in matters of joint federal-provincial interest.

Referring to the St. Lawrence seaway project in Hamilton, he said "nothing we can do" will be left undone to get this great development started. The federal government was ready to start on the seaway "next July" despite hydro-electric power commission on the power project as soon as the United States was ready to start work to operate on the latter.

Mr. St. Laurent hopes that the time is not too far off when the government will be able to return to the state of New York to do its share of the power development."

Mr. Drew's proposed national agricultural board would be flexible, free and independent. It would "not simply be another agency for the minister of agriculture."

Mr. St. Laurent's criticism of the Conservative "co-operative federalism" was meaningless "unless the Conservatives in Ottawa should welcome the proposal. Premier Duplessis of Quebec was criticizing support prices for farm products in Ontario, the minister of agriculture was boasting of it about the amount the government had spent to help farmers."

Party's Plan For Housing Given by Hees

TORONTO (CP)—The Progressive Conservatives, if elected Aug. 10, promised Friday to extend payment required for National Housing Act dwellings to 10 per cent. The present requirement is 20 per cent of the purchase price.

The party's plan was announced Friday by George Hees, candidate for re-election in Broadview riding, at the opening of a two-day Canadian Legion conference on housing.

Mr. Hees said he was announcing official party policy when he stated: "I am speaking for Premier George Drew.

He said the policy is aimed at enabling a man earning $55 a week to buy, and pay the carrying charges on, a single unit, low-cost brick house. He said it holds out hope to the man living in a three-brick house for a man making $60 a week and a four-room house for a man earning $65.

To bring this about, Mr. Hees said a Progressive Conservative government would take these steps:

1. Reallocation of municipal tax arrangements so that local councils may have more adequate resources to carry out ever-increasing responsibilities in relation to housing.

2. Halving the 20-per-cent down payment now required for purchase of NHA dwellings.

3. Spreading the present NHA amortization period on mortgages from 20 to 30 years.

Not Paying Way

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's old-age pension scheme appears to be unable, to pay its way.

A $2,500,000 deficit showed up in May, the government's financial statement for that month disclosed Friday.

As in previous months, the government made up this deficit with a temporary loan. This brought total temporary loans paid to the pension fund since April 1, 1952, to $110,198,444.

The scheme is financed by receipts from a slice of two per cent from the government's sales tax, individual income tax and corporation tax.

Former Hotel Owner Makes Grave Charge

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—John Ferlecki, a former hotel owner, charged Friday there was a "source" on the Ontario liquor licensing board that had direct contact with an organized group of gangsters whom he described as "gangsters."

He made the charge in an attempt to break the testimony of a family of Windsor hotel owners who were ousted by Ferlecki.

Appearing before the board of which later reserved judgment on Mr. Yarmoluk's application, Mr. Ferlecki said that Mr. Yarmolyk men had "destroyed men financially" in Windsor hotels.

"They are gangsters and have been convicted by my family of bootlegging and I'm not afraid to say so," he charged Mr. Yarmoluk was a member of the group which was responsible for "destroying" him into selling the hotel to Mr. Yarmoluk.

Board chairman Judge W. T. Robb said no person on the board has connection with such a group and added that it was impossible for Mr. Yarmoluk to be the only person who could get a license for the premises, as Mr. Ferlecki had charged.

"And you lost your licence," the judge told Mr. Ferlecki. "Apparently you made a false statement to the board—it was taken to court and proved."

Mr. Yarmoluk's counsel said a statement to that effect would be filed all the Ferlecki charges.

Talks Postponed

LONDON (Reuters)—The Burmuda Big-Three conference has been postponed indefinitely. Prime Minister Churchill is suffering from overwork, it was announced here today.

The talks were scheduled to start July 4.

A medical statement said Churchill's doctors have advised him to rest for at least a month.

The report from Lord Moran, Churchill's personal physician, and Sir Russell Brian said: "The prime minister has had no respite for a long time from his very arduous duties and is in need of complete rest.

"We have therefore advised him to abandon his journey to Bermuda and to fighten his duties for at least a month."

RUSSIANS FAIL TO SUBMIT OFFER ON GERMAN ISSUE

No Reds in Attendance As Commissioners Meet

By DANIEL DE LUCE

BERLIN (AP)—A meeting of the Western high commissioners for Germany came and went today in West Berlin without any sign of the Russians. There had been speculation that a Soviet representative might come over from East Berlin to participate.

The British, American and French high commissioners for Germany discussed for two hours and 25 minutes the dynamic developments of last week's workers' rebellion in the Soviet sector of Berlin and East Germany.

After the session in French headquarters, British Commissioner Sir Ivone Kirkpatrick, U. S. Commissioner James B. Conant and French Commissioner Andre Francois-Poncet left for Bonn, the West German capital.

There was widespread speculation the Kremlin was about to offer new proposals for settlement of the German problem, with some expectation that Soviet High Commissioner Vladimir Semyonov might attend the high commissioners' session.

West Western aide said Friday night there was "just a chance" that Semyonov might attend the meeting. He said Semyonov had away protocol obstacles to such a step. Under the Potsdam Treaty, West he had taken over civilian occupation authority in the East sector from Soviet Marshal Vasily Chuikov.

The Western high commissioners left Bonn Friday night en route to their meeting here shortly after a rigged demonstration of loyalty to the East zone Communist government by East Berlin workers.

Although the Soviet news agency ADN claimed that 70,000 workers participated in two East Berlin meetings, the demonstrations and the affairs apparently were a dismal failure for Premier Otto Grotewohl's Communist regime.

These sources said only about 5,000 Soviet-picked functionaries gathered at the demonstrations in Wilhelm Pieck square and Marx-Engels square—both cavernous places—and had to be rounded up in the disagreement over workers participation.

Relaxes Curfew

Despite the reported flop of the Communist rulers, Gen. Chuikov, P. T. Dibrova, Soviet military commandant, announced today he is reducing the East Berlin curfew from six to four hours (11 p.m. to 7 a.m. local time). Observers said this apparently foreshadowed complete lifting of the Russian-imposed martial law next week.

Communist officials in the Soviet papers continued claims that the Soviet zone was rushing ahead with better living for the people's living standards as a "necessary result" of the June 16 proclamation of all Germany.

Reports from Berlin that the violent uprising by 2,000,000 anti-Red East German workers had altered the Soviet Union's plans for a unified aim of early four-power talks on the settlement of the German question.

GRACIE AT NIAGARA

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Songstress Gracie Fields and Boris Morros, Hollywood film producer, married 16 months ago on the Isle of Capri, were remarried Wednesday in a ceremon in this traditional mecca for honeymooners. The said she also has been counting the minutes until she could show her husband the beauties of Niagara.

Robertson, Rhee Hold Secret Truce Crisis Meeting

S. Korean Head Described As 'Happy' After Talks

By ROBERT E. TUCKMAN

SEOUL (AP)—President Syngman Rhee of South Korea was described as "very happy" today following a 40-minute secret conference with a special truce envoy from Washington and the United Nations military commander.

Speculation mounted that the stubborn old statesman might accept an armistice.

No new conferences were scheduled. Most members of Rhee's cabinet met into closed door session immediately after the session. Members of the UN delegation met at the United States embassy.

Rhee's price for accepting a truce has not been disclosed.

But high sources were quoted as saying he might agree if the U.S. gives him an iron-clad pledge to come to his aid in the event of a new Red attack.

In From Tokyo

Gen. Mark Clark, the UN commander, flew here from Tokyo to join Walter S. Robertson, U. S. assistant secretary of state, in the critical second meeting in Rhee's hilltop presidential mansion. Clark was accompanied by Ambassador Robert Murphy, his political adviser, and Lt.-Gen. E. K. Harrison Jr., chief Allied truce negotiator.

Just before the session began a source close to Robertson said that "if things go as well as they have so far" the mission would not have to remain in Korea much longer. The party was expected to leave for Washington in two or three days with a top-off in Tokyo.

The assistant secretary of state flew here after fighting front before leaving Korea.

Sat in on Session

The South's prime minister, Paik Too Chin, and foreign minister, Pyun Yung Tai, sat in on the session.

Robertson flew here from Washington with instructions to Rhee from Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles.

The president has refused to accept a truce negotiated at Panmunjom. He created a crisis when he ordered the release of 27,000 anti-Communist Korean prisoners from UN stockades.

Robertson emerged from Friday's meeting to tell newspaper men "we hope we are moving toward removing misunderstanding" in the disagreement over prisoners settlement.

Rhee said "Mr. Robertson has brought good ideas and our mutual understanding is being greatly improved."

In Washington, Dulles said Eisenhower was talking of a post-truce meeting when he said Thursday he would be willing to confer with Rhee. Official he said with Rhee outside Korea in an effort to win the South Korean president over to a truce.

KAISER LAYOFFS

DETROIT (AP)—Layoff notices have been distributed Friday to more than 11,000 Kaiser Motors Corp. workers at nearby Willow Run as the firm's plant on the ex-company's aircraft contracts were phased out, effective July 1. Layoff notices 9,500 were directly due to cancellation of a $40,000,000 Air Force contract for production of C-119 and C-123 cargo-carrying planes.

Toronto Pilot Shows Courage In Landing

TORONTO (CP)—Gerald Pare, Toronto pilot who landed a plane with four passengers on a narrow beach on a tiny island in Georgian Bay, said Friday night that there "wasn't any trouble."

Flying four passengers to Massassauga Island in Lake Huron Thursday, Pare was forced to turn back because of heavy fog. He found a hole in the "soup" and landed his Piper tri-pacer on a 450-foot-long beach on Loney Island.

He came back Friday flying the same plane. Meanwhile his passengers were taken to Core Bay, Massassauga Island, by an amphibian plane. They were Gilbert Owen, 40, of Miami, Fla., Owen's two sons, Billy, 9, and Richard, 7, and Owen's secretary whose identity wasn't learned. The boys went to summer camp on Massassauga Island, some 180 miles northwest of Toronto.

The plane was the subject of an intensive search Thursday and Friday after it was reported missing for seven hours.

Dr. Dominique keeper and his helper sheltered the stranded passengers and crew in a rustic cabin managed to get out word that they were safe.

The party left Toronto Thursday on the two-hour flight. Sixteen RCAF search planes from Centralia and London and the Trenton air station hunted for them until weather forced cancellation of the flight last night.

Fresh search parties marvelled at how Pare managed to set down his plane safely on the tiny stretch of beach, barely wider than 20 yards and marked by holes and stones.

Inspector Larsen Named Supt. Mounted Police

OTTAWA (CP)—The north's No. 1 Mountie, Inspector Henry Larsen, who commanded the Schooner St. Roch on her voyage through the Northwest Passage, has been promoted superintendent.

Also named to new appointments in an RCMP promotion list announced Friday were inspector Jean Alexander Churchill, 53, head of the crime detection laboratories, and inspector Gordon Metcalf Churchill, 54, officer commanding the Ottawa detachment.

The promotions were effective June 1.

RCMP headquarters also named six NCOs who have been commissioned officers. Among them Cecil McPhee, 48, of the criminal investigation branch, Ottawa, who will likely take over the sub-division at Prince Albert, Sask. He has been in the force 27 years.

Joseph Leadore Vachon, 42, who has been in charge of the records of the fingerprint bureau at the headquarters identification branch where he is now stationed. He was born at Collingwood, Ont.

APPEAL REJECTED

MONTREAL (CP) — Appeal of Kenneth Peel of Cowansville, Que., against conviction for the bathtub murder of his wife in 1952, was rejected unanimously Friday by the five-judge bench of Court of Appeals.

Ford is after sentence to be hanged July 3. The defence will petition Monday for a stay of execution and permission to appeal to the Supreme Court.

CONSTABLE BARKER GIVEN PROMOTION

Member of the Ontario Provincial Police since 1939, Constable Harry Barker has been promoted to the rank of corporal, it was stated today by Inspector A. McDougall.

Corporal Barker has been stationed at Belleville for the past two and a half years, coming here from Alexandria, Ont., Cornwall headquarters. Cpl Barker is with the investigations department at local headquarters.

ACCIDENT CAUSES POWER INTERRUPTION

The village of Foxboro was without power for a while this morning when a hydro pole at the northern end of the village was broken by a car that swung wide on the curve at the intersection of No. 14 highway and the Madoc road.

Police said a car driven by Clarence McPherson, 17, of Casiffton, went wide on the curve and crashed into the hydro pole causing about $100 damage to the car. There were no injuries.

PLEADS GUILTY TO THEFT CHARGE

Pleading guilty to a charge of theft, Albert Sprague, 23, of Belleville, was given two years suspended sentence by Magistrate T. Y. Wills, in the magistrate's court yesterday.

Sprague pleaded guilty to taking a wallet containing about $100 owned by a fellow boarder.

New Flower Beds Beautify Park

In the Memorial Park on Station Street and in the entrance to Victoria Park a new flower beds are being planted to beautify the city and to remember the dead.

The makeup of the floral display in the Memorial Park consists of tropical materials called Alternanthera, which are variegated, the variegated being the more delicate of the two.

This design consists of about 8,000 plants cut to a height of about six inches to get a carpet finish. The size of the bed is 30 x 20 ft., it takes 22 or 23 plants per square foot.

The border of the bed is of silver leaf geranium, which has small flowers. The flowers are of no value to the display.

The Parks Board members hope that in the future they may be able to obtain other materials such as santolina, irane, dwarf forms of dusty miller and coleus. These materials would give a secondary flower to the floral design. The secondary grouping is said to be much more effective than two.

BURIED IN CLAY, SAVED

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Messe C. Jones, 63-year-old construction worker, was buried for 45 minutes Friday under two tons of wet clay before rescuers dug him out. Only from the cave-in in the hole he was digging in the storm sewer line was his head and shoulders south of here. He suffered no injuries.

States Liberals Took Lion's Share Of CBC Free Time

TORONTO (CP)—Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party, Friday night accused the Liberal party of taking an unfair proportion of the free time offered by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for the presentation of election platforms.

In an address broadcast over the Trans-Canada network of the CBC, Mr. Low said the CBC had asked the various parties to decide among themselves how they should divide the time available. He added:

"Conservatives, CCF and Social Crediters proposed an equal division of time among the four parties on the ground that each party had a definite program and it would require as much time for one to do a complete job as any other. Liberals take issue.

"But the stubborn make the Liberal party put its ears back and refused to budge. They asked demand for a lion's share of the time for themselves.

"They held out to the bitter end for the same kind of unfair, undemocratic deal. The result is that time that was made upon their insistance is 15 hours election time, whereas they received 21 quarterhour periods for themselves and grudgingly allowed the Social Credit Association of Canada only six quarter-hours for a whole campaign.

"Because the other three parties refused to countenance such gross unfairness, and it was clear no agreement was possible, CBC issued a directive under which the Liberal party was given only twice as much time as Social Credit. Commends CBC

"CBC is to be commended for making even a halting step to-ward fairness. Never fair and square but it has been the case in the past.

"But the best I can say about the Liberals is that they were finally taken aback by this rather unexpected demonstration of indignation. Even so, they refused the Liberal party for years has thought it could use the CBC for any of its purposes and in any way it liked, without question.

"When the Liberal party claims to believe in freedom of speech it does so with its tongue in its cheek and with serious reservations."

The CBC allotted 16 hours, 10 minutes to the four parties divided as follows: Liberals, 21 per cent: Progressive Conservatives, 30 per cent; CCF, 30 per cent and Social Credit, 17 per cent.

NEW HELICOPTER

DUESSELDORF (AP) — Professor Heinrich Focke, German aircraft designer, is building a new "convertible" helicopter in Bremen which will reach the same speed as conventional planes, his former chief reported Friday. Engineer Karl Rode told a meeting of the German Society for Aviation Research that Focke's helicopter will gain that speed by shifting its rotor blades in flight. He did not elaborate.

Maynes Bridge To be Maintained By County System

Hastings county council will take over and maintain the Maynes Bridge in Hungerford township over the Moira River, it was decided at Thursday's special meeting of county council.

The Maynes Bridge is on the Stoco-Chapman's Road which ooses years ago to a township road after being on the county system. The township Thursday asked that the bridge be taken back by the county.

Under regulations any bridge over 22 feet in length may be taken over and maintained by the county. The bridge in question is over 100 feet in length.

FRANKFORD

Legion Forfeits To Stockdale In Sidney League

FRANKFORD — Stockdale took over undisputed possession of first place in the Sidney Softball League Thursday night, as Frankford Legion was given a 9-0 forfeit score, as the Legion could not field a team by the 8:00 deadline.

Five minutes after 8:00, the balance of the team arrived. The Stockdale manager was willing to play the game, but the team would not comply.

Over in Centenary, the Frankford Juniors blasted the homeside by a 23-4 score, gaining revenge for the 14-6 defeat which the Centenary team handed them on Tuesday night in Frankford.

Bob Lott went the route for the winners with O'Brien catching. Lott gave up only four hits.

Centenary used three hurlers, Aikens, Waite and Edmundson, with Ron Marshall receiving.

Frankford jumped onto Centenary for nine runs in the first inning, pounding out a total of 26 hits. Owen Baker collected 6 singles in 6 runs in the first inning.

Johnstown and Glen Miller were rained out in Thursday night's other contest. In the other Tuesday night contests Stockdale edged the Legion 13-12 after the Legion led 12-4 for some time.

Standing:

Team	W	L	Pct.
Stockdale	5	1	.834
Centenary	4	2	.667
Frankford Jun.	4	2	.667
Frankford Legion	2	3	.400
Frankford Legion	2	4	.333
Glen Miller	0	5	.000

GOVERNMENT TO QUIT

HELSINKI (AP)—Premier Urho Kekkonen's Finnish coalition government will tender its resignation to President Paasikivi on Monday, it was announced today. The announcement followed an extraordinary cabinet session during which it was agreed that the rift between the Agrarians and Socialists over economic policy was unsurmountable.

C.N.R. Derailed By Northern 4-3 At Alemite Field

Northern Electric conquered the C.N.R. Diesels 4-3 last night in a closely fought tussle at the Alemite Field in a game decided in the Belleville District Softball League game.

Northern scored a pair in the first, one in the second, and one in the sixth. C.N.R. scored two in the second and one in the fifth and the ninth.

DeHuddle and Locke led the winners at the plate with a double and two singles apiece. Rose touched the ball for two singles while Harry Wardhaugh, Pukanis and Jones were rewarded with singles.

Young led the Trainmen with the bat, touching McCurdy's slants for a single and a double. Sword, Goyer, Jack Wardhaugh and Hunter each got enough wood on the ball for singles.

McCurdy worked on the hill for the "Chicken's" crew striking out three and walking four, while Young sweated the route for the Trainmen striking out one and walking six.

Lineups:

Diesels: Berbrim rf; Rowbotham 3b; Sword ss; V. Goyer 1b; Jack Wardhaugh c; Young c; Hunter 2b; Hunter cf; Adams lf, rf in seventh; Rankyr rf in seventh.

Northern: Harry Wardhaugh 3b; Herm 2b; DeHuddle cf; Rose c; Cousins ss; Locke lf; Pukanis rf; James lf; McCurdy p.

Peewee Softball

Blairds defeated Rotary by a 10-7 score in a Peewee Softball League fixture played at Fleming's Park on Friday evening.

The teams were deadlocked in the third, but then Blairds pulled away to a lead of seven runs before he was relieved by Donovan in the sixth. Donovan limited Rotary youngsters to four hits and walked two. He had no strikeouts. Poirier was behind the plate for the winners.

Dever went the route for the Rotary club. He gave up 11 hits, one less than his teammates collected, but walked 10 and his support was weak, the Rotary team making 10 miscues. Dever struck out four. Dugran was the catcher.

Poirier with four for five, was the big gun of the winners' attack, while George Till and Donovan each had a couple of singles in three official trips to the plate. For Rotary, Duggan led the list with two singles and a triple in five attempts.

The next game will be between Boots and Borces at 6.30 p.m. Tuesday.

Northern Girls Edge Rockettes

The Northern Electric Girls' softball teams defeated the 6 RD Rockettes 3-2 in a closely-fought battle at the Alemite Field in a League game at the Alemite field Wednesday evening.

The 6 RD lassies took the lead in the first inning on a hit and an error. They only held the lead for a short while when Northern came across with a run in the sixth. C.N.R. scored two in the second and one in the fifth and the ninth.

DeHuddle and Locke led the winners at the plate with a double and two singles apiece. Rose touched the ball for two singles while Harry Wardhaugh, Pukanis and Jones were rewarded with singles.

McFarland Co. Awarded Two Road Contracts

The McFarland Construction Company of Picton has been awarded contracts by the Ontario Department of Highways for the paving of two sections of highway in East Hastings, according to an announcement by Hon. Thomas Kennedy, M.P.P.

Work will commence shortly on the paving of seven miles of No. 7 highway east of Actinolite to the Addington county border. The pavement will be a four-inch consolidated surface, this type meeting with the requirements of the Trans-Canada Highway of which No. 7 will be a part.

The other resurfacing job awarded to McFarland is on No. 2 highway five miles easterly from Belleville city limits.

CALLS STATE CROOKED

STERLING, Ill. (AP)—An 88-year-old woman driver is spending five days in jail rather than pay a $10 traffic fine for the "crooked" state of Illinois. Justice of the peace Dora Hansen said he ordered Anna Pittman jailed Friday after she told him she would pay "no fine to a state because the state and its justices of the peace are "crooked."

The Old Hastings Road

The Ontario Intelligencer is indebted to Mr. James Easton, of Kennedy, Saskatchewan, for his reminiscences of early days in Hastings County as recounted in the following story. The incidents in this article concern people who pioneered Hastings County at the end of the last century and the early years of the nineteen hundreds, and who worked together by their only thread of communication — the Hastings Road.

One hundred acres of free grant land on the Hastings Road were advertised in Canada and the old country between 1880. The price was ten cents an acre.

Many came out and settled along the old Hastings Road, but found the land poor, frosty, and rocky.

The old Hastings Road ran west of Stymer's Lake and west of North Lake and came out west of the church. Later it was built as it now runs but there was no church on the top of the hill when the road was first built.

The Carlow road met the Old Hastings Road from Stymer's Lake and the road to Turiff went via Charlie Liddle's road by McGillivray Lake and came out from Carr's (Jas's) Corner into Easton or Nesbitt Settlement.

Madoc Nearest Centre

Madoc was about the nearest place where there were any merchants or stores, and from there most of the freighting was done. There were various stopping places along the way, such as Hannockburn, Wallbridge, then called Jordan, Jelly's Rapids, later called Deseronto, and Glenvale. Further north was Sandy Mountain and still further west was Tamworth where the mail changed teams and drivers.

The railroad going to Coe Hill crossed the Old Hastings Road at Rathburn, later called Bannockburn.

One of the early settlers along the Hastings Road was a man by the name of Isaac Stymers. He was a U.E.L. of German descent. Stymer's Road and Stymers Lake bear his name today.

He was a cooper and made pork barrels, potash barrels, and churns. His body and his wife's body lie in the Anglican cemetery at L'Amable, the district's first cemetery.

Another early settler was a man by the name of Robinson. He built a power house. He came from down the old Hastings Road and had a big farm, buildings and mills.

His daughters married men by the names of Hyde, Cook, and Stevens. The latter moved in when Robinson moved.

Later Will Lirman purchased the Robinson Place and had a cedar sing business over all the north points, with 20 or 30 hands working in Carlow, Maynooth, Egan Estate, Bruton Estate, and Stevenson.

Sevanson was a blacksmith and his shop was later operated by John Powers.

Mrs. Estelle Ben Spurr started a store, followed by Jim Spurr. J. Tait ran the Crown land agent for the Department for many years. He kept a huge store for a time and was the first reeve of the municipality of Dungannon and Faraday.

Fair Held Annually

A fair was held each year in L'Amable. Horses and vegetables were shown. Horse races were also held from the hills of the new school to Green's Corners. Talt, Sam Harpell, Will Jarman, and Walker and Hall competing. The fair was held back of the Cook's house which was burned. Sometimes the horses raced up the hill by the church.

They also played cricket in these times. Carlow Centre Cricket Club played L'Amable and Faraday.

The mail was brought in from Madoc by Tom Thrasher, near Murphy's Corners. Here the horses and drivers were changed. The new crew took the mail on to Maybooth.

Tait's at L'Amable, was the distributing centre for Bronson, Egan Creek and Carlow.

A man by the name of Coe possibly built the railway into Coe Hill when the iron mines were opened. The railway was surveyed to go through the foot of L'Amable Lake near Green's Corners but the grade was too great.

The Presbyterian Church was operated in 1881. Later the cemetery was acquired. William Walker, a twin, and a son of John Walker Sr., was the first person buried in the Presbyterian cemetery.

Henry Gaebel contracted to build the church for $1,000 and possibly did it for $400. They had a hard raising and Mr. John Turiff said there were too many men and half of them had to be sent home. The church was largely attended.

Deserved Greater Mention

Henry Gaebel should have had a cairn erected to his memory for building the church for so little money. He never received the credit he should have. I am very pleased to hear that there has been a service in the old L'Amable Church for the summertime, at least.

Bear Shanty located at Little Creek down the old Hastings Road east of the present Green's Corners got its name as follows: The men building the road left grease in a barrel in the shanty. The road was made from scraps of hollowed out logs, with the first layer having the hollow side up and the next layer the hollow side down over the joint. The bears tore off the scoops to get the grease and the name "bear shanty" stuck.

It was here that my grandfather James Gould, and my father, Robert Easton, lived for about 25 years. This was before Green's Corners existed. The name Green's the first name given the settlement.

Other early settlers besides James Gould and Robert Easton were Thomas Corry, Asa Long, and John Walker.

Asa Long lived on Liddle's place and was a son-in-law of Gould's. John Walker was on the Alex Morton farm. He was a brother-in-law of Corry, Alex McGibbon, Sr. was a neighbor and the old sheep road went from his place to land across from Jelly Creek and later taken up by George and William Easton and Fred and Jim Robb's around Robb's Siding.

Settlers north of "bear shanty" were Finnigan, Reynolds, Sam McCabe, Kavanagh, Dermod Kavanagh kept a hotel for a time. He was reeve of the municipality of Dungannon and Faraday for 23 years.

Farther north were Days, O'Neils, Kellys, Kellys, and Millsabers

Monthly Mail

Isaac Symers, who was mentioned earlier, carried the mail once a month from Carlow Post Office to the Branch (Bancroft). J. E. George was the postmaster. Further north were Sam Sparrow, Dour, and J. Moore Sr. Maynooth was the name of Cleary's Corners, and there were Doyle's, Greens, Reeses, Fitzgeralds and others living there.

Now to tell you of one incident that I personally carried out early of this story. James Gould was my grandfather. He lived on a farm in Liddle farm until about 37 years ago when I moved with my family to High View, Saskatchewan.

I lived with my grandfather and grandmother, at first. Then Sam Ray, had come from Jelly's Rapids with his family and settled on Gould and Mrs. sy went to Bird's Creek to visit Mr. Ray's sister, Mrs. Josiah Reid for Sr. They live there.

My grandfather was chopping down a tree when it fell and pinned him beneath it. My mother heard the dog barking, and father, who was thrashing in the barn with a flail, ran and found him.

They ran for Uncle Ach Long and got Uncle Henry and Louis L'Oglery.

Together they cut the tree away and carried him to the house.

There was no doctor nearer than Madoc.

My grandfather was in bad shape. His hand was broken, knee dislocated, and his left leg was broken at the thigh.There was little hope but uncle Acie started to walk to Madoc for a doctor.as

At Sunday Mendes he met a Mr. Gandler(later the Reverend Gandler) a clergyman, who offered his help. So they returned.

Grandfather never had the bone set so he had to walk with a stick. His right arm was broken and stiff, and his left leg crooked, yet he walked with it as straight as he could. He sowed grain with his right hand, cradled hay and hand made potash and cleared the land. He had men to follow the team. I accompanied him to Madoc to assist with the horses. He had 30 head of horses. He was a good team of horses.

My father died when I was about four and later my mother married again, this time to George Easton. and I remained with my foster parents. I was named after my grandfather.

After his death my step sister's house for me until I married Miss Accia Foster. Together we cared for grandmother Gould who was sick for six years and then I also helped in and out of bed. I was cook, store boy, and when there was no servant girl available, I worked inside as well as out. After caring for my grandmother I got the Charlie Liddle farm and all the property.

Right here I might say that four settlers including John and Alex Stewart came up from Lanark to Carlow. These men were no relation. They built a cheese and sold to get seed grain walked 90 miles down east and home again. These men were not connected with the Hastings Road but their feat should not go unnoticed.

The first shoemakers shop stood at the corner of Corney on the edge of the road across from Mud Lake was run by Alex Foster. Tom Walker, son of John Walker who had a shoemaker shop on the site of Turiff store and who gave his name to Walkerville, later called Carlow Corners, started the Machsmith shop before he built the house on the present site and the present Faraday Road. William Spurr built a store at Carlow Corner opposite the present store, and opened a store.

Satcliffe Lamb bought Tom Walker's blacksmith shop and started a store. Spurr had left the store and gone to Madoc. Later Lamb sold everything to property from Christie who lived in the home but did not run the store. When Green took over the George Gould farm, the stopping house was closed.

Named Bancroft

Bills Flint owned Bancroft. It was his wife' name. He helped Fuller get the Fuller - Mills and turned them over to William and Sam who operated the mill for many years.

George and Haase started the Presbyterian Church in Bancroft. Reverend Hart likely opened it. Elder John Wilson lived with Ben Spurr.

J. J. Clark was one of the first settlers in Bancroft, then known as the "Shoemaker" after New York Bill. He built a floor mill (grist) and the settlers as far away as Tamworth came to Bancroft on a home made sleigh, or, as there were no wagons, some made carts by sawing blocks of hardwood logs and making holes in the four axles. However, they were noisy as there was no axle grease at that time.

In the very early days a lot of settlers moved away to other places but some stayed. One of these was Tommy Fingrod, a weaver. He had a hand loom and as most of the early settlers kept a few sheep and the ladies were experts with hand cards, they carded the wool into rolls and spun it into yarn. They sent it to Tommy to be woven into flannel.

Later there was a carding mill started at Madoc and as they got more wool they sent it to Madoc to be woven into cloth.

Among the settlers who moved to the hardwood hills of the Branch (Bancroft) were Brooks, Bells and Vances. The Robbsons moved to the foot of L'Amable Lake and built a grist mill and saw mill. My father, Robert Easton, was a millwright by trade and operated the grist mill for three months teaching the Robbson boys the trade.

Others who moved away into the hardwood hills northeast of Lake Clarendon were Bill Bennett's, Ben Spurr, Ned Johnson, and Christian Sherwards. Some settlers went north were A.C. Baker who was the municipal clerk of the Township of Cashel and Faraday until his death. Henry Sr. and Uncle John Hardwick were also settlers. Mr. Robinson Mills at L'Amable about the year 1881 and carried on with the grist mill and saw mills until they burned down in the 1900's.

There was a Scotch family by the name of Henderson settled east of where Alex Moore lives on Cashel now owned by Mr. Wills, and John McLees. Later Charles McGuire, a son-in-law of Henderson's owned and later still August Rupnow, another son-in-law moved in from the Old Hastings Road

Early Headstones

Some of the first lumber men or sawyers, as they were called at that time were Shiercut. Peter Mc Cleak, John Conley and Henry Bentley. Some of the first "Tote or Cage" teamsters were Bob Lee, Jim Kingston, and Nelson Bradshaw.

Some of the early settlers looked after their crops with a hoe and reaped them with a sickle. Later they got grain cradles. The first separator or threshing machine was owned by Mr. Kennedy later by Albert and Bill Hennessy

Many of the early settlers did not have stoves. Fireplaces were built of stone and gave good light as well as heat for cooking.

Many of the women were expert at making rag carpets. Rags that they could get the tallow which they used for candles and soap were adept at soap making by leaching hardwood ashes making the lye, and boiling it with scraps of fat and bones. They roofed their buildings with cedar.

After the saw mills started they got out lumber, but shingles were made by hand, split from pine blocks and sawed by hand until Lyman put in a shingle mill about 1886 or 1887.

Some of the first settlers Peter Van Cleaks lumber camp and stables and Van Cleak Henderson, John Smith settled in the hardwood east of Egan Creek and started the Scotch settlement. Maitlands, Henderson and McGregors settled on the west side of the Hastings Road. The McGregors were great farmers.

Served On Council Board

After the separation of the townships of Dungannon and Faraday I served on the council board for several years under Reeves, Lalonde, Jarman, and Moore. I had as my colleagues Delcor, Hawkins, Calbick, Bentley, Conley, Lean, Anderson and Woods. I also served on the L'Amable school board for nine years and on our board we had a schoolteacher-wife for 16 years, making quarter century as a school board.

Alf Barker, Matt and Jim McLean and myself were poll-bearers for the Rev. Father Cain who was asking me if I remembered the two-penny house of Gendron.

The elders for the church at L'Amable were J. H. Cook, Alex Morton and John Wilson.

When I moved my family to Saskatchewan in 1911 it was in all sunshine and roses. The railroad was built from Regina to Prince Albert and we had to haul everything from Manor, a distance of 40 miles. Sharpnesses at first were trails, and through creeks. We stayed in a shack until my own home was built in the fall before cold weather came on.

I have never been sorry I moved my family here at that time, as they grew up with the country and are comfortably settled, most of them near at hand.

This is a mixed farming district and almost everyone keeps a herd of from 15 to 150 head of cattle. My youngest son, Frank, who was a baby when we left L'Amable, lives at home here with me, with his wife and two children. We have 1,280 acres of land and 160 head of Aberdeen-Angus cattle. I am one of the herds of that breed in Saskatchewan. I have very scarce. They are also raising sheep. The champion steer at the Toronto Royal in 1949 was one of our breeding.

We sow a quantity of alfalfa hay and usually cut from 100 acres of oats into green cut hay or sheaves. Last year I threshed 3,000 bushels of grain.

Sunday Church Built

We built a nice little country church here a number of years ago. Our Sunday School is here. Kennedy and has two appointments where I preach every Sunday. We have a service here every second Sunday, mornings and afternoon alternately, while the town has a night service every Sunday.

I would like to hear from the settlers who came from Lanark after the pioneers,who ate there out in 1827. They were R. McFee, J. Turner, W. McGee, Jas. Hamilton, Alex Stewart and T. Price. These started the Turiff settlement.

I would also like to meet Mrs. Elizabeth Keane of Bancroft. Before she was married she lived across Irving, who was born along the old Hastings Road. I am now 85 and I think she is older than I.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WILDFRED E. WILSON

FLIGHT PATTERNS

Not only are wings used quite differently by the various kinds of birds, but they differ in lengths and shapes most suitable for special purposes. Consequently the expert bird watcher is able to identify most species while in flight, even from a considerable distance. The tiny hummingbird flies along on narrower, non-flexible wings that make almost 80 beats a second. The big, red-shouldered hawk soars with opened wing tips like fingers. Men have tried to copy this device by making wing-slots in airplanes. The owls, nocturnal birds of prey, move in soundless flight because of wide feathers and soft pile.

The long wings of that remarkably fast flier, the chimney swift, are bow-shaped and stiff, making the bird's flight quite unique. Only the tips of the wings move, and the quick action is so rapid that man's eye cannot follow it. The crow, with its great barn flaps slowly along on wide wings, with the ability to keep aloft for at least 17 hours without stopping. Like-wise, the turkey vulture's slight heron flaps its wings in a wide arc. Great blue herons and gulls alternately flap and glide.

In the air, starlings rely on long flights and quick turns, mixed with their stubby appearance, for protection. Ducks have quick, direct flight. The flight of woodpeckers is undulating. Their wing action is entirely different, produced by a succession of several quick flaps and then a glide.

The wings of the best fliers are deeply cleft. Frigatebird's pull is an example. A quick step is made by applying the brake — outstretching wings and tail. Terns, which are relatives of gulls, have a remarkably light wing action, can flap or glide, twist and turn with the greatest agility. The lone part of the wing of a royal tern (with a spread of 44 inches) is actually longer than the gliding the gaps between the body and the wings are closed.

Even some birds bearing the name nuthatch are differently constructed because their actions are so unlike. The wings of a Cooper's hawk are rounded, its tail long and rounded at the end. This bird keeps to the woods. Its seldom soaring, but dashes through the bushes after its prey. However, the wings of a sparrow hawk have a few like an owl's, and end in sharp points. This noble-sized hawk usually hovers in the open on rapidly beating wings, looking for grasshoppers.

TRENTON MARKS CENTENNIAL

Citizens of Belleville, and indeed of the entire district, will join in offering felicitations to the residents of Trenton, as they prepare to open their Centennial Celebration on Sunday.

For a full week the residents of the progressive town of the mouth of the Trent will reminisce about past achievements—and dream of future accomplishments.

We wish them well. With becoming humility we shall not mention that Belleville's history goes back more than a hundred years, that it was in 1615 that city's site first unfolded before the eyes of Champlain, that it was in 1816 that Belleville received its present name, that in 1836 it was incorporated as a police village, and in 1850 became a town. Instead we shall join in celebrating with Trentonians a hundred years of growth—and shall share with them the conviction that the future holds even brighter, busier days.

A CHANCE TO BUILD THE FUTURE

Foster Parents' Plan for War Children is issuing an appeal to Canadians to assist in caring for some of Korea's 100,000 orphans.

The Plan was originated during the Spanish Civil War in Lidrise. It was conceived as a short-term emergency rescue project by its founders. But, alas, at no time during the past two decades has there been a period when the end of its usefulness appeared to be in sight.

Thousands of European children have benefited from the Plan. Each individual implies no legal or other responsibility, beyond the voluntary payment of a monthly allowance to maintain the child in a shelter in his homeland. Such shelter can at first be necessary for most of the Korean orphans, since 700,000 homes have been demolished in that unhappy land.

The risks like one war to which even the average Canadian can help build the peace of which the world still dreams.

Miss Gloria Matthews is the Canadian director of the Plan and she can be reached in care of the Foster Parents Plan for War Children, Box 65, Station B, Montreal.

HANDY GUIDE TO ELECTION SPEECHES

In our capacity of helpfulness to the general public we publish from time to time, items designed to inform, with no thought of molding opinion, about the issues coming federal election just seven weeks away we would like to initiate the reader into one small aspect of the art and science of "politicing" by publishing a portion of the much-coveted lexicon of time-tested cliches.

Some choice phrases are: "Viewing with alarm"; "pointing with pride"; "standing on the record"; "don't change horses in the middle of the stream"; "guided by the spirit of our forefathers"; "in the spirit, and with the vision that inspired our ancestors to found this great country"; "peace, prosperity and happiness unlimited for all"; "we have the experience needed to handle the complex problems of government today"; "what is needed is vigorous new leadership unhampered by degrading commitments, ready, willing and able to pursue the policy best suited to the country's needs"; "the only national party that embraces in its membership all the people, everywhere"; "a period of statesmanship"; "confident of victory"; "rid the government of expensive, and unnecessary practices"; "too long in office"; time for a change"; "reduce spending and reduce taxes in services"; "reduce spending and strengthen the economy"; "more social security benefits"; "a better deal for the farmer, the worker, the housewife, the executive, the retailer, wholesaler and consumer"; "united action"; "progress."

This is, obviously, just a beginning. But it will serve the purpose. When next you hear one of above phrases or their paraphrases you will know that a politician is nigh and that you are tuned in on the right wavelength. Party affiliation, however, you will have to discover for yourself.

Don't say we didn't warn you.

"HOMO SAPIENS IN A CAGE"

Something more than the mere making of a joke may have been in the mind of Oliver Jones, curator of the London Zoo when he exhibited a man in a cage recently. It was on the occasion of a Coronation reception at the Zoo on June 11. Guests were given quite a turn when, in touring the monkey house, their attention was attracted by a bearded, long-haired man who rattled the bars of one of the cages—from inside.

The cage was labelled "Homo Sapiens, the commonest man." Another explanation was only a bit of a joke to show what the common man had become after all these years of development.

It seems not to have been a bad joke at all. It must have been quite an arresting spectacle and may have done some good. A wild-looking man rattling the bars of a monkey cage under circumstances which would tend to indicate how narrow the margin really is. And such a demonstration might perhaps help to correct the thinking of those who tend to stray too far from that humility which it befits us humans to practice.—(Montreal Gazette.)

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

ROADS

Good roads across the nation lie,
On all who drive they ease the sigh
In valleys and on mountains high
Few dangerous hazards now remain.

And well it is that this is so,
Since traffic moves at swifter pace
Than that at which men used to go
With horse and rig from place to place.

But still the way for youth is far

And often slow the pace appears.
Still impatient the highways are
From place to place throughout the years.

And this is true, and true will stay:
Life's dangerous pitfalls still remain.
No good road runs from day to day.
Youth still must plod his goal to gain.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MOTHER EARTH

The book of Nature is so great that we can only dip into its aspects. We owe more to the good earth than we ever realize. I was intrigued a few days ago with "The Bushbreeder," by Michael Fairless. The author said: "To my Mother: and to Earth, my Mother, whom I love."

I would feel lost in a world too complex and full of riddles did I not have Mother Earth to go to. There is no want in any language as sacred as that of Mother. Mother, and Mother Earth is ours for all the years in life. Mother grass was composed in his mind that beautiful lovely poem, "The Story of My Heart." And he started to write with these words: "My heart was lonely, searched for and found the path of deep feeling; my mind arid and dry, for there was no rain. My cities on the heart as well as that which falls on a ledge." There is no want in any language as sacred as that of Mother. Mother, and Mother Earth is ours for all the years in life. Mother grass was far beyond in our eternal sleep within her arms. Within her great expanse are all the treasures about which any of us knows, as well as innumerable of the mysteries about which we now know nothing.

Mother Earth—ground of the hunter, home of the wandering beast, shelterer of birds, and garden dener to flowers, herbs and trees, watered from the dips of the clouds. Mother over all!

Changes take place so slowly that we are often not conscious that they are taking place.

There is a real reason to believe that some things in this country have become fragrantly bad without our being conscious of it. Once in a while the headlines shock us, or we hear the story of some scandal in circles in which we move, or we get a little sunburn element or a shocking social event in which people sink down to the level of animals.

But we shrug our shoulders and say that these things are the exceptions. And of course they are. But they are not the exceptions which call our attention to the sinister and alarming course that much of American life is taking.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL DOUGLASS

NEED FOR REFLECTION

General MacArthur when he came back to this country, is reported to have said that the moral decline he encountered and the lack of idealism astounded him beyond utterance.

Recently I have talked with others who have been out of the country for some years and they all were saying the same thing. They are amazed and shocked at the license prevailing in social circles, the increased drinking, the alarming increase of divorce, the low business groups, and the flagrant disregard of moral conventions which for centuries have appeared to guard the sacredness of much of human life.

Bugs Are Biting

(New York Times)

Maybe it just seems so, but are there not more bugs this year than usual? Always there are bugs, of course, for bugs are as much a part of summer as a trip to the beach—where many of them live, I know. But this year there seems to be an abnormally large supply. They fly, they crawl, they nibble away at the picnic's chicken sandwich and the bush beans in the garden, they buzz and swoop and some of them even sting. A wet spring may be responsible, or it may be only that the winter wiped out fewer insects than it usually does, seemed at the time to be equally abnormal. That is the way with bugs. No sooner are the storm windows off, and the screens and doors put into place, than bugs are getting into the house. Later on, of course, they must find holes in the screens, which is harder than getting indoors. Those that fail to get in need not, however, worry about failure. It is not necessary to be only to bird outdoors, waiting for humanity. It is known that he will emerge, that dinner which is so attractive to many types of bugs. Those which escape until this year even more attractive than usual.

Bugs. About bugs, the handy little encyclopedia has this to say:

"The common name applied to the various members of the order head half of the wing is one of the forms is thickened like thickening covers of beetles, while the other is membranous and wingless. The mouth parts are fitted for piercing and sucking. Nearly all are plant feeders, some of plants, a few partake of animal juices alone, and several both animal and vegetable fluids; hence, economically, the order is very important."

* * *

Unquestionably the Messrs. Ford & Vagnalls put that very nicely, especially the part about the subsistence on animal juices. That particular order is injurious indeed. Among them is the bug which always turns up uninvited at the picnic? This is an odd type, perhaps deserving a classification of its own. No sooner has the hamper been opened than the bug arrives, either by wing or on foot, and promptly seeks out the chicken sandwich, crawling inside the wrapped paper in order to do so. Now everyone knows the juices of chicken are excellent food, but the manner of cooking they are bound to have changed before they reach that state. Why, then, should they have such a strong appeal for bugs? After all, in the course of a lifetime bugs cannot get too many chicken sandwiches. Or perhaps it is not the chicken which appeals, but the mayonnaise. Again, how would a bug know? How would bugs learn in the first place that a picnic was planned? Is there some unsuspected channel is that there must exist some highly trained to detect sandwich preparations the night before. No other theory holds much water.

If any further proof be needed that bugs have scouts to lead them, an experiment was made with a small piece of potato. Plant this in the spring in a place where you can watch it back to the Indians, has a crop of delicious tubers in the fall. The chances are that it will come up, will sprout and flourish, and that potato bugs will be the midsummer it will be offering of its fluids to the colony of bugs. Now that there is only one plant, which in fact is not native to the area and in all history had they been there before, so why, then, do they suddenly appear? It is impossible why in which they can learn of its plant is by way of the scouts, ed in strategic positions. Such as Long Island, where they have their talk. Such as Idaho, where the big cows are built up for baking. Such as Ohio, where the plant, of spying on the destination of the bugs, or potatoes which may merely be eaten rather than planted. Hens Once Used to Ducks

(Windsor Star)

Swift passage of time is illustrated by a story from Bainbridge, N.Y., telling of the hen which hatched a mallard duck eggs. It described her bewilderment when these unnatural off-spring took to the water instead of the land.

Thirty years ago such occurrences were commonplace on Ontario farms. Many housewives didn't bother keeping a pair of ducks every year but did like a few ducks each year for eating purposes. In the spring, the setting of duck eggs from a neighbor's flock was common clucking hen. The hen did the job of hatching them quite satisfactorily.

She wouldn't seem to evince any surprise at the discovery that her strange brood until the little ones found a pond, pond, lo and behold go, paddling around with dignified enjoyment. The mother hen got into a dither then and plead with them to come out. Her pleadings got no attention, swimming until willing to come out of their own accord. Finally she herself to the nearest to her brood. The little ones found food in the water, and in dignified enjoyment. The mother hen got into a dither then and plead with them to come out. Her pleadings got no attention, swimming until willing to come out of their own accord. Finally she herself to the nearest to her brood. The little ones found food in the water, and in dignified enjoyment.

She wouldn't swim to the pond herself. She ran up and down the bank, clucking and scolding, and pleading with them to come out. Her pleadings got no attention, swimming until willing to come out of their own accord. Finally she herself to the nearest to her brood. The little ones found food in the water, and in dignified enjoyment.

Here's Angler In the Making

(Fort William Times-Journal)

A Fort William teacher recently had a class project to her third grade pupils about rabbits and what they like to eat. Carrots, particularly fond of carrots.

To brighten the little lesson, the teacher drew a picture who also likes a raw carrot. She said that he is sitting on his own raw carrot from the garden to eat.

After the teacher had finished, a little hand was thrust up.

"Yes, Tommy?"

"I saw a rabbit once that did eat a carrot." He backed up right to the end of the yard, then put his head down, and ran right at it. Then he bunted the carrot with his head and loosened it. Then he dug down around the carrot with his paws. And then he ate it."

Now there's a good fisherman growing up!

Sweater Fad Unfair to Men

(Lethbridge Herald)

The tight-fitting sweater fad, which we understand was started by a movie actress named Lana Turner, has got a hand in recent years. So much so that many women would be dead in a comfortable, loose-fitting sweater. Some of them, of course, look well in any kind of any type of sweater, but the majority of women look terrible if isn't dressed properly if she isn't wearing one which fits her like a glove.

The mere male is the one who suffers most from the fad. He contacts him. He cannot concentrate on his work. He cannot keep his eyes from the girls. Anything which can minimize his suffering should be welcomed.

We favor a ban of the tight-fitting sweater during working hours.

Expresses Thanks

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

As Jamie Clark's visit to Dunbrae Girls' Home is over, I, on his behalf, and on behalf of his relations in Dundee, ask the courtesy of your columns to express thanks to the citizens of Belleville who subscribed to the cost of the trip. Our thanks are also due to those responsible for the organization.

Reds' Love Talk Is Poor

(Philadelphia Bulletin)

That Burma girl who sits by the old Moulmein Pagoda looking lazy at the sea may not be thinking of love at all. She may be too long defers his return via the Road to Mandalay.

Report has it that the Burmese communists have a language of love. One no looser say. "You are beautiful," or asks, "will you marry me?" One says, "You look like a fine party worker," and asks, "Will you help me in the class struggle?" And such like.

But haven't the communists outsmarted themselves in this? Wouldn't it be more usually advisable to use new meanings that will drive the old? Love is a tough customer.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. READY

IT'S GREAT TO HAVE TEETH YOU CAN GRIT

In The Little Things in Life (Appleton-Century Co.) '27, Bernet Sure, Ph. D., said:

DR. Ready mand. Toothache, however, due to abscesses and caries, is common everywhere; so are inflamed and swollen gums, which frequently are associated with pyorrhea that results in loose teeth . . . Clinical observations, however, indicate that the activity and extent of dental caries are quite evidently related to the degree of mouth cleanliness. Relatively clean teeth may be extensively decayed, and filthy mouths may contain sound teeth and healthy gums."

Understand, now, hucksters, I'm just quoting the words of Prof. Sure.

Just what a "filthy mouth" may be, I do not know, unless it means a mouth in which there are several neglected cavities in the teeth.

In his book about vitamins, hormones and other minute essentials of vile, Dr. Sure quotes Cross who said thirty years ago:

"Investigation has proven that 96 per cent of the children born to this country from the southern part of Europe have sound teeth, while 12 per cent of the well known that 98 per cent of American children have defective teeth. Strange to say".

What do you mean, strange? Strange, indeed, to say how (continues Cross) the "vast majority of the foreign children" (coming to America) have better teeth than those who looked like until they entered American schools."

Now, what is "strange" to dentists, physicians, teachers and parents who, understand the fundamentals of good health, is not strange to them. They know that a balanced diet is by way of being essential for mouth hygiene and the prevention of tooth decay. As the lower animals know, the "alcoholic proving" their glorified soap the gullible Yankee public will condo any good.

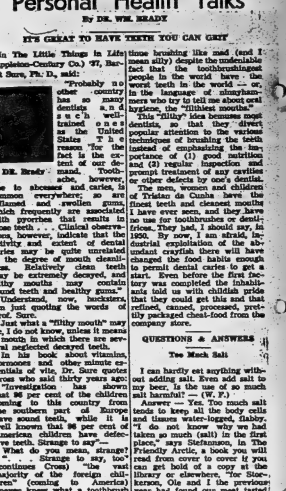
THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK



Due to the pretty general adoption of new regulations protecting the forests, campers, tourists and summer cottagers and tourists are soon likely to become as well accustomed to the beaver as they are with the porcupine. In areas in the near wilderness that have not been seen in two generations, they will be encountering beaver dams. And many a cottager will arrive at his summer home this week to find that the beaver has been busy with the tell-tale stumps and chips of freshly-felled willow and other trees.

The untidy, heaped up lodge is not hard to locate, and when, if an lodge is in evidence, a home dug in an earth bank on the near stream should be looked for.

Beaver have become accustomed to human company, and can be observed from vantage points not too distant for make-work trips. The beaver is eager, all right, but he is also capable of intelligent ambition. At any summer place, there is a river in which a nasty narrows occurs and a strong current flows. This narrows is just large enough to permit the beaver-pleasuring cruiser to pass through it. On our infrequent visits to the cottage in early spring, a fine big old beaver was regularly observed sitting on a rock at the upstream end of the narrows. When boats came by, he would slide off the rock and vanish. But whenever seen he were peacefully and thoughtfully of depression. He was an engineer with a problem in his mind.

Then one week-end we noted with astonishment that the narrows of the river, upstream from the narrows, were lined with beautiful trees, about a foot and a half to twenty feet long, all trimmed of branches, and at least thirty in number. Each log was laid ready, one end in the water, the other landed in the beam. We had interrupted the old dam builder at the very moment he had got his material all ready and was about to bild a massive and solid construction to meet next Spring.

One of the neighbors pinched his logs and towed them away to his own place, but the beaver refused to be over disappeared. But the chances are he is back at the old spot quite bition. At any summer place, there is a river in which a nasty narrows occurs and a strong current flows. This narrows is just large enough to permit the pleasure-boating cruiser to pass through it. On our infrequent visits to the cottage in early spring, a fine big old beaver

Big Show's 1400 People Like Pastry

Circus Cookhouse

SCENES IN HOTEL RINGLING G, the dining department of the huge Hotel Ringling and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

It's all not rough eating in the Hotel Ringling, which is the dining department of the Ringling Bros and Barnum & Bailey Circus, coming to Belleville, Wednesday, July 1st.

For the people with the world's best traveling amusement organization like gourmet chefs who prepare their table delicacies work as hard as do the daring food chefs.

The two mobile kitchens, which start cooking at midnight, they roll off the long, circus flat cars to the railroad yards at dawn, can, in their baking ovens, turn out 52 pie-size cakes at a time. As for tarts, eclairs and other tea room pastries—write your own ticket.

George Blood is the big boss of the 134 chefs, cooks, waiters, bus boys and helpers who make up the personnel of the Hotel Ringling, "The Cookhouse," circus jargon.

And when the yellow mealtime pennant runs up the cloing tent halyards, and the word is passed announcing the circus family of 1,400 people that the "flag's up, everybody knows a piping hot, satisfying meal of fish, flesh or fowl is ready — with delicious dessert, too.

The 1953 performances of The Greatest Show on Earth, starting at 2:15 and 8:15 P.M., with doors open at 1 and 7, are preceded by hundreds upon hundreds of globally renowned artists, including members of several famous European stars, in the world's largest big top now comfortably air-ventilated.

Featured in the mammoth menagerie are the famous young gorillas, Gargantua the Second and Bushi Boy Wiregarden, a colony of the world's tallest giraffes.

CIVIL DEFENCE

Panic

By JACK BEETY

One of the major problems which civil defence members would come up against in the event of a disaster would be that of the old stand-by, panic. This emotion is seldom a rare thing when sudden tragedy takes place. Cause of this natural, human reaction has always been motivated by fear and it is not necessarily a fear for one's own safety.

Anyone who has anything to do whatsoever with the civil defence movement is either consciously or unconsciously preparing against panic. The readers of this column are likely preparing against the reaction unconsciously. When you read of the steps to expect and are able to recognize certain signs as indications of whether any type of disasters, you are preparing for panic by a well against panic, with knowledge.

Psychiatrists claim that 90 per cent of fear, commonly known by man is the fear of the unknown. They say we are afraid because we do not know what to expect. As a practical example, take the child who is afraid to walk into the room. Push him into it against his will, and you likely have the man panic. Enter with him and be willing to walk at a leisurely pace grasps a floating leg. What is he afraid of? Ask the child and he likely will tell you, "Nothing, dumm."

Remember Norcsis Fire

That just about sums up panic. Not knowing. Those wishing an illustration of panic need look at the 1949 Noronic fire in Toronto. Many aboard the ill-fated pleasure cruiser knew something was wrong but did not know exactly the cause of all the excitement.The indirect result was the loss of many lives that could have been saved. On the other hand, in the event of fire, natural born leaders among the passengers would have taken charge persons and led them to safety.

So from those simple observations we might assume the remedy for panic is wise and able leadership. That is true but the fence people are trained in leadership. Those knew something about what to expect, but also, how to bring about the desired result of confusion.

No matter what type of disaster was to hit our city, those who are trained would be expected to act in calm voices. In the first aid classes they are taught how to handle a person in the throws of panic. Controlling the panic stricken is one of the toughest jobs a civil defence agent might come up against.

To show how powerful this reaction could be, the Saturday Evening Post in an article of the, effects of the atomic explosion in Nagasaki, cites the case of a man who was in the roof of al. tall building when the bomb was detonated. He was blown to the street by the force of the blast, picked himself up and ran a mile and a half. That in itself is not an outstanding feat says the Post, except the man did it with a broken back.

Origin of "Panic"

The word "panic" is derived from the supernatural. The encyclopedia attributes the word as arising from sudden meetings by bands of mythology days, with Pan, the god of shepherds, and man and rural inhabitants. Pan was a monstrous appearance, by having two small horns in his head, a ruddy complexion, a flat nose and his legs, thighs, tail and feet were like those of a goat.

Supposed to dwell in the woods and mountains of Arcadia he was the most part of the time being ostracized by the other gods. It is said that a meeting of man on him in the woods, sudden flight and great alarm took place on the festal's day, and hence the word "panic".

When any fear is often not for ourselves in disasters, we refer to the fear for those relatives and loved ones not with them at the time of the disaster. And especially if any such relatives be to prevent them from reaching the stricken behaviour. Remember we can kill you. It has killed others and it will kill you.

If there is one thing civil defence people train for, you are sure know it is panic, for it is contagious. However, although they fear this knowledge will be of benefit in bringing about, rest assured, civil defencers will not panic over your panic.

Pea Harvest In Full Swing Around District

The annual pea harvest is again in full swing with packing factories having commenced canning operations within the past week. The pea crop in the district is larger this year than last year, according to one canning factory official.

According to canning factory officials, the pea crop is also of highly important for a good pea crop. Unless rain is received during a certain period, there will be no amount of rain later will do the same good.

The majority of peas are threshed at special "viners" set up in the country and then the threshed peas are trucked to canning factories.Pea straw is also in demand sold back to farmers during the winter for cattle feed.

Although the pea yield is an uncertain one, the harvest provided a quick cash crop by farmers and is one of the few crops that can be harvested in time to allow for buck wheat to be sown on the same land.

The canning firms negotiate for peas for sowing, and some factories also do the harvesting, leaving the farmer little more to do than prepare the ground and do the planting. The farmer is paid on the basis of pea yield.

First Graduating Class Receives Grade Certificates

The first graduating class to receive a full year's tuition within the walls of Air Chief Marshal L. S. Breadner School stepped forward, Thursday night, to receive their Grade VIII certificates of completion and to hear following the words of their school motto—"Through Hard Work to Knowledge."

In his farewell address to the twenty-two graduates, Principal D. Dwyer reminded them that they would need "strength to overcome obstacles, patience to toil until finished, charity to see good in ungainly forms to be useful and helpful to others and hope to remove fears for the future."

Mr. Dwyer gave sound advice to the 1953 class when he recommended that they retain their "sense of humor and keep your eyes open" and that they promote and safeguard health. He added, "people are suffering from too much success rather than too little."

In addition, he stated, "a proper sense of values is difficult to have today due to the large amount of advertising which gives a false impression," and continued with further advice by stating, "don't forget that when you are down and out your opposition is the greatest brute of world, so don't give up."

He referred to mental illness as the "scourge of the century" and to charity as "broad-mindedness with regard to race, color and creed."

The 1953 valedictorian is Rowland Tinline, son of F/O and Mrs. W. D. Tinline, who recently distinguished himself by being chosen one of two Trenton representatives to attend the Canadian Legion Provincial Orator-ical competitions to be held, August 2, in Sudbury, to determine the best elementary school orator in Ontario.

Valedictory Address Given

If F/O Tinline's duties keep him in Trenton next year, Roy will start his first year of high school in Trenton. His valedictorian address followed the presentation of certificates and prizes to 55 students in the school's auditorium.

G/C Hawtery, chairman of the Air Marshal Breadner School Board, stressed the importance of higher education in speaking to the gathering of students and their parents. "The more problems you can solve, the more successful you will be," he stated and concluded his remarks by wishing the graduates every success and congratulations from the school board.

Guest Speaker Heard

Rene Simons, on behalf of the graduating class, presented a gift to Mr. C. Bonter, Grade VIII staff teacher.

Guest speaker, Mr. John C. Garrett, of Trenton high school, welcomed the graduates into their elementary school education program and advised: "Don't choose the easiest subjects since half the aim of education is to develop good work habits." He gave the graduates a brief resume of subjects being offered in Trenton high schools.

School crests were awarded to outstanding athletes Bob Shore, Jennifer Jones, Jean Sawyer, senior girls; Susan Dever and Judy Bachelder, intermediate girls; Paul Rodrigue, intermediate boys; Bill Russell, junior boys, and Leslie Dever, junior girls.

The opening prayer was taken by S/L K. W. House, RCAF Station Protestant Chaplain, and the closing prayer was given by F/L. J. J. R. Gignac, RCAF Station Roman Catholic Chaplain.

Some 150 parents stood in silence to voice to sing "Land of Hope and Glory" under the direction of Miss Collette O'Keefe, musical director for the graduating school.

A musical program featured the RCAF Trenton Command Band, under the direction of Flying Officer C. O. Hunt.

Kindergarten and Grades I and II students were awarded prizes at a big graduation party in the school. Kindergarten award winners were: Roberta Paris, Valerie Jaday, Andrew Boulton and Peter Gilbard. Successful Grade I students were: Janet McNeil, Brian Dowds, Wendy Kerr, Gary Mitchell, Gary Churchill, Jane Wright, Anne Atkinson, Cole Barton, Patricia Harrington, Rosemary Albrough, Anne Davis and Warren Magnusson. Grade II awards went to Lorraine Ralph, Jon Billie Irving, Margaret Frederics and Marjorie Ann Hendrick, Lee Dawn, Joy Turnbull and James Buckland.

OUT-OF-TOWN PERSONALS

Mrs. J. M. McDermott, of Read, has returned home after spending the past two months with Mrs. M. Kenny, and relatives, of Elm Creek, Manitoba.

Many Attend Campfire Service

On Monday evening, a large crowd gathered at the Riverside School for a Campfire Service. The following is the evening's program: call to worship by the teacher, Arthur M. Rodger; opening hymn, "Day is Dying in the West"; prayer led by Rev. H. C. Secker, of Stirling; solo, "Bless This Outdoor Chapel, Lord"; by Miss Marlene Carlisle; Scripture, "Indian's 23rd Psalm", by Adrian Vreugdenhil; solo, 23rd Psalm, by Kenneth Rose; musical number, by Rev. W. S. Irwin; explanation of Hebrews 12:1-2 by Rev. A. E. Baker.

Book Awards

Rev. Mr. Baker has given religious awards to the school during the past two years, and at this time asked many of the pupils to recite a number from memory passages. Book awards were made by Mr. Baker to many of the pupils for high marks obtained in religious education and in spelling.

At this time, Ruth Mercumber made the presentation of a bowl, by golden tea pot to Mr. Baker, and Shirley Howes made the presentation of a cup and saucer to Mrs. Baker on behalf of the teacher and pupils.

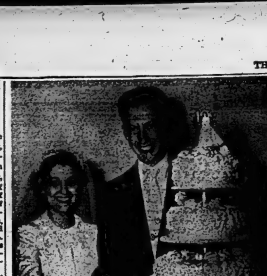
Mrs. Baker supplied music for this service with her sweet-toned portable organ; vocal number by Mr. George Wright; poem by Paul Tyrer, entitled "Youth"; duet, "Footsteps", by Ruth Shilton", by Mrs. A. K. Baker and Mr. Rodgers; readings by Edith, Marianne and Malcolm Crewe, Lenis Vreugdenhil, Joyce Benedict, Kenneth Rose, Jean Abrams, Patsy Armstrong, and Alexi Stickle; vocal solo, Mrs. Baker; "Trust Mr. Rodgers, "My Peace is Like a River"; Mr. Jack Bunn, "Seek Ye The Lord"; and Beverley Wannamaker, "Fairest Lord Jesus"; duet by Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Chase; chorus by the senior pupils, "Living For Jesus"; prayer by Rev. W. S. Irwin; talk from Moses 10, by Mr. Rodgers; hymn, "Near to the Heart of God" and Friendship Circle.

A friendship circle was formed at this time about the campfire, after which all joined in singing "Rest Sweet Nights" the "Red Birds" and "Spirit of the Living God".

The treasurer, Mrs. Baker, then took the form of a weiner and marshmallow roast. Sandwiches, cake and cookies were served in the school.

Mr. Wilbert Reid, on behalf of the school board and parents, expressed appreciation to Mr. Rodgers for a progressive year at the school and also their regret at his leaving to teach at Prince of Wales School, Bellaville.

Weddings



CHILD—VANDERVOORT

Standards of red and white peonies, interspersed with ferns, formed a lovely setting on Saturday, June 6, at 2:30 p.m. in Idaho Falls Temple, Idaho Falls, Idaho, U.S., for the marriage of Marion Yvonne Vandervoort, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent J. Vandervoort of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred B. Vandervoort, to Val Dee Child, of Hyrum, Oregon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arvel L. Child. President William E. Nelson officiated. Organist of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, officiated in the double-ring ceremony.

Soft organ music was rendered by the Temple organist throughout the ceremony.

The charming bride, radiant in her bridal gown of white Chantilly lace over taffeta, featuring a molded bodice having a Peter Pan collar, long sheer lily-point sleeves ending in lily-points over the hands; and bouffant skirt fashioned of nylon net over taffeta with lace inserts, wore a fingertip veil of tulle illusion held by a tiara encrusted with seed pearls. She carried a heart-shaped cascade bouquet of red roses interlaced with white satin bows and lace. Miss Nani Child, of Hyrum, Oregon, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, attractively attired in pink organdy with square neckline, puffed sleeves, and ballerina, bouffant skirt. She wore a corsage of pale pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Val Dee Child are pictured cutting the wedding cake following their marriage in Idaho Falls Temple, Idaho Falls, Idaho. The bride is the former Miss Marion Vandervoort, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred B. Vandervoort, of Belleville, and the bridegroom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arval L. Child, of Idaho Falls, Idaho. — (Photo by Schoen, Nyssa, Oregon.)

Ferne Gerrie Tells of Visit To Oldest Indian Temple

Mission House,
Akola, Berar, M.P., India
June 1, 1953.

Dear Praying Friends:

"Months, they speak not" says how they, but they see not: they have ears but they hear not: neither do they speak to me small not: they have hands, but they handle not: feet have they, but they walk not: neither speak they through their throat." Psalm 115: 5-7.

Such were our thoughts as we walked through one of the largest and oldest temples in India, located in the city of Madura. It is over 3000 years old and two square miles in size, built in honor of the two wives of Krishna. As we walked stockinged-footed through those long corridors, littered with tiny deep saffron clothed images, we momentarily were transported to the days when Jesus lived on earth. One could readily visualize how Christ felt when He entered the temple and cast out the money changers and merchants who were making gains in the House of Worship.

Many Idols

In this huge, massive temple, thousands of people, mostly eager worshippers, were making the pilgrimage to the many idols, well-fed sadhus (Hindu holy men) were thriving on the gifts from the worshippers. The temple was infested with these men who lived in the temple and looked after the many idols. The daily tasks consisted of bathing the idols and feeding them, and lighting the thousands of small lights for worship.

We heard the loud clanging of cymbals, the ringing of bells and saw a group of men on their way to bathe one of the idols. Upon leaving the temple a huge elephant was ridden right into the temple, probably to be worshipped, since it was a holy elephant. It was interesting to see as we saw this place wholly given over to the worship of Satan, for those who were truly seeking peace of heart had to leave the temple just as they went in.

In contrast to this very depressing scene, we attended a service that thrilled our hearts only a month ago previously, when hundreds of seeking souls attended our annual "mela" (camp meeting).

MYERS—IRISH

On Saturday, June 20, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Irish, the marriage of Miss Lois Irish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Irish, 16 Emma Street, Stirling, and Mr. Donald Myers son of Mr. and Mrs. Murry Myers, Stirling, took place. Rev. W. Hyndman, Hamilton, officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a powder blue sheer nylon dress and carried pink roses.

Miss Ella Irish, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, gowned in a pink nylon dress and white hat, and carried yellow roses.

The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Ken Myers.

Holy Rosary Altar Society Sponsors Strawberry Social

Wednesday evening the ladies of the Holy Rosary Altar Society sponsored a delightful strawberry social in the school grounds of Holy Rosary school. The perfect weather conditions added greatly to the success of the occasion. Some tables with their gay coverings white cloths, and vases filled with garden flowers, while others had pink and white roses which reflected their pretty shades, combining with that of the flowers and lighted candles, the most attractive.

Tables Booths

There were booths for both sweet and those not so sweet. The fishpond was a drawing card for the children, and was sold out almost before the appointed time for opening. At the pre-view party there were many lovely dolls in assorted colors; beautifully embroidered pillow slips; crocheted tea cosies and sprons of many styles; aprons and mitts, and dainty and useful.

For those who have a never-failing thirst there was the booth of soft drinks, which was held in the church hall, where local soloist, musical numbers by local musicians, and dancing, all mixed an enjoyable time.

Father Michael Ryan, C.S.S.R. was the lovely, Dresden quilt, made by the ladies of the Altar Society. This was won by Miss Margaret Matheson.

Other attractive cards were the dressed doll, won by Miss Louise Bell; the Kewpie doll, won by one with its peaks of pink icing, won by S. McKenna, and the cushion by M. McKenna.

Following the delicious repast, the entertainment program was of great success.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

This is the time of year when a woman entertaining friends for supper wants something easy to prepare, yet not too costly. She wants something cool, something she can prepare the day before and something which will keep in the refrigerator should there be any leftovers . . . If she has young children, she will prefer food which they can eat up the day after the party and so leave her free to tidy the house again.

Our favorite party supper (whether it is set for late afternoon or midnight, starts with cold tomato juice. Then comes tossed tuna fish salad, made with chopped celery tops, onion, dash of lemon juice and a little mayonnaise dressing without oil. To brighten up the salad, you can add a quarter or half package of frozen peas which have been cooked and chilled.

If the salad bowl is lined with crispy green lettuce, touched up with carrot chips and celery sticks, it looks ever so cool and tempting. Now, can be made the morning, covered and kept cold until needed. A tray of buttered hovis and whole wheat bread goes with the salad.

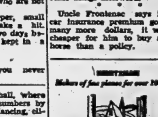
For dessert, we Marsys make two big bowls of fruit jelly requiring one jelly powder for each bowl, and one large tin of fruit cocktail split between the two bowls.

In the morning, we like to beat up a gold cake mix Half an hour before serving, we beat a half pint of whipping cream. This is sufficient to ice the cake generously and leave enough over for a small bowl beside the fruit jelly for those who are not dieting.

To top off the supper, small meringues always make a hit. These can be made two days before the party and kept in a cookie tin.

Keep Well

With this supper you never need worry about running out of food, because you can make plenty with the confidence it can be eaten up later. Tuna fish salad will keep for three or four days anyway in the refrigerator. It is handy for sandwiches.



The meringues will keep, so will the jelly and cake if covered and chilled. The children will like the fruit jelly and meringues. And they can eat them without mother stewing about their figures.

New Bags

One of the big disadvantages of unsliced bread is that it is difficult to keep from going stale when it always comes unwrapped at the baker's. Yesterday, we couldn't resist the sight of a golden brown loaf in a home bakery window.

To our surprise, the clerk dropped it into a brown waxed paper bag. This is something new all right. It keeps the bread fresh and is ever so handy for other things afterward.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

When A Fiancee Objects, Should They Marry?

How far should young people go in trying to win over antagonistic parents before marrying?

You know the kind of thing I mean? Two young people are engaged, but the date of their wedding can't be set because the parents of one of them are against the marriage and both young people are reluctant to act in the face of such disapproval.

A situation of this kind is the subject of a letter from a young woman of 19 who is engaged to a young man of 23, now in the air force.

"While he has been in service," the girl writes, "he has been going to college, and even though he has three more years to go before finishing, he will continue his education after his discharge from the service, which will be in about eight months.

"Although I have been writing to his mother, and have sent her gifts on such occasions as her birthday, Mother's Day, and so forth, I have never met her, or any others of his family, until recently. Our trouble is that she does not want my son and me to get married, so therefore she has never either answered my letters or thanked me for the gifts. My fiance has two older brothers and a sister who have never married because of his mother.

"Last weekend she did consent to come and meet me, but no matter how hard I tried to please her, she found fault with everything I did. Her son and I could not help but notice, her attitude, but we made an effort as though nothing were the matter. She has now gone away on a trip, and our plan is to get married while she is away and just not let her know it for awhile.

"Do you think we would be doing very wrong if we did this? We are so very much in love, and don't want to wait a long time to be married, yet we don't want to hurt his mother. I plan to keep on working and together we will be able to make enough for my boy friend to finish college. My family knows him, and they approve of our getting married.

Wait a Reasonable Time

"Do you think that if we went ahead and got married without his mother's consent I could eventually win her love by continuing to write her nice letters and send her gifts on special occasions? Is there anything else I could do to make her like me?"

Now if this young couple have made intelligent plans for their future, and know they will be able to bring marriage even through the three years while the young man is finishing his education, I would say there was no real reason why they should not be allowed to do so. And if, after waiting a reasonable length of time for the mother to come around and doing everything possible in the meantime that might result in a change of attitude, they find her still adamant, then I think they have every right to go ahead with their plans. For, in view of what has already happened in the family, where the mother has prevented other children of hers from marrying, it seems quite obvious that her opposition in the present instance is for the same piece: she simply wants to keep her children tied to her. It would be all in favor of at least one son getting away from the unreal circle in which he now finds himself hopelessly enmeshed in the same net in which his mother holds the others.

So far, I go along with these two. Where my thinking deviates from theirs is in regard to marrying without his mother's knowledge. This girl wants desperately to win not only the approval of her future mother-in-law, but also, certainly, her affection. Why aggravate and complicate things by compounding the trouble and marrying not only without her approval but her knowledge as well? Already, she is antagonistic toward the girl because she represents a threat to her happiness. Unreasonable though such an attitude is, it will be difficult enough to erase or even to soften it. How much more difficult, if she is given real reason for resentment by having her son get married behind her back, so to speak, since she would, of course, hold the girl entirely responsible.

Wait Till Mother Returns

What I would suggest is that they wait until the mother has returned from her trip, and then tell her they are planning to be married on such and such a date — then tell her that they hope with all their hearts that she will give her consent and attend their wedding, but that, if she refuses, they will have to go ahead without her.

If this should happen, then all they can do after that is what they are doing now — continue to make every effort to bring about friendly relations with the mother. If they determine never to lose patience, no matter what she says or does; if they pay her regular visits — Providing she allows them to do so — write her often, invite her to come and see them, and remember her, as the girl has been doing, with gifts on appropriate occasions, they may in time win her over. If they do not, however, the wrong will lie on the mother's side, and, in the long run, they have no guilty feelings about what they have done.

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

Question:

Would you please send recipes for Pineapple cream pie, also simple recipes for rolled doughnuts and glaze. I wish to thank you so much for help received.—Myron M.

Answer:

Pineapple cream pie and doughnut glaze appeared here recently so I am mailing you copies of them.

Raised Doughnuts

Soak 1 package granular yeast in ¼ cup lukewarm water with 1 teaspoon sugar for 10 minutes, then stir in. Mix together in a large bowl 3-4 cup lukewarm milk, 1-4 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt. When yeast is ready add it and stir in. Rest in 1 egg and 1-4 cup soft shortening. Add all-purpose flour and measure 3 1-3 cups. Stir this in first with strong spoon, then knead with hands. Smooth over top, brush with soft butter, cover and let raise until doubled. Punch down dough, turn it over, pull sides to centre, cover and let rise again until almost doubled. After second rising roll out dough on lightly floured board to 1-3-inch thickness. Cut with floured 2-inch doughnut cutter. Let rise on board until very light. Do not cover. Have ready deep hot clean fat at 375 deg. Fahr.

Carry board to stove and slip doughnuts into fat on wide spatula. Only fry as many at one time as can readily be turned as they must be evenly cooked to golden color. Turn over. It requires about three minutes to fry both sides. Without pricking doughnuts lift from fat, drain a little, drain on absorbent paper.

Question:

I am a regular reader and enjoy your column immensely. Would you send a small recipe for soft sugar roll-out cookies, for use with regular shortening, etc.—Mrs. F. L. W.

Answer:

Soft Rolled Cookies

Mix together well 1-3 cup soft shortening, 1-3 cup sugar, 1 egg, 1-3 cup honey. Sift together and add 2 3-4 cups sifted all-purpose flour (exact measurement), 1 teaspoon each salt and soda; add vanilla or lemon extract, about 1 teaspoon. (1 teaspoon g'nger and 2 teaspoon cinnamon may be added if desired.) Stir well and chill. Roll out thick—about 1-4 inch. Cut into large rounds with scalped floured cookie cutter. Place 1 inch apart on lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake until when touched lightly with finger, no imprint remains. For small batch cut recipe in half.

Note—These cookies are excellent for cutting into shapes for children's parties. They may be iced and decorated if desired.

Question:

Would you have recipes for making rhubarb wine and for rhubarb juice to be used as fruit juice. I tasted some years ago and remember it to be delicious. —Betty T.

Answer:

I am going to give you rhubarb punch for I think that is what you are referring to. If not leave out the orange juice and lemon juice and add more water or ginger ale and only add ice and water.

Rhubarb Punch

Four cups rhubarb cut in small pieces, 2 cups sugar, 1-2 cup orange juice, 1-3 cup lemon juice, 1-3 teaspoon each ginger and gingey ale. Cover rhubarb with 1 quart water and boil until very tender. Strain through cloth. Do not squeeze or it will be cloudy. Add sugar, bring to boil, stirring. Remove from heat and add orange, lemon juice and ginger ale. Chill. When ready to serve mix with equal quantity of soda water or ginger ale and some ice. This amount serves ten generously.

Rhubarb Wine

(I have not made this.) Wash and dry and cut and mash with heavy potato masher 25 lbs. rhubarb, and in clean cask pour over it 3 gallons cold water. Let it remain covered for 10 days, stirring daily. Strain the liquid into another cask, and add 12 lbs. sugar for each gallon liquid. Add the juice and thinly pared rind of 1 lemon. Add 1 oz. isinglass (sheet gelatine to be obtained at drug store) dissolved in cold water for 5 minutes (1 would guess 1 cup). Cover the bunghole with folded cloth for 10 days while it ferments then bung securely and allow to remain undisturbed for 12 months. Rack off into bottles for use.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. BEECKMAN

Little or no ribbon on today's corsage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When my fiance asked me to tell him what kind of corsage I wanted for my graduation, I named my favorite flower (pink camellias) and asked him to have the florist try to match the color of the camellias with ribbon for effect. He made several loops. On the day of graduation he brought the box with the two most wonderful pink camellias, the most beautiful ones I have ever seen . . . but absolutely no ribbon to decorate the corsage. When he saw my expression, he explained, most finally, that he "did not approve of wrapping beautiful flowers with silly ribbon." Should I argue with him now? Should I argue with him next time about this, or forget the ribbon?—Dot.

Forget the ribbon . . . that's what today's artistically-designed corsages do! Today a flower is flowers in its own right and are charmingly permitted to reveal their own beauty unhampered by ribbon bridal or otherwise. And there generally isn't much time for ceremony. So say your few words of enthusiasm with a special grace of manner and tone of voice.

Best man in uniform at wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are going to have a simple morning church wedding soon. The bridegroom and ushers are to wear blue business suits. My fiance's friend, who is to be the best man, is in the Army, in camp some distance away. Since it is doubtful if he can arrive until just in time for the wedding, would it be correct for him to wear his uniform at the wedding?

—S. Yes!

Lace-paper doilies are correct

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it considered correct today to use a lace-paper doily instead of a real-lace or linen doily, on the plate on which sandwiches or cakes or cookies are served?

Or, for service of any formality, must one use a lace or linen doily? —Hostess.

It is correct to use lace-paper doilies for this service, whether formal or informal.

DISASTER FUND SWELLS

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Some $1,464 has been donated to the Sandwich East and District Samaritan disaster fund, Clarence T. Oosthuizen, treasurer for the fund, announced Friday. Contributions range from pennies collected by school children to a $1,000 donation from the Chrysler Corporation of Canada. The money will be used to assist victims of the tornado which struck Sarnia last May 21.

Women's Institute

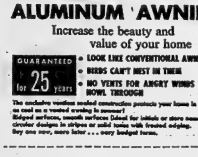
MADOC W.I.

Mrs. AlbertEmpey opened her home to the Madoc Women's Institute members on last Friday afternoon. Mrs. Kernahan, president, presided and opened the meeting.

A letter was read from Miss A. P. Lewis, home economist, asking for antiques of all kinds to help in the pageant being put on in the Maple Leaf Gardens during the convention of the Associated Country Women of the World", to be held in Toronto in August. There will be several members of Madoc W.I. attending the meeting. The flag that was purchased by the Madoc W.I. to be used in the park, program sponsored by Mrs. Moon. The same was used on Coronation Day.

Good Hints

Mrs. Forsteil reported on the first day of the Guelph convention. Good hints on food for children and their health was the topic given and suggestion was: Take youngsters from seven days old to seventy years, add daily three good meals; eight to ten hours sleep in a well-aired room, garnish with friendly surroundings; pleasant environment, with plenty of fresh air, add the fear of God and respect for older people, who live around the youngsters; flavor with soap and water, add a tooth brush, a good hair brush is also beneficial and can be used with good effect at both ends.



Mrs. Allore spoke a few words of the work of two missionaries who were present at the conference.

Current events were reviewed by Mrs. Albert Empey. The citizenship conference Mrs. Beatty gave a paper on early citizens and said a good citizen must have peace in the heart of the individual, freedom bought by blood and sacrifice. Raise the standard of living to the churches and closed with an appropriate poem.

Mrs. Moon gave a short paper on "Age Teaches More Than Books".

Report of the morning session of the district annual held at Ivanhoe was given by Mrs. Herrington. The canvassers for the fair prizes were appointed namely, Mrs. McCrimmon, Mrs. Herrington, Mrs. Beatty and Mrs. Henderson.

The hostess and her assistants served refreshments.

Indians Beat Yankees, Champs' Losing Streak Getting Serious

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

Two or three weeks ago a bunch of the boys were indulging in a sports "bull session" and the talk veered around to wrestling and boxing. And when two subjects like these merge the inevitable question is bound to arise, "which would have the better chance in a mixed bout—a wrestler or a boxer?"

By a more or less strange coincidence we had popped that question to Ed. "Strangler" Lewis while he was here looking after the managerial interests of one Lou Thesz, the world's wrestling champion, or at least recognized as such in the better circles of pachyderm.

Ed, who was world's champion in the grand and gory days of Joe Stecher, the near-invincible Ebyakoz and others of that ilk, conversed like one who knew whereof he spoke, although no one would expect him to give a somewhat biased answer.

"The only way a boxer can beat a wrestler is to carry a blackjack with him," was big Ed's terse opinion. Then he added, "Look at what Ray Steele did to Klondike Lewis—only a number of years ago. Beat him in less than a minute."

The worst punk of a "pachyderm", although Ed. did not exactly put it that way, can beat the best fighter in the world, he said, and he quoted Isadonis to prove the statement.

It is quite simple, if you can believe what the Strangler said. "All the wrestler has to do is go in fast first, knock the boxer flat and then pin him. If a wrestler stood up and tried to shot it with a fighter he wouldn't have a chance, but no wrestler is that foolish. Besides the wrestler has a much better sense of balance and is much stronger than the average boxer."

God, men, we've seen wrestlers that had as much sense of balance after being clipped by a jude chop, or a Canadian commando, as a teetotaller after the fifth slug of the fermented grape.

"Jack Dempsey and I decided to put the thing to the test once," recalled Big Ed. "I was the world's wrestling champion at the time and Jack was the king of the heavyweights."

But the match never came off. The Ole Manassa Mauler decided to try a pre-bout experiment with third-rate wrestler named Johnny Meyers in a secret bout one day and Meyers phoned him to find, Dempsey thought there had been a reversal of the Tilden-Johnston affair.

Lewis, who wrestled all over the world, is said to be an authority on all kinds of the mat game. He made an extensive study of ju-jitsu while touring in Japan. He pointed out that every Jap soldier and sailor is taught ju-jitsu before anything else while in training.

He explained that little item with the statement that the Japs are naturally an under-sized race, and know that in hand-to-hand combat in trenches and elsewhere they would be no match for the average soldier or marine of the western countries.

"So," said Ed, "they learn the art of ju-jitsu which is nothing more than a knowledge of nerve centres. They learn to jab with their thumbs and where they hit the spot they can break any hold in the world and make an adversary drop a knife or gun or whatever weapon he happens to have."

He said the Japs are taught to perfect the use of the thumb as a weapon until it is at a strong as a spike.

"Watch any Japanese youngster coming down the street and you will see him constantly jabbing his thumb against the palm of his hand. He does this to strengthen it for ju-jitsu."

Lewis figures the western governments should teach their soldiers and sailors the art of wrestling instead of boxing. He claims wrestling holds are many times more valuable in close-man-to-man combat than a boxing punch.

"We speak of boxing as the art of self defence," concluded the Strangler. "That's wrong. The object of boxing is to hurt your man. That of wrestling is to keep him from hurting you until you can get him where you want him."

SOFTBALL, ETC.

The CNR Diesels, smarting under the unexpected 4-3 defeat at the hands of the Frankford crew the other night, trek down to Point Anne tonight with vengeance in their eyes. The Cyc Peloians, on the other hand, are out to grab the league lead and should be mighty tough to beat in the home corral. All of which should make for a neat softball tidbit. Here, at home, the Belcoids entertain the Glen Bay juniors, who were set back on their haunches the first time this week by the deeply Cy Peloton. This game is scheduled for Ashley's double field starting at six-thirty.

Weather permitting, that's a stock expression now on Fridays, Dick Burrows' stock jocks will leap the barrier tonight at the Shannonville Speedway. It is expected those motorcycle demons will be on hand, if only to show their independence and disdain of the bloke who orders rain every weekend.

TRIBE WORLD RECORD

ALGIERS, North Africa (Reuters)—French Swimmer Gilbert Bonnard two-tenths of a second off the world record for the 200-metre backstroke when he clocked 2 minutes 18.3 seconds in a meet here Friday night. The previous record of 2.18.5 was set by Allan Cack of New Haven, Conn., on May 4, 1949.

MEDAL PLAY TOURNAMENT

SUDBURY (CP)—Open to amateurs, the 18th annual Seagram golf tournament will be held at the Idylwyde Club here July 23-25. The 54-hole medal-play competition will open with an 18-hole qualifying round. Defending Champion Gerry Kotchkof of Kitchener, last year's Ontario junior champion, is expected back.

Four Gift Runs in First, 2 Doby Homers, Twin Trick; Dodgers and Cards Both Win

By KEN PELDGAE
Associated Press Sports Writer

When even Cleveland Indians can beat the Yankees maybe it's time to take this-five-game New York losing streak seriously.

Every other American League club had defeated the Yankees this season. But in seven games the mere sight of a New York uniform caused the second-place Indians to roll over and play dead. So what happened Friday night?

The Yankees threw the ball around in the first inning like fugitives from chain gangs and sentenced Cleveland with four gift runs.

Such generosity couldn't be overlooked, even by the Indians, and Early Wynn, the right-hander Mr. Lemon made sure it didn't go to waste.

Doby Hits Two Homers

Doby parked a pair high up into the seats in the third and fifth innings and Wynn, a sixth-inning two-out homer by pinch-hitter John Mize saved the Yanks from their third shutout of the year. Mize's blow was the last of the first five hits off Lemon. The final score was 7-3.

In the National League the pace-setting Milwaukee Braves put up a much tougher fight than the Yankees, but they bowed to their second-place rivals, 5-4 on Ray Jablonski's 10th inning single. Jablonski drove in Johnny Logan with the winning run in each game to take over the National League lead by one game.

St. Louis Cardinals took over third place from Philadelphia by beating the Phillies 7-6 and are only a game behind the Braves in a twilight-night doubleheader from Pittsburgh. Red Lucas was the Cards' fourth pitcher to go the route.

The Senators' loss to the last-place Tigers put an end to their straight this week. Clyde Vollmer hit a home run with two on for all Washington's runs.

In less than two weeks the Yanks have thrown away 3½ games of their league lead. They still own a substantial eight-game bulge over the Indians, but even if Cleveland falters, Chicago White Sox—only half a game behind in third place —show definite indications of being ready and willing to take up the challenge.

Friday from a three-game sweep over New York, the White Sox whipped Boston 5-3 Friday night. Philadelphia snapped a four-game St. Louis Browns winning streak 9-5 and Detroit beat Washington, 7-3.

The Giants hammered the starting Cubs for 14 hits including home runs by Wes Westrum and Daryl Spencer.

The White Sox spotted Boston three runs in the first two innings, then rallied for four in the seventh as Nellie Fox and Sherm Lollar doubled and Jim Wright followed with a pinch-hit triple.

With the bases loaded and two out Gus Zernial singled to give the Athletics their decision over the Browns.

Galt Terriers Give Up Ghost In Intercounty

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Galt Terriers are giving up the ghost in the senior intercounty baseball league. Galt is after pulling out of the league cellar.

The decision is disbanded, effective after tonight's operations, was reached at an emergency meeting of directors Friday. Friday night the Terriers slammed out five home runs but succumbed to eight runs to defeat St. Thomas Elgin 9-4.

Several factors entered into the decision of the club to fold. The club, which has been in operation for nearly 34 years, lost a considerable share of support on this season's operations due mostly to poor weather earlier in the season which curbed attendance and the club's poor showing. The Terriers have won only five of 19 games.

Oshawa Blanks Kitchener

Elsewhere in the league Friday night, Oshawa Merchants blanked the leading Kitchener Panthers 5-0, Waterloo Hawks walloped London Majors 7-1; and Brantford Red Sox dropped Stratford Maple Leafs 5-2. Big Jeep Jeanup was behind the Galt win and allowed only six hits. Jeanup struck out seven. Red Steel clouted two home runs apiece while Gene Lawlor hit the fifth circuit blow in the fourth.

One man was on the circuit in Oshawa's hit in first homer in the fourth. Steele blasted his first circuit blow in the third with two on. The bases were empty when Lawlor and Steele hit their other two clouts in the sixth and seventh respectively.

Three of London

Kitchener lost its first game after taking the league lead. It was the first Panther game ahead of London. Johnny Walter was a big hit in the 7-1 win over the Majors, getting only two hits. He pitched seven full ball for the first five innings.

Ted O'Connor singled in the first inning and scored the first Galt run run on a triple by Butch Lawing. An error, a double and single gave Galt three more runs in the second inning. Lawing poled a homer over the left field wall in the sixth and Merchants added single runs in the seventh and eighth.

Waterloo struck three Major pitchers for 14 hits in their attack. Dick Sposato went the route for the Tigers and gave up only five hits. Three hits were collected for London but was yanked in the sixth.

Help Brantford Win

Bobby Schnurr and Hank Blazzitti led the Brantford attack. Schnurr had a perfect four for four night, including a triple with Blazzitti had three for four, including a homer over the right fence.

Top relief performance by Frank by Roy Lefevre helped a great deal with the Brantford victory.

Lefevre had three hits in four innings. He relieved with the bases empty in the first inning to put the Red Sox ahead to stay. Brantford scored three more runs in each of the third and sixth innings.

Today Brantford plays an afternoon game at Galt while night action will see Guelph at St. Thomas; Galt at Kitchener; Waterloo at London; and Oshawa at Brantford.

Anne Sharp Doing All Right In Ontario Open

HAMILTON (CP)—The young Scottish woman who sold "Miss Peen" her first set of golf clubs isn't doing so badly, either.

Marlene Stewart's triumph in winning the British amateur open in England has overshadowed the fourth straight tournament won Friday by Anne Sharp of Toronto in the Hamilton Golf and Country Club's annual open tournament.

Miss Sharp, who won the Ontario title in Toronto last week, showed the way to a field of 106 women in the local tournament. She carded an 82 green, three strokes better than her two nearest rivals, Rae Milligan of Jasper, Alta., and Shirley Grant of Toronto Lambton.

Rose Kampman, Kitchener Westmount, with an 87, placed third in group play.

Miss Sharp, five years senior to the petite Marlene, was coming along quite well at golf six years ago and Marlene, a mere 13 at the time, tagged along to caddy. Then one day Marlene dropped a hole-in-one at the Lookout Point course's second hole, and that changed things.

GOLF CLUB HITS BACK

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—O. M. Lofton taught that outmoded golf club a lesson Friday—but it put him in the hospital to do it.

Lofton, infuriated by his zoned dubbed shot, shattered the steel-shafted club against a nearby golf bag cart. The ill-tempered shaft snapped back, gashing Lofton's arm and severing an artery.

Lofton's brother, Barney, quickly twisted a tourniquet above the wound and drove him to hospital for treatment.

Dead Heat for First

TORONTO (CP)—The first dead heat for first place of the current Woodbine season was recorded Friday when Wolf Whistle and Montmartre II hit the wire together in the featured Brandon Plate.

In a sizzling finish, Wolf Whistle hung on to hold even against Montmartre II in the final sixteenth of the mile-and-a-quarter test for the six furlongs in 1.11 3-5, one second off the track record.

Triple Time was third.

Insects and The Solmar Periods

Every angler who has fished long enough to observe the workings of Nature can tell you that good fishing and bothersome insects seem to go together. Mosquitoes, punkies, black flies, sand gnats—all the tiny flying things that bite and make your life miserable seem to be busier and more active when the fishing is good, and scarce when it is poor.

All of us know that we are pretty sure to have good fishing at dawn and again at dusk. Why these twilight periods seem to act as a stimulus to fish activity I'm sure I don't know and I doubt very much if anybody else does, but we know that it is, true.

By the same token, these are the hours when the insect pests really do their work on you. So we break out the insect repellent and smear ourselves liberally, finding it not completely that should be injurious because of the unwelcome attentions of a few bugs.

But if you don't mind back a bit to the real good fishing days, particularly in the warmest weather, you will usually find that insects are not bothersome long enough to supply a liberal coating of "bug dope"—this mind you, during the warm, sunny hours of the day.

Insects No Nuisance

The answer, I find, is fairly simple. Fishing is usually good during the Solmar Periods. Those are the times when all wildlife is active and the insects are no exception.

Being interested, mainly, in the application of the Solmar Theory to the sports of hunting and fishing, I have spent but little time in the study of insect behavior insofar as the land insects are concerned. I have, however, made a rather detailed study of aquatic insects as those have a great deal of bearing on the quality of our fresh-water fishing.

On the trout streams and the man rivers and lakes it pays a man to keep track of the aquatic insects. Anyone who has fished for trout knows how important it is to know not only the various types of insect hatches that may be met, know, the artificial counterparts and, equally important, the emergence dates.

Down through the years I have charted the dates when the principal insect hatches appear on our trout streams and bass rivers. As the seasons pass these colonies of aquatic insects leave their sub-aqueous homes, metamorphose into flying insects, and stage their nuptial flights.

If a certain type of May fly or caddis shows up, say, on May 20th, you can be fairly sure that in future years that same variety will continue to put in its appearance on that same date. Because of unreasonable conditions, such as high water or low temperature, it may be a day early or a day late, but usually the emergence date is May 20th.

Knowing that the smart angler is on hand on May 20th with a supply of artificials to match that hatch. Then it is up to him to watch the water and be ready for action when the hatch occurs.

A Time Saver

That process of watching the water very well can be a tiresome piece of business. However, now we have a short cut, a time saver. Experience has shown that a very high percentage of these hatches occur during the Solmar Periods.

Unfortunately, this is not always the case. The rule does not work out 100 per cent. But by and large the big, important insect hatches do occur during Solmar Periods.

To illustrate, here on our Pennsylvania streams there is a little yellow caddis fly which shows up as a rule on May 2nd. Caddis, as you may or may not know, are nocturnal hatchers.

During the night they crawl up onto the banks, crack their cases, and emerge as winged insects. Morning finds the trees and bushes filled with them. There they stay, fluttering about and getting used to their wings, until the time comes for their nuptial flight.

When a Solmar Period arrives, these little insects take wing and appear over the stream. Flying always upstream, they move up the valley for an hour or so. Some of them rest on the surface of the water for a moment, lay their eggs, and take wing again.

After an hour or so, they retire once more to the bushes and trees along the bank and there they stay until the arrival of the next day-light Solmar Period.

This sort of thing goes on for a period of three or four days. Then, gradually, they disappear and you see no more of them until May 20th of the following year. It is a fascinating thing to watch and the watch will give you enriched fishing for several days.

My hope is within a stone's throw or two of a good trout river. When the caddis hatch is on I work at the office in fishing clothes. As a Solmar Period approaches, work is discontinued, and I drive upstream in time for the nuptial flight. "Pet baby" hies I am back at my desk as I know that there will be no good fishing until the next Solmar Period arrives.

Minor Mistakes

To be sure, there often are streams which occur during the off hours, when there is no Solmar Period in progress. However, these are minor affairs, often of a local rather than general nature, and it is not uncommon to have the fish ignore completely one of these hatches.

But it is a rare thing indeed to have the fish ignore a major hatch during a Solmar Period. Oh, once in a while they will, when the barometer is falling and a storm is coming on, but usually such a hatch is greeted with high enthusi asm on the part of the fish.

So there you have it, a rule which applies right through the fishing season. Believe me when I say once more that it pays to keep track of the daily Solmar Periods.

Buffalo Bisons Within 2 Games Of Top Leader

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons, swept an International League doubleheader from Syracuse Chiefs Friday night to move within two games of the front-running Montreal Royals.

Lefty Dennis Bracker of Rochester hurled a one-hitter as the Red Wings edged Toronto Maple Leafs 1-0. Montreal nudged Baltimore Orioles 4-3 and Springfield Cubs handed Ottawa Athletics a double setback, 4-2 and 5-3.

At Syracuse, the Bisons won 9-2 and 1-0. After slamming three Syracuse pitchers for 16 hits and an easy win behind Ernie Nevel, the Bisons used footwork to cop the hard-fought nine-inning nightcap.

Bill Tuttle walked in the fourth, stole second and third and scored on a squeeze bunt by Joe Erautt for the only run. Ken Johnson pitched four-hit ball in batting Duke Markell in the nightcap.

At Rochester, a scratch infield hit in the ninth deprived Rochester of a no-hitter.

Reeder's mound opponent, Don Johnson, hit a slow roller toward third out with one out in the ninth. Third baseman Don Richmond rushed over the ball but Johnson had the play beaten and it was scored as a hit. Reeder struck out six and walked only three.

Rochester won in the ninth on a single by Tom Burgess, a sacrifice and another single by Lou Ortiz.

At Montreal, Hamp Coleman went the route for the winners, allowing the Birds 11 hits.

Sandy Amoros of Montreal got his seventh homer. Stan Jok and Roy Weatherly of the Birds also had round-trippers.

At Ottawa, Springfield's Bon Northey connected for three circuit clouts, one of them good for four runs. Two of them came in the afternoon.

Layton, Blears Held to Draw By Tim Geohagen, Jonathan

Shure and 'twas the stout Timmy Geoghen that pounded himself upon the royal sick of Lord Layton with nine minutes to go in the final fall in that main bout in Memorial arena last night between Blinstiff and his buddy Don Jonathan a draw.

It was a big, team match, they said but, and maybe it bore some resemblance to it, little. The fact remains it did not live up to its predecessors.

Not by a danged sight.

The two 'Lods' Layton and Blinks, entered the ring; in all their blue-blooded glory) Fabdon, Captain Stanley Holmes, so relation to Sherlock, we presume) was present, egad. monocle and all (Let's go down the Strand and save a bahnalma). Demmed if he didn't as usual invade the bloody ring in snobbishness with his usual blather. He did, e'cod.

Dull Bout

And lest we forget, Timothy Geogahen, and handsome Don Jonathan 'opposed the two m'lods in as dull a bout as has been witnessed here this season.

The result was a draw. The 'vassils' royalty won the first fall by virtue of a quick exchange of 'partners" and that is one of the strong features of these two blokes. They change stints oftener than a dozen pal's initial.

It could have been that M'lods outsmarted the long and short wrestling Adonises. Because apart from the fact that the house-dick from a well-known Toronto hotel (Okay Bert, our press card is no good in your joint) was the third man in the ring. (Gad, somebody said he was a referee, or got paid for the job.) The two nimble didn't have a chance.

It went this way. The Geohagen-Jonathan duo sent the Don in to inaugurate the bout. He took terrific punishment when Timothy sweated, swayed and stretched for 23 minutes before he got the "green light." Meanwhile, the lads switched back and forth like a pendulum on a grandfather's clock, and with the same regularity, with the result that after 27 minutes m'lad Layton spread-eagled Timmy for the count.

It was long, drawn-out and at some times had the customers yawning.

Came Into Own

And so it went on. In the second fall, and listen, kiddies, that is all they is to it, the Irish-Utah couple came into their own. Timothy took the leading role when he got the chance, and danged if he didn't get disgusted with the goings-on and clamp his famous sleeper on the royal jugular of 'is 'lghness Lord Layton.

Gad, men 'twas quite a sight to see the stir-fool dolls, handsome blokes slowly writ into a coma under the Irish pressure.

And that is the time (he has probably seen it before) that pudgy Mister Maxwell noticed without it being drawn to his attention, that Layton was slowly turning blue in the face and "bye". He did.

The clock registered a couple of minutes to go and the faithful immediately departed to the nearest suds room to forget about the whole affair.

As a matter of fact the preliminaries almost stole the show. The Terrible Tiger Tasker and popular Billy Slack battled to a draw, while "Dirty" Richard Raines was disqualified for taking a "poke" at the referee, as was named, after eleven minutes of his bout with Robert Durston.

Jack Johnson, the first Negro to hold the world heavyweight boxing championship, defeated Frankie Morgan in 10 rounds at Paris, 38 years ago today. Johnson lost the title the following year, 1915, when he was knocked out by Jess Willard in the 26th round at Havana.

Aussie Star Stages Comeback At Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON (AP)—Top-seeded Ken Rosewall made Wimbledon's men-singles centre court a stage Friday for a magnificent comeback from a two-set deficit into a stirring 4-6, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1, 6-2 tennis victory over Lew Hoad, Australia.

Rosewall, one of Australia's brace of 18-year-old stars, found that his chance was not long gone and that his eye and aim were sadly amiss soon after he took the court against his fellow Aussie.

For two sets he netted forehand shots continually and made numerous errors in the fourth round all-England championship.

But in the third set he practically knocked his 21-year-old opponent from Brisbane off the court. His backhand came into his service begin to zip and he rushed the net often.

In Wimbledon's two other top matches, Art Larsen, lefty from San Leandro, Calif., paid back Sweden's Sven Davidson for an upset last year in the first round, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4 and Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt defeated Australia's fine Mervyn Rose, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

The first break in the women's seeded ranks occurred when Mrs. Susan Partridge of Britain, seeded No. 7, bowed to Mrs. Heather Brewer of Bermuda, 7-5, 6-3.

Fergus Thistles Score Big Win Over Mimico

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fergus Thistles defeated Mimico Mountaineers 29-9 in a Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association game at Fergus Friday night.

Don Campbell was top man for Fergus with five goals.

Stan Abbott, Bob Dobbie and J. J. Hill followed with four goals apiece. Ron Landoni scored three. Bud Hudson and Joe Millikan had two each for Mimico.

In Toronto, Chuck Howna, secretary of the association, said

Sport in Brief

MAIN TROUNCES YARLEY

TORONTO (CP)—Lorne Main of Toronto, Canada's second-ranking tennis player Friday blasted his way into the men's singles semi-finals of the 54th annual Toronto Cricket Club invitation tennis tournament with a 7-5, 6-4 victory over Ralph Talley of Kitchener.

Main will meet Doug Marchal, 28, of Los Angeles, who defeated Jim Bentley of Toronto 6-3, 6-3 in a quarter-final match.

Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que., will meet Fred Kovalaski of Washington, D.C., in the other semi-final. Bedard moved into the round Thursday and the fervent Kovalaski got there Friday by whipping Ross Summers of Toronto 6-2, 6-2.

Main used his hard two-handed shots to keep the less-experienced Talley off balance. In spite of the cheering of his two young sons from the sidelines, the 36-year-old Talley couldn't match Main's speed and accurate volley shots.

In the Bentley-Marchal match Bentley lad from Los Angeles was never in difficulty. Playing a deep hard-driving game, Marchal beat Bentley away from the net.

KENGSLING IN LEAD

BRANTFORD (CP)—Gerry Kessler of Kitchener took a one-stroke lead Friday in the first round of the Calvert invitation golf tournament. He broke on the 18th hole brought him home with a 69, three under par and one stroke better than Moe Norman, also of Kitchener. Bob Wehrle of Windsor was third with a 72.

Brampton Excelsiors did not show up at Peterborough for a scheduled game with the Trailercars Friday night.

Rowan said that as a result he day's scheduled home game of the Excelsiors against Hamilton Tigers had been postponed.

He said a meeting of association officials will be held at Minden Sunday to deal with the defaults and to discuss other problems concerning the Brampton club.

He has been rumored that the Brampton club will merge with Minico. Reason for this move on the part of Brampton is said to be the lack of senior calibre players and the poor attendance at home games.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Humans being what they are, bridge players are hopeful of more than they have. With luck enough they seek just a little bit more. This is noticeable in their probe for slam.

Get going on this deal:

	NORTH
	♠A Q 8 6 2
	♥9 8
	♦K 8 5 4
	♣10 8 6
WEST		EAST
♠9 5		♠J 10 7 3

♣A K Q 9 4 2		♣7 5
	SOUTH
	♠K 4
	♥A K Q
	♦A K 10 9 5 2
	♣6 3

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 D	1 S
3 D	4 D
4 NT	5 D
Pass

The first two responses by north included only one raise in number. Therefore, he did not show any more than three tricks up in there. With eight, south did not see more than 11.

For this reason, south was not truly qualified to use the four no-trump aces and kings taker. However, he would be willing to gamble for a slam if north had as much as an ace and a king.

In response to four no-trump, five diamonds is the signal for one ace and no kings. Since north bid spades, the king and ace held by opponents are probably in clubs. The five diamond stop was wise.

Where experienced players are handling the dueats it is not surprising that they refuse to be bide bound. Here and there you will find them prying for possibilities of bigger scores.

However, the wise ones are not too proud to back down when they get a sufficient warning. After prying a little, if there comes information of danger they will stop at some safe spot.

It looks as if all the opponents can get are two tricks; both in clubs. But skilful opponents could take three tricks by a play they would recognize. It is a knockout.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) A few months ago, Peter Lawford was feeling mighty low.

His father had just died, and Peter had left MGM after 10 years. No pictures were in the offing for him, and he wondered if his career was all washed up. Then something happened.

His friend, Tony Martin, was appearing at the Orange festival in San Bernardino. The singer induced Peter to accompany him to the engagement. Before one of the shows, Tony asked if he could introduce him to the audience.

The response was tremendous. "I suddenly discovered that the last 10 years weren't lost after all," says Peter.

The English-born actor at present is enjoying a leading role opposite Judy Holliday in "A Name for Herself." He is whipping up a night club act and is going east for a TV whirl. Among his other plans is a picture deal in Europe next fall.

Peter was frank to admit that his career missed the boat in not cashing in on the bobbysox following he had during the early postwar years. He was caught in the same juvenile fazer that swept Frank Sinatra and Van Johnson to national fame.

"But I didn't exploit that following," he remarked. "Part of the fault was the studio's in not putting me in enough good pictures. But I must admit that part of the fault was mine. I was lazy. I was more interested in having a good time than worrying about my career.

"Now it's too late. A whole new bobbysoxers has grown up. I'll have to establish my career on my own efforts."

Salary Boosts Given

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott announced Friday salary boosts for some 2,000 civil servants, including chemists, mineralogists and veterinarians.

The increases range from a minimum of $180 a year to a maximum of about $640. Mr. Abbott said the increases were made "to meet the necessity of attracting and retaining persons in these classes in the face of strong competing demands from outside the civil service."

Increases are retroactive to April 1. An official estimated the boosts will total about $600,000 a year.

Fight Over Girl, Two Boys Hurt

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Two teenage boys were injured and another was dunked in the Detroit river during a fracas early Friday after 14 Windsor youths went to nearby Belle River to visit a girl whom police described as "popular."

Police said the Windsor youths, who went to Belle River in three cars, fought several times during the evening. However, they soon united forces when two Belle River boys, who had been attending a high school picnic, arrived on the scene just as the Windsor boys were about to leave for home.

Joseph Meunier, 17, suffered bruises and a cut over his right eye when attacked by the Windsorites. His companion, Jack Nichols, 18, was thrown into the river but escaped injury.

The unidentified 16-year-old girl apparently became bored with the whole thing and went home soon after the first battle started.

ADD FROBATION OFFICERS

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney-General Dana Porter said Friday that Ontario plans to more than double its probation services. Only nine of the province's 48 judicial districts now have probation officers for adult courts. Mr. Porter said he plans to hire enough officers to serve all districts, "as and when we can get them."

SIX-YEAR-OLD DROWNS

MIDLAND (CP)—Susan Moore, 6, of Toronto, was drowned Friday on the first day of her summer holidays. She toppled into about three feet of water when she slipped on the rocky shore while romping with playmates. Her body was recovered but she could not be revived. She had been attending school here.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 28, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — All planets point to a proper setup for Sunday interests, religious services, aiding good causes. Neglect no duty.

April 2 to May 20 (Taurus) — Relax where possible. Essentials should be handled first and your church attended for spiritual nourishment.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Caution advised if written and legal matters come before you for signature. Day most favorable for spiritual advancement.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Don't permit anyone or anything to upset you; watch that you keep yourself in a pleasant mood. You can be so helpful when cheerful.

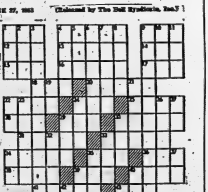
July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Your Sun must favorably aspected of all the planets today. This encourages your religious spirit, good deeds, kind thoughts.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Mercury has a warning sign up: "Heed well what you promise or sign." It is not an unfriendly period for healthy fun and, of course, prayer and church.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—One must forsake some selfish desires to better serve God, country and one's family. Essential tasks can be done quietly, efficiently.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Mars slightly stimulating, you should be helpful, not inclined to aggressiveness. In favor are religious services, healthy recreation.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Mild influences leading to highly favorable ones tomorrow. When church and other obligations permit leisure, enjoy it wholesomely.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Your aspects grow better as day advances. Start right by going to church. Duties should follow in correct order. Find time for a hobby, pleasant reading.

January 22 to February 19 (Aquarius)—Please! No sudden decisions or changes of importance unless imperative. System saves energy and time. Smiling prevents tension.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Take sound suggestions, but don't be turned this way and that by every wind. Keep your wits about you.

YOU BORN TODAY: Can expect greater opportunity for expanding in fields where your talents can do most good. But strong emphasis must be laid on proper use and care of talents. Your romantic and experimental disposition strong next several months. Take more precautions than usual in these departments. See your faults, correct them. Birthdate of: Jean Jacques Rousseau, Fr. writer-philosopher; Gen. Carl Spaatz, famous Air Force personality.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and pop were just starting to go for a Saturday walk, and ma said: —William, I know you have a perfect prohibition against carrying groceries through the streets, but I just gotte a few things from the market and I need them soon. I wanted to go and get them myself, but as sure as I do, the telephone will ring with an important call I'm waiting for, and I cant very well fill 2 barels with one chore, so I'm afraid you'll have to pick up the things at the market for me.

For Pete sake, cant I delay my walk and take the fone call for you? pop'said, and ma said, Why yes of course, as long as somebody is here, it's just a simple messidge.

Okay, run along to the market and I'll be your secretary, you said and ma said, There's really nothing to it. Maud Hews is going to call up to tell me whether the bridge game next Wenday is to be at her house or at Hantch Hipple's house, and whether Mary Dexter will be able to play or not.

That's fairly simple, pop said, and ma said, Of course, I told you it was. If the game is at Maud's, ask her if she wants me to bring her pattern book, or whether she's not in a hurry for it, and ask her if she still wants a copy of my recipee for curried rice with almonds, or if she already got it from Sadie. If Mary Dexter cant play Wensday, tell Maud she better not get Agnes Shrove as a substitoot, because Agnes and Kitty Summers are almost enemies and the result will be a decided strain. Tell her to get Mabel Decker, or Sally Larkins in a pitch, ma said.

On 2nd thawts I'll do the marketing for you, make me out a list, pop said.

Which she did.

3rd Batt. R.C.R. Completes First Tour in Korean Line

By BILL ROSE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH KOREA (CP)—With one good battle and 46 nights of routine patrolling recorded, the 3rd battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, today completed its first tour in the Korean line.

The RCRs now hope an armistice will intervene to make their first tour also their last.

The 46 days between April 21 when the unit relieved the Princess Patricia's Light Infantry and the battalion was found in all departments.

Says Lt.-Col. Ken Campbell of Perth, Ont., officer commanding:

"The troops proved to have been as well prepared for battle as the members we took into battle during the war and who had four years of training. Perhaps our men were even more fit."

Notable Battle

Highlight of the 47 days was the May 2 battle when the Chinese reversed in strength over a platoon position commanded by Lieut. Hal Holtyer of Toronto only to be destroyed by fighting artillery fire from the 81st Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery.

The night's fighting yielded the RCR crew fifteen Chinese dead, military medals and three mentions in dispatches.

"That's the sort it was straightforward, not very difficult, soldiering," says Campbell.

"We learned a lot about patrolling . . . An officer who can handle a fighting patrol can do anything."

The command post worked out of a large camouflaged mortar-proof dugout that R.C.R. mortar bombs were in the air, engaging enemy mortars, the gun crews and machine-gunners' own bombs had landed.

Constantly watching the front through 30-power binoculars, RCR observers took on particular areas of responsibility. As soon as enemy mortars coughed from his assigned area an observer would send a code word into the radio linking him with the mortars. Canadian bombs would be in flight toward the active mortar before the enemy's had arrived.

Lucky Visitor

One of the few to see a Chinese soldier from the RCR positions was Air Commodore L. R. Rae, air member for personnel at RCAF headquarters who during a tour of the Far East visited the Canadian brigade.

Campbell took him to his best observation post and through the high-power binoculars Rae scanned the front. An RCR mortar shell was done for him and as the last explosion blasted at the hill 69 yards away a Chinese soldier got up and high-tailed it out of the area.

"Gee," exploded Campbell, "you have all the luck. You see a Chinese on your first day. I've been here for two months and still haven't seen one."

Rae had to be pried from the binoculars after that.

Two Honor Guard Members Say Their Job Best in Korea

By BILL ROSE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SEOUL (CP)—Two Canadians here say they have "the best jobs in Korea."

They are Pte. D. T. W. Smith, 21, and Stewart D. Lord, 24, both of Vancouver. A month ago they traded frontline bunkers with the 2nd Patricias for a lush job in Seoul.

Smith and Lord represent Canada at Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor's fifth army headquarters where they belong to the new United Nations Honor of the honor guard.

Their 32-man outfit, commanded by a sergeant from the Black Watch, comprises Commonwealth, French, Belgian, Netherlands, Thai Ethiopian and other soldiers from a total of 13 countries. All wear their own uniform, weapons, drills and customs.

Three Platoons

There are three platoons in the guard, one from the United States Army, one from the republic of Korea Army and the third representing the UN. After a one-month try-out the UN platoon has been accepted as a permanent part of the guard.

Canadian battalions will take it in turn to provide soldiers for a two-month assignment.

The two Patricias told The Canadian Press "the set-up is terrific."

Their Nissen-hut barracks, they said, "are better than Currie barracks in Calgary," let alone the bunkers of a month ago.

Although there are 34 men to a hut, they said, they have more room than they did in Calgary, "and every man even has a writing table by his bed."

Their bob-nailed Canadian Army boots were ruled too hard on the springy composition-type floors and off parades they wear rubber-soled UN Army boots like more them.

They say meals taste better, although Canadian units draw the same rations. "Perhaps it's because we don't use mess tins," commented Lord.

Canuck Uniforms

On parade they wear the regulation Canadian Army uniform—a clean freshly-starched one every day. They have five suits of uniform—four more than they had with the battalion—and the laundryman is busy.

So far the only change in dress is the substitution on the left shoulder of the 8th army patch for the Commonwealth division's, and the addition above it of a gold-embroidered flash reading "Honor Guard."

With four different shoulder flashes, his medal ribbons and paratrooper's wings, Lord is a bewilderment cameraman's dream.

Besides daily practice parades they take turns as gate sentries, stand guard during air-raid alerts, and man the headquarters fence during demonstrations.

Only disadvantages they note are slow mail delivery and lack of Canadian news. Both are being remedied.

DROWNS IN LAKE SIMCOE

SUTTON (CP)—John James, 31, was drowned Friday night in Lake Simcoe after becoming separated from two companions during an after-supper swim. James, a former Trans-Canada Air Lines pilot, had been employed as a test pilot for Avro-Canada at Malton per Toronto. Surviving are his widow and three children.

Coldwell's Wife Spent 21 Years In Wheelchair

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF leader M. J. Coldwell lost his wife Friday after a death of a woman wheelchair, crippled 21 years in a wheelchair was admirable for both of them.

The former Norah Gertrude Steen died at the age of 64 while her husband was out on the stump in Saskatchewan campaigning in the political life she kept him at even when he felt like quitting Parliament.

He cancelled his meetings for the next few days and flew back to Ottawa by plane. He is due today.

His wife's death ended a married life which, in its own quiet way, was one of the most touching things in Canadian public life.

For years Norah Coldwell, imprisoned physically but never mentally by her wheel-chair, supported her husband, encouraged him, appeared with him on the platform, by their side. Her space, keen face and apt replies became landmarks.

For years, the husband cared for the invalid in a devotion which won him the admiration of all who knew the quiet story. They were married in 1913.

Garden Notes

Care, Feeding of Dahlias, Tomatoes

It sounds like a contradiction to say take off the dahlia bud then feed it, but since their feeding system is on the foliage this rule is possible, and good practice. To have bushy, and vigorous plants nip, or pinch back the top when the plant has developed three pair of leaves. Six or four lateral canes will make a well rounded plant. To the dahlia lover the buds they are 24 inches high to prevent wind damage.

When you planted the dahlias no doubt you gave them some kind of plant food, either chemical, or organic, and drove in the stake before you covered the tubers. If not do both now. One cup of vigoro or similar fertilizer worked lightly into the soil without letting it touch the plants. Watered it in well. The feeder roots will soon take up the nutrients and spur the plant on to vigorous growth. Work around the plants every second week after rain to keep a two-inch dust mulch around each plant.

When the plants are two feet high it is time for a second feeding. This at the rate of a tablespoonful of dry chemical fertilizer worked in lightly, or more of the liquid fertilizer. As the flower buds form repeat the liquid fertilizer at ten day intervals until frost.

Disbudding will produce large handsome blooms. In each group of three take off the two side buds alternately, only the centre one to develop. Only one terminal bud should be left on each branch if large perfect flowers with long stems are wanted. Disbud once a week during the growing season.

Tomatoes Need Attention

Now for the tomatoes; as soon as the first fruits form work half a cupful of liquid fertilizer into the soil around each plant. If the plants are staked you can pinch off the side shoots to prevent crowding. Staking will also increase the yield, but you get a few more plants in the same space and it is less trouble-some to tomatoes.

Tomatoes have enemies, too, which must be guarded against. Flea beetles, early blight and hook worms all threaten to spoil your crop. Flea beetles make small round holes like shot-holes.

End-O-Pest applied weekly will discourage them, or you can use D.D.T. according to the directions on the package. Be careful to wash the fruit well before using it, and do not use it after the fruit begins to turn color. Hookworms should be picked off before they have a chance to do much damage.

Keep a mulch of peat moss, grass clippings, or compost two or three inches deep around plants and this will conserve moisture, and discourage weeds.

U.S. GROWING

WASHINGTON (AP) — The census bureau estimated today that the population of the United States grew by more than 2,500,000 persons from May 1952 to May this year, reaching a total of 159,260,-000. Census bureau director Robert W. Burgess said this estimate indicated the U. S. had grown by 4,125,000 since the last 10-year census April 1, 1950.

NAMED PC CANDIDATE

DURHAM (CP)—Dr. R. L. Carefoot, of Markdale was nominated Friday night as the Progressive Conservative candidate for the Grey Bruce riding in the Aug. 10 federal election.

TO RUN FOR LIBERALS

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Jack F. Peterson, former mayor of St. Thomas, was chosen Friday night as Liberal standard-bearer in the Aug. 10 federal election. The Elgin Liberal Association supported Mr. Peterson over Ronald E. McNeil, Springfield, 1952 warden of Elgin, and deputy reeve Alistair Little-John, Dunwich, and Walter Rogers, Sparta.

WELCOME FROSTS HOME

LINDSAY (CP)—Premier Frost of Ontario was officially welcomed back to his hometown Friday as he and Mrs. Frost returned from the Coronation. A civic welcome was tendered the premier and his wife by the town and the county council at the town hall. Mr. Frost was presented with a gold watch on behalf of the town.

Allies Ask Reds To Agree at Once On Date For Truce

Must Have Converted Rhee Or be Ready to Ignore Him

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN

SEOUL (AP)—The Allies today asked the Reds to agree immediately to a date for signing a Korean truce, indicating they have either persuaded rebellious President Syngman Rhee to agree to an armistice or have decided to go ahead without his approval.

Gen. Mark Clark, United Nations commander, told the Reds in a new letter delivered at Panmunjom that the UN command will enforce truce terms "to the limit of possibility."

His letter was delivered shortly after he conferred in Seoul with Rhee; President Eisenhower's personal envoy, Walter S. Robertson, and other top American officials.

Must Have Solution

Although the meeting was secret, the UN command's readiness to go ahead with its truce plans indicated it had found some sort of solution to the problem of the stubborn South Korean leader's refusal to accept the present truce terms and his threat to fight on alone if an armistice is signed on those terms.

There was no immediate comment from Rhee on Clark's letter.

The letter was the President's first reply to Clark's proposal of June 19 that the two sides agree on a date for signing the armistice. It was before the prisoner release began two weeks ago—practically complete and ready to sign.

The Reds protested angrily in a full-dress Korean session June 19, demanding recognition of the prisoners' anti-armistice riots. The UN command would control Rhee if an armistice was signed.

Can't Capture P.O.W.

Clark's answer, delivered at Panmunjom by liaison officers, told the Reds:

1. It would be "impossible" to recapture the released POW.

2. The UN command will "make every effort" to gain Rhee's Korean co-operation in a truce.

3. If necessary, the UNC will, "to the limits of its ability, establish military safeguards," to enforce truce terms.

4. The truce would be a "military armistice . . . between the military commanders of both sides" (answering a Red question whether the Korean nation would be included in a truce).

5. The UN command "does not exercise authority over the Republic of Korea, which is an independent, sovereign state . . ." But it "does command" the Republic army.

Prisoners "Escaped"

6. The UN command still considers the Rhee-engineered prisoner "escape" as far as it is concerned. Clark said the prisoners were "released" in that the RoK government, without the knowledge of, and contrary to the intent of, UNC, planned, and arranged the breakout.

Clark's letter was addressed to Marshal Kim Il Sung, North Korean premier, and to Chinese forces commander Peng Teh Huai, both of whom signed the June 19 protest.

It was delivered after the UN commander had left Robertson's fourth conference with Rhee in his mission to persuade the latter to accept a truce.

Also present were the U. S. ambassador to Korea, Ellis O. Briggs, Clark's political advisor, Robert Murphy, and South Korea's prime minister, foreign minister and defence minister.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: Slightly cooler weather with comfortable, humidities new revers Ontario. The cooler air arrived in Southern Ontario late today preceded by some thundershower activity. Forecasts indicate that this sunny weather will continue Tuesday over Southern Ontario with slowly rising temperatures.

A disturbance moving eastward across the northern states will cause considerable cloudiness with some showers and thundershowers as it moves across Northern Ontario tonight and Tuesday.

Christie Will Not Appeal Death Sentence

LONDON (Reuters)—John Christie, confessed slayer of seven women, does not intend to lodge a court appeal against the death sentence passed on him last week, his legal advisers said today.

But Home Secretary Sir David Maxwell Fyfe still will be asked to recommend to the Queen that she exercise the royal prerogative of mercy to commute the death sentence to life imprisonment.

Christie, 55, discussed the matter this morning with his lawyer in a small room adjoining "death row" in London's Pentville prison.

Christie, a mass murderer of women in a squalid back-street tenement, was sentenced to death at the Old Bailey, London's central criminal court, last Thursday. Christie confessed that he killed seven women, he was actually tried and convicted only for the murder of his middle-aged wife.

Hydro Chairman To be Questioned About Costs

PORT WILLIAM (CP) — The Northwestern Ontario Municipal Association plans to ask Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario hydro electric power commission, about maintenance costs in the area.

The association also decided at a week-end meeting to ask the Thunder Bay Municipal League and the Kenora-Rainy River Municipal Association to prepare briefs on the situation in their districts.

Reeve Allan Grant of Neebing sparked the hydro discussion with a claim that a 15 per cent boost in rural hydro rates this year is causing "hardship," at least in the Thunder Bay area. He said rural hydro consumers deserve a complete explanation of why and where costs are going up.

"I don't believe the high costs of rural projects is the cause of the increase, because hydro is making profits, most of which go toward capital expenditures for expanding services," he said.

TONSIL RECORD

ORILLIA (CP)—Dr. E. T. Green believes he set something of a record when he had 104 tonsils removed the tonsils from the 10th of the Dionne quintuplets, Dr. Green said he that the RoK government, George Fraser. The only child who died before he has not operated is a baby.

IMPORTED FLIES PESTS

NORTH BAY (CP)—Overrated flies, about the size of horse flies, are proving a nuisance in the north country. The insects originated in Mexico several years ago in the Soapy Lake area. They are the large caterpillars, but the caterpillars are still here and the flies have multiplied a millionfold.

Bobo Rockefeller Seizes Estranged Husband's Swank Apartment in N.Y.

With her were her four-year-old son and her unidentified girl friend.

Mrs. Rockefeller, blonde daughter of a coal miner, moved into the apartment while her husband, Winthrop Rockefeller, heir to Standard Oil millions, was in Little Rock, Ark.

She talked briefly Sunday night with newspaper men by telephone, indicating she was not impressed by the $1,000,000 trust fund being set up by Rockefeller for her, and then announced she would hold a press conference some time today.

The 36-year-old Mrs. Rockefeller and the oil heir were married five years ago. They were estranged shortly after the birth of the son, Winthrop Paul, who has since been in the exclusive custody of the grandparents.

Early this month Rockefeller announced he was establishing a $1,000,000 trust fund for his estranged wife. She had complained previously she was broke and facing off the charity of friends.

Rockefeller replied he had supported her and the son with $1,500 a week. He added that a $1,000,000 trust fund had been set up earlier for the son.

Mayor Whitley of Trenton Greets Chief Scout of Canada at Centennial Opening

Centennial celebrations attracted thousands of people on the opening day when Boy Scouts and Girl Guides staged a gigantic parade in the afternoon. The biggest turnout on record gathered in Bayshore Park in the evening for community singing with the RCAF Training Command Band in attendance.

TWELVE THOUSAND REDS ASSAULT ROK POSITIONS

Furious Red Attack Staged in Daylight

By JOHN RANDOLPH

SEOUL (AP)—Twelve thousand Chinese Reds backed by a booming artillery barrage crashed into South Korean positions ahead of the gateway to Seoul today.

Far to the north, Allied Sabre jets blasted six Red MiGs to earth, running their score for the month to 39 MiGs kills, only four short of the one-month record set in September, 1952.

The MiGs were shot down as the Sabres flew a tight cover over 36 fighter-bombers striking at Yanai, near Sinuiju in northwestern Korea.

The Reds poured a division or more into three-day-old battles for two outpost hills 40 miles due north of the capital just as South Korean infantry had swept to the crest of one of the hills.

The furious Red attack, unusual because it came in broad daylight, hit a two-mile-wide stretch on the western front. The targets were outposts Bak and Queen, rising 500 to 800 feet.

At last report the Reds held both, heightening regret at the loss of the outposts as the South Koreans regrouped and counter-attacked.

Parade of Boy Scouts, Guides Opens Centennial Celebration; Major Gen. Spry Takes Salute

TRENTON (Special) — Visiting dignitaries and officials received a thunderous ovation from the weatherman and several rounds of applause from a crowd of some 2,000 people, Sunday, during ceremonies which marked the opening of the Trenton Centennial celebrations being held from June 28 to July 5.

The colorful Trenton Lions' Club band headed a parade of approximately 2,000 Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Cubs and Brownies marching from College Street School through downtown Trenton to Dufferin Public School for the official opening of the centennial. The three-mile march took the parade route past a raised reviewing stand on Dundas Street, where Major General D. C. Spry, Chief Commissioner of Boy Scouts in Canada, took the salute from Scouts and Cubs. Girl Guide and Brownie salutes were returned by Mrs. E. C. Reed, Girl Guide Commissioner for Public Relations in Ontario.

As the No. 6 Repair Depot Band, marching in the parade under the direction of F/S E. A. Cole, passed the last band in the road and commenced the Remembrance Service area, they swung into "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary" and many an oldtimer had his memory taken back to 1918. It was the year of the British Chemical Plant explosion about which oldtimers still tell stories and also, the time when many a soldier was glad to be back in his old home town of Trenton.

The nine-piece Belleville Pipe Band, under Major Everett Falconer, with four pipers and three drummers dripping beads of perspiration in the muggy atmosphere, brought up the remaining group of Guides, Scouts and Cubs.

Many Places Represented

One by one members of color parties marched to the stage to place their flags in a striking row along the back of the platform. Members of Girl Guide and Boy Scout organizations from Trenton, Belleville, RCAF Station Trenton, Stirling, Marmora, Wellington, Batawa, Peterborough, Kingston, Napanee, Deseronto, Frankford, Campbellford, Brighton, Smithfield, Carrying Place, and Picton were represented in the colorful procession.

In the distance, church bells could be heard heralding the start of Trenton's 'Air Force Sunday Town" the occasional roar of an aeroplane passing overhead could be heard.

Could Reduce Defence Costs As U.S. Is Doing, Says Drew

By Canadian Press Staff Writer today, resuming on the hustings at Pike Lake, Sask., July 6.

Can Save on Defence

Mr. Drew said similar savings could be made in the Canadian defence program in the 15 per cent cut made by a congressional committee in the United States.

Progressive Conservative government could find savings of $200,000,000-a-year cut in payment. Able ministers—"and I emphasize the plural"—would be trained to reorganize the department.

The government claim that no savings could be made in the $2,500,000,000 defence vote was "contrary to common sense."

He repeated his earlier promise of a $200,000,000-a-year cut in taxes. Most of it would come from the $300,000,000 average annual surplus since the war.

Turning to trade matters, Mr. Drew said Canada is taxing herself out of export markets. The price of her goods included excise taxes and the 10-per-cent sales tax.

MILLION JAPS WITHOUT HOMES RESULT OF FLOOD

More Rains Threaten As Waters Have Ebbed

TOKYO (AP)—A great flood that left more than 2,500 persons dead, missing or hurt and 1,000,000 homeless receded today on the southern Japan island of Kyushu but dark rain clouds posed an ominous new threat.

Seven days of torrential rains turned much of the northern part of Kyushu, an area about three times the size of Prince Edward Island, into a vast lake. The hapless Japanese residents fled to any high ground they could find.

The known death toll stood at 409 late today. It was expected to rise when those missing, now numbered at 1,178, are accounted for.

Police said several villages were washed away and 3,000 homes were destroyed or damaged.

Rush Relief

Relief was rushed to countless stricken villages and cities. The United States Air Force dropped food and clothing to isolated groups of refugees scattered on islets or high ground from the flood.

EPIDEMIC IN SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — All swimming pools and public baths were closed today to prevent the spread of the paratyphus epidemic which has been sweeping the country for the last seven days. Latest health ministry reports said that 2,000 persons are being treated at home for the disease and another 600 in hospitals.

Pay Late, Workers Could Not Wait, Boss Came Through, Low He Flew

TORONTO (CP)—Alderman Arthur Wilson of St. Thomas made sure that his five electrical contracting employees got paid Friday—so they wouldn't have to wait for the department of transport may have to say about the method he used.

Wilson, whose contracting firm is doing an installation at a suburban Etobicoke furnace plant, was late in getting his payroll made up. So he hopped into his own plane and flew from St. Thomas to Etobicoke.

Circling low over the furnace plant, he dropped 5 sack containing $300 wage money to his waiting workmen.

"I couldn't let those men go the week-end without their pay," he said.

He has been informed that the department of transport isn't very happy about his low-flying delivery. "I sure hope they don't penalize me," said Wilson.

All But One Safe After Ships Crash Off New Jersey

Vast Sea Search Saves 26 Preventing Major Disaster

By JAMES F. TOMLINSON

BARNEGAT CITY, N. J. (AP)—A vast sea search today left only one man missing in a lurking tanker-freighter collision that could have turned into a maritime disaster. Two were injured.

The tanker Gulfbreeze's bow knifed into the starboard side of the Brazilian freighter, Lobo Paranma, just behind the super-structure as they passed their way in fog 12 miles off the New Jersey coast Sunday night.

The tanker backed off under its own power and stood by, with nobody aboard hurt. The Panama, a 7,500 gross ton ship, slowly took on a 45-degree list.

An all-out rescue operation, quickly begun, was carried on through the night. The coast guard reported 25 persons missing. Hours later, the estimate began to plummet.

Lloyd Brasileiro, New York representative for the 2,400-ton Brazilian freighter, carrying general cargo said he talked to the ship by radio and learned that 24 men remained aboard. It appeared to be in little danger.

A reported 26 men were taken off the ship by the U.S. coast guard cutter Escort and the Panamanian Endeavor, an American freighter that answered a frantic call for help.

Two other men, both injured, were taken from the coast guard cutter to a coast guard station.

The Panam's complement was 53 officers and men, Brasileiro said, but many stayed aboard safely.

The 10,195-ton Gulfbreze, suffered only a damaged bow.

Reports of the missing were confused by language difficulties—apparently some of the Brazilians spoke English.

As the Lobo Panam drifted helpless today in the dull morning light, crew members smiled and waved to rescue ships from the slanting deck. The decks were not awash at any point.

A light rain, punctuated by thunder and lightning, lashed the water as two coast guard cutters, helicopters and a twin-engine flying boat combed the area in the search for the missing men.

The accident occurred in one of the most heavily-travelled shipping lanes in the world and radio appeals for help were answered immediately.

Coast guard life boats and picket boats dotted the area, as well as helicopters from Mitchel Air Force Base, which took its rescued men to the hospital on Staten Island, N. Y.

The collision occurred around 7:30 p. m. EDT about nine miles south east of the Barnegat lightship, a navigational aid that sits eight miles off the coast of Long Beach Island.

The coast guard said both ships were headed north.

Rear Admiral Officer Henry W. Goodwin said radio messages received from the Brazilian freighter 2:40 and 7:50 p. m. said the tanker had cut the Panam amidship on the starboard side.

Should Forego Total Victory Says U.N. Head

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (CP)—The new secretary-general of the United Nations said Saturday that the UN charter does not sanction use of force to win victory in terms of land or power, but only in self defence.

On that basis he called on the UN to forego total military victory in Korea as a prelude to a peace without vengeance.

Making his first major address on world affairs since taking over the UN secretary-generalship from Trygve Lie, Hammarskjold said that once aggression had been repelled there is no UN provision for further punishment of an aggressor.

The secretary-general's broadcast address was made against a background of demands from President Syngman Rhee of continued fighting to unify divided North and South Korea and as new talks were held in Seoul with the South Korean president.

Fears at Base

Hammarskjold did not refer specifically to Rhee's demands, but said the UN acted in Korea under the first attempt in history to meet aggression with united forces under an international banner.

"This approach is a new formula in the history of political conflicts," he said, "and its importance may be greatly increased by the blankness of the future.

"In enjoining these new avenues of collective security we must adapt ourselves to accept such unprecedented conditions as a war which ends without total victory for any party, but only for a principle.

"Such a victory . . . is a full vindication of those brave men who have sacrificed their lives for this principle."

Adenauer Visits War Criminals; Seeks Release

WERL, Germany (CP)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer visited the British war crime prison here Sunday and told prisoners his government is doing everything possible to secure their release.

Among those to whom he spoke was former German S. S. Major-Gen. Kurt Meyer, a prisoner for life imprisonment in 1944 for responsibility in the shooting of Canadian prisoners of war. Meyer was moved here fro mCanada last year.

At Ottawa a defence official said the Canadian government is not likely to make any move at this time to secure the release of the sentence.

However, Chancellor Adenauer has been pressing the United States, British and France to consider acting in tribunals to review the prisoners' sentences.

The tribunal would be set up automatically once a German government is formed and the chancellor is understood to have made requests of the U. S. particularly that the prisoners be set up even before the signing takes place.

DISPATCH RIDER FRACTURES ANKLE

Bombardier C. Onderkirk, of Belleville, despatch rider of the 6th Anti Tanks Regiment, R.C.A. (A.L.L.) was painfully injured, when his bike went out of control while returning from the summer training camp training grounds at Petawawa on Saturday.

Onderkirk's machine went out of control near Cloyne and the rider was buried into the ditch.

He was rushed to Belleville and taken to the general hospital where his injuries were diagnosed as a fractured ankle. The injured member was placed in a cast.

Onderkirk will be "laid up" for at least four weeks, it was stated.

GUN AND CARRIAGE DAMAGED IN CRASH

Extensive damage was done to a gun and carriage of a medium battery of artillery returning from Petawawa summer training camp on Saturday night.

The gun and carriage went out of control with both turning turtle in a ditch on Number 2 highway, some fifty miles east of Actinolite.

ERROR IN EXAM LIST. FUPIL OBTAINED PASS IN ALL HER SUBJECTS

In the Belleville Collegiate Institute reports, published in Friday's paper, an error occurred in the results for Grade 10|3 of the General Course. The name of Cynthia Dundas appeared with the note that her marks had been deficient in mathematics, whereas in fact Miss Dundas received a clear pass in all her subjects, qualifying for her intermediate Certificate.

The deficiency in mathematics should have been charged to Cameron Collier.

Maintaining a family business tradition, Kenneth Campbell, 250 Charles street, well-known in this city, has opened a general insurance office.

Mr. Campbell, formerly of the Campbell Auto Shop, is a grandson of the late Chauncey Ashley, who conducted a similar business here for 47 years.

Ken was born in Belleville and attended public school and BCI. He started in rugby and track while at school. He served with the Canadian Merchant Marine on loan from the navy during the last great war, serving 2 1-2 years overseas. On his return he completed the Campbell Auto Shop, which he operated for seven years.

Mr. Campbell is a member of the Kiwanis Club and A.M. No. 11.

He married the former Mary Ann Hamilton, of Toronto, and they have a boy. He is conducting his business for the time being at his residence.

City Playgrounds Will Officially Open Thursday

Due to the circus-coming to the city on Wednesday, the public playgrounds will be officially opened until Thursday morning and from that time on, the playgrounds will be qualified supervisors at all playgrounds to give those attending a full recreational summer, which will include the crafts, sports and instruction.

For the past week, supervisors from all parts of Ontario, east to Belleville and north to Lindsay and Peterborough, converged at Quinte Lake Camp, Quinte Lake for a leaders' course and which was attended by 92 playground leaders. At the course the leaders were given instruction on administration, sportsmanship and First aid.

The supervisors with their playgrounds are:

East Hall (Bleecker and Bridge street East) Carol Weston, Margaret MacLaughlin, Donna McHale and Ross Burtt.

West Hill (Octavia and Catharine street) Marion Rawson, Barbara Allen, Dianne Halsey and Bobbie Dafoe.

C.N.R. (Station street) Marilyn Bell, Pat Simmons, Mary Kennedy and Bob Bateman.

Bayview (Foot of third street) Juanita Fox.

Brock street, Betty Rose.

Charles street (Charles near Forin) Josephine Hurst.

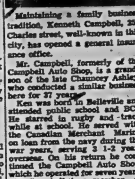
Sheffield Heights (Between Pine and Mikel) Joan Slade.

Pleasant View (Moira street Fire Hall) Ronna Fordyce.

St. Paul street (St. Paul and Church streets) Rosetta Campbell.

King George School (Front street north) Nancy Pomeroy.

Alexdale Field (McDonald Ave, North) Molly Buchan.



Again this year the Belleville Recreation Association will bring movie comedies and cartoons to the two playgrounds on the East and West Hills. These will be shown on the east hill playground each Wednesday night at dusk and each Thursday night on the west hill at dusk.

Last year more than 8,000 children and grownups enjoyed these films. On Sunday evening during the summer films will be shown after church services are completed and will be of an educational medium. These films were most popular last season and many new ones have been secured for this year's showing.

Jack Lundberg New President Ont. Command

Jack Lundberg, member of Army, Navy, and Air Force Veterans in Canada Branch 201, Belleville and vice-president of the Provincial Command for the past two years, was elected president of the organization at the annual convention held in Niagara Falls, Friday and Saturday.

President Lundberg succeeds past president, Reg Davey, of Hamilton, Ontario. Other officers elected are, vice-presidents, J. Kirkton, Lakeview; Frank Jull, Simcoe and B. Graham, Parkdale. Secretary-treasurer is Cecil Johnson, Hamilton.

Delegates from the Dominion convention are Reg Davey and William Ford, Belleville. Mr. Ford has been a member of the Dominion Command executive for some time, and was president of the Belleville branch for a number of years.

Also in attendance from the Belleville branch executive were secretary Ken Edgecombe and Ray Deelks.

St. Clair Gordon, Former Ontario Treasurer Dies

WALLACEBURG (CP)—Arthur St. Clair Gordon, 78, business man who succeeded the late Mitchell F. Hepburn as Ontario provincial treasurer and served as liquor commissioner under both Liberal and Conservative administrations, died early today.

From 1934 until his retirement nearly 13 years later, the tall and forthright executive represented Kent West in the Ontario legislature.

His death came after more than two years of ill health, including a heart condition. In recent months he was in hospital for treatment several times.

He became a minister without portfolio in the cabinet of Liberal Premier Hepburn in 1937. He was appointed Ontario liquor commissioner in April, 1939, and legislature amended the Liquor Control Act so that he could retain his seat in the House. Premier Hepburn said at the time he appointed a commissioner "right in the House so that he can answer charges when they are made."

Became Treasurer

When Mr. Hepburn stepped down and the late Gordon Conant took over the premiership in April, 1941, Mr. Gordon became provincial treasurer as well as liquor commissioner. Mr. Gordon continued to hold both positions under Premier Harry Nixon, who for 15 years ran the provincial government election.

The election swept the Liberals out of power. The new Conservative premier, George Drew, reorganized Mr. Gordon's ability and popularity by appointing him liquor commissioner. Mr. Gordon retained the commissionership for a year.

Mr. Gordon, known in his Queen's Park days for his fondness for grey suits and dark red ties, came by his political inclinations naturally. His father, the late D. A. Gordon, represented Kent East in Parliament for 18 years from 1911 to 1917 when the two Kent Ridings, east and west, were consolidated.

Born at Wallaceburg

A St. Clair Gordon was born at Wallaceburg, son of a family of eight boys and one girl. He was educated here and at Ridley College in St. Catharines. He took over the firm founded by his father, the Canadian Chemical Works, which he expanded into the Wallaceburg Cut Glass Works. Its soda-ceburg Cut Glass Works. He wound up the company in 1930 when he interested the Schultz Die Casting Company of Toledo, Ohio, in establishing a branch at Wallaceburg. Under his guidance, the branch grew to the largest of its kind in Western Ontario and from it sprang a chain of companies handling various phases of metal processing.

Serving besides his widow, the former Gretta Ray of Wallaceburg, is a daughter, Mrs. Clifford M. Temple.

Scotland Yard Tightening Up On Crime Wave

By DONOVAN REES

LONDON (Reuters) — Scotland Yard, determined to wipe out the list of unsolved murders, has announced a drastic reorganization.

This week the Yard will pull 200 policemen out of office chairs and put them on active crime-fighting. Three top superintendents will go to new key assignments.

Early next year since the war ended, British police authorities have had to admit defeat in an average of 12 per cent of murder cases—and write into police files the words, "assailant unknown."

The Yard's tightened-up follows indignation over the fact that brutal killers—including sex fiends and "respectable" women and children—are still at large.

The latest public stir came early this month when two teen-age girls, bicycling along a "lover's lane" discovered the mutilated body of Teddington, were raped and viciously killed by an unknown sadist-killer. Scotland Yard has put its best brains and experienced men on the case, but so far the man who killed Barbara Songhurst, 16, and Christine Bird, 15, is at large. Hunches have been discouragingly thin.

The Yard's reorganization originally was ordered two years ago, when a commission of experts was set up to study the necessary changes.

The switch of 200 police officers from desk jobs to the beat will help meet a permanent shortage on the London force. Civil servants will take over the Yard jobs.

In the high-level personnel switch one of London's top crime detectives, chief superintendent Harold Hawkyard, was promoted to a security post—to head a planning and research department.

Two Injured

SIMCOE (CP)—A Galt man and his wife were injured three miles northeast of here early Saturday when their car left the road and swerved into an oat field.

Treated at Norfolk General Hospital were John A. Hartt, who suffered bruises and lacerations, and Mrs. Hartt, with cuts and a possible fractured leg.

Police said the car left the road after the driver was blinded by lights from an approaching car.

Denies Charge Big Profit Made On Sale of Flags

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Alderman John Charlton said in a statement issued during the week-end that his company made a profit of $3.33 cents, before taxes, on each flag sold in the city recently.

The statement was in reply to a charge by controller W. Ernest Atkinson that the city paid the firm which Mr. Charlton represents, Dominion Tent and Awning Co. Ltd., "$15 for 98 flags."

Earlier Mr. Charlton had threatened a damage suit against the controller unless he retracted what Mr. Charlton termed "irresponsible false and untrue" statements.

Mr. Atkinson said he would let the alderman "go ahead and sue."

The alderman's latest statement made no mention of whether he plans to go ahead with the suit.

The statement said the city agreed to buy flags from the company "at a price to be established" because the price quoted by the other bidder was too high for the contract was "prohibitive."

Mr. Charlton said company figures, which were verified by a chartered accountant, showed the flags cost $12.37.

Canadian Dollar Best in World Says Chevrier

NORTH BAY (CP) — Transport Minister Chevrier said Saturday that proposals by Opposition Leader George Drew and the Progressive Conservatives to reduce taxes by $300,000,000 a year are "ridiculous."

Mr. Chevrier spoke at a convention which nominated J. H. Ducharme as Liberal candidate for Nipissing in the Aug. 10 general election.

Mr. Chevrier said $5 per cent of Canadian government spending is for essential defence and security benefits.

He said it is "ridiculous and impossible" to save $500,000,000 from the remaining 15 per cent since it totalled only $300,000,000.

The Liberal policy of seeking new markets for Canadian goods had brought goods to its present level of unparalleled prosperity and had made the Canadian dollar the strongest in the world, he contended.

Obituary

MRS. ELIZABETH ANN DAVIDSON

Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Davidson died suddenly in her 82nd year as the result of an accident at Millbrook on June 26th.

Mrs. Davidson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Hardy was a lifelong resident of Millbridge.

Her husband was the late Henry Davidson.

She was educated in Millbridge. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Joseph Aiken, Belleville, and Mrs. Joseph Lamb, Millbridge, and one son, Ernest Davidson of Oshawa.

The funeral took place Saturday, June 27th from Doffle's Funeral Home, Madoc. The service was at Fox's Church, Eldorado, with the Rev. Harvey Good, rector of St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc, conducting the service. The bearers were Stanley Lavender, Louis Pelham, Ralph Aiken, Arthur Soddy, Charles Donaldson and Charles Henderson.

Agent of Secret Police Stabbed In Night Club

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—In Budapest's Pipacs night club, crowded with Russian and Red police spies and waiters who are informers, an agent of the secret police recently was found dead in a washroom.

He had been stabbed eight times. The newspapers' of the communist regime did not mention it. They never report crimes of passion. The management claimed it was suicide, without explaining how that was possible.

Western diplomats in Budapest say there is a black list of 60 per cent of Hungary's 9,000,000 population would like to wreak similar vengeance.

Terror is an organized resistance. There is only a smouldering resentment that finds its expression in neglect, inefficiency, minor corruption, swindling and theft, and in criticism when it is safe to express it.

The Hungarians express their resentment in subtle forms. Farmers ignore warnings to weed their fields and produce shoddy goods. A few cigarets to a clerk in a state grocery store will ensure you get butter and meat when there is insufficient to go around. Newspapers complain that milk is watered.

Legion Holds Conference On Housing Needs

TORONTO (CP)—A conference on housing needs, sponsored by the Canadian Legion, expressed the view Sunday that low-rental housing should be provided along with a public subsidy.

Delegates, 35 miles of Ottawa, head of the legion's Ontario command, was conference chairman.

"Estimates reveal that the unsatisfied demand for housing is greater today than at any period in Canadian history," said a statement issued at the close of the two-day conference, attended by representatives of 15 national organizations and 10 provincial bodies, women's groups, churches, welfare organizations and labor.

"It is the opinion of the conference that the provision of good housing is a basic protection for family life and should be considered a top priority by governments."

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Prices turned mixed in forenoon stock market trading today following a firm open.

Gunnar set the pace in uraniums with a 6 cents gain. Nesbitt-Labine, Gaitwin, Chimo and brunston also went forward.

Industrials spurted ahead three quarters of a point for the best gain among the later groupings. Utilities, steels and textiles led the attack.

Preston was a feature in a mixed golds group as the issue, activated by its property in the uranium field in the Algoma district, went ahead another 10 cents in heavy trading.

In base metals, higher-priced stocks were mixed within a narrow price range while lower-priced issues dragged slightly higher.

Western oils showed an even break between wins and losses.

Senator Fraser Honored by Fire Chiefs' Assoc.

TRENTON (Special) — Another signal honor was bestowed upon Senator W. A. Fraser by Scout Commissioner and Chas. W. Hayes, secretary of the Fire Chiefs' Association of Jefferson County, New York. The Senator was made an Honorary Fire Chief of Jefferson County last night. Conferring the honor was Chas. W. STIRLING

Mr., Mrs. Harvey Pitcher Feted on 40th Anniversary

STIRLING — The spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Pitcher, Mill street, Stirling, was the scene of a happy gathering on Thursday evening when the family entertained over 40 of the immediate families to a delightful party in honor of their parents' 40th wedding anniversary and they also entertained all the neighbors and friends present in later.

Mr. Pitcher is a local dealer of farm implements and electric appliances and he, with his wife, moved to Stirling from Murray township about seven years ago and have made many friends in the town.

They are members of St. Paul's United Church and Mr. Pitcher is a member of Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 211, also of St. Paul's W.M.S. and W.A.

The wedding took place in 1913 in Rosen Church, Sidney (this is now a part of the Rose — Lowery Hill in Frankford).

Rev. James Ralstone performed the ceremony and the wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents, the succession of Sidney.

Following the honeymoon, a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pitcher, Stockdale.

The happy couple have three children: William, Mrs. Harold Pitcher and Gladys, Mrs. Roy Holland, all of Stockdale community and two grandchildren, Linda Holland and Judy Pitcher.

Harvey's sister, Mrs. Percy Charlesworth, of Smithfield, and her son, Jack and his wife, were in attendance. Another sister, Mrs. Will Elsey (Jane Ann), of Lodington, Michigan, was unable to be present.

Mrs. Pitcher's father, Mr. William Dafoe, who recently celebrated his 87th birthday anniversary was present also. A brother, Lloyd Dafoe, Stirling, and three sisters (Vera) Mrs. Herman Ross, and (Alice) Mrs. Roy Ross, both of Wooler and (Mabel) Mrs. Thomas Webb, Trenton, were present with their families.

Send Greetings

Mrs. Pitcher, brothers, Claude Dafoe, and Earl Dafoe, of Windsor, sent greetings on this auspicious occasion.

The bride was presented with a corsage of roses and the bridegroom with a white carnation.

A short program was enjoyed with vocal solos by Mrs. Gerald Ross and Miss Heather Rodgers. A wedding reading by Mrs. Will Pitcher and a song contest which ended in a tie. Charles Rodgers was judge. The winning groups were treated to candy.

The honored couple opened their various gifts which included a cedar chest, a stretch-out aluminum lawn chair and a framed picture of their farm sold unknown to Murray from their immediate family; an electric clock, china, several pieces of ruby glassware, a ball chair, lined 1x1 a large variety of gifts.

Thanks Tendered

Harvey and Mary voiced thanks for all the kindness bestowed upon them and at this point, the chairwell gang arrived. This was composed of all the neighbors on the street which numbered about 40 people.

Following a noisy parade, the group was welcomed into the hall. Charles Vance, in an oral address, voiced appreciation for the neighbors and Mrs. Frank Harding and Mrs. Norman Ray made the presentation of a hammered aluminum relish dish and a flower bowl.

Suitable clothing was produced and Harvey was dressed as a bride and Mary as a bride groom while "Green Comes the Bride" was played.

The dining table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake with "Harvey and Mary, 1913-1953" lettered on the fudge. This was made and decorated by Roy and Gladys Holland. The wedding serviettes were lettered the same.

The immediate family had previously prepared the food and the relatives and neighbors, numbering over 80 people; were served an abundance of delicious food, relish, ice-cream, various cakes, and the anniversary cake, and all enjoyed a delightful social time.

CAMPBELLFORD

Toronto Man Drowns in Trent Near Hastings

CAMPBELLFORD. — Edward Herbert Wilson, 21, of 1560A Donlands Avenue, Toronto, drowned in the Trent River three miles west of Hastings Saturday afternoon. He was a member of the Royal Canadian Regiment, Wilson was home on leave after 18 months' service in Korea.

With three companions Wilfilan Mills, 18, Harry Abbott, 37, and Bud McFarland, 26, all of Toronto, Wilson was trying out a new outboard motor on the river when the accident occurred. Mills was standing up steering the boat when the rope broke and he was hurled into the water.

Abbott jumped into the river and succeeded in getting Mills back into the boat, but the craft upset, throwing Wilson, a non-swimmer, and McFarland, into the water. Finally the three men managed to get back into the boat, but Wilson did not come to the surface.

Mills, unconscious when brought to the shore, was responded to artificial respiration given by Joseph Burgess of Toronto, and Which was later treated for shock by Dr. William Campbell of Hastings.

The party was spending the week-end at the Mills summer cottage. Mills is a former member of the RCR, and was wounded in Korea.

Dragging operations were started under the direction of Chief Constable Leonard Switzer and OPP Constable Arthur Eadie of Hastings. Wilson's body and the body may have drifted down the swiftly running deep river.

In the early hours, the group departed, wishing Harvey and Mary many more happy years of married life and expressing thanks to their family.

DESIGN JET ENGINES

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japanese industrialists have started a company to design aircraft engines, Toshio Doko, president of Ishikajima heavy industries, said Sunday night.

9th Anti. Tank Regt. Highly Praised By Army Officers at Petawawa Camp

Proud of their versatility in artillery training, the 9th Anti Tank Regiment, RCA (ALI) returned from Petawawa' summer training camp Saturday night, bearing accolades from the "brass" until their first appearance in years as a field artillery regiment.

Upwards of eighty all ranks representing the four batteries of the regiment which was redesignated as a field artillery unit last spring.

The commander of the Army Group Royal Artillery paid high tribute to the regiment following its week's training and demonstrations with the famous twenty-five pounder gun-howitzer.

The conduct and training as evidenced in the "shoots" held during the later days, of the training period, drew laudatory comment from high-ranking officers of the permanent force.

Officers acting as command post officers and in the observation posts were commended for their ability, while the gun crews and non-commissioned officers in charge were praised for high praise.

The regiment expended some 300 rounds during the actual shooting, only one dud being reported. This occ ! ed when a "number 1" inadvertently fired his gun which was laid on the designated target.

One of the Best

Summing up the various trithites, the 9th Anti Tank Regiment was regarded as one of the best field units of its kind to train in petawawa, the summer up to the present time.

The "troopers" returned with nothing but the highest praise for the camp and training. The food was excellent as was the comradeship while the training left nothing to be desired.

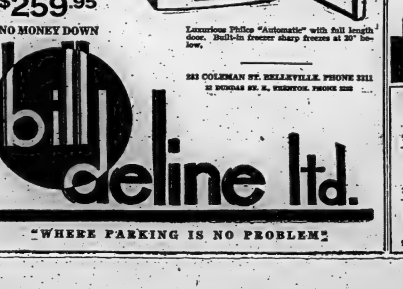
"It was the best summer camp we have attended in years," two veterans of the regiment said.

The regiment was quartered in well-laid huts instead of the usual "canvas."

Lieut. Col. E. H. Warwick, commanding officers was in charge of the regiment while an interested observer was Major General Howard Graham, DSO and Bar, now commandant of Central Command at Oakville.

The regiment was brigaded with the 56th Field Regiment and another anti tank unit.

Only one untoward incident marred the success of the "camp" and that occurred when bombardier Oederkirk, a despatch rider was thrown from his motorcycle and suffered a fractured ankle during the journey home.



Proud of the fact that the "camp" were devoted to intensive training and reaping by the important "shoots" and other demonstrations that took place during the last three days. Officers of the regiment themselves paid tribute to the keen interest and enthusiasm displayed by the men under their command.

"They were splendid," one said, "and their interest and desire to make a fine showing was evidenced in the outstanding demonstration given, during the final days."

KEIR, Pa. (AP)—A fire, believed started by a can of exploding kerosene, killed four persons and injured five others Sunday at a farm near Mount Pleasant, Pa., 25 miles south of here. Georgia Moyer, 13, and Marlin year-old sister, Judy, died instantly. Donnie Moyer, 2, and Marlin's brother, Junior, died shortly after being admitted to hospital.

NEED EVERYBODY IN U. N.

If and when peace comes to Korea, the question of admitting Red China a seat in the United Nations will soon come to the fore.

There is considerable opposition to such a move. Some of the arguments advanced against the admission of Communist regime in China appear to us to be merely confusing the issue. Indeed, it can probably be truthfully stated that there are really two points in dispute. There is the question of whether the governments of the western democracies should recognize the Red rulers in China as the government of that country, de jure or de facto. Each country is free to answer that question as it sees fit. There can be little dispute that the Communists actually control China—but that does not mean that they must be given de facto recognition, for that alone recognition that this Communist government is the legal government of that vast land.

When we consider that Red China representatives in the U.N. however, we face an entirely different situation. The U.N. has been termed by many "a debating society". It was originally organized to signify contempt or disillusionment, to indicate that there is little hope of the U.N. accomplishing anything. But, if we are to achieve peace by peaceful means, we must continue to reach agreement between the nations of the world. If this is to be accomplished, it is imperative that the representatives of these nations should be able to exchange freely expressions of their countries' views. The "debating society" thus becomes a vital link in the path to peace —and it should be self-evident that it is highly desirable every nation should be granted a voice in the society's deliberations.

The strongest case we have seen against the admission of Red China to the U.N. is made out in an editorial in the Pittsburgh Press. This editorial refers to Article One, Chapter One, of the U.N. Charter, which states that the primary purpose of the organization is "to maintain international peace and security." It points out that, had Communist China been a member of the U.N. at the time of the Korean invasion, it would, by the terms of the article subject to suspension and eventual expulsion under Article Four of the same chapter of the charter. It asks how "any self-respecting government could indicate, as the Chinese Communist membership applications, that "in its judgment Communist China is 'able and willing' to carry out its obligations under the Charter."

That sound logic, as long as Chinese forces are fighting the U.N. armies in Korea. But if peace comes in Korea, could that not legitimately be the time to admit Red China? It seems to us that to mend its ways and to aid in taking "effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to peace?"

The Press points out that Spain, Austria, Ceylon, Finland, Ireland, Korea, Portugal and Nepal have all been unsuccessful applicants for U.N. membership. It points out that these countries are not in any branch of the world peace. But they have been barred from membership by the Soviet veto.

Here is an argument to us to be on absolutely firm ground. There is no good reason why any of these countries should be refused admission to the U.N.—and it is most regrettable that the Charter of the U.N. makes a membership application subject to veto.

Despite all that has been said and written against it, the principle of the U.N. is sound. It was conceived in the hope that it could prevent the U.N. from taking any action which, far from maintaining international peace, might actually have led to war. It was not until 1950 that it was for the first time faced by the prospect of U. N. action which it felt it could not accept without resort to arms, it would have the right to veto that action. Since then, however, the veto has been employed on points of relatively minor importance. Rather obviously no country is going to go to war just because another country is admitted to U.N. membership. The Russian veto of applications for membership is indefensible.

All applications for membership by governments which actually control the lands involved, are worthy ones, and which are not actively engaged in acts of aggression, should be accepted by the U.N. If these countries subsequently infringe its charter, they can be expelled later.

THE NEWS VALUE OF McCARTHY

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt has expressed the world's first elder statesman—without ever having actually participated in the governing of a nation except through her influence, which was probably considerable, during the husband's long period in office as President of the United States. Certainly, in breadth of outlook, warmth of sympathy and length of vision, she is well equipped for the unusual role into which she has been heralded by the peoples of many lands.

It was, therefore, rather surprising to read her comment on Senator Joseph McCarthy, characteristically delivered in far-away Hong Kong.

Senator McCarthy, she said, will "cease to be a headline when people realize their duty to their own knowledge and not in fear." That is true—but it is also a half-truth.

Many—in fact perhaps we should say most—of the newspapers which write headlines for the Wisconsin Senator's pronouncements do so not because they believe in what he says, but because they distrust him. The fear that impels them to tell the story in big type is not a fear of the horrors he depicts as threatening the United States, but a deep and shaky fear of the type of salvation which the Senator would prescribe. Mrs. Roosevelt is not afraid of McCarthy because she "has people of the United States have common sense." Newspaper publishers are not afraid of headlines across stories dealing with McCarthy share that faith with Mrs. Roosevelt and that is why they write those headlines.

It is rather like making a fool of himself, and you do not like that man, there is no more effective way to deal with him than to provide him with a big hail and a large audience for his exhibition.

FEMININE TOUCH IN PIPES

Seventy per cent of pipes for men are purchased by women. Therefore, manufacturers are making pipes in styles that will appeal to the feminine eye. Male tastes will be practically ignored. Such is a report noted. Truly a depressing situation. It indicates the extent to which pipe smokers are dominated by their wives. A man certainly must be completely subdued when he permits his wife to direct what shape pipe he should smoke. —(St. Catharines Standard).

Gorillas Evolving

(From the Kingston Whig-Standard Journal)

Strange goings have been noted amongst the giant gorillas of Uganda in East Africa, and the Geographical Journal the London has recently reported at some length on this fascinating subject.

To begin with, the six-foot-tall monsters seem to be changing their diet. For all their awesome size and fierce appearance, and in spite of their residence in British territory, gorillas are no beast eaters. They are strictly vegetarian, indeed, to a vegetarian diet, and may be found in the wild state if one cares to approach that close harmlessly munching celery and bamboo shoots. But they are now varying their menu with the occasional golden vole, a tiny field mouse which has the misfortune to share the forests with them.

This hardly makes them "carnivorous", as the zoologists would put it, nor is there anything very frightening about the picture of a 500-pound gorilla pouncing delightedly upon a four-ounce mouse. Even so, the change is one to consider it highly unusual.

Another curious development is that they are quitting their normal habitat in the bamboo forests and wandering up into the snow-covered heights of the Ruwenzori Mountains. This is a volcano-studded range called the Berunga in native legend and tales," from which the gorillas have apparently no desire to forget. A recent visitor to the ranges has said:

"In mid-March, in a storm at the summit of 12,600-feet-high Mount Stanley, I saw the fleeting snow1 which flecked their dark backs with white, semi-erect and leaning their hands upon the ice-axes like old men furnishing anthropoids seemed to me to be distinctly human, indeed.

The reference to semi-erect posture is significant. It has been suggested that gorillas have developed a set of muscles enabling them to walk upright, according to the Geographical Journal.

Perhaps they are getting more inventive. In the forest, they use young bamboos — doubtless torn down by the wind — as a means to make a sort of "spring mattress" on which to sleep. In the snow they huddle during storms. Now, as they ascend to the new heights, they are carrying bamboos with them, to make camp on the way.

All this seems to speak, tentatively, of gorillas in the making and a close watch on the Berunga by, with a telescope, the zoologist.

Incidentally, all this offers no explanation to the mystery of Mount Everest's "abominable snow men." There are no gorillas in the Himalayas — as far as anyone knows. We await with interest the British-Swiss Expedition's report, if any, on this mystery.

Bit of Poetry In Fishermen

(New York Times)

There are all kinds of fishermen, as well as persons who do not fish at all. Consider the most baffling of the cult are the still-fishermen. They spend many hours on a small boat or on the bank with a bamboo pole and line, and in apparently sitting in the sun with no pressing purpose, no worries, no energy. Yet they seem to find their heads in bafflement. Fly fishermen, bait fishermen, and bass fishermen, but the still-fishermen go on and on, like the lotus eaters, big sunfish, and bull-heads, and even the lowly rock bass. Then, if they have had all the fish they want to catch fish, but to eat them, they usually give the worms for bait.

Still-fishermen are generally quiet, patient folk with a touch of poetry in their souls. They seldom get excited. They like to watch something soothing and reassuring in the movements of the tide, at dawn, at dusk, or even at midday when the fish are not biting. They enjoy the quiet waters, these still-fishermen, and the look of a mud turtle, the flight of a kingfisher, the beat of a king-fisher's wings, the flash of a water snake. They know the hidden coves, the peaceful islands, the spots where the pickerel can have an hour's meditation between bites as well as where he can't. They have the time for it, the time for thought or worry.

Fishing is not all catching fish, by any means; but it is well to come home with a few suppers, and what better supper for any fisherman than a couple of yellow perch? Some days the perch are not but few of the dissenters will be still-fishermen, for most of them agree that any man's choice is his own choice, and it takes all sorts, individualism and tolerance in about equal proportions! No bait fisherman will spend a moment in opinion into a dissenter's head.

Fragile Glass Survives Ages

(By The Royal Ontario Museum)

Strange it is that a thing as fragile as glass may be buried for thousands of years, yet be recovered more beautiful than ever, while silver, for all its strength, may be reduced to shapeless masses or crumbling powder! A magnificent collection of ancient glass, the Norton collection, has recently been given to the Royal Ontario Museum of Archaeology in Toronto, and added to what the museum already possesses in glass, the rare collection one of the finest on this continent.

Ancient glass was invented about the time of Christ, and rapidly became very popular. Huge quantities of glass bottles, drinking glasses and bowls of all shapes and sizes were turned out by the many shops of Imperial Rome. A small fraction of these were buried with the dead, or lost in the ruins of old cities like Pompeii, and, lying long undisturbed in the earth, during this once clear and usually colorless glass has become transformed by the magic hand of Nature into the shimmering rainbow iridescence that delights the visitor to today's museums.

Tailless Cats Have Friends

(Winnipeg Free Press)

Word comes from London that the Manx (or tailless) cat is in danger of extinction.

To prevent the breed from dying out, the Manx Cat Association has been inaugurated. The Manx Cat, or "Stumpy" as he is sometimes called, is believed to be derived from a Japanese bobtail. Nature has succeeded in impressing his tailless-ness upon succeeding generations. The common theory not accepted by zoologists, is that the Manx cat is a cross between a cat and a rabbit.

The chief of encouraging the breed, a form standard has been drawn up and approved. The Manx should weigh 10 to 100 points, 45 are given for taillessness, 20 for roundness and a short back. Another 40 is given for cheerfulness of rump, depth of flank, coat and the shape of the head and ears. The color of the fur and of the eyes is not regarded as important.

The Manx breed rate highly are commanding as much as $29 each, plus freight in the United States.

Sounds Simple And Silly, Too

(Windsor Star)

A young woman just back from World War II, pointed to an important tactical weakness in Nazi tactics laid down for home-fighting, he said, directed the spearhead of Nazi resistance to be in the top of a house and work down. Their theory was that the rear of the soldiers were to get to the top of the house before the fighting.

Something of this tactical weakness is reflected in the advice of Lt.-Col. Townsley, animal control inspector, who boasts of having cut out a new and handy way to catch skunks without poisoning them and killing them.

"It's simple," he explains. "All you have to do is get the skunk's head off the ground and they're helpless."

Now how do you get their head feet off the ground in an unnatural way? Lt.-Col. Townsley doesn't.

The inspector won't tell. It's a trade secret. This lack of co-operation will leave most of us with no recommendations to learn by trial and error.

Editors Tell Odd Stories

(Fergus News-Record)

Spent a day lately with other editors. Some odd stories crop up.

An editor well to the north of Peterborough had been visiting a country church nearby had dropped dead. A doctor was summoned but somebody else confirmed the story so he left the body to the priest. But the ministry wasn't dead at all. The next morning he arrived at the manse and greeted his congregation: "Well, here I am."

There was an epidemic of cattle thieving near another town. One night, the thieves tried to get a calf into their truck. They put a rope around it, but the calf dragged, but the rope broke. No doubt the calf thought it was free. In the morning, the farmer found the calf with the rope still around its neck.

The rural correspondent of the paper in that district was quite outspoken about it. She wrote: "It's too bad the rope hadn't been around the thief's neck, instead of the calf's." Before the page was published, she called up and asked to have the item cancelled. The police had arrested one of her own near relatives.

Personal Health Talks

LITTLE BOY IS UNHAPPY

DR. Brady

At the age of six my son had measles complicated with pneumonia. The next spring he developed pneumonia again, and got what the doctor says is sinus trouble. Since then he has been over-cautious with him, which he plays with. He is now seven, and still has a cough with a lot of discharge from his throat. It has me worried sick. He is unhappy because he can't play like other children. Am I being too careful? Please advise me. (Mrs. A. M. S.)

Yes, you are too careful. When or if the boy wants to play with other youngsters let him play as much as he likes.

Although you do not say so, I infer that you think the pneumonia that developed when the boy had the measles was caused by or indirectly due to insufficient cover, draft, cold weather or failure to keep him in bed enough. That's a silly notion, even if the doctor should have said or even thought.

A child with measles should not be kept warmer than the child wishes. Far better to keep the child cooler than too warm. For that is, if the child is not too chilled. Grandma, the old-timers or Salvey Gamp have to decide whether an idiot is comfortable.

Of no great shakes is the diagnostician even when I examine the patient. I nevertheless urge you, Mrs. S., to take your son to the doctor for special examination for bronchiectasis. That is a ballooning of one or more bronchial tubes. The brief description you give of the boy's trouble suggests bronchiectasis. This occurs in numerous similar cases, and, if the doctor fails to make careful and repeated chest examinations the trouble may be inadequately treated as mere bronchial cough or chronic bronchitis.

Whether or not the little boy has bronchiectasis (dilated bronchial tube) it will be of real benefit to him to practice standing on his head, standing on his hands or walking on his hands, hanging from bar or trapeze by his knees or toes, and whatever other acrobatic or circus stunts he and his playmates can do that will make more face turned up-right posture.

It is possible, but, if I know human nature, improbable, that the neighbor children who see the little boy plays with may be so fear that playmates will catch pneumonia from him. Then a child is coming down with or ill he should not be shooed out but permitted to play with any other child or by reason of utter lack of consciousness about this, on the part of parents, teachers and others who have the care of children, that cri (common respiratory infections) are so freely spread through the consciousness of ignorance. Three-fourths of the illness (medical and surgical) attended by physicians.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Sunday used to be called the day of rest.But for a huge proportion of the population, during the next two months, Sunday is the most exhausting day of the week. It is the day the hosts of millions all over this continent, the holidayers, the week-ender, the campers in bands, have to battle their way back from their interminable highways from Mexico to Alaska. In this matter, Sunday is unique. Monday is not a day of weariness for most of the traffic, is spread all through the week. Tuesday creeps through the whole of Friday and part of Saturday, but the fatigue of the week-end is crammed into Sunday afternoon, few starting home before lunch, and the peak of the leak-by Sunday evening, when the stragglers join the crowds.

Few of those who drive in this Sunday stampede work harder, undertain their nerves and muscles or submit to such exhaustion during their working week.It is the so-called leisure by the sociologists and economists. All these people are enjoying their leisure hours. Working conditions have been improved, hours regularized, leisure been painfully and doggedly established not only for better wages salaries but for the liberation of workers from the abuse of their leisure, and for the enlargement of their leisure. In the early stages of reform, it was naturally argued that we would all be better workers if we did not have to work so long and so hard, and there is a sense be that a large proportion of the people in Italy, for instance, ing far more weary and spent than we left it Friday.

We are now through a queer and perhaps a comic period in history, between the 18th century and the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries especially in Italy, the hey-day a mysterious malady or epidemic that caused whole villages to go into the streets and dance, and dance last until everyone was exhausted. Like other maladies, it was probably the best the doctors could think of: those days it was that it was due to the bite of the tarantula. Our generation, having been given more hours in which to enjoy itself, and having devised every sort of entertainment and amusement to disturb and distress our leisure,appears to be in the grip of something incapable of keeping still. We don't want to work hard. But we want to play like mad.

A WORLD CITIZEN

Robert Baden-Powell at the age of twenty-five was given the task of indended to follow when he became a man. These rules are now the ritual of the Boy Scout, every boy scout is familiar.Baden-Powell's purpose was to produce a real and admirable citizen of his native land, but in the memory of millions, he is also the founder of the great world-citizens of all time.He founded the Scout movement.

It is interesting to know that the Boy Scout Law, or Scout Manual has the largest circulation in any other book in the world, except one.That one has usually been held by "Imitation of Christ," by Thomas a Kempis

The next time you get disgusted about human nature, just remember that the three books most widely in circulation today are the Bible, the Boy Scout Manual and the Imitation of Christ" by a Catholic saint who wrote his manuscript in Latin, centuries before the discovery of America.And remember this also, that the three world type of human being, with a flaming interest in the welfare of his fellow-men,and a determination to work for its achievement, is the hope of mankind.

Every generation has its heroes. The supreme heroes are those who live and die, and those who take it. We have multitudes of such glorious living.

PARADE

A man who needed no introduction to the citizens of Trenton, Senator W. A. Fraser, was then called to the gathering by Mr. O.G. Hyde, chairman of the Trenton Centennial Committee.

In his opening remarks, Senator Fraser made mention of the late Mr. F. E. Reeder, "who did so much to get the Centennial organization started," ... we recognize and realize that the citizens of Trenton are in a field of capable hands."

Continuing Senator Fraser claimed, "I have been associated in a friendly way with pioneer families in this community ... I can remember when the Trent River was reached with logs for miles."

The Senator made reference to Mr. Alyea's father-in-law, Mr. H.W. Rose, "pioneer in the grain trade," and added that Trenton was once a grain port, "when the mail was in our face and Trenton was on the map."

He recalled that the main street of Trenton as once a "cowpath" and that "through the efforts of many people Trenton has progressed."

He expressed the hope that, during the Centennial year, the dollar would be reminded forcibly of Trenton's possibilities as a great city.

Reminds Merely Welcome

In conclusion, Senator Fraser declared the celebration official.

Mayor R. E. Whitley rose to give an official welcome to visiting dignitaries and referred to the large assembly of Girl Guides and Boy Scouts by saying, "your presence has made a parade that is a parade of ... you young people will be the citizens of Trenton." Here, he made reference to the fine work that the Scouting and Guiding organizations are doing in moulding character.

Then a rumble of thunder could be heard in the distance and here said "there is no cloud of rain could exist as Mayor Whitley called upon Scout Ted Jeffery in the crowd where he bestowed the title of an old "Mayor of the Gay Dee" and gave him instructions: "The first thing you can do is get rid of the police chief, and then tell off more keepers who have not deserted their stores." Mayor Whitley also suggested to the young Mayor that if he collected any taxes he would gladly spit them fifty-fifty with him.

"Mayor" Jeffery acted as Master of Ceremonies for the remainder of the program.

Girl Guide Peggy Hakes of 3rd. Trenton Girl Guide Company, led the singing in prayer. Accompanied by Lions' Club Band, Lt. P. E. Gardner, of the Salvation Army, led the assembly in a hymn.

This began to fall in heavier volume and the sound of thunder warned of the approaching storm.

"Mayor" Jeffery read the Scripture which ended with a downpour which forced some members of the audience into their cars and the shelter of the school.

Thanks for Guides

Speaking for the Girl Guides, Miss K. E. Reed expressed thanks that the Girl Guides and Scouts assembled would be the future citizens of Trenton. "You will be the people who are planners, the leaders of tomorrow," said in asking, "what have we to build for, what can we do?" Miss Reed replied "the Scout and Guide program."

Miss Reed referred to the Trenton Air Rangers, which is the first organization of its kind in Canada, and reported that the association had recently ratified a Dominion charter. A meeting was held one month ago in Vancouver.

Major General Spry was officially welcomed and rose to make brief, spirited remarks to be briefly: "Today reminds me of my university motto: Pruim Gog Ney Your Powder Dry" ... maybe you can keep that as your motto today."

Queen Scout certificates were presented to eight Trenton Scouts by Major Spry, who referred to the awards as "a mark of high distinction" before presenting them to Neil Alger, Terry Clough, Hall Davis, Ted Jeffery, Robert Mowbray, Roger Mowbray, John McDonald and Don Timmins.

Bill Kemper weather forced the opening ceremonies to a close and several items on the program were dropped as, following the benediction by Lt. Gardner, the crowd ran for cover into the school where a short reception was held for Guides, Scouts and oldtimers.

During the reception Boy Scout Commissioner Hayes, of Watertown, New York, presented fire extinguishers to Boy Scout Commissioner E. Hamilton, of Trenton, and Boy Scout Commissioner Archie Lewis, of Belleville. Commissioner Hayes presented a fire hatchet to Major General Spry, who received the gift on behalf of Mayor Whitley.

Decorative Talk

The hatchet changed hands for the second time, when Major General Spry presented the New York gift to Mayor Whitley at a banquet held in the Queensway Hotel following the reception.

An informative talk on scouting was given to Scouters and their wives by General Spry who was presented with a medallion suitably inscribed with "Presented to Major General D. C. Spry, Trenton, 1953" on the reverse side and with "Boy Scouts of Trenton" on the obverse side. Coinciding with the Coronation year: 1953, the centre part of the medallion is a replica of reverse of the Coronation Medallion, set in a ring of silver which bears the inscribed message to Major General Spry. Mr. Ivor Walling, chairman of the Trenton Scouters Club presented a similar medallion to Mrs. Spry with the inscription "Mayor for a Day" Ted Jeffery.

Mr. Thorne Speer, chairman of the Boy Scout local association in Trenton, and master of ceremonies for the event which concluded a visit with a great Scout leader who will in September become World Chief Scout.

With General Spry on the reviewing stand for the march past were Girl Guide Commissioners, Mrs. D. Arnott, Division Commissioner for Hastings Co.; Mrs. A. E. Oliver, Divisional Commissioner for Northumberland County; Mrs. T. W. Speer, District Commissioner for Trenton; and Mr. W. D. MacArthur, Boy Scout Commissioner for Hastings County; Arthur Jackson, Field Commissioner and Archie Lewis, District Commissioner for Belleville.

Presented With Key

Highlight of opening evening ceremonies was the presentation to Mayor Ruby Whitley of a gold key to the City of Niagara Falls, New York, by Mrs. Burnett, a Trentonian now residing in the Empire Mecca of mist.

Mayor Whitley read the accompanying letter from Mayor Ernest Mirrington, of Niagara Falls, which tendered to all Trentonians hearties congratulations on their one hundredth anniversary, as well as good wishes for prosperity in the future.

Close to 6,000 Trentonians and visitors gathered around the band stand at Bayshore Park, Sunday night, to hear Mayor Whitlington's message and to listen to the RCAF Training Command Band, under the direction of Flying Officer C. O. Hunt. Later, the crowd joined in a real oldtime revival sing-song of the world's beloved hymns with Art Duncan or Estaws, leading.

During the evening, the winners of the Trenton Ministerial Associations Essay Contest on the theme "What Church Means to the Community" were announced and presentations made to winners, Bob Reid, 178 Dundas Street East, senior trophy; Betty-Jon Baldry, 4 Johnson Road, Trenton, junior trophy. Presentations were made by Rev. G. A. Minkelly, president of the Trenton Ministerial Association.

Commenting on the first day's activities Mayor Whitley said, "I was exceptionally impressed and more than surprised with the number of people attending the community sing-song and opening ceremonies."

COULD REDUCE

At Aurora, Mr. Low said that ever since Social Crediters entered Parliament in 1935 they have urged reduction of Government debt by purchasing power into the hands of the people without first passing through industry.

"Liberals held up their hands in holy horror. But they finally went to the people and offered family allowances. They were returned to power—thus doing what Social Crediters had preached, putting purchasing power into people's hands without the money first passing through industry.

But while the Liberals gave family allowances with one hand, they took it back with the other through inequitable "unknown" method which reduced the dollar's buying power.

Old-age pensioners, especially the sales tax, were the biggest cause of the increase in the cost of living. They should be abolished as soon as possible.

If the government had removed it, the cost of living could have been reduced by 25 per cent. If the government says Russia, or the United States, or the stars, are responsible for the high cost of living don't believe it."

19 per Cent Fuser

The best answer of the population lived at or below the borderline of poverty because of the government's policies.

At North Bay, Ont., Transport Minister Chevrier described as "ridiculous" Mr. Drew's tax-cut promise. Slightly over 20 per cent of spending was for essential defence and security benefits. The $200,000,000 saving could be made from the remaining 15 per cent which totalled $1,000,000,000.

In Port Arthur, Trade Minister Howe was unanimously voted out of the Liberal candidate. He recalled the "grim days of the thirties" and said the Liberal platform was to continue "the progress and prosperity which Canada has enjoyed since then."

Resources Minister Winters told a Liberal meeting in Lunenburg at Yarmouth, N.S., Saturday that Canada will never have another depression like that of the 1930s.

He said Liberal policies were so broadened the Canadian economy that a business recession of that magnitude is impossible.

Asked Security Pact

Rhee has demanded a U. S.-South Korean mutual security pact before a truce as his price for signing, but there was no indication he would get one.

Although a South Korean government spokesman said Rhee and Robertson were near agreement on a pact, there have been no official reports of the conference results.

The conference members had little comment after the hour and 40-minute meeting.

In his letter, Clark firmly denied Red accusations that the UN command was trying to force an armistice on the Communists regardless of South Korean objectives by objections to the truce. Calls Pee Meeting

Clark also called for an immediate meeting of the full-dress truce delegations to pave the way for setting a date for signing the armistice.

Meanwhile, the Red Peiping radio snarled at Rhee, calling him a "bought-up hound" who has "pushed the armistice to the verge of the precipice."

It was Peiping's most vicious attack on Rhee in recent weeks and termed Rhee "a puppet of the U. S. who got out of hand."

25-Year Veterans of Commodores Orchestra Honored at Banquet

Veterans of twenty-five years of consistent service to the Commodores Orchestra, which recently marked a quarter-century of dance combination in this district were honored at a dinner at the Queen's Hotel on Friday evening.

The hosts were members of the orchestra with Phil Huddleston and Stanley Wiggins acting as hosts jointly although the "rest of the boys" were there in person including Bud Haines and Frank Howard, the guests of honor at the function.

Both were presented with handsome gifts during a post-dinner ceremony with Stan Wiggins presiding and doing the special honors.

Approximately fifty members of the orchestra, their guests and wives were present to honor the "quarter-century" veterans including Mr. Huddleston.

Among the special guests were Mr. Harry Rollins, former head of the city park board, and Mrs. Rollins, parks board member and Fred Liddle and Mrs. Liddle, former member Cleo Colling and Mrs. Colling and Aldermen Don Thomas and Mrs. Thomas.

Toasts were drunk to the Commodores, past and present, with emphasis on those of the "past" and those who came under both categories.

Brief sentences of appreciation of the efforts of the orchestra and its well-known contribution to the dance entertainment of the city and a wide-spread district were given, by Messrs Rollins, Colling, Alderman Thomas and other guests.

The Commodores proved themselves to a delightful hosts as they are artists in the realm of music. The evening was rounded out with social amenities.

Weddings

SHORTEN—DANIELS

Before a lovely background of assorted white flowers, blue delphiniums and ferns in Foxboro United Church, on Saturday, June 27, at 2:30 p.m., the Reverend Roy E. Woodley officiated in marriage, Marion Lois Daniels, of Foxboro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Daniels, to the Reverend Arthur Lloyd Shorten, of Toronto, former pastor of the church and son of Mrs. J. F. Shorten, Toronto, and the late Reverend A. F. Shorten.

The wedding music was rendered by Mrs. F. E. Forsyth, of Orillia, and the soloist, Miss Lorette McDougall, of Belleville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her bridal gown or white Chantilly lace and tulle net over taffeta, fashioned with molded bodice, pointed sweetheart neckline and having a Sweetheart neckline and short sleeves. The graceful full skirt was accented by a front panel outlined by matching scalloped applique Chantilly lace which also extended from the waistline and the hipline to the chapel train. Her three-quarter length veil of tulle illusion, edged with Chantilly lace, was held by a heart-shaped halo brim of matching lace over satin. She wore elbow-length mitts of Chantilly lace, and carried a white cascade bouquet of calla lillies, stephanotis and feathered carnations.

Miss Helen Way, of Toronto, was maid of honor, and little Miss Beverley Green, of Stirling, was flower girl. Both were long blue embroidered organdy. The former was made with fitted bodice and full floor length skirt, and the latter with double ruffled long length skirt caught up at intervals with tiny rosebuds. They carried matching picture hat baskets of organdy filled with Sweetheart roses and small white flowers, while matching headdresses completed their ensembles.

The Reverend Robert K. Shorten, of Seven Islands, Quebec, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, while Mr. Donald Scott, of Stirling, and Dr. J. K. Beach, of Frankford, acted as ushers.

The reception was held in the church hall, where the bride's mother, attired in rose sheer and lace with corsage of white roses, received. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore blue sheer and lace with corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to the Adirondacks and Eastern Quebec the bride chose a blue rippled taffeta dress with grey accessories and corsage of pink carnation heart roses and stephanotis. The Reverend and Mrs. Shorten will reside in Peterborough, where the bridegroom is on the staff of Trinity of St. James United Church.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Orillia, Queen Sec. St. Thomas, Stirling, Belleville, Frankford, Harrowsmith, Kingston, Oshawa, Copperhill, Smiths Falls, Stirling, and Uxbridge, Ontario.

SMITH—LAKE

A pretty wedding was solemnized at Thomasburg United Church, Ameliasburg, on Wednesday, June 17, when Sara Florence Lake, of Belleville, became the bride of Franklin Wesley Smith, of Stirling. Rev. R. J. Norman, pastor of Eggerton United Church, officiated.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. R. L. Norman.

The bride looked lovely in a powder blue crepe and lace dress with matching accessories. White accessories. She also wore a corsage of deep red baby roses and white lilies.

Mrs. Lawrence Wilson, of Peterborough, was matron of honor, wearing a bolero suit with navy and white accessories and corsage of American Beauty roses.

Mr. Lawrence Wilson of Peterborough acted as groomsman.

Following the ceremony, the wedding party returned to the home of the bride where a dainty buffet luncheon was served to a few close relatives by Mrs. Ernest Wilson, sister of the bride and Mrs. Murray Kirkey.

After the luncheon the happy couple left for a short honeymoon to the Eastern United States and Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will reside at Halloway.

COLLEGE UPS FEES

OTTAWA (CP)—Fees at Carleton College will be increased by about 10 per cent next fall, Dr. M. M. Mackenzie, president and vice-chancellor, announced Saturday. The increase will amount to about $5 a subject for students registering in September in arts, science, commerce, journalism or as nondegree stu'nts. Students t'king the usual five courses now will pay $265 tuition fees.

Kinettes Make Farewell Presentation

The last Kinette meeting of the season was held in the St. Thomas Parish Hall, with president Maud Hollins presiding.

Eva Ketcheson was appointed as sergeant-at-arms and Gertrude Gourley as song-leader.

Mrs. J. Anthony, sister of Kinettes Elinore Martin and former Kinette Mary Best were welcomed by the Kinettes. Mrs. Anthony also approved the purchase of an Electrohome Talking Machine for their daughter, the White Cane Club.

District Governor, Helen Wilbur, gave a report on her year of office and on the meeting held at the Convention in St. Jerome, Quebec.

President-elect Marg. Hallam sent as a delegate to the district Le Tourneau, gave her report on the business meeting and social affairs held during the three-day affair.

Presentation

A farewell presentation was made by Dorothy Crulli, to Gertrude Gourley, prior to leaving the city soon to reside in Oshawa.

The honored guest of the evening was Kinette Mary Lloyd, of Belleville, presented by Helen Wilbur. Miss Lloyd showed pictures of the work of the staff of the various clubs attending the Inter-club meetings held recently in Belleville, and the pictures were good, and the various members were pleased to themselves on film.

Several guests were purchased by the club's historians for future use in compiling the history of the club.

Miss Lloyd was graciously thanked by the members.

Meeting was adjourned for the summer months.

R.G. Le Tourneau Speaks On 'Love' at Memorial Arena

Soft music of old familiar hymns by organ and piano, flooded out the arena Sunday morning with sacred hallowedness as the congregation of 500 or more assembled to hear R. G. Le Tourneau, honorary president of the Christian and Missionary Alliance and millionaire Christian business man, designer and builder of mammoth machinery.

Mr. Le Tourneau, who was introduced by the Reverend Eric Strain, pastor of the Alliance Tabernacle, said he was most happy to be in Belleville and tell what God had done for him, and of His wonderful love to mankind. Mr. Le Tourneau spoke on the subject of "Love" with the 13th verse of 1st Corinthians as the basis of his message.

Love With Sincerity

"Christianity," said Mr. Le Tourneau, "does not subscribe to a set of canons, but is based on love to the Lord Jesus Christ; not for what one may get from Him, or fear of hell or desire of heaven but because we may do, but to love the Lord our God with all our heart, our souls, and with all our strength, and with our mind; and our neighbor as ourselves, as Jesus told the young lawyer who asked Him what he must do to inherit eternal life."

"Our love must be on a higher plane than just what we can get from Him. To serve the Lord for what one may receive in return is just a pure business deal, and a thing most obnoxious to our Lord. Our love must be real, it must be genuine."

Remuneration

As an illustration of this Mr. Le Tourneau told the story of the little lad who left his mother that should remonstrate him for the little chores he had to do around the home, so he left a list of tasks accomplished with the charge for each. At the end of the list added to breakfast plate, the whole amounting to the sum of $1.

When the mother found the slip, her loving heart was grieved. She left a slip also beside his plate on which was written, "for going down into the valley and the shadow of death to give the life . . . no charge; for supplying you with food and shelter, for nursing you when sick, when you were ill with pneumonia, no charge; for mending and keeping you well dressed in clean clothes, no charge; total, no charge."

Dome Through Love

Mr. Le Tourneau came home at night he found the note beside his plate, and touched his heart; it could not sleep, he arose, went to his mother's room, and tenderly, his arms around her, he confessed how wrong he had been. What had been done had been done through love, and love alone. In the snowy way, the Lord Jesus Christ through love for us, died on Calvary's cross that we might become the children of God, by accepting Jesus death in our stead, and by showing our love for Him.

Mr. Le Tourneau spoke of the work in his factory where he said were Christians, mentioning that a Christian worker is the best worker. In the shop they hold what is known as the "shop meeting", where the Gospel is explained to those who are not Christians.

Definition of a "Christian"

When asked one day, "What is a Christian?" he said he could have given a theologic answer, but a Christian worker in the best answer required. The answer needed was, "A Christian is one who is in love with the Lord Jesus Christ. He added a cautioning that a Christian should not have a 'holier than thou attitude', but be humble, approachable, and sincere, and admonished all to take an inventory of their Christian life, and see whether they were progressing or going back, for a business man takes an inventory how his business is running. Mr. Le Tourneau believes that business and Christianity are co-partners, inseparable.

The soloist, Mrs. Strathearn, who accompanied Mr. Le Tourneau on his mission to Belleville, rendered two lovely solos; "He Died for Me" and "The Lord is one of Rather Have Jesus Than Anything", accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Ambrose Kirkpatrick. Both Mrs. Kirkpatrick and Miss Marjorie Sills accompanied the singing of the hymns.

Rev. Eric Strain spoke also at Redcenerville Beach in the afternoon, and in the meantime Redcenerville Gospel Beach, directed by Mrs. Lloyd Hollingsworth, was responsible for bringing Mr. Le Tourneau to Belleville.

Mr. Le Tourneau was entertained by the Industrial Commission at dinner at the New Queen's Hotel, on Saturday evening.

New Graduates Guests of Honor Of H. & S. Assoc.

On Thursday evening the grads of the graduating class of Foxboro Public School accompanied by their parents, were guests of honor at a banquet arranged by their Home and School Association, Foxboro, and held in the new community hall at the school.

The tables were decorated with beautiful flower and lighted candles for this momentous occasion in the lives of our young people.

A toast to the Queen was proposed by Mrs. Wm. Rombough. Grace was sung and a delicious meal was served.

Mrs. M. Shorey proposed a toast to the graduates urging them to go on to higher education if it were possible and wishing them all success in whatever they chose to do.

This toast was capably responded to by Master Ian Cooper.

Program Toast

Miss Helen Kelly proposed a toast to the class teacher, Mrs. S. Hagerman, with a very impressive speech, and Mrs. Hayton responded by saying she hated to say them to go but would not want any of them to stay. This is Mrs. Hagerman's eighth graduating class at Foxboro School.

A toast to Foxboro Home and School Association was proposed by Miss Janet Bonter and was responsed the thanks of the class for this banquet and also the appreciation of all the pupils for the piano, indoor and outdoor games and several treats which this association has provided in the past. Mrs. Wm. Rombough, the president, expressed her pleasure at such a fine turnout of parents and hoped that the Home and School Association membership would double next year that greater goals could be reached for the betterment of the children.

Rev. Bob Fowler, Women's Institute donates a prize of $10 to the best all-round pupil in Grade VIII. Mrs. Wallace, representing this organization, presented the scholarship to Master Ian Cooper. This year's winner, Ian, although taken by surprise, expressed his pleasure.

Take Inventory

The guest speaker, Miss Marion Daniels, was introduced by Mrs. J. Churchill. Miss Daniels, a native of this school herself, in her timely address asked the graduates to look in on themselves once in a while and take inventory, then look up to God for guidance, then walk out into the world and strive to be good citizens. Miss Daniels thanked the speaker.

Mrs. Wanda Sine, a former teacher at this school, spoke of how pleased it was to be a guest at this first graduation banquet in the new hall.

Miss Marion Kelly called Mrs. Hayton to a seat of honor and read an address and Master Donnie Wilson presented her with a beautiful glass compote suitable for the Coronation on behalf of the graduating class.

The toast was sung and an evening long to be remembered came to a close.

Mrs. B. Hollinger, social convener, and her assistants, Mrs. C. Hubble, Mrs. V. Harry, Mrs. M. Walter, Mrs. A. MacPhee, Mrs. R. Sherriff and Mrs. Norman Bonter, Miss Marilyn Parks and Miss Carol Stewart are to be commended on the excellent way in which the project was planned and carried out.

GOOD FISHERIES

OSLO, Norway (CP)—The spring fisheries off northern Norway made up for the failure of last winter's catches cod fishing industry. By mid-June the cod and haddock fisheries showed a catch of about 49,000 tons, more than double the same time last year. The winter Lofoten cod fishing totalled 28,000 tons, nearly 36,000 tons less than the previous winter.

Alcoholic Conditions in City Vividly Described at W.C.T.U.

The June meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union opened with a welcome to all and some introductory remarks on the work of the Salvation Army.

It was founded in England by William Booth 88 years ago among the poverty - stricken crowds of London's east end slums. In its organization the honor system was dealt a smashing blow, for besides its tremendous spiritual and welfare activities, was one of the largest anti-liquor temperance societies in the world. One of the sayings of the founder was: "We are out against the drink evil lock, stock and barrel."

Communities have been "cleaned up and remained so through the Army's anti-drink endeavors.

Alcoholics' Clinic

A new type of work of the Army is soon to open up in Toronto in the form of a clinic and accommodation where alcoholics can be treated. It will be called "Harbor Light." The Army holds no one is entirely without hope and prayer.

All this costs, but if lives are not saved they will cost the nation in hospitals, jails, and prison sentences and court hearings. Let us help the Red Shield.

Mrs. C. Mills conducted an inspiring devotional period with "The Beauty of the Earth." "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want," they add beauty to life. They are more than give light and heat. The sunrises and sunsets, and the rainbow. June is the time to keep on us with flowers everywhere. Daisies in the grass, and roses in the garden. Let us like them, give out beauty.

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker, Mr. Bram Humphrey, is the Education Army and supervisor of prison work, Toronto. He was introduced by Miss Clazie. She said: "Who cares what happens to the alcoholic? The S. A. does and does something about it."

Mr. Humphreys gave an inspiring address telling of the sweet conditions existing in the city of Belleville among the young men and women. Victims of the alcoholic traffic through which they become habitual inebriates and drunkards.

He introduced his remarks by referring to the secret service underground with which he came in contact during the last war. In a secret and ingenious way a sirmsen, who were shot down, were caught away to shelter and safety. "Canada today has conscience he said, "but her greatest enemy—a menace that is undermining the middle aged, and the youth, is alcohol." He told of broken lives and unhappy homes he came in contact in prison work in this city. He told of the wonderful work being done by a secret service group here. Rocky Walters.

They reclaim the victims by working secretly and getting the individuals in safer reform. This can only be accomplished from within the individual himself. It requires tact, wisdom and absolute secrecy.

On visiting the prisons one Sunday, Mr. Humphreys told of finding six boys from 17 to 19 years of age, 18 men from 20 to 35 years of age, and eight to ten old repeaters. These men, most-in the prime of life are hopelessly dissipated and defeated through strong drink. This surely is a challenge to all thinking men and women of this city.

On behalf of the Union, Mrs. F. Cook thanked the speaker and presented him with a donation for his work in prisons.

$20 was voted for camp work. Mrs. Farnsworth announced the evangelistic campaign in the area, under Mr. Charles Templeton, and appealed for interest and prayers in the work.

WHERE PARKING IS NO PROBLEM

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

There is no more destructive force to be found than indecision. Until a person makes up his mind what he is going to do about a problem, he is helpless. He is unable to use his energies in anything but mental speculation. Hopelessly far more nervous wrecks are made by living with a problem unsolved than a decision, and not making it, than by taking a definite step, no matter how difficult it may be. Here is a wife who, having, as she would herself grant, by her unwitting herself to a definite course of action.

She has been married for two years and has three small children. In the course of those years her husband has left her right often, because, she says, "he just can't stand family life." Each time, after he had had enough of solitary living, he has come back to his family again. Then, after one of these "visits" for a while longer off he would go again. It is now over to the ninth time. I am getting some money from him," the wife writes, "but it isn't enough to support even one child, let alone myself and the three children. I have a steady job at good work, but I don't see how I can leave the children.

The whole thing is getting me to the point where my nerves are going to pieces, and I don't believe I would be able to work any longer. I love my husband, and I believe he will be back again eventually, but how can I tell? That is another matter, and I don't think I can go through it all again."

Pin Head To Coming And Going

However much this woman may think she loves her husband, it doesn't sound as if she really does—it seems to me utter foolishness for her to keep taking the rest of her treatment he is handing out to her. If she does not want to divorce him, she should at least see that an end is put to the kind of life she is leading, she describes. This could be possible by securing a court order that temporarily takes away from her. At the same time, he could legally compel him to pay her sufficient money to support herself and her children properly. If he decides to do this, naturally she should retain a competent lawyer to look after the legal details.

Whether she does this or not, I rather think it might be a very wise move for her to go to work herself. She thinks she cannot do this, partly because of the children and partly because she has no such a services state that she feels suitable to undertake. So many women with small children have found a way to have these served for them that I am sure many wives who are worried about money have found a way to make themselves employed once they have gotten to earn, and to know the spot in the mercy of a man who may or may not live up to a court order to support her. It may be advised to head a recalcitrant husband into court compelling him to temporarily far more of a nervous strain by getting out and supporting herself.

What I think this wife should do is to go to a social welfare organization for help in making her plans. Then she will certainly need expert guidance in getting started. Undoubtedly, there is such an organization in her town, and if she does not know where to find it, let her ask her family doctor or any town official to direct her.

As for her husband, if she should let him that she had both the ability and the spunk to make a go of things without him, it might give him more respect for her than he probably has now.

Certainly it has been amply demonstrated that she is getting nowhere—at all by putting up with his "off again, on again" routine. If anything can influence her husband, it will have to be a wholly new approach.

TO FREE AUSTRIAN POWS

VIENNA (AP)—The Soviet government in Moscow has decided to release 998 Austrian prisoners of war and other Austrian citizens held in the Soviet Union after the war, the Austrian government announced Saturday night. The Soviet decision was made known to the Austrian government in a note which the Soviet foreign ministry in Moscow delivered to the Austrian ambassador in Moscow.

Two-Burner Cottage Meals

By Mary Moore

Do you remember that some- tin tomatoes, 6 medium potatoes, time ago I made suggestions for 4 medium onions, 1 green pepper, easy summer cottage meals and 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon pepper, flour to thicken. Cut meat in small cubes (or buy stew-off fat) and arrange about 1/3 of it in bottom of deep saucepan. Season with salt and pepper. Add a layer of potatoes cut in pieces, then a layer of sliced onions and green pepper. Continue until all ingredients but meat are used. Sprinkle in sugar over, now add water by half capfuls, counting them, to cover. Be sure the tomatoes are in. Cover, bring to boil, then reduce heat and simmer until meat is tender—about 3 hours. For each cup of water added stir in 1 tablespoon flour mixed smoothly with an equal quantity of cold water. Stir until thick.

If desired dumplings may be cooked on this during last 12 minutes, when flour paste would be unstirred.

I hope you save the recipe for frying-pan dinners. If not I give you two weeks ago.

Stuffed Cabbage Rolls (sometimes called Kol Dolmer)

One lb. ground beef, ½ lb. ground pork, 1 cup raw rice, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 chopped onion, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 small cabbage, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 cup milk or cream or sour cream. Break leaves from cabbage, and parboil 10 minutes in salt stream. Trim off thick part of rib. Mix steak, pork, onion, sugar, pepper. Parboil or steam rice 10 minutes until drain and add to mixture. Put heaping tablespoon mixture on a wilted cabbage leaf and roll up, being sure to tuck in ends before you finish rolling. Place open side down in greased pan. Continue until all filling is rolled into cabbage leaves. Pour with 1 cup hot water. Cover. Simmer 1 hour. (This would be baked if there is an oven). Before serving pour over heated milk or cream and season to taste. Lebanese and Turkish folk serve yogurt with this.

In meal No. 2 cook the rice in the bottom of the double boiler while you are preparing the creamed salmon in the top.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. BEECKMAN

Notice on the Rehearsal Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Certain customs obtains in the prospective groom's family make it rather difficult for the groom's mother to give the rehearsal dinner party. A rehearsal dinner is omitted?

Reader

There is no rule whatever that the groom's parents give the rehearsal dinner. They may be a dinner given before the rehearsal (but this is not necessary), and this dinner may be given by the bride's parents, or by any relative or friend of either family, or by the groom's parents, if they wish to, if find it convenient to make this gesture. Traditionally the rehearsal dinner is given by the godparents of either the bride or the groom. Also, today, very often there is no rehearsal dinner given, but, instead, there are simple refreshments or perhaps a buffet supper served after the rehearsal.

Shower Gifts and Wedding Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When one is invited to a bridal shower and also to the wedding, are two gifts to be given, or does the shower gift cover both occasions? C. M.

In most cases and under most circumstances, a shower present is an "extra present"—does not take the place of a wedding present. The question as to whether or not a friend would give two presents depends on: (1) the custom of the locality; (2) what the giver can afford, and (3) the reward she is to the bride-to-be. If it is open stock silver, the bride may be a pocketbook, which, of course, it usually is. Then, the giver may plan to give a very inexpensive something a thoughtful title, as a shower present, and then "connected" on the wedding present.

Wise In Selecting Future Marking

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

There is a way of serving dish that I would like to give to one to a friend of mine who is being married soon. She has a lovely pattern of her flat silver, but I want the dishes to be surprising, therefore I don't want to ask her what type of marking she is using for her silver. Can you help, Editor. Would it be really correct for me to send this to her and tell her that it can be marked later, just as she wishes?

Yes...this is the perfect thing to do, the most thoughtful and practical gift and also helps with your plan. As a matter of fact, this is often done nowadays, and often arrangements are made with the store when the gift is bought, for the marking. Then either the giver or the bride herself can attend to the marking arrangement.

Shower Guests Should Be Present of Guest of Honor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle an argument that my girl friend and I are having, will you please answer this for me? When given a shower, is it proper to invite friends of your own who do not know the girl who is to be the guest of honor?

A and B

No...this is not proper. It looks far-fetched indeed to invite girls unknown to the guest of honor to a party to which they are expected to bring gifts.

IDENTIFY WRECKED PLANE

Bathroom fixtures brighter than ever, says young housewife

Do you like the bathroom fixtures to really shine, especially those with gay colors? Then read what this young housewife has to say:

"Nothing I tried would brighten my bathroom fixtures until I read a neighbour recommended New Sunlight. It certainly makes my whole bathroom, including the tile, really shine."

You'll find New Sunlight has a score of uses around the home. Gets the family laundry whiter and brighter. Gets the dishes, pots and pans brighter. Use it for washing woodwork, floors, linoleum. Nothing can take the place of Sunlight—it washes everything washable.

New Sunlight is Canada's favourite bar soap. It's all pure and extra soapy. Your family will love it. Get New Sunlight this very day!

Fashion Spotlight Turned Back on Princess Margaret

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The four-day Ascot race meeting, fashion-plate highlight of London's debutante season, turned the royal fashion spotlight back on Princess Margaret.

This petite bachelor girl, more than a decade younger than the next two years, is making a notable comeback. She's declared the old flair for "something different" that helped her to wear post-war ankle-length outfits before British women had fully accepted them.

Throughout the Coronation season of royal engagements, her skirts have been wider and longer than is generally fashionable at the moment. Her hat styles have been different to those worn by other royal women. Superior to size, she broken many accepted fashion rules that should be worn by petite women.

Wears Decper Colors

It seems Princess Margaret left behind many of the dress restrictions she could not escape as a schoolgirl. Now in her twenties she move from Buckingham Palace to Clarence House with her mother, Mother. She is choosing deeper colors and more outstanding styles to suit her changing status and duties to the throne.

Her most notable Ascot fashion was a full-skirted navy organza dress with choir-boy collar and cuffs in stiff white piqué, worn with a white pancake hat and white accessories. Claire Rayner started from the hips.

On the first day of racing her big-brimmed hat was the brightest color in the royal box—a shade of flushes reminiscent of her outfit worn at the Commonwealth May Day Rally.

At a Blenheim Palace garden party in June, attended by Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent of Canada after he received an honorary degree at Oxford University, Princess Margaret wore an outfit that experts say broke all rules for "small women."

Wide and Long

The skirt of the stiff silk dress was wide and long, the grey mink stitch-type wrap waist length and flared at the back. Her hat had a wide shuttle brim in front and her shoes had extremely high stiletto heels and three wide straps.

For her outdoor dealers' fair in London she wore a navy and white, wide-skirted grosgrain dress with cap sleeves and deep neckline. The neckline was lined in white and had a deep pointed bertha marguerites that formed the dress pattern trimming. She added the outstanding feature of this outfit was her Flemish bonnet of navy with a white lining. Completing the soft Flemish crown suggested by a navy and white striped ribbon placed like a bun on the crown.

102nd Birthday Flight Enjoyed By Lanark Lady

OTTAWA (CP)—Mrs. Jessie Mahjaury, pipe-smoking great-great-grandmother from Lanark, Ont., went for her first flight Sunday—and liked it better than she thought.

And seven of her 200-odd descendants turned out for the joyriding rain at Carp airfield, about 19 miles southwest of here, to see her off.

"It was absolutely wonderful," she said when she came back from the flight. "If I was younger I'd like to go up there more."

The plane, a small four-seater, was flown by Jack Ralph, prestparachutist and flying instructor who had read of Mrs. Mahjury's birthday in the Ottawa Citizen. They "just to get above the trees."

Mrs. Mahjury's son, Joe, 78, and Tom, 59, climbed into the cockpit and let out a whoop as the plane took off.

At 1,500 feet she said the altitude would do her head and sat watching the countryside slide by through the rain-streaked window.

On landing she brushed off people wanting to help her down. She took Mr. Ralph's hand. "God bless you," she said. "When I was 100 someone said carts would fly without horses. Now I've been in one."

Beauty

By HELEN JAMESON

Planning the beauty contest

Unless a woman never has to give a thought to the balance in the checkbook, she is likely to have her pet extravagances and pet economies. What one may regard as a luxury another may consider a necessity, and the other way around.

Some women are hat crazy. No matter what the price tag on the latest creation may be, if it is becoming, they have to have it. And the same ones may pick up shoes or hose or frocks on the bargain counter. Others spend money like crazy for things at the beautery. They shoot the works every few weeks—a facial, hand and arm massage, maybe a body massage; wave set and manicure. But they wouldn't think of going to a high class corsetiere, have the foundation and bra carefully fitted, made of the best materials. Face and hair are perfect, but the body is slouchy-looking.

They just don't see themselves as a composition; they don't survey themselves in the full-length mirror. They look longer if they'd divide up the beauty budget, and they'd make it go further.

Getting down to basic beauty principles, we must realize that the woman who hits the bull's eye is the one who has the fresh-by-the-clock look, whether dressed or not. Hair, skin and nails are a whistle. She may not stand among the glamorous ones, but she is the one who is neat and there is a completeness and perfection about her whole make-up.

She never overlooks a single detail of appearance. Her purse is never a messy clutter; her handkerchief doesn't look as if it were from the second day of service; her are no little odds and ends wrong her outfit.

Let us take a critical glance at a woman who buys a expensive clothes and then wears them with run-over heels, or carries her hat. She has something the dog has played with. You see them often enough. They are piecemeal; they shop piecemeal; the well-groomed girl is a $3.95 housedress has been skinned a mile as far as appearance goes, because unfortunately, flaws are the first thing one sees in a woman.

Daintiness and grooming cost no more, as noted just time. They pay beauty dividends.

London's Social Season Starts in April, Ends in July

By MARJORIE EARL

LONDON (Reuters) — In this man's country, a debutante comes out in the summer. London's social season, more glittering this year than ever, starts in April and ends in July.

Its boundaries are two ancient and manly sports, fox hunting and steeplechasing at the Grand Nationals, the English social butterfly emerges from her cocoon, enjoys her brief fling in Society, flight in the the thousand-and invited to meet the Queen.

Two Presentation Parties

So far this year the Queen has held two official garden parties. At each one some 300 girls ranging in age from 17 to 23 and wearing simple afternoon dresses made two and carefully-rehearsed curtsies, one to Her Majesty and one to the Duke of Edinburgh.

Applications for presentation at court are received by the Lord Chamberlain every autumn. Each girl must be sponsored by a woman who has herself been presented.

The coming-out party of a British debutante is likely to cost her dad anything from $1,500 to $15,000, depending on whether she makes a modest bow to 100 guests or has a grade "A" clambake with 1,000.

expensive clothes in aid of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children; the Royal Ascot race meeting and the coochee-coochee at the latter's estate of the Duke of Richmond; Henley regatta and cricket matches at Lords. The other two, and the most important, are the Queen's garden party and her presentation at court.

Presentation is optional. No girl can hope to make even the smallest chink in the iron curtain of Buckingham Palace unless she is the thousand-and invited to meet the Queen.

PICTON

Tax Rate Set At 78 Mills

PICTON — Tax rate for the town was struck at 78 mills, at a special meeting of council on Thursday night. This is an increase of two mills. Increase is due to the debentures in connection with the new high school being built here. The town is also paying a heavy debenture for sewerage.

Total assessed real property and business assessment of the town is $3,296,052, of which $23,-205 is assessed as property of Separate school supporters.

Sums required to be raised include $50,041 for public school requisition; $46,132 for county rate; $4,750 for public library; $1,510 for public school debenture; $8,835 for utilities debenture; $20,857 for Prince Edward high school purposes; $5,200 for relief; $46,202 for sewerage debenture; $4,261 for high school debenture; $62,860 for town purposes.

At this meeting council also approved a proposed plan for paving several streets and tenders are to be called.

The fire committee was instructed to secure prices on modern fire fighting equipment and present a report at the next meeting.

W. A. Watson, architect, was to be engaged to prepare sketch plans for alterations to the fire hall related to more modern equipment being housed there.

WELLINGTON

A JUNE MORNING

I hear in the early morning
In the hush of the twilight dim,
A bird singing over and over
The notes of his morning hymn;
And the sun drops gold on the hillside,
All decked in pearls of dew,
And the wind whispers soft in the grasses
And ushers the day anew.

And in a tree by the window
A robin has built her home,
And sings in the glorious sunlight
That falls from the sky's blue dome;
And the earth glows green and golden
In the light of a bright June day,
While the heart dreams of a June - time
That never shall pass away.
—Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON — June with its lavish gifts of flowers and fruit is nearing an end. Delicious strawberries are on the menu, and the factories will soon be canning green peas. Boys and girls are gladly anticipating the holiday season, while many grown-ups are regretting the swift passing of this month.

Miss Mary Lumb entertained guests from Rochester.

Miss M. MacArthur, Welland, is enjoying holidays with her aunt, Mrs. Edna Platt, and other relatives in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Vandervaeter and Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe (Vandervaeter, Bellerville, motored to Bath on Sunday and visited Mr. and Mrs. Fred Vandervaeter and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Manlie and Eva are spending several weeks' holidays in the States.

With Rev. A. Poulter in charge Father's Day was observed at the Sunday morning service in the United Church. A choir of men's voices added music to the service.

Miss J. Bulpin and brother, of London, Ontario, spent last week with friends here, being house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Conley.

Miss Nellie Arthur and Miss Clara Anderson, Bellyville, with Mrs. H. B. Anderson and Miss Marjorie Blakely, Wellington, enjoyed a motor trip to Ottawa last week, going by way of Smith's Falls and returning by the river route.

Mrs. Henrietta Humphrey

Mrs. Henrietta Humphrey, wife of the late Mr. Schuyler Humphrey, passed away on June 2 after a brief illness at the home of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Good Murphy, Maple Ave., Wellington.

The deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. Elias Pine and his wife, Maturah Scott, and was born on September 7, 1868, at Wooler. Her girlhood days were spent in Hillier where her parents later resided. Following her marriage she resided near Gardenville, removing to Wellington after Mr. Humphrey's death.

She was a member of the United Church and a faithful worker in the Woman's Association. She was also a member of the Women's Institute. With words of cheer and a helping hand to the ill and distressed, she made many friends who cherish her memory.

Surviving is a sister, Mrs. A. Good Murphy, of Wellington; also a brother Dr. T. H. Pine, of Toronto, and three step-children: Roy and Beatrice Humphrey, of Consecon, and Mrs. Cyrus Pufford, of Bury's.

The funeral service was held in the Ainsworth Funeral Home with Rev. A. Poulter in charge. Floral tributes were numerous and beautiful. Interment was made in Wellington cemetery, the bearers being James Cleminson, Donald Jolley, George Dorland, Godfrey Upton, Gordon Channel and Don MacDonald.

An interesting letter from Mr. and Mrs. Jack Root, of Consecon, who are holidaying in England, his native land, tells of a safe passage and arrival at Southampton and train to Waterloo Station; of their visit to Buckingham Palace and Alexandra Park and Palace, the latter having been severely bombed; of a visit to the Fairburg Park's with its beautiful flowers, and a visit to the Tower of London and the prison room where Anne Boleyn was beheaded and where the little princes were smothered and the room where Sir Walter Raleigh was imprisoned. Truly sights long to be remembered.

W.A. of the United Church

The June meeting of the Women's Association of Wellington United Church was held in the school room on Tuesday afternoon with the president, Mrs. Wash, in the chair and Mrs. E. Phillips pianist. Following the opening Mrs. J. L. Rose had charge of the devotional and Mrs. Ida McFaul read the minutes and called the roll. A vocal duet by the Misses Brimley was enjoyed.

The program was in charge of Mrs. L. N. McFaul, Mrs. Tice read the first lesson and Miss Carley Cleave gave a piano solo, "Flowers of June" was read by Mrs. H. B. Anderson and a splendid reading by Edna Jacques was given by Mrs. A. Vanderwater. Mrs. Stanley Thompson then told of her visit to Florida. Mrs. Arnold Anderson, who is leaving Wellington with her husband, who has resigned as principal of the W.C.I. here, was presented with a gift by Mrs. Alyea and Mrs. Taylor. Mrs. Anderson expressed her sincere thanks. A vocal selection by Mrs. B. Bishop, Mrs. B. Wilts and Mrs. Alyea was much enjoyed. A social time with refreshments closed a pleasant afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris are enjoying a holiday in Quebec this week.

Mrs. Edna Platt entertained the guild of St. Andrew's Anglican Church on Tuesday evening, with the president, Mrs. W. A. Davern in charge. A missionary tale was prepared for a western mission field.

Several from Wellington enjoyed the Coronation picture at the McCarthy Theatre, Bellevile.

South America Subject of Talk At Rotary Club

CAMPBELLFORD — Lt.-Col. Etter of the Salvation Army was the guest speaker at the Rotary Club meeting held last week. He told of his experiences in South America, with special references to Brazil, in which country he spent more than 30 years.

Brazil today is in some respects a leader in the democratic way of life. There is absolutely no class distinction, and in this vast country, the fourth in matter of area in the world, no racial distinction. The people are largely sprung from Portuguese ancestry intermingled with the black slave labor brought in by the early settlers. There are all shades of white and dark, but absolute equality of privileges to all.

The educational standards, though very low until the last few decades, have risen tremendously, proved by the fact that Brazilians have been among the chief executives of the United Nations on more than one occasion. The country is favoured in the world in respect to social legislation, and the people seem to thrive on what might be termed a benevolent dictatorship.

In South America as a whole the religious leadership given has not been of the highest calibre. Marriage, until the last couple of decades, was veritably unknown. The social and moral problem in the country has been that of the abandoned child. The government, aided by such influences as the Salvation Army, is tackling the problem and these children are being educated to be useful citizens with a reasonable moral outlook on life.

The speaker hazarded the opinion that in fifty years Brazil would be one of the most progressive and enlightened countries in the world.

Lt.-Col. Etter was introduced by Captain Mutton of the local branch of the Salvation Army, and was thanked by President Frank DeCarrol.

Ladies P. C. Assoc. Elects Officers

CAMPBELLFORD — Mr. Ollie Taylor, Progressive Conservative candidate for Northumberland, paid tribute to the ladies at the opening remarks at the annual meeting of the Ladies' Progressive Conservative Association which took place last week in the Legion Hall.

He said that, "Although women are called upon to assist with many local projects, their ability and efficiency makes it possible for them to take an active part in political affairs as well."

Expresses Confidence

Mr. Taylor, in outlining the work to be done before August 10, expressed confidence in the intelligence of the public, who must realize that the present government in Ottawa not only backing the ability to conduct the country's affairs, but also no longer cared. In conclusion, he outlined the growing tendency towards autocracy, rather than democracy, and gave great cause for alarm.

President of the Peterborough Ladies' Progressive-Conservative Association, Mrs. John Cridland, presided during the election of officers. Mrs. Cridland is also chairman of the Women's Advisory Council, and gave an interesting summary of events leading up to the present day status of women. Mrs. Cridland urged that everyone work to preserve the right to vote in every level of government, and stressed the importance of interest and loyalty. The speakers were introduced by the local president, Mrs. W. C. Tatham.

Officers Elected

Those elected to office for the coming year were as follows:

President, Mrs. W. C. Tatham; secretary, Mrs. George Vice; representatives of Ward 1, Mrs. Frank DeCarrol, Mrs. Sidney Hopping; Ward 2, Mrs. Jack Tribble, Mrs. Jack Allen; Ward 3, Mrs. Robert Linton, Mrs. Ted Peaker; Ward 4, Mrs. N. Alex MacColl and Mrs. Don McArthur.

Noted Organist Holds Music Examinations

CAMPBELLFORD — Mr. T. C. Chatine, Mus. B., A.C.C.O., distinguished organist and adjudicator for the Eastern Ontario Conservatory of Music conducted examinations for the Conservatory in Campbellford on Wednesday. He will also be here in Hastings and Simcoe. During the past week Mr. Chatine has conducted examinations in the Renfrew and Ottawa district.

A graduate in music of the University of Birmingham, England, Mr. Chatine studied there under the great British musician Sir Granville Bantock, while among his other teachers was Charles W. Perkins, organist to both the city of Birmingham and to the Duke of Marlborough's chapel at Blenheim Palace.

Mr. Chatine has twice been chairman of the London Centre, Canadian College of Organists, and for over 20 years has been organist and choirmaster of London's Metropolitan United Church.

Tennis Tournament Held by Local Clubs

CAMPBELLFORD — A friendly tennis tournament took place here Tuesday when a number of members of the Madoc Tennis Club paid a goodwill visit to the local club.

Veteran flier if the First World War, Harry Free, who was one of the original members of the Campbellford club, and who assisted in building the local courts, was on hand and showed that he still retains the vigor and enthusiasm he has always had for the sport. Mr. Free is now a Seymour East farmer.

At mid-point in the event, refreshments were served at the home of Miss Dorothy Kingston. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Ralph Atkinson, Mrs. Robert Anderson and Miss Vera Tatham.

Ivor Hughes voiced the appreciation of the Madoc Club and inviting the local club to return matches in Madoc at a later date.

Rev. T. F. Hoey Ordained Priest

CAMPBELLFORD — Father Thomas Francis Hoey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Hoey, natives of Campbellford, was ordained to the priesthood on Sunday, June 21, by His Eminence Cardinal James Charles McGuigan, in Toronto.

After attending Campbellford High School and and Regiopolis College in Kingston, he entered the Novitate of the Society of Jesus at Guelph in 1939. After completing his juniorate and philosophical training, he spent two years studying Classics at the University of Toronto, where he took his Master's degree.

Upon completion of this course he taught Latin at St. Paul's College in Winnipeg, returning to the Jesuit seminary in Toronto to complete his Theological studies.

Huge Crowds Attend Opening Of Trenton Centennial

Honor of opening Trenton's 100th Anniversary went to hometown boy, Senator W. A. Fraser, outstanding figure in Canadian public affairs. The Senator praised the marchers and welcomed the guests. He referred to the late Dr. J. R. Reminston, first chairman of the Centennial Committee now headed by prominent merchant and civic minded citizen, O. G. "Buster" Alyea. Sitting on the platform from the left are Scout Ted Jeffery made "Mayor of Trenton for a Day," Major General D. C. Spry, Lieut. P. Gardiner of the Salvation Army, I. Shulman, program committee chairman, and Mayor R. R. Whitley.

A scene from the colorful parade proceeding along Dundas Street with the R.C.A.F. trumpet band swinging along in the background. About 5,000 people standing and sitting in cars lined the route from College Street school grounds to the official ceremony at the base of Mount Pelion.

Doukhobor Chief's Wedding Kindles Wave of Terrorism As Torches Set to 10 Homes

KRESTOVA, B. C. (CP) — Romance kindled terrorism during the week-end when a young Doukhobor leader got married in the colorful ceremony the sect brought to Canada from Czarist Russia.

In the hours following the marriage of John J. Verigin torch raiders came out of hiding to strike at three communities and set fire to 10 homes.

Die-hard radicals of the Sons of Freedom sect don't recognize Verigin's leadership and it appeared the raids were timed to take the spotlight away from the peaceful joy surrounding the wedding.

The 30-year-old Verigin, an enemy of violence, is secretary of the orthodox Doukhobor communities' 19,000 inhabitants. Born in Russia, he is a great grandson of Peter (The Lordly) Verigin, former Doukhobor spiritual leader in Canada.

Close to 30 dwellings have been destroyed by terrorists in recent months in the Doukhobor settlements in the province's southern interior.

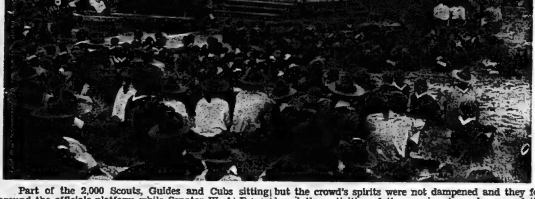
Hasez Burned

In the new raids four homes were destroyed at Gilpin, three at Winlaw and two at Brilliant. A thing attempt to burn a third home at Krestova was unsuccessful.

There was no trouble at the community of Brilliant, where Verigin lives, but the home of Mrs. Peter Laura Reikoff in a ceremony conducted "from the heart."

The Doukhobor form of marriage isn't recognized under B. C. law but the government has announced it plans legislation which will give it recognition.

Held Two Ceremonies



Actually, there were two ceremonies, both attended by thousands of gaily-dressed orthodox Doukhobors as well as many tourists and other non-Doukhobors.

In Doukhobor weddings the first ceremony is held before the bride's parents and the couple, before the father and mother of the groom. If the parents are dead, somebody close to the family is named to represent them.

Choirs sang and chanted as the young lovers arrived for what was the brightest occasion in years in Doukhobor "society."

Following the ceremony, more than 800 guests feasted at rows of tables on the lawn outside the brilliant community hall.

Non-Doukhobors who stopped to watch the festivities were invited to dine in traditional, Doukhobor style and throughout the day a choir sang Russian hymns and folk songs.

Part of the 2,000 Scouts, Guides and Cubs sitting around the officials platform while Senator W. A. Fraser delivered opening address. The gathering was rather hurriedly dispersed by rain as religious singing got underway but the crowd's spirits were not dampened and they followed the activities of the evening to make one of the largest number of people ever to congregate in Trenton.

East Germany Nearly Normal, Curfew Relaxed

By TOM REEDY

Berlin (AP)—Germany's Communist Eastern zone returned closer to its normal occupation status today as many Soviet troop units moved back to their barracks. Curfews were relaxed and announcement was expected soon of the lifting of martial law.

German police took over patrolling in parts of East Berlin and units of the two armored divisions which quelled the June 17 workers' revolt there withdrew. The curfew was cut to four hours nightly.

Similar action was taken in many of the other revolt centres.

Throughout the Soviet Zone, Red leaders staged "loyalty" rallies to bolster East German puppet Premier Otto Grotewohl's shaky regime.

Give Back Plants

Continuing their policy of decommunization to placate the population and restore German efficiency, the East government gave back more plants and shops to former private owners and returned farm lands to dispossessed owners.

Along with reports of numerous amnesties—the release, for example, of 700 men jailed in Halle for infractions of economic laws now virtually abolished—the West heard reports of more strike leaders arrested.

Underground sources said also there had been three more executions by Russian firing squads, bringing the reported total of such dead to 33. Scores of others died in the strike-riots, most of them at the hands of German Communist police. Allied officers have agreed the Russians had done most of their firing over the heads of the rioters.

Western military men, meanwhile, after pondering closely their reports on the outbreak in East Germany and the Russian actions which quelled it, reached some eye-opened, and chilling, conclusions about the Red army across the frontier.

Hard Red Army

Allied sources said these conclusions are inescapable:

1. The 300,000-man Soviet force is not a soft occupation army. It is a hard-hitting juggernaut that can take off now and strike in any direction.

2. The combat teams are trained to the last detail in swift, forced marches, rapid deployment and that final evidence of the real soldier—he doesn't fire at shadows.

3. The rolling armored equipment is kept in top shape and is good equipment. The Russian field uniform is new and good and so are his weapons. The officers are smartly turned out and there isn't a ragged looking one in the lot.

Military men are particularly amazed at the minimum loss of life that resulted from the inherently savage mission of combat troops colliding with a rioting population.

Churchill Rests But Still Able To Study Papers

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill rested at his country home today while R. A. Butler, Britain's "temporary prime minister," presided over a meeting of the cabinet.

Overworked Churchill, 78, warned by his doctors to rest for at least a month, is obeying their orders. But he has their permission to study some of the most urgent cabinet papers and to see friends at Chartwell, his mansion in Kent.

He was up and about all week-end, and even was host at a small dinner party Sunday.

Assume Double Role

Meanwhile, Butler, 50, followed the Churchill pattern by assuming a double role—that of the prime ministership and as sanctioner of the exchequer.

Churchill "doubled" the roles of government chief and foreign secretary for three months because of the illness of Anthony Eden.

Butler has a partner to help him with House of Commons business—Capt. Harry Crookshank, Lord Privy Seal, who is leader of the Commons. Crookshank will deal with some of the statements and questions that normally fall to the prime minister.

The illness of the prime minister, will force a major cabinet reshuffle before long, political sources said today. The government has been considerably weakened by the simultaneous absence of Churchill and Eden.

British newspapers devoted columns of speculation to the effect Churchill's illness would have on international affairs.

Several welcomed the postponement of the Bermuda conference on the grounds it could be more done grounds it could be more decisive later when the effect of the latest development — release of North Korean prisoners, and the revolt in East Germany—could be more clearly assessed, and when the new French government has had a longer time in office.

21 Persons Meet Violent Deaths In Eastern Canada Over Week-end

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Twenty-one persons lost their lives violently in Eastern Canada during the week-end. Nine were drowned and nine died in traffic accidents. One person was killed by lightning, one died as a result of a fall and another following a brawl.

Ontario headed the list with 11 fatalities, a Canadian Press compilation showed. Quebec had nine deaths and Prince Edward Island one drowning.

There was one double fatality. John LaFerriere, 22, and Yvon Caplette, 23, both of Sorel, were killed when their car collided with a transport truck near Joliette, Que.

Leonard Jelfs, about 20, of London was killed at Brantford by lightning which struck the tree he was sheltering under during a storm.

Other Ontario deaths:

Traffic—Brian Collins, 17, of London, the third victim of a car-truck collision Friday; Rene Bedard, 52, of Matachewan, when his car smashed into a Canadian National Railways train at a level crossing near Pembroke; Anthony Delorme of Ottawa, of injuries suffered when struck by an army truck; Helen Parker, 2, of Barrie, who ran into the path of a car; George Herreluik, 46, of Sarnia, when his auto crashed into a ditch.

Drownings—Edward H. Wilson, 21, of Toronto, in the Trent River at Campbellford when his motor boat upset; Earl Aigaire, 29, of Brockville, when he fell from the motor boat he was trying to start; John McPhee, 22, of Sturgeville, who slipped into deep water while wading in Lake Cecebe; Fred Scott, 16, of North Eastbope Township, in a gravel pit.

Herbert Berlett, 60, of Listowel died of a fractured skull following what police termed a brawl at a party at Harriston.

Record Flight Made

OTTAWA (CP)—An RCAF jet Comet transport aircraft Saturday made a record non-stop flight from Vancouver to Ottawa in four hours 41 minutes.

Air force officers said this was a little more than half the time the flight would have taken a piston-engined airliner.

The Comet made the trip at 36,000 feet, flown by Sqdn. Ldr. W. R. Lloyd, 32, of Regina and Toronto, with Flt. Lt. L. W. Hussey, 29, of Ottawa, as co-pilot.

Interim Meeting Of West Powers To be Held Soon

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's "temporary prime minister," Richard A. Butler announced today that preparations are going forward for an early interim meeting of Western ministers on current problems.

Butler, who is acting as prime minister during the month in which Prime Minister Churchill has been ordered to rest, said Britain would be represented by the Marquis of Salisbury, the government leader in the House of Lords.

Making his announcement in the House of Commons, Butler did not say which countries would attend the interim discussions. But it was presumed he meant the United States, Britain and France.

Socred Victory Seen Likely In British Columbia Voting As Final Tally to Commence

By GEORGE FINLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Re-establishment of majority government in British Columbia appears in the making.

The final decision whether it will be Social Credit or CCF may be known this week.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett and his Social Credit party, who held office from last August until late in March as a minority government, appear to be on top following the June 9 election.

But Tuesday under the alternative voting system the counting of second choices starts. It may take several days, especially in the big city ridings.

The first count, made election night, showed Social Credit far in the lead with Premier Bennett and three of his cabinet ministers elected. The CCF elected only two, the new leader, Arnold Webster, and the veteran E. E. Winch, long a member for Burnaby.

But Social Credit was leading in 26 ridings as against CCF's 15.

The electors blew the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives right out of the picture. One Labor member was leading.

Leaders Favorites

In the 1952 election, with the exception of six, all candidates who were leading on the first count were elected in the final tally.

For the 46-seat house the first-count standing this year showed: Social Credit elected four, CCF two. Leading—Social Credit, 26; CCF 13; Labor, one.

For an over-all majority the winning party will require 25 seats.

Under the alternative voting system, which gives the elector a choice of candidates, marking his ballot, 1, 2, 3, etc, a candidate must have a majority of votes to win.

When a majority is not obtained, the candidate with the fewest number of votes is dropped on second count and his ballots distributed among the other candidates. Three or more counts may be necessary to elect a candidate.

The three-week delay in ballot counting was to enable ballots to be distributed to their own ridings.

How will the second choice votes go? Political experts say the result hinges on what Liberal party voters do with their second choices.

The Liberals can't elect a government—it would have to be a miracle—but their second choices could help decide whether the Social Crediters or CCF will form the next government.

When the second count starts, the Liberals, lower in total on first choices, will be eliminated and their second choices distributed among remaining candidates.

Returning officers will start the count at 9 a.m. Tuesday and continue each day until 7 p.m. until completion of the job.

And there will be no holiday for them Dominion Day.

Many Recounts

In many ridings a recount of first ballots will be made before absentee and second choice votes can be counted. In any riding where there is doubt on a first count, a candidate can ask for a recount. In this way a number of judicial recounts conducted before a county court judge will be eliminated.

A year ago it was 28 dayPerhaps the final result was known 20 days before Premier Bennett and his minority government took office.

In power only seven months, the Social Credit administration was defeated March 28 on the floor of the House when CCF and Liberals combined to out-vote an education bill dealing with a new cost formula.

At dissolution the standing was: Social Credit, 19; CCF 18; Liberal, 6; Progressive Conservative, 2; Labor 1. There were two vacancies.

Powerboat Racing Slated For One of Biggest Seasons

By PETER MURRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ships from the Canadian and United States navies will take up stations along the sea lane from Seattle to Vancouver early next month, but their activities won't have anything to do with joint defence exercises.

The warships will be there for the sole purpose of herding along some 150 planes that will be taking part in the Pacific international power boat race.

One of a number of similar international competitions to be held along Pacific northwest waterways this summer, the powerboat race is a typical example of the enthusiasm fostered by yacht clubs in the area.

Expect Big Season

This sport, growing in popularity, is slated to have one of its biggest seasons this summer.

Topping the list of almost weekly events is the northwest's annual Pacific International Yacht Association regatta, to be held at Vancouver this year, June 28 to July 2. At least 225 boats are expected to compete for the many trophies at stake.

About 1,800 sailors, half of them from the U.S., will be manning the boats, which will range in size from midget flatties to large, luxury cruisers.

The eight yacht clubs on the lower British Columbia coast will also stage closed races for their own members—but most of the competitions will have an international flavor.

In fact, B.C. yachtsmen have no provincial association of their own, preferring to throw in their lot with the Pacific associations which take most of the brunt of the coast. When any of the member clubs decide to stage a big event, as it does, it's a foregone conclusion that everyone else will be invited to enter crews.

Popular Race

One of the events that attracted entries from many ports was the Swiftsure lightship classic, held each year on the last week-end in May. It is the only ocean race held in the Pacific northwest.

The boats start from Victoria, head out into the open Juan de Fuca strait, round the Swiftsure lightship and return to the starting point. In this year's race the boats were buffeted by winds up to 50 miles an hour.

Officials of the yacht clubs are quick to point out, however, that racing events comprise only one part of an active schedule.

Most week-ends, sail and power boats band together in groups for trips to favorite anchorages around the spacious, yet sheltered, Gulf of Georgia.

At the drop of an anchor thain, local yachtsmen will expound on the the sailing conditions to be found in this area. The scenic routes between the many islands dotting the gulf can't be matched anywhere, they say.

MELROSE

MELROSE — Quite a number of ladies from Melrose attended the trousseau tea held at the home of Rev. and Mrs. L. Scott, Shannonville, on Saturday afternoon and evening, given for their daughter, Audrey, whose wedding took place Saturday, June 27.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack McLaren, accompanied by Mrs. Carl Perry, Angela Morgan and Jim Shaughnessy, spent Sunday afternoon in Kingston and called on Miss Helen Shaughnessy, who is a patient in Hotel Dieu Hospital there. Her condition is much improved and friends hope she will soon be able to return to her home.

Members of the Masonic order attended church service Sunday morning in Descronto and a number of families attended the cemetery service on Sunday afternoon at Shannonville cemetery.

Mrs. Clarence Holmes, Belleville, and Mr. Gordon Ford, Toronto, called on Mr. and Mrs. J. English on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Cross and girls had dinner on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Newton Demille.

Members of the Reilly family enjoyed a picnic at Sloes Lake Sunday afternoon.

A number of school teachers were entertained at the home of the music teacher, Mrs. Arnold Reilly on Wednesday afternoon. A social time was enjoyed, followed by the serving of delicious refreshments and a cup of tea. This is a delightful annual event when the teachers get together to talk and say "good-bye" prior to the summer vacation.

Mrs. Fred Robinson, who has been a patient in Belleville hospital, is now convalescing at her home. Best wishes are extended to her for her complete recovery.

Wanted Man, Born in Simcoe, Held in Chicago

CHICAGO (CP)—One of the FBI's 10 most-wanted fugitives—born in the Ontario town of Simcoe—was seized Friday in a ladies' washroom masquerading as a woman.

He is Izale Aldy Beausoleil, 46.

A policewoman seized Beausoleil in the washroom of a north-side beach where she had been called by the manager.

The manager said he became suspicious of Beausoleil's husky build. Police said that underneath his dress the fugitive wore a bathing suit and falsies.

Beausoleil had been sought since August, 1949, after the bludgeoned body of Rose Trahan of Danielson, Conn., was found in a ditch in London township, Monroe county, Mich.

The FBI office in Chicago said that in addition to the murder charge, Beausoleil is wanted on federal charges of illegal entry into the United States and unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

The body of the Trahan woman was found Aug. 17, 1949. Detective chief John T. O'Malley said Beausoleil entered the United States from Canada illegally in 1946 and met the woman in East Lansing, Mich., in 1947. He made frequent trips to Michigan to see the woman while employed by a Chicago manufacturing firm from 1947 to 1949.

O'Malley said the fugitive was married to Catherine Schaak, 46, in 1950. They lived together in Chicago until three months ago when she recognized his picture in a newspaper—which described him as one of the FBI's 10 most wanted men and he left town, O'Malley said.

WEST HUNTINGDON

ENDEAVORS' CLASS

WEST HUNTINGDON — The June meeting of the Endeavors' Class was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mac Sarles Thursday evening with the president, Mrs. Alex. McCurdy presiding, who also offered prayer. The Scripture reading was given by Mr. Mac Sarles and he also gave an exposition. Mrs. Russell Sills contributed a reading; Misses Lois Cooke and Marilyn Fitchett gave a duet. Mr. H. R. Burke introduced the guest speaker, Rev. W. Tyson, of Ivanhoe, who gave a fine address on the subject, "Do We Need a Revival?" An appreciation of the class to Mr. Tyson was given by Mr. P. Carr. Following the benediction, Mrs. Sarles served refreshments.

Gerald Donnan of the RCAF, Clarenholm, Alberta, is home for a month's holiday.

Congratulations to the residents of Elm St. Visitors along this street have noted many fine improvements. Mr. Goldie McLaney has treated all his buildings to a fine paint job. Mr. John Wallace has erected a beautiful garage and lovely lawn fence and also has had his buildings painted. Mr. Vincent Parrell, one of the progressive farmers in this locality, has brought his farming more up to date this year by storing his hay in a trench silo. Mr. William Fitchett, who resides at the end of this street, is also raised as one of the up to date farmers.

Mrs. Cora Westerstand, Swift Current, Sask., spent a few days recently with her cousin, Mrs. Goldie McLaney.

Mrs. Floyd Sheffield and Margaret were Sunday guests of Mrs. Fred Barlow, 2nd. of Thurlow.

Carol and Gerald McKeown, of Foxboro, spent the week-end with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carr.

Mrs. Crook is spending some time with her daughter, Mrs. R. Boldrick and Mr. Boldrick.

FRANKFORD

FRANKFORD — Friends were glad to hear that Mr. Walter Morrow came through his operation in Kingston General Hospital.

Glad to hear that Mrs. Allan Maybee is coming along well after her operation.

The Frankford United Church choir held a wiener roast at Oak Lake Wednesday night with a fine turnout. Everyone enjoyed a swim before wading into the wieners and marshmallows. Choirmaster Ernie Wallace reports a good time, a stomach ache and a lovely cold from the swim.

Miss Dianne Maybee called on Mrs. Harry Lohnes Wednesday afternoon.

Tiny Boy Prodigy Is Ringling Circus Star

Off-stage, he looks like any little 5-year-old boy, wearing blue jeans, sporting toy pistols in imitation of the horse-opera heroes he loves on TV.

But on-stage — stage being the centre ring of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus coming to Belleville on Wednesday— he looks like a prodigy, and he is.

His name is Mistin Jr. Jr. One of the stars of this season's show, he plays the xylophone like a virtuoso. Wearing a black jumper suit and a white shirt with long flowing sleeves, the child climbs on a stool, stands erect and plays with astonishing aplomb. Astonishing because he plays entirely by ear.

But he has been doing it for some years, since he was 18 months of age. Son of a professor of music at the Brussels Conservatory, he made his debut with a Belgian circus when he was two, and has played all over Europe.

Mistin Sr. explained that John Ringling North saw the boy last year in Geneva and got him for the Big Show.

Mister Mistin has a private tutor, speaks six languages in addition to English, which he is rapidly learning.

He practises from one to two hours a day; that leaves him plenty of time to watch Westerns on TV, his favorite pastime.

The boy is excited by the wonders of America and is looking forward to seeing the rest of the country during the current tour. Especially though he is to get a regular boy. Likes candy, soda pop and ice cream, and hates to go to bed.

INVITE CANADIAN HORSE

WESTBURY, N.Y. (CP) — One Canadian-owned horse will be among the world's 10 fastest pacers invited to meet in the $25,000 U.S. National Pacing Derby Thursday night at Roosevelt Raceway.

Prince Adios, owned by Grant Hodgins of Clandeboye, Ont., is the only Canadian horse invited.

The select group is headed by the champion, Hi-Lo's Forbes, owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Wagner, Landover Hills, Md. Hi-Lo's Forbes set a world record on Roosevelt's half-mile oval three weeks ago when it was clocked in 1:58 3-5, clipping a second off Sampson Hanover's one-mile world record established in 1950 at Delaware, O.

Prince Adios was in the same race when the record fell and finished in less than 2:01.

The derby will be over the 1¼-mile distance. The contestants will be shooting for the track and world mark of 2:31 3-5 set by Good Time last year.

WINS JR. GOLF EVENT

KITCHENER (CP)—Hugh Paterson, 16, of Toronto St. George's, won the first annual Westmount junior invitation golf tournament Saturday. He shot a six-over-par 34-43—77 for a two-stroke edge over Warren Bishkopf of the host club.

SPLIT FEATURE EVENT

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Peterborough horses each won a heat in the feature 2:19 class Saturday in a twilight harness race meet staged by the Peterborough Turf Club.

Graydon Sheldon's Gadabout won the 6½-furlong heat in 1:29 but Mancon Cathcart's Miss Chipso did the second-heat mile in 2:14 to lead a field of eight.

Mr. Bobby Hanley of Renfrew was a double winner in the 2:22 class. Calumet Baldwin took both ends of the classified race.

AUSSIES TO COMPETE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Australia will send a team of at least 40 men and women to the British Empire Games here in 1954, Australia's acceptance of Canada's invitation to the games was received Saturday.

The team will include several Australian Olympic champions, including Marjorie Jackson, double winner in the Olympic sprints at Helsinki in 1952.

BETSY RAWLS WINNER

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Betsy Rawls Sunday beat Mrs. Jackie Pung in a playoff for the first women's open championship of the United States Golf Association.

Betsy, who registers from Spartanburg, S.C., on the pro circuit, fired a record-matching 71 over the steamy Country Club of Rochester course, to win the 18-hole final by one stroke. Jackie came out of Hawaii last fall to win the U.S. women's amateur championship.

OUTBOARD WON

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Outboard motorboat pilots from Hamilton and London clubs won most of the prizes at the seventh annual regatta of the Greater Niagara Boating Club on the Chippawa river Saturday.

Jerry Bowman of London was a triple winner, while Austin McKee of Hamilton took a first, second and third. Louis Yando of Niagara Falls won the high-point trophy for the most points gathered by a host club driver.

Latta Edges Cannifton 3-2

"Playing on their home ground Friday night, Doc Empson's Latta nine edged the Cannifton nine by the close margin of 3-2. Hits were the source as the proverbial bear's teeth, with Garfield Hall for the Latta team getting seven strikeouts and Phillips for Cannifton having five.

Latta scored one in the first as the result of errors and were then held scoreless until the sixth inning when Sullivan blasted out a homer. The winning run was scored in the seventh with Steward securing his Glass's single between first and second.

Cannifton scored two in the second on nine loose playing by Latta and on hits by Petrie, Moore, and Phillips.

For the Latta team Sullivan, with a home run, Doc Empson with a double and singles by Stewart, T. Ray, Parks, and F. Ray.

Cannifton: Cole lf; Sheffield 2b; Parlee cf; Petrie 3b; Moore 1b; Stellmer c; Phillips p; Matthews ss; Crothers rf. (Herder replaced McKeown).

Umpires — Meeks, plate; Kerr, bases.

GIVES SUPPORT

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Olympic Association will give its whole-hearted support if Toronto makes a bid for the 1960 Olympic Games, it was decided Saturday.

The subject came up before the board of directors meeting of the COA and was enthusiastically received.

Sports Roundup

NEW YORK (AP)—The patron saint of the modern umpire is the late Byron Bancroft Johnson, who organized the American League in 1901 in a snarling fight against the old, established National League and, as one of his first acts, raised the men in blue to a position of authority, dignity and security they had not known before.

Up to that time the life of an umpire had been a hazardous and degrading one. Baseball was a rowdy game, and the men who made the decisions were subject almost daily to intimidation and abuse by players and club owners alike.

Realizing that baseball could never become a big, great game under such conditions, Johnson let it be known from the start that the umpire, there was only one on the field in those days, was his personal representative and, as such, supreme. He warned that he would stand for no abuse of his umpires or for any infringement of their authority. He made it stick, too.

A vivid picture of the scandalous pre-Johnson era, as well as that of the pre-ball-control days which the arbiter rose to his present full stature, is contained in James M. Kahn's "The Umpire Story," published by the G. P. Putnam's Sons. You'll wonder when you put it down why it took so long for someone to put the colorful clan between covers.

Kahn, a former baseball reporter, has tracked down just about every funny story ever told about the ever-ending struggle between the umpire and the player. Tim Hurst is was who coined the immortal phrase "you can't beat the house" and who won a baseball cap with the letter "B" on the front because, he said, "it stands for best and Johnson wants you fellows to know how I stand with him."

Billy Evans, who came out of Cornell to give umpiring a touch of class it might have lacked before, tells of an April day in Chicago when he "got peppered" with a baseball cap with the letter "B" on the front because, he said, "it stands for best and Johnson wants you fellows to know how I stand with him."

Gene Lahnes read an article, "What Is a Girl?", which he decided to the MacEacherns girls, Mary, Nancy and Ruth. The program concluded as Mrs. Pearce sang, most appropriately, "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You."

Rev. Fletcher, neighboring pastor of Green Wooler, was called on for a few words, and he spoke of how a bond of friendship had grown and strengthened between Wooler and Frankford churches during Mr. MacEachern's stay here.

Presentations were then made by various organizations of the Frankford charge, and by the charge as a whole. First, Gene Lohnes, president of the S.S. class, read and presented a gift to Ruth, youngest member of the family. Bert Beech, superintendent of the Junior Sunday School of Frankford, had a gift for Herbie, Brian Babcock making the presentation. Hazel Cox and daughter Dianne, of Stockdale, presented a gift to Nancy from the Stockdale Sunday school. Mary received her gift from Batawa Sunday School this being presented by Ken Kern at the Toronto Temple. Mar-ion Anselstine, of Zion Church, played a piano solo which was greatly enjoyed.

Mrs. Harry Pearce, of Batawa, favored with a lovely vocal solo, following which the Frankford quartet sang two numbers in the lighter vein.

Charge Members Bid Farewell To Pastor, Family

Frankford — The auditorium of the Frankford community hall was crowded Friday evening as members and adherents of the Frankford United Church charge, taking in Batawa, Zion and Stockdale, gathered to bid farewell to Rev. and Mrs. R. MacEachern and family, who leave on Tuesday to take up pastoral duties in Harrowsmith.

Sid Martin, of Frankford, was in charge of the program for the evening, and opened with the singing of several hymns and choruses. Ronald Mills, of Batawa, read the Scripture, the 12th. chapter of Romans, following which Ralph Armstrong, of Batawa, led in prayer.

The program for the evening opened with two beautiful sacred selections sung by the Frankford quartet. Mrs. Vera Pitcher, of Stockdale, sang a lovely solo, "My Lord and I."

Accompanied by piano, Doreen Wiley played two selections on water glasses, obtaining the different notes by having the glasses filled to various depths. Doreen represents Zion church.

Mrs. Will Johnson, of Stockdale, read a humorous selection, "The Preacher Forgets," Marion Anselstine, of Zion Church, played a piano solo which was greatly enjoyed.

Butter Production In May Higher Than Year Ago

TORONTO (CP)—Production of creamery butter in Ontario during the month of May amounted to 9,038,300 pounds as compared with 9,008,200 pounds during the same month last year, the Ontario department of agriculture announced today.

The cumulative production of creamery butter for the first five months of the year totals 30,227,700 pounds, an increase of 18.2 per cent over the same months last year when production amounted to 25,577,900 pounds.

Provincial cheese factories reported production of 6,970, 390 pounds of cheddar cheese during May. Last year they produced 6,090,300 pounds in the same period. The five-month output from January to the end of May was 14,195,500 pounds, a decrease of 1.2 per cent over the corresponding period in 1952 when production was 12,225,000 pounds.

Cox and daughter Dianne, of Stockdale, presented a gift to Nancy from the Stockdale Sunday school. Mary received her gift from Batawa Sunday School this being presented by Ken Kern at the Toronto Temple. Marion Anselstine, of Zion Church, played a piano solo which was greatly enjoyed.

Yanks, Braves Head For Another 'Straight' Record, But In Reverse Gear

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carter, Sports Editor

YANCH EM-

Should you wander down Ox Point way these balmy evenings, not counting Fridays and Saturdays because they're the nights the hired man has off and is usually raise, you'll find the home of not a few of the braves in better than the south-end of a firefly over the possibilities of he softball tribe.

Manager Mike Whalen dug up a few veterans at the beginning of the season, garnished them with sprigs of youth and came up with as strong an aggregation as has worn the crossed cement bags symbol of Point Anne for many a moon.

Maybe that insertion of youth was just what the chief medicine man ordered. For while the pre-season likes of Pat Gilmour, Bobby Hunter, Doug Hull and others have carried the spark and fire of their junior days into the next upper bracket, the additions have come up with performances that would have you believe the old maestro Whalen has injected strong shots of Ponce de Loon virus into their softball systems.

Bobby Hunter, the Robin Roberts of last year's Glen Roy Juniors "A" all-Ontario champions, has been going great guns atop the mound. Pat Gilmour and Doug Hull have been waving their hickories with reckless abandon and there is generally is a ball at the end of the shillalahs when the knockerries finish their swings.

But tossing an effective offensive balance into the picture has been the efforts of the figurative "greybeards" of the squad. Johnny Green, who has a long while to go before he staggers to the plate on crutches, has been smashing the apple but plenty the last two or three games.

And stealing the Ox Point thunder of late has been that wily old "Flinging Bull" of the herd, Pat Maracle. Mebbe it's the Irish in 'em. Two Pats and a "Mike," a couple of Strahans, a Mulholland and others against a background of Green.

And raising "Hull" with enemy hurlers has been the consistent clouting of Doug and Rog Mallory.

But to get back to Pat Maracle. The dusky twirler has been coming through with remarkable performances of late. Two games ago he fashioned a three-hitter, holding the enemy batsmen and rankers over the rests and on Saturday night, pinch-hitting for Bobby Hunter, who had an injured foot, Patrick scattered nine CNR Diesel clouts for an impressive 11-4 victory while his mates were spraying 17 softballs over the Point Anne landscape.

It looks like Maestro Mike's Irish-Indians have not belied the power they presented on paper at the beginning of the season. Their fine record of eight victories and one defeat thus far tabs them as potential league champions at the moment, although anything can happen between now and the titular series.

SOFTBALL PLAYOFF!

Speaking of softball ah of the seven teams in the Belleville District League will compete in the league playoffs for the Bill Orr trophy it was announced Saturday. The regular schedule ended Saturday night, but each team has at least one postponed game and the loop executive advises league manager Jack Bates to arrange playoffs of three games during this week, so that playoff dates can be set for the week beginning July 6th.

Playoff arrangements will pair the first and fourth, second and fifth and third and sixth teams in a best-of-three quarter final round.

The Labatt trophy for the championship of "B" section will be placed in the hands of those teams of the intermediate "A" division of the league, even though the same teams are eligible to compete for the "A" section title.

The Peller trophy for the "A" section batting title, and the Conger Coal trophy for the "B" section batting title are open only to those teams who can make available scorecards of their home games with league statistician Peter Upper.

Team managers are urgently requested to let this department know at least 36 hours ahead of time the place and date of playoffs of postponed games this week—otherwise coverage cannot be guaranteed.

JUNIOR BASEBALL!

Bryson Reid's Junior baseball Regents go to the diamond next in the CNR Recreation Park tonight where they take on the Prince Edward Combines of Picton in a District League game. The juniors won their last clash in rather impressive manner and they feel they are on the victory road. They should be at full strength with no softball attractions scheduled so tonight's game should be well worth while seeing.

Manager Reid feels his young charges are gradually rounding into shape and with a little less than their share of the breaks should come through with a win tonight. Game starts at 8.30.

MEMORIES!

And very pleasant ones they were Friday night when those three grand maestros of music, veterans of the city's Mail of Melody for over a quarter century, Phil Huddleston, Frank Steward and Bud Haines, combined with their younger colleagues of the famous Commodores orchestra in a host role at a dinner party at the Queen's Hotel.

The boys proved delightful hosts and their guests, both ladies and gentlemen, were highly appreciative of the splendid gesture. The feature, of course, in a party that was featurefilled, was the presentation to Frank and Bud, commemorating 25 years of musical contribution to the dancing public of a large district. Twas a grand show and those minor rumblings heard occasionally meant nothing of a serious nature. They emanated from the tonsils of that Old Kinsman Jack (Der Bingle) Darlington in periodic warm-ups. Not bad, at that.

'Bombers' Drop Seven in Row As Hot Tribe Sweeps Series; 'Bums' Blast Braves for Lead

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Moaning Milwaukee fans were crying in their beer today over the collapse of their beloved Braves but their gloom was shared by millions of New Yorkers who still cannot understand what has happened to the once high-and-mighty Yankees.

Seven straight defeats have been suffered by the world champion Yankees, the same outfit that had rolled up 18 consecutive victories earlier this month.

A week ago the Yankees led the American League by 1½ games. Today, following their 6-defeat at the hands of Cleveland, the Yankees' margin over the Indians has been whittled to six games.

Milwaukee's plight is even worse. The Braves, too, dropped into seventh in a row Sunday, suffering an 11-1 rout by Brooklyn to lose first place to the Dodgers. Just seven days ago, they were enjoying a comfortable three-game bulge.

Races Tightened

The two league races tightened considerably following Sunday's results. The White Sox walloped Boston 12-4 to climb within 6½ games of the Yankees. The third-place White Sox have now won seven straight and 14 of their last 16.

Philadelphia's fourth-place Phillies halted St. Louis with an 11-inning 4-3 triumph over the Cardinals to close within four games of the league-leading Dodgers. The Cardinals remained in third place, one game behind the Braves and two back of Brooklyn.

New York's fifth-place Giants thumped Chicago Cubs 10-2 to wind up their western swing with nine victories in 13 games. The resurging Giants are only 7½ games off hits the pace. Cincinnati's improvedhis' sixth victory for Washington.

Two Toronto men—Don Ross, newly-appointed member at large of the COA, and George Dubbs, manager of the Canadian National Exhibition sports department—didn't pull punches on what they considered to be wrong in the Olympic picture. The meeting was in accord with their views.

Dubbs, who recently completed a cross-country tour advocating the training plan, said the COA must give "every possible assistance to good public relations."

"The proper approach is made up the press and radio of Canada you will get super-cent co-operation," he added.

Ross, making his initial appearance as a COA member, also told directors that "the man on the street holds the Olympic association in ill-repute at the moment."

He suggested that "an overriding committee be set up to handle money-raising activities and to get a friendly press and radio."

As a means of providing funds for sadly-needed interprovincial, national and international competition for Canadian athletes, Dubbs and Ross suggested the COA should arrange with the government and race tracks in Ontario, and possibly Quebec, to extend the racing seasons a day or two and donate the proceeds to COA for promotion of amateur sports.

Repentant Canadian Olympic Body Lays Plans for 'Goodwill' Campaign

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The much-criticized Canadian Olympic Association has laid plans for a "goodwill" campaign to get itself out of the doghouse with the public and press of Canada.

Directors of the COA met Saturday under the chairmanship of newly-elected Ken Farmer of Montreal, heard from its own ranks that it was in ill-repute with the public and decided something must be done to improve its relations with the people. It admitted the country's showing in Olympic Games hadn't been up to snuff and, in effect, laid the groundwork for a new deal.

Among other things, the directors:

1. Gave whole-hearted approval to the Canadian Olympic training plan designed to help the country prepare for future Olympics in track and field.

2. Recognized that the public and press have been taking a dim view of its operations and made initial advances to restore faith.

3. Paid off its financial responsibilities to Jack Burney, the Vancouver kid who athletes and the public generally gave a raw deal in the 1952 Olympics at Helsinki.

Waterloo Tigers Defeat London; Now in 2nd Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Waterloo Tigers are going great guns in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League.

The Tigers have moved into second place in the league, thanks to an 11-5 win over London Majors Saturday night.

Other Saturday activity included an afternoon contest in which Brantford Red Sox defeated Galt Terriers 5-1 and three other night sessions. Kitchener Panthers blanked Galt Terriers 9-0; Guelph Maple Leafs defeated St. Thomas Elgins 12-4; and Brantford Red Sox edged Oshawa Merchants 7-6.

Brantford won its afternoon contest from Galt in the sixth when with ace Ed Finney out on the circuit, Stan Lipka singled to left and on McDonald's error Finney scored, and Lipka came in on Tom McGratton's single, to bring in two runs to break a 1-1 tie. They added two more in the ninth.

Mac Lipka started for the Sox but didn't last the first inning. Jay Parker replaced him and stayed until the end. Relief pitcher Stan Lipka took over. Ted Szymanski lasted until the eighth frame for Galt when he was replaced by Jack Hazzard.

Third baseman Bob Fisher hit a home run, a triple a double and a single to lead the 13-hit victory attack against London. The Majors used three pitchers, Bill Gregory Burke and Ron Strasser. George York, who relieved starter Gregory in the second inning won the victory, holding the Majors to six hits.

Kitchener swept to victory behind Dick Welker who scattered nine hits and helped his own cause by scoring three runs. He singled, stacked twice and stole bases to score his runs.

Catcher Harry Psutka also helped the Panthers by knocking in three runs with a single, a double and a long infield ball. Bill Allan took over in the eighth to record Welker's win. Zeb Eaton was the loser.

Guelph snapped an eight-game losing streak with the victory over St. Thomas. Home runs by centerfielder Ken Andie, shortstop Napier and second baseman George d'Addario accounted for the Maple Leafs' victory. Pitcher Ken Yount held the Elgins to seven hits.

Lefticlder Dale Markert was the pacesetter for the Elgins with two home runs which scored three men. Starter Stu Lare was charged with the loss.

It took Brantford 10 innings to defeat Oshawa. Billy Le Gross clashed a pinch-hit single which scored Roy Lefevre after the teams had played regulation ball since the seventh inning.

Left-hander McGrattan aided the Brantford cause with a four-run

Montreal Athletes Surprise Oxford-Cambridge Trackmen With 3 Top-Event Victories

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, LAMBERT, Que. (CP)—Montreal athletes handed touring Oxford-Cambridge team a hot Saturday by winning three of the top events at the Eastern Canadian track and field championships.

The Tri-Coun boys emerged with four firsts, including David Law's victory in the featured Coronation Mile, but the opposition was far from rugged.

The 13-hour meet rolled along through 71 trials, plus 30 heats and semi-trials, producing four new Canadian open records, three in the women's division and one in the men's juvenile class.

The Toronto Track and Field Club put up a dazzling show in the Tri finals, 26 were won by the Toronto YTC contingent in both men's and women's classes, from midget up. Tom Saimming won five firsts in field events—four in junior and one in senior.

The Ajax, Ont., sandwich came in the 440-yard open hurdles when Bob Holmes of Montreal and Dan Di Nardo, Toronto, tore, collared bespectacled Harry Whittle, As the two cleared the last hurdle, Holmes moved in front and outraced Whittle to the tape. Holmes' time was 55.7.

Fran Livingstone, another Do-minion star from Montreal, broke the measure of Britain's Al Sexton and Austin Pinnington in the 100-yard. In trying for both the 100 and the quarter-mile, closely scheduled on the program.

Livingston took the first heat handily in 10.4 with Pinnington qualifying by placing second. Irene Peirson of Toronto was the second best; also in 10.4. Dave Hale of Montreal placed second, then romped off with his heat win in 10 seconds flat, Nayland Moll of Toronto placing second.

Before the final, Sexton made the bid in 10.4 and added to Jack Carroll, the Montreal-University of Michigan quarter-miler. Sexton set by two yards in 10.7.

Coming back for the 100 final, Sexton failed to place. Livingstone won it in 10.4, with Perkins second and Pinnington third.

Law in the Canadian mile and Chris Chatsway in the three-mile run won as expected. Law took the mile in the slow time of 4:27.5, with an 80-yard margin over Leo Weiss of Toronto East York. Andy Crawford of Montreal was third.

The red-haired Chatsway made a show of the four other contestants in the three-mile, lapping the field in 14:45.0, two minutes and winning in 14:45.0.

Whittle took first in the open broad jump, sprang only 22 feet, 1¾ inches to win. Then the Cougars boys monitored a three-man sweep of Lorne Boston, Chris Higham, Whittle and Pinnington to win the 440-yard relay. Bob Gibson of Toronto East York, Olympic AC team second and Toronto East York, third.

Of the four Canadian records established, three were in the open. TFC accounted for two, both in junior events. She erased the distance mark in the 16-pound shot on a toss of 101 feet, five inches. She also cracked the Junior Track Jump record of 16 feet, 11¼ inches, bettering it by a quarter-inch.

Doris Brennan, also of the Toronto YTC, broke her own record in the women's senior shot event, winning with 125 feet, 2¼ inches. Her former mark of 124 feet, three inches was made in Hamilton at the Olympic trials last year.

The other record was set in the men's division went to Dick Anderson of Toronto in the Maxwell pole vault. Anderson cleared 11 feet, 10 inches to break the old mark of 11 feet, 9½ inches.

Joan Wood of Montreal Olympic Club won the 220-yard open in 31.3, the 220 and the broad jump.

John Sloan of Greenwood won the midget 100-yard final and the midget 220-yard dash.

Cornwall Collegiate finished second to Montreal YTC in the junior women's 880-yard relay while Don Smith of Cornwall Collegiate ran third in the midget 880-yard run.

Middlecoff Nips Manakiki Open

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dr. Cary Middlecoff of Memphis the first $2,400 first prize in the 72-hole Manakiki open golf tournament Sunday, defeating Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N.Y., on the second hole of a "sudden death" playoff after they had tied at 275.

Middlecoff, who won the 1949 U.S. Open at Chicago, grabbed the victory with a par four to Kroll's bogey five on the second hole.

Kroll's runner-up prize was $1,200.

Tommy Bolt of Maplewood, N.J., wound up third with 276 for $1,400, and deadlocked at 280 were Jim Ferrier, Dutch Harrison, Ed Oliver and Freddie Haas.

Four Home Runs Feature Pt. Anne Win Over Diesels

Point Anne's Canestman added another victory to their impressive record on Saturday night defeating the CCIL Diesels 5-4 in a league fixture on their home diamond.

The game was a free-hitting affair as less than 28 base knocks rebounding off the bats of the teams, including four home runs, and twelve doubles.

The Ox Pointers garnered seven clouts off Al Adams, who went the nine innings route for the Diesels, one of them a homer by Pat Gilmour who also conpributed two doubles and a single for five. Bob Strahan had two doubles and a single with Roger Mallory kicking in with a trio of one-basers. Jack Elliott hit two doubles, Dougie Hull a homer and a double, and Johnny Green a double and single, while Donald Mulholland belted with his two-bagger.

Vern Carney's mighty bludgeon tagged two of Pat Maracle's slants for circuit blasts in the first inning. Wardhaugh good for a brace of doubles. Doug Sword had a double also credited for while Jack Hamm got a double and Alf Rowbotham's single rounded out the nine clouts the Diesels collected off Maracle.

The Point Anne hurler won his second game in as many nights, giving up two hits for as many runs in the first innings before settling down to hold the Diesels scoreless for the next six frames. Al Adams was generous with his mates, giving up four for three runs in the initial outing. He was touched for clusters in the fourth and sixth going for three and four runs respectively. He whiffed one, walked nine, hitting his only retaliation victim, and walked a pair.

Carney's first homer drove in Wardhaugh who had doubled to give the Diesels two runs in the sixth, and Green added another when Doug Sword's single drove in Rowbotham who singled, in the second and Goyer's second homer with nobody aboard rounded out the ralhwaymen's quartet of markers. Only fourteen men faced Maracle in the first four innings.

Point Anne whipped over three runs in their half of the first, scored doubles in the fourth and sixth, three in the sixth and one in the ninth.

The great majority of the hits were solid base clouts with the Diesels bobbling twice and Point Anne once. Doug Hull had four runs batted in.

The score:

CN Diesels	201 010 000 —	4	9 2
Point Anne	300 223 01x —	11	17 1

Adams and Young; Maracle and Green.

Kesselring Wins

BRANTFORD (CP)—Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener Saturday won the Calvert Invitation tournament for the second successive year.

His 141 nosed out Nick Weiszick of Windsor and Moe Norman of Kitchener, tied with 142.

Bisons Nudge Royals for Top; Leafs Win Two

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons are driving for the International League lead. True Herd has been going great guns in the CCIL Diesels 5-4 in a league fixture on their home diamond.

Buffalo now is only 1½ games behind Montreal Royals.

Buffalo Bisons' current surge upward, is pitcher Mill Jordan. The righthander became the loop's top hurler during the week-end, winning his eighth and ninth games of the season.

Jordan, his record blemished by only one setback, shut out Syracuse Chiefs 1-0 Saturday with a six-hitter and won his own game in a relief role Sunday. Jordan hit a three-run, ninth-inning homer to beat Ottawa Athletics in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader 10-7. The second contest was called at the end of three innings to enable the Bisons to catch a train.

The Royals and Baltimore split a Sunday twin affair, the leaguelead ers winning the opener 4-3 as the Orioles the abbreviated and rain delayed finale 3-0.

Lefty Tom LaSorda won his eighth game of the season in the opener, not allowing a hit from Jackie Lee in the ninth. Bob Greenwood was the victim of the defeat in the second contest for his fifth loss.

Toronto Maple Leafs recovered from a 3-0 whitewashing Saturday at the hands of the Red Wings to sweep a doubleheader Sunday afternoon 6-5 and 4-3.

Hal Keller's double with one aboard in the eighth and the opener drove in the run that gave the Leafs a 3-2 victory. The Leafs had a 13-1 ball game to their credit in the abbreviated nightcap, which went five.

The Wings split a Sunday doubleheader with Syracuse, losing the opener 8-5 and taking the second game in the nightcap 10-9.

In a Saturday game, Springfield pitcher Dave Hillman walked 10 batters and gave up as many as Ottawa shaded the Cubs 6-5.

Aussies Lead British Team

LONDON (CP)—Australia had scored 46 for one wicket at the close of play Saturday in the second innings of the second test cricket match with England at Lords.

Australia was all out in its first innings Friday night for 346 and England, batting first, had scored 372 of 177, ran its first innings total to 372.

The first Test match of a series of five for the mythical Ashes ended in a draw Saturday.

A 145-run stand by Len Hutton put the home team in a position out of the Australians when its last wicket fell.

At lunch-time, soon after Hutton was caught by Graeme Hole, England was 241 for 5 and appeared to needed only 50 runs for the lead in the second cricket test of the tour.

But the deadly bowling of the Australians combined with brisk and uninspired English batting dismissed the side for 85 more runs.

The Australians went into their second innings needing only and by close had reached 96 for one.

SETS HIGH JUMP RECORD

DAYTON, O. (AP) — Olympic champion Walt (Buddy) Davis Saturday smashed the world high jump record by a half inch with a leap-frog leap of six feet, 11½ inches in the annual United States Amateur Athletic Union track and field meet. Davis, from Houston Tex., bettered the mark of 6-11 set by Jim Sierra at Los Angeles June 17, 1941.

Two Veterans, 4 Newcomers Named For 1953 Canadian Davis Cup Team

TORONTO (CP)—Lorne Main of Vancouver and Toronto and Henry Rochon of Montreal, veterans of Davis Cup tennis, along with four newcomers, will carry Canada's hopes in Davis Cup matches against Mexico July 18-19.

Announcement of the team selection was made Sunday by Dr. George Lyon of Montreal, nonplaying captain of the squad, following completion of the Toronto Cricket Club's 111th annual lawn tennis tournament.

The newcomers to be team are: Bob Bedard, 22, Sherbrooke, Que., Paul Wiley, 22, Vancouver, Lawrence Barclay, 22, Vancouver, and Jim Bentley, 20, Toronto. The four white experienced players, have risen to top-rankers within the last couple of years.

Of the team, Leclerc said this line-up will stand "unless there are some startling upsets" in the province of Quebec open senior championships in Montreal, which started Saturday and wind up July 5.

American Wins

The tournament in which several Davis Cup trial matches were played, was won by Fred Kovacs, a powerhouse from Washington who has been in dropping to Lorne Main, 6-4, 6-4, 8s5 for the men's singles crown.

The more experienced American outplayed Main all the way, using tactics that the younger Main couldn't contend with. Kovalchik made his way to the finals with 6-2, 6-0, 6-2, victory over Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que. Main reached the final by defeating Doug Mackie of Los Angeles 6-4, 6-1, 11-9 win over Louise Brown, 6-0 victory in the final Saturday.

Harold Peterson of Toronto won the veteran man's singles with a decisive 6-1, 6-2, victory over Ben Frescdorf of Toronto.

Main, which started early in the evening, forced cancellation of the final matches of the men's doubles and postponement of ladies' doubles and mixed doubles. The ladies' doubles and mixed doubles will be replayed in two weeks while the men's doubles will not be continued or replayed because of other tournaments coming up.

Also on the tentative Davis Cup team is a "young crop" and "veteran crop" of players.

Bedard, Wiley, Barclay, Bentley and Peterson are the young crop, while Kovacs, George Masters, Leo Ycatro and Jim McNulty scored two each.

The Peterborough scorers were Lou Nichol with three, Don Ashley two and Ross Fowler, Curly Mason and Nip O'Hearn one each.

Execution of the new clubs in the league met in Toronto Sunday and decided to cut the number of men on a team from seven to seven the rover. The decision, announced by league secretary Chuck Bowman, will go into force July 6 on a trial basis, ending with the season Aug. 30.

300 Oarsmen, Paddlers Prepare For Big Regatta

TORONTO (CP)—Some 300 oarsmen and paddlers from 12 Canadian and United States points gather here Wednesday to make the 52nd annual Canada Day regatta one of the largest in Toronto's history.

The aquatic affair held on a mile-straight lakefront lagoon at Centre Island in Toronto harbor, will include 28 rowing and 19 paddling events.

Paddlers will come from as far away as Washington, D.C., and Sudbury, and oarsmen will represent such widely-separated points as Detroit, Buffalo and Ottawa.

Among those in attendance will be Henry W. Jahn of New York City, president of the United States Canoe Association, and Gordon Jermyn of Kanawaki, Canadian Canoe Association commodore. Also on hand will be officials responsibility of holding international meets on the sheltered lagoon course.

Powerful Sudbury Entry

One of the most thrilling races on the day's card will bring together three Toronto canoe clubs and a powerful Sudbury entry in the senior war canoe. Top event on the rowing program will see the Cathedral, Hamilton Leanders, Toronto Argonauts, Buffalo West Sides and Toronto Dons battle it out in the senior heavy eights. St. Catharines, Ont., will also be strong in heavies, are favored.

Bill Sheutz of the Argonaut Rowing Club of Washington, a member of the United States canoe squad at the Helsinki Olympics, will challenge eight Canadian paddlers in the senior double-blade singles. Bill Oldershaw of the Toronto Island Canoe Club and Chuck Hobbs of Sudbury are expected to give him plenty of competition.

Ralph Krueger and Pat Norman of Sudbury, Dominion tandem canoe champions, will represent their club in the senior tandem event. Eight entries from three Toronto clubs are in their challenge over the half-mile route.

Entries for the 20 swimming and diving events have been received from Scarborough, Fergus, London, Hamilton and five Toronto aquatic clubs.

Men's Singles Tennis Title Anyone's Guess

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—The second week on the All-England tennis championships began today and it is still anyone's guess who will succeed defending men's singles tennis title.

The first week in brolling sun yielded some of the dullest tennis seen in years at this world citadel of lawntennis. But the second week promised some thrilling matches in the history of the game.

That one was Thursday's epic struggle of 93 games in which Jaroslav Drobny, exiled Czech, downed Budge Patty, the Los Angeles star who now lives in Paris.

Now the men are down to the quarter-finals.

For the women, all brackets but one in the round of eight are complete. That one is a mere casualty, the women's singles is a certain victory for Maureen Connolly, the San Diego Calif., 18-year-old, who in the opinion of the centre court today could well be the one to determine the champion. It will be Connolly vs. Doris Hart, 28-year-old Australian who is ranked No. 4 in the world, and Philadelphia veteran of 29, seeded second.

Drobny Saturday knocked out Hez Hartwig of Australia 6-3, 7-5, 6-4, Saturday's other upset was Patty's ousting in the third set.

Other quarter-finalists pushed aside fifth-seeded Gardnar Mulloy of Miami Beach, Fla., 10-8, 6-4, 6-4, and Frank Rose of Australia downed Jaques Brichant of Belgium 6-4, 6-4, 7-5. Sven Davidson of Sweden also advanced. He downed Lennart Bergelin of Chilcock of Britain, winning 6-0, 6-1. Doris Hart of Coral Gables, Fla., defeated Angela Buxton of Britain, 6-3, 6-1.

St. Kitts Defeat Fergus 10-3 For Ninth in Row

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Athletics Saturday won their ninth consecutive game in the Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association by defeating Fergus Thistles 10-3.

In another game, Toronto-Orillia West Yorks moved into second place with a 16-8 win over Peterborough Timbermen.

The Athletics led 3-1 at the quarter, 3-2 at the half and then jumped ahead with four goals in the third period without reply. Al Frick and Gerry Davies fired three goals each for St. Catharines. Singles were scored by Skip Teal, Jim Bradshaw, Norm Corcoran and John Dewar.

Fergus scorers were Bob Beddie, Don Campbell and Ron Goodwin.

In the Orillia game, Peterborough managed to tie the score 3-3, 7-7 at the quarter and half, but in the third period, West Yorks went 13-8. Ken Croft paced Orillia with five tallies. Eight other Long Branch Monarchs, Leo Ycatro and Jim McNulty scored two each.

The Peterborough scorers were Lou Nichol with three, Don Ashley two and Ross Fowler, Curly Mason and Nip O'Hearn one each.

Execution of the new clubs in the league met in Toronto Sunday and decided to cut the number of men on a team from seven to seven the rover. The decision, announced by league secretary Chuck Bowman, will go into force July 6 on a trial basis, ending with the season Aug. 30.

'Tom Fool' Wins Rich Handicap

NEW YORK (AP)—Any doubt that Tom Fool is one of the greatest race horses the country has seen was definitely banished when the Greentree Stable's four-year-old equalled the Aqueduct track record of 1:49 4-5 in the $38,800 Carter Handicap under a crushing burden of 135 pounds.

No horse ever had carried that weight and won the Carter in 52 previous runnings. It was the 12th start for Tom Fool and his 12th victory. He has been out of the money only once.

Tom Fool, ridden by Toronto-born Ted Atkinson, finished two lengths ahead of Mrs. Jan Burke's Squared Away, with Eskolawan third, another 2¾ lengths back.

Art Hatch Crashes Boat

ARMPRIOR (CP) — Art Hatch, noted Hamilton speedboat racer, Saturday crashed into another boat at an estimated 80 miles an hour during the Ottawa Valley Shrine Club regatta.

Neither Hatch nor Joe Lees of Thunder Bay, driver of the other boat, was injured when a cable broke in the Hatch boat during a heat of one race. The $5,000 boat sank following the collision but will be salvaged, it was thrown from his boat.

In class C outboards, Victor Bleda of Buffalo, N.Y., tied with Jack Morton of Smiths Falls in a one heat.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The knockout in bridge is not the result of a flatic encounter arising from an argument. It is a 'deliberate play of a higher than necessary card that forces (knocks out) a higher opponent card.

See it in this deal:

South is declarer at five diamonds and the opening lead from west is the club king which holds the first trick. West also holds the second trick with the lead of another top club.

A look at dummy tells west that his partner is east is out of clubs and so is south. If west leads another club he knows that east can either sluff on it or ruff.

If east ruffs, south could overruff. So, it seems that another club lead is futile. But it only seems so. Actually it has a big possibility. Let me point out what this is.

One more defensive trick is needed to defeat the contract. If hopeless in the side suits, a trump trick may be there. And if east has a face card in trump it can How!

All east would have to do is ruff a third club with a facecard of trump. He would force a higher trump from south. This would assure west of a trump trick with his diamond Jack.

So, west leads a third club. But the union as the 40-hour week, a basic rate of pay which would provide wide workers with a proper standard of living, the adoption of its job classification program and a guaranteed annual wage.

AT THE DRIVE-IN "THE HALF-BREED"

In 1867, in Arizona, Reed Hadley tries to arouse the Apache Indians so that the troops will drive them off gold-laden land and then he and his henchmen can step in. Hadley involves Indian agent Porter Hall so that he sends out only a fraction of the supplies the Indians need. Some of the Indians, led by Jack Buetel, half-breed leader, ride into a town bristling with guns are held at bay by marshal Barton MacLane. Gambler and ex-Confederate officer Robert Young invites Barton into a parley, after which Hadley's men open fire on the others. Young helps Buetel escape as the cavalry arrives, and is asked by mild-mannered Hall is removed from office. Buetel says he will march, especially since Young is appointed temporary Indian agent. Meanwhile, Buetel's sister Linda Cartar, who has been putting off Hadley's romantic attentions falls in love with Young. A quarrel causes her to shift attention to Buetel, and this leads to a near-break in the friendship between Young and Buetel. When teh latter's sister visits town with others to pick up supplies, Hadley kills her, which starts the war drums going again. Young picks up a Hadley henchman, gets him to name Hadley as the killer, and goes after him, forcing him over a cliff. Young presents Buetel with the body, and the Indians call off the war.

Eamon de Valera Faces Sharp Political Crisis

DUBLIN (AP)—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera, 70 and handicapped by failing eyesight, faced up to the sharpest political crisis of his long life this week.

He has decided to risk the life of his government on a confidence vote in Parliament Thursday. Even if he wins, all Ireland feels that a general election cannot be long delayed.

If de Valera's Fianna Fail party should suffer a sharp defeat in a general election—and it probably would force the grudge vote of a new element in Irish politics, the women—the belief is he would never again lead it in political battle.

With only a two-seat overall majority in the Dail (Parliament), he faces a united opposition bitterly critical of high taxes, rising unemployment and a soaring cost of living. He will have to muster the full force of 69 Fianna Fail members, plus five independents, by bringing them in wheelchairs if necessary, to vote to win a narrow confidence vote.

Fianna Fail, with a straight nationalist policy held together chiefly by de Valera's personal leadership, has as its chief opposition the Fine Gael party, also a nationalist group. At present Fine Gael, with 45 seats, is lined up uneasily with Labor temporarily letting Labor party with 15 seats and other independents and members of small parties in the 147-member Dail.

54 Bands Take Part in Festival At Waterloo

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Fifty-four bands, a record number, took part in a parade Saturday during the 1953 Waterloo band festival, which was attended by an estimated 20,000 persons.

More than 1,000 entries were received for instrumental and vocal competitions.

The RCAF training command band directed by F. C. O. Hint was a featured band. Four RCAF trumpet bands passed for the parade. They were from Centralia, Trenton, Clinton and one from Portage La Prairie, Man., which flew here for the festival.

AT THE CAPITOL—Something About (Our Miss Brooks) Eve Arden brings out De Wolfe in Billy. Pictured in a scene from Warner's lavish Technicolor musical, "Yes For Two" are the noted night-club satirist, Miss Arden, Doris Day, Gordon MacRae and Gene Nelson. The film opens tonight at the Capitol Theatre for a three day run. On the same program of the all Technicolor show is Burt Lancaster and Virginia Mayo in "The Flame and the Arrow".

Support Given

KINGSTON (CP)—Kingston delegates to an eastern Ontario district council meeting of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) voted Sunday to support local 343 at the Aluminum Company plant, Kingston, in its efforts to gain a new contract with the company.

The union's district director, Larry Sefton of Hamilton, was the special speaker at this gathering representing locals at Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg, Gananoque, Prescott, Smiths Falls, Ottawa, Renfrew, Pembroke, Lindsay and Kingston.

He outlined four main aims of the union as the 40-hour week, a basic rate of pay which would provide workers with a proper standard of living, the adoption of its job classification program and a guaranteed annual wage.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which accomplishing enough for effort your birthday comes and find what involved? Am I following right your outlook is, according to the course? Stars now emanate mixed stars.

FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 30, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Typical progressive Aries day. You can make the headway in matters pertaining to your particular type of work if alert and diligent.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Stars favor the keen, on-the-job worker. Heart and private affairs will have to be handled with extra thought. Kindness counts most.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Whatever your immediate require- ments, they should be attended to first. Aspects favor the artistic- lace, but there are ample advant- ages to achieve soon.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Be careful handling others' property, investments, etc. Don't take things too much as a matter of course or you may regret lat- ness. Keep busy.

July 23 to August 22 (Leo) — Aim to give utmost effort and right answers. Misfortune and difficult temperament likely to give trouble, so be on guard.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Money matters, profes- sional interests will need extra vigilance, intelligent management. Be ready for innovations; don't sit back waiting for things to come your way.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra)—Fair vibrations. You may confront vital issues that demand extra smart handling. Hold do- mestic and personal affairs in wise check.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Your judgment, fine- ness of perception are keen. Are you following right course? Stars now emanate mixed vibrations.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Shun quick, un- thinking acts, speech; also watch out for tendency to indifference, maybe because of momentary suc- cess.

December 22 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Budget is the big thing now. Make ample prepara- tions to solve debt and income problem.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Neither off nor on day. Talk little, act more, but avoid fears. You should attain your goal.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Time to be most alert for new accounts, better type of investments, but warn against over-spending. Impractical ven- tures.

YOU BORN TODAY: Natives with the Moon strong in your Zod- iacal Sign are sensitive, bright. But often need prodding to do your best. Changeable, move around too much in search of what you could have in your own "back yard." Get proper sleep and don't worry. Birthdate of: Emile Jean Horace Vernet, Fr. Painter; Walter Hamp- den, great actor.

Queen of The Skies

Drawing admiration from all who have seen her, the De Havilland Comet jet transport reigns supreme as Queen of the Air, combining grace, symmetry, speed and performance. One of two now in use in the RCAF, and the first Comet to land in North America, the giant four-engined transport is the envy of the world. The Comet is powered by four Ghost jet engines, is built to cruise at 40,000 feet, and can do more than 500 miles an hour. The Comets will provide the RCAF with high-speed altitude aircraft to exercise Canada's air defence system with the Comets being used to simulate enemy bomber attacks, besides giving RCAF personnel experience with the operation and maintenance of jet airliners.—(National Defence Photo)

Supreme Court Dismisses Appeal For Damages in False Press Report

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada, in a majority 3-2 decision, has dismissed the appeal of Mrs. Yvonne Goay who sought damages in connection with a false newspaper report published by the Vancouver Sun.

The action against the Sun was launched by Mrs. Goay Nov. 5, 1948, nine months after the newspaper published a report that her estranged husband and three children were killed in a car-train collision in North Bay, Ont.

The report quoted Mrs. Goay's sister-in-law, listed at a Vancouver address, as having received word of the accident. A later check showed that no relative of Goay's had ever lived at the Vancouver address given in the report.

Mrs. Goay asked for unspecified damages. The Supreme Court of British Columbia awarded her $5,000. A majority decision of the B. C. Appeal Court reversed that judgment and Mrs. Goay appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

May be Appealed

The case may be appealed to the judicial committee of the Privy Council since it was initiated before 1949 when appeals to the Privy Council were abolished and decisions of the Supreme Court became final.

The majority decision of Canada's highest court was given by Justices Patrick Kerwin, C. J. Locke and Wilfrid Estey. Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret and Mr. Justice J. R. Cartwright dissented.

Mr. Justice Kerwin noted from the evidence that The Sun in publishing the false report had acted without malice although he was satisfied "that the trial judge was slightly found that (The Sun) was negligent in publishing the item."

The question, therefore, was whether The Sun was "liable in negligence for the shock and impairment in health suffered by the appellant as a result of reading the report.

Citing various cases, Mr. Justice Kerwin said the case hinged on the fact that there was "no contractual relationship" between The Sun and Mrs. Goay.

"... the law will not a person so closely and directly affected by the publishing of the matter that the respondent ought reasonably to have the appellant in contemplation as being affected injuriously when it was directing its mind to the act or publication by which, so, there was no duty in law owed by the respondent to the appellant."

Of General Importance

Mr. Justice Locke, who based his judgment on the same point, said the case was "of considerable importance" and indicated he felt the decision should apply to both papers generally.

"While the question to be determined is a matter of law, it is, I think, of some importance to consider the facts in this particular case, in order to appreciate the extent of the duty that newspapers contended for by the appellant."

He noted that the report was not carried by a news service and that The Sun had identified the only source of the false report would not be uncovered. Only after learning the damage action came nine months after publication of the story.

"The appellant's contention, put bluntly, amounts to this, that newspapers owe a duty to all those who may read their publications to exercise reasonable diligence to see that any items they publish are true, and are accordingly liable for a negligent misstatement should damage result from its publication.

He cited and agreed with an earlier judgment which held that a false statement is not actionable unless it is wilfully false, except in cases where there is a "contractual duty" or certain other exceptions. Mr. Justice Locke said the Goay case did not fall within any of these exceptions.

Mr. Justice Estey's reasons will be handed down later.

Dissenting Opinion

Mr. Justice Cartwright wrote the dissenting opinion and the chief justice also signed his reasons for judgment.

He said it seemed a "reasonable inference" from the evidence, that the item in question "was concocted by someone, possibly with the affairs of (Mrs. Goay) and her husband, who wished to hurt the appellant."

However, he opined, "that a reasonable man in the position of the respondent would have foreseen the probability of the appellant reading the news item and suffering serious injury as a result," and consequently the newspaper should have checked its facts.

He would allow the case at bar by an action on the case for negligently inflicting injury to the person of the appellant and thereby causing injury to her health, and is closely analogous to, if not identical with, a case in which the defendant has unintentionally but negligently struck the appellant or caused some object to strike him.

"In principle I find it difficult to assert that a defendant who unintentionally, but negligently, injures an appellant by a blow or an electric shock is liable but that liability but a defendant who causes a like injury to the person of the appellant by merely

Communist Radio Rejects Proposal For Quick Truce

Rhee Also Persists In Refusal to Accept Terms

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN

SEOUL (AP)—The North Korean Red radio today coldly rejected the United Nations command offer to sign an armistice now on terms already agreed upon at Panmunjom.

Shortly after, President Eisenhower's special envoy to South Korea conceded that President Syngman Rhee also persisted in his refusal to accept the truce.

Walter S. Robertson, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs, told reporters after his fifth secret session with Rhee:

"Obviously, there are points which need clarification in our negotiations. Otherwise there would be no need for these meetings. President Rhee and I are trying to work out a solution which will be acceptable to our two governments and, at the same time, sacrifice the least amount of ROK."

Robertson's remarks contrasted with optimistic reports he had won assurances from himself and Rhee. He said he would meet again with Rhee Wednesday.

Communist reaction to UN command offer to open pit installations a truce now, irrespective of Rhee's opposition, was swift.

Locked Bloodshed

The broadcast from Pyongyang, North Korean capital, charged that Clark's letter to Communist military leaders Monday lacked "sincerity" and was "incompatible with the facts. It insisted there had been "consultance" between the UN command and South Korea in Rhee's order releasing more than 25,000 anti-Communist North Korean war prisoners since June 18.

Pyongyang radio added that Clark's letter gave "no guarantee" on the future conduct of the South Korean government and that, therefore, the Communists could not accept it.

It also demanded again the return of all escaped prisoners.

Clark told the Red high command that the Panmunjom negotiations were for a military armistice and that while he was in contact with the South Korean government he does command its army.

Would Enforce Terms

The UN commander promised to do his part in the field operation and pledged his command to enforce the terms of a truce.

Red China's voice at Peiping joined in urging the Reds to agree to achieve a truce and accused Rhee of planning to "sabotage" peace prisoners in Allied prison camps.

A broadcast monitored in London said that Rhee, "emboldened as a result of open American connivance" in the release of Korean POWs, has "stepped up" efforts by Chinese Nationalists to free Chinese POWs.

The Chinese hold nearly 20,000 Chinese, 14,200 of whom have said they would resist being returned to Red rule.

Indefinite Session

The Communists officially have demanded that the Allied command recapture 76,000 Korean POWs and prepare to turn them over to them a neutral supervisory commission as outlined in the Panmunjom truce agreement.

The armistice talks are in an indefinite recess asked by the Reds June 20.

While dickering with Robertson, Rhee moved Tuesday to strengthen his military set-up by naming Vice-Admiral Sohn Won Il as his defence minister. Sohn, South Korea's chief of naval operations, replaces Gen Tai Young, whom the government said resigned for "personal reasons."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synoptic: Showers and thunderstorms spread across Northern Ontario Monday night and by early this morning thunderstorms were reported as far south as Whitney. This activity was caused by warm humid air which was from the Southern States into the Great Lakes region.

Warmer temperatures and higher humidities are indicated for Southern Ontario today and Wednesday with a few thundershowers developing in the warm air. Pleasant sunny weather will prevail in northern regions of Ontario Wednesday as drier air moves in from northwestern Canada.

Queen and Duke Return to London From Scotland

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh returned to London today from their state visit to Scotland.

They travelled by train overnight from Edinburgh and drove to Buckingham Palace from the station.

The return trip was informal despite the red carpet on the platform and the special trimmings of flags and banners.

As the train steamed into the station the Queen, sitting near a window, waved to waiting railway workers. The Duke beside her looked up from his morning paper and smiled.

After hand-shakes on the platform with the railway officials the small cavalcade of royal cars drove off watched only by a few hundred persons.

Russians Relax Grip on Cities In East Germany

BERLIN (AP) — Russian tank forces gradually pulled back today from leading East German provincial cities still in the grip of martial law.

More than 1,200 new arrests by the East German government police security agents were reported in the strike-crippled steel, uranium, coal and automobile industries.

A sabotage fire inflicted heavy damage to open pit installations in the big coal field at Bitterfeld, in Saxony-Anhalt province, no other serious flare-up of resistance was confirmed in the Soviet zone.

Premier Heinz Kessler told the June 17 workers' rebellion was repressed ended in the cities of Chemnitz and Rostock. Large farming districts in Brandenburg and Mecklenburg had been handed back to civilian Communist control by Soviet Army command.

In Leipzig and several other cities, Soviet tanks, Russian armor withdrew in an intimation that farther lifting of martial law was expected. Many of the Red army units patrolling East Berlin already have been recalled to their barracks.

Dismisses Possibility Churchill Will Retire

LONDON (Reuters)—The Conservative Daily Mail today dismissed the possibility of Prime Minister Churchill retiring from office.

"He will return from his month's rest either as prime minister or as an elder statesman," it declared that it will be still as prime minister." The Mail says in an editorial.

Churchill, overworked, has been ordered by his doctors to rest for a month.

Paint-Mixer Is Newest Knight Created by Poet-King of Redonda

LONDON (Reuters)—King Juan, who is at present a paint mixer in a cement plant.

Gawsworth succeeded to the "title" in 1947 on the death of his friend, the Irish novelist Michael Juan, who claimed descent from a prince of the blood. They cut wrists and mingled their blood.

The island of Redonda was claimed by Shiel's trader father in 1880. The sants year he had the Bishop of Antigua anoint his son Filipe I, king of the island.

Gawsworth enjoys his birthday investitures as he has been given his recreation in Who's Who as "creating nobility."

RHEE DISMISSES DEFENCE CHIEF, PICKS MODERATE

Think Move Will Aid Co-operation With U.N.

SEOUL, Korea (Reuters)—South Korean President Syngman Rhee today fired his defence minister, a militant nationalist, in a move that foreshadowed increasing co-operation with the United Nations on a Korean truce.

Until now Rhee's government has been violently against the armistice which the Allies have been working out with the Communists. Its chief opposition to being in less fanatical nationalists would reflect the calm Rhee has been having with President Eisenhower's "save the truce" envoy, Walter Robertson.

Moderate Named

The South Korean defence minister who lost his job was Maj-Gen. Shin Tai Yung. He was replaced by Vice-Admiral Sohn Won Il, the country's chief of naval operations, who has been a moderate who believes in an armistice provided there are certain safeguards. He is regarded by the Communists as a representative of South Korea.

Other cabinet ministers believed to be moderates also replaced Marshal Li-Gen. Won Yong Duk and Home Minister Chin Hyon Ok. Both were ousted as Rhee loudest supporters in blocking a truce. They represented a mass release of anti-Communist North Korean prisoners. Rhee warned that South Korean forces would act against 'anyone trying to recapture them.

Make Mass Test Of Polio Serum In Alabama City

MONTGOMERY, Ala (AP) Years of trial-and-error research that cost millions of dollars gets the first full-scale tryout here today in an effort to save a stricken child from its polio epidemic.

The first of more than 30,000 youngsters scheduled to be inoculated with Dr. Jonas Salk's revolutionary globulin during the next four days trooped to the Capitol auditorium this morning.

Many fighters hope this unprecedented mass inoculation will not only stop the outbreak, but will prove that the vaccine can be injected without causing the paralysis that sometimes follows the use of volunteer serum.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis has shipped 67 bottles of the vaccine here, together with 30,000 hypodermic needles and syringes and stacks of other equipment.

The community itself, frightened by the daily climb of 91 polio cases, is tackling the huge inoculation job with volunteer help.

The gamma globulin doesn't give permanent immunity but experts think the month of protection it does provide will halt the peaking epidemic through the worst of the hot weather "polio season."

TRUCK HITS DITCH TWO DEAD

BURLINGTON (CP)—Seventeen persons were injured, one fatally, Monday when a truck rolled on to the ditched vehicle after a collision. Tom Bigart of Toronto, driver of the Gray Coach Lines bus, died in hospital after the collision and hit a tree. The truck driver, Roy Ronald Roberts of Hamilton, rolled over on to the ditched vehicle and Roberts also tried to avoid a crash. Roberts suffered cuts about the face.

Farmer Armed With Pistol Orders Hydro Workers Off Property, Wants Money

TRENTON (Special) — Armed with an automatic pistol, Orland Crewes, 40, of the Wooler Road sells on top of a bulldozer belonging to the Ontario Hydro Commission defying the hydro operators to remove the machine without trespassing on his property.

The Hydro Commission is willing to pay $450 for 3.3 acres of Mr. Crews' rich orchard land. He wants a settlement. The total amount the Trans-Northern Pipeline paid him for rights to cross over his property last year. He received $5,000 for the rights from the company while the Hydro paid him $1,000 for a little better than three-acre strip 15 years ago, he stated.

Last night Mr. Carl Crosby, adjuster for the Hydro, was warned by Mr. Crews, not to trespass on his property unless he re-enforced by the Hydro Act or made a settlement.

His meals are being brought to him.

The Hydro Act gives the commission power to expropriate land for their own use.

Until recently the Hydro had been negotiating with Mr. Crews for a piece of his property to erect a powerline over it.

On Friday the talks broke down when Mr. Crews refused to pay the cost of evaluation. He thinks the Hydro should bear the expense when the property is his.

On Monday six large poles were dumped in his orchard while he was away working elsewhere.

Today two operators drove a caterpillar bulldoger into the orchard ready to go to work clearing the land in preparation to erecting the poles.

Mr. Crews came along and ordered the men off his property, threatening to have them arrested for trespassing. They left the bulldozer in the orchard and walked out to the highway.

Last night he perched in his stand by a neighbor, Pat Whaley, who has also turned down Hydro's offer for a piece of his land piece of his rightaway.

On Friday Mr. Crews was advised by the Hydro that he would receive a registered letter with notice that the land was being expropriated. Until this morning he had not received the letter.

Liberal Housing, Financial Policies Under Fire in Speeches

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

Liberal government housing and financial policies came under fire in campaign speeches Monday night by two Opposition political leaders.

Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, is a Victoria speech, said the government is responsible of dealing with the housing problem. The decline in houses completed to the end of May year from 29,000 in 1950 furnished "clear and positive proof" of this.

Solon Low in a national radio address from Ottawa said "financial mismanagement" by the Liberals caused the decline in purchasing power of the dollar. They pledged a Social Credit government to restore the dollar's buying power.

Weather Outlook Favors Dominion Day Celebrations

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada marks her 86th birthday as a nation Wednesday and the celebrations planned for Dominion Day stretch across the country from Kovas to Gersaney.

A Canadian Press survey found Canadians at home preparing to celebrate in the traditional fashion with picnics, parades, sports meets, picnics, parades, barbecues and baseball games. Many are decking the cottage or the beach. Business places, offices and stock exchanges will be closed.

Overseas, where Canadian fighting men fought and died in World War I and II, Canadians will be observing Dominion Day.

Overseas, where Canadian fighting men fought and died in World War I and II, Canadians will be observing Dominion Day.

"Canada Day" to emphasize to their friends that Canada is no longer a dominion but a full and independent partner in the Commonwealth, and celebrations are planned.

To Stage Track Meet

Members of Canada's 27th, infantry brigade will stage a track and field meet in Hindenberg Stadium in Hannover, Germany. Letters from major units of the brigade will participate, three Canadian bands will play, Canadian ambassador T. C. Davis will take the salute at the march past and a Canada Day ball at the British officers' club in Hanover at 10 p.m. will be open to all Canadian ranks.

The Canada Day program in Korea will inaugurate the Canadian 25th brigade's new sports centre. More than $1,500 has been spent on prizes and trophies for winners in the five-event sports program, which includes the brigade softball finals.

In Europe

Travel agencies in Canada expect no unusual rush of travellers. However, bus lines look for heavy traffic on short runs to beaches and resort areas. Railway companies and airlines also report a good demand for one-day trips.

The weather is expected to be generally favorable, with many warm with the possibility of showers or thunderstorms.

The main celebration coincides with the annual convention of Canadian Legion in Montreal, Dominion for St. Jean Baptiste Day in Windsor, Ont., 250th anniversary of Chatham, N. B., founding of Quebec city and the start of a Canadian Centennial celebration in Swift Current, Sask.

Day of Mourning

In Newfoundland, July 1 is in part a day of mourning. It is the anniversary of the day on which the Royal Newfoundland Regiment went "over the top" at Beaumont Hamel, France, in 1916 and was virtually decimated.

Elsewhere in the provinces by the sea, a B-36 inter-continental atomic bomber from the United States Strategic Air Command will be on show at Saint John, N. B.; Chicken barbecues are planned at Moncton, Fredericton, Fundy National Park and Grand Falls, Newfoundland. P. E. I. is planning another gathering of the clans and a fishermen's regatta on the Charlottetown waterfront across last year.

Three hundred carmmen and paddlers from 12 Canadian and U. S. points are expected to participate in Toronto's Shed annual Dominion Day regatta on a mile-long shelltered lagoon at Centre Island in the city's harbor.

A special arrangement for the holiday will enable Canadians living in or near Windsor, Ont., to visit the Bob-Lo Island amusement centre and resort in the Detroit river.

BIG THREE MEET LIKELY TO MAKE VITAL DECISIONS

See Foreign Ministers Shaping Cold War Policy

By JOHN SCALI

WASHINGTON (AP) — A wide-ranging Big Three foreign ministers conference appears to be shaping up for some time in mid-July.

Although billed as an informal discussion, there is every prospect that critical world-wide decisions may result from this British-American-French meeting.

Far Eastern problems, especially the wars in Korea and Indo-China, undoubtedly will dominate the agenda.

But, informed officials said today, such troublesome questions as Germany's future, the Anglo-Egyptian quarrel and North Atlantic defence problems will be reviewed also.

The first talking that a foreign ministers' meeting was being planned came Tuesday when the acting British prime minister, Richard A. Butler, told the House of Commons Britain had suggested such a get-together.

Butler said it was requested by "certain urgent problems" and to "maintain the impetus given to our foreign policy" by the plans for the later meeting. French Premier Minister Churchill, President Eisenhower and French Premier Joseph Laniel at Bermuda.

Drifters Has Agreed

The British government, somewhat surprised that Butler talked publicly about the plans, disclosed that Secretary Dean Rayskin had made the suggestion that he meet here with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. Belgian secretary.

France has been notified with the hint that the French would send Georges Bidault, the new French foreign minister.

State department officials, while publicity expressing the view that that the conference would be "very useful," appeared privately to have some reservations.

One reason was an inevitable French request that the U. S. aid to fight communists in Indo-China. Mainly it was the government came to power last week on the pledge to do something about the high cost of living and manpower losses in Indo-China.

To Seek Germany

Diplomats also believed it likely the foreign ministers would review which Germany will be the light of the recent East German riots, and explore East-West relations generally.

Another problem likely to find its way on the agenda is Britain's long-standing quarrel with Egypt over the Suez canal. Egypt is demanding immediate British evacuation from this strategic waterway.

The highest level conference still in planned but no definite date has been set. That depends on when Churchill recovers from his present illness.

FARMER IS PC CHOICE

ILDERTON (CP)—Cameron McTaggart, 45-year-old Elkrid township farmer, Monday night was chosen Progressive Conservative candidate to contest the by-election in West Middlesex. He defeated reeve W. H. A. Thomas of Ekfrid township in the nomination. Liberal member for the riding, is seeking re-election.

Bandits Serve Beer and Cheese To Their Victims at 'House Party'

NEW YORK (AP)—Four young Dr. Monen's daughter, Mrs. Isabel bandits—with time on their hands Whitehall, who also was in the and a "surprise party" Monday for a dentist, a woman doctor and 18 guests.

The quartet took over for four hours the home of Dr. Monen, 55, the dentist and doctor's 40-year-old wife, Ruth, as they arrived, tying them of jewels and cash, and keeping them prisoner through the party.

But the four young men, before fleeing, tried to make amends. Police fainted, treated their victims and called an ambulance even returned some of their loot at the request of three patients.

It all started late in the afternoon in the three-storey house owned by Dr. Soapy S. Monen, 50. She lives there and has an office there. The dentist, Dr. Irving K. Madow, rents rooms for an office.

Madow and a patient he was treating, Sol Rabinowitz, 40, left Monen's dining room. Then the robbers, rounded up a mad and hasty departure.

house when the robbers made a surprise entry.

Dr. Monen's daughter, Mrs. Isabel Whitehall, who also was in the house at the time, Dr. Monen was absent.

At first, the bandit quartet went about its business in a deliberate and rough manner. They tied the guests' hands and feet with adhesive tape.

However, after a half hour, when the victim's complained of thirst, the intruders released them.

Then they started arriving. The robbers greeted them and tied them with the tape.

The bandits raided Dr. Monen's refrigerator and passed out beer and cold drinks, crackers, cheese and raw carrots to their "guests."

It was about 8:30 p. m. when Dr. Monen returned to her home and found the "party" going on. She too was greeted by a robber, who demanded that she open a safe in a hall closet.

Her reply was a scream. Then she fainted.

Alarmed, the robbers made a

New Record Set For Day and Month In Bag of MiG Jets

Reds' Gunfire Over Double That in Any Earlier Month

By JOHN RANDOLPH

SEOUL (AP)—United States Sabre jet pilots shot down 15 Communist MiG jets today to set a one-day and one-month record for the Korean war.

The Sabres boosted their MiG bag for June to 74, smashing the old record of 63 set last September. And today's kill erased the old single-day mark of 13 set last July 4.

The ground war dwindled to mortar and artillery skirmishing as the 8th Army announced that the Communists fired a record-breaking 1,500,000 artillery and mortar shells this month. That's more than double the number of shells fired by Red guns in any previous month of the war.

It meant that almost two shells crashed down on Allied lines for every round fired at the 155-mile front, more than four for every Allied soldier on the line.

Infantry Rests

The U.S. jets scored their greatest victory over the sweptwing Red jets in a 30-minute battle over the western front rested remnants of two weeks of bloody fighting.

The 26th jet ace of the war emerged from afternoon battles over North Korea. Lieut. Henry Buttelmann, Bayside, N.Y., added his fifth kill to win ace status.

Maj. James Jabara of Wichita, Kan., Korea's first jet ace, downed two MiGs to boost his kills to 16 in two combat flights.

The record-breaking victory came on the first day of good flying weather in nearly a week.

While ground fighting died on most of the line, a see-saw battle still raged on the slopes of Lookout mountain in the east. Neither the Reds nor South Korean infantry have been able to hold the crest in six days of attacks and counter-attacks. The hill is one knoll of the new South Korean front in the Pukhan river sector.

Red Tell Blip

The uselessness of the ground war was reflected in last week's estimated enemy casualty figures, which dipped all the way back to that of Nov. 17, 1951. The new figure is 7,000 and the Reds say it put Red killed, wounded and prisoners at 11,200 Chinese and North Koreans. Of these, 7,500 enemy were killed and 3,700 wounded.

The Communists have not released by action or period, but Allied officers say the figures probably are close to the truth.

The Red planes were Yak 18s, a low-wing, single-engine trainer. There presumably are the aircraft used by the Reds in recent nuisance raids on Seoul.

Prizes Offered To Catch Tuna On Rod, Reel

GRAND MANAN, N.B. (CP)—The Bay of Fundy Island is offering big stakes to try for a share in the tuna fishing spotlight long held by Westport, N.S.

The board of trade has announced a cash prize of $50 for the first fisherman to catch and land a tuna on rod and reel in the waters of Grand Manan.

The contest will be open to sportsmen from Canada and the United States and will run from July 15 to Aug. 15. Competitors must provide their own fishing gear according to approved sport fishing regulations.

They may also use their own boats but it's expected most will charter, rigged with flight chairs, will be available by the tournament committee.

The contest is part of a larger program to determine whether tuna sport fishing can be developed on Island waters. Tuna have been sighted and trapped in herring weirs around Grand Manan for many years, but never has one been taken on rod and reel in approved sport fashion.

Eden Is Convalescing On Rhode Island Estate

NEWPORT, R. I. (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and his wife settled on a private estate facing Newport harbor today hopeful of their convalescence from illness in recent operation.

The 56-year-old British diplomat, appearing much healthier than on his arrival from England a week ago, left the New England Baptist hospital in Boston Monday. He was flown to Newport, where it is clear a bile duct obstruction.

Eden and his wife, Clarissa, 33, niece of Prime Minister Churchill, were driven to Beechwood to the harbor front estate of John Barry Ryan, grandson of the late financier Thomas Fortune Ryan.

Dr. Richard Cabot, Eden's chief diplomat's surgeon, said in a bulletin that he expected that after a full period of convalescence a complete recovery can be assured.

Dr. Cabot said the operation for Eden's bile duct, "which was obstructed, has been shown to be entirely relieved."

DISTRICT GOVERNOR OF ROTARY TAKES OFFICE

A number of Rotary members are attending the 250th District Rotary Conference being held in Kingston. Forty-nine presidents and secretaries were inducted at the two-day confab at the Le Salle Hotel by Kingston president Ian Williamson, chairman.

Taking office yesterday was the new district governor, Wilfred A. Buckley, secretary of the YMCA at Kingston, who was elected at the recent Rotary convention in Paris.

Guest speaker at the noon luncheon yesterday was Past District Governor Horace H. Lambden, of Malone, N.Y., while Dr. R. C. Wallace, former principal of Queen's University, addressed the club-men last night.

TWO PROWLERS HELD BY POLICE

Two nocturnal prowlers failed to make their getaway in various parts of Belleville on Thursday night.

Answering a call from Dufferin Avenue through a lady who stated her husband had a prowler "cornered" in his driveway, police picked up Phillip N. Fraser, and took him under custody.

Angus MacDonald was arrested and charged with vagrancy after he was discovered hiding in the neighborhood of the York Trading Company store on Bridge Street.

Investigating police arrived on the scene in time to see MacDonald come out of a clump of bushes.

BOLT OF LIGHTNING KILLS THREE HEAD OF HEREFORDS

During the storm on Sunday a bolt of lightning killed three of William Black's purebred cattle pasturing in a field near his barns. The Black farm is located on the Consecession Road, on the Bay of Quinte Creek three miles west of Trenton.

Deseronto Wins In Appeal Court On Sale of Land

The Ontario Court of Appeal has ruled in favor of the Town of Deseronto in an action regarding the conveyance of certain property in that town. The Town, as defendant, appealed the decision of Judge Lane, delivered Sept. 17, 1952, in the Hastings County Court in Belleville, ordering the defendant forthwith to convey to the plaintiff, Fred Holden, certain freehold property situate in the Town of Deseronto in an action for specific performance of an agreement for sale. E. A. Pringle, Q.C., of Belleville, Town Solicitor for Deseronto, appeared for the appellant and H. F. Gallagher, Q.C., for the plaintiff.

Mr. Justices Aylesworth, J. K. MacKay and Gibson, in their judgment, stated: "The appeal will be allowed and the judgment below set aside and in place thereof judgment —will go dismissing respondent's action and the counterclaim of the Town, both without costs. There should be no order as to costs of the appeal."

The Town Council, originally passed a resolution that the sale be made, accepted money, then refused to pass a by-law completing the deal.

Mayor Haig Tells of Trip To Coronation

Following his return on Thursday last week, Mayor A. McLean Haig, addressed members of the Rotary Club in the Hotel Quinte at the noon luncheon, Monday. His remarks took cognizance of the coronation which he attended with the association of mayors and reeves of Canada.

Before launching into his talk, the Mayor cautioned the members that many aspects of the Coronation were completely beyond description. Noting the actual service was disgusted in addition, he said the entire ceremony was a deeply religious and moving drama, stirring description by anyone at all.

Switching his speech for a few moments, Mayor Haig commented briefly on the trip across the ocean. Apparently the voyage was particularly calm and free of seasickness, but the Mayor stated they were fortunate to have made friends and acquaintances among the passengers.

Many Americans Aboard

"They are quite quiet when a number of Americans aboard our ship," he said, "and it was interesting to note how disturbed these passengers were over Senator McCarthy's charges." He said they were also deeply disturbed and alarmed as the Communist activities were those of McCarthy and all he stands for."

The Mayor outlined a few of his observations while in England. He expressed amazement at the beauty and vastness of the English countryside and said that we in Ontario have a long way to go in tidying up our towns and rural areas if we expect to approach anywhere near to the British standard horticulturally.

"The greenery of the British people is outstanding and unfailing both in driving and walking," Mayor Haig said. "It makes us realize all the more how we neglect simple nature's most majestic here."

Tremendous Crowds

As for the actual Coronation itself, Mayor Haig declared crowds were tremendous. "Just imagine," he said, "that C.N.E. crowds multiplied 20 times and you may have a rough idea of the attendance."

The Mayor was present at the last rehearsal of the Trooping of the Colour. He was among one of the ships reserved for the Commonwealth members at the Spithead Review and was in attendance at the Thanksgiving services in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Seated in The Nave of Westminster Abbey during the Coronation services, the Mayor stated he had better seats than either Princess Margaret or Prime Minister Churchill. "I felt, and as a result he was able to get a close look at the members of the Royal family. The Mayor was impressed by Princess Royal as being much more attractive than her photos. He felt Princess Margaret's expression had changed considerably since her father's death.

On the whole, Mayor Haig was tremendously impressed by the Coronation and his trip to England.

Birthday cakes were presented to S. E. Goodwin and G. M. Miller. The presentations were made by Canon C. Creeggan.

The speaker was introduced by S. E. Goodwin and a vote of thanks was extended by Canon Creeggan.

Deluging Rain At Wellington

WELLINGTON (Special) — A brief but severe electric storm swept over this village and district on Sunday sending potential picnicers in the Community scurrying for shelter.

The storm was accompanied by a deluging rain that lasted for approximately thirty minutes.

A bolt of lightning struck in the vicinity of a home on the western outskirts of the village, destroying the tubes in a brand new radio.

A number of visiting anglers were caught with their sails down while fishing in West Lake, and many received a thorough drenching before reaching shore.

First Lesson in Horsemanship Proves a Bit Tough for Georgie

It happened years ago to the Duke of Windsor when he was the world's Prince Charming and horseman extraordinary—and, of course, it was front page news. It happened Sunday morning to little Georgie Pugh when he took his first lesson in horsemanship.

Four-year-old Georgie, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Pugh, of 37 Dunbar Street, is nursing a fracture again and abrasions. Georgie's mistake was that he hung on too long. If he had let go before the pony reached the highway the bumps might have been much less serious than a broken shoulder.

With their parents at the summer cottage at Oak Lake on the week-end, the event for the youngsters was a neighbor's pinto pony. Older sister Margaret was seated and ready for her ride when Georgie was picked up and told to hang on. Usually a quiet animal, the pony was suddenly frightened by the excited children round about and took off at a gallop. As an eyewitness Margaret's seniority to Georgie is exactly two rides, and the pony had full rein.

On the details it was more exciting than calamitous. While the record on the matter might be somewhat obscure there will be some consolation for Georgie in the likelihood that Hopalong Cassidy had never been on a pony and had his first fall when he was only four years of age. But Hopalong had plenty of spill since and is still going strong.

Carrots, Beets Make Appearance On Local Market

New home-grown carrots and beets made their 1953 debut on a city market today that offered plenty of evidence that the carrots, sold quickly at fifteen cents the bunch while the beets, of good size and quality, went for two bunches for thirty-five cents.

Five potatoes from the district were offered at two dollars the six-quart basket and sold there berry box.

Fresh peas were fairly plentiful and moved briskly at seventy-five the quart shelled, and twenty cents for a six-quart basket "in the pod." Forty cents the pint shelled, and twenty cents the berry box in the pod were asked.

Many potatoes made their first appearance on the market and sold for twenty-five cents the berry box. "The black variety will be available on Saturday," vendors said.

Asparagus was quoted at twenty cents the bunch with the same price for thirty-five cents.

Strawberries were not as plentiful as over the week-end with the light offering quoted at thirty-five cents the box.

Cheese Exchanges Postponed Week By Secretary

Cheese exchanges scheduled to be held today in six Ontario centres have been postponed one week, Charles N. Heath, secretary of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board here, announced this morning.

The postponement has been arranged to permit time to clarify marketing procedure and regulations. Recent changes in conditions have prompted the move to seek more quotes on the marketing plan.

During the next seven days, Mr. Heath stated, representatives of the cheese producers, the trade and the Farm Products Marketing Branch of the Ontario government will be holding meetings to discuss the current marketing problems. Mr. Heath expressed belief that the situation should be clarified within the week.

Employees Given $100,633 From Savings Plan

The employees of Bakelite Company, Limited, a Unit of Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation in this city received cheques today totaling $100,633 as the termination of a two-year savings plan made available by the Corporation. Of the amount, the employees' contributions are $78,052. The Corporation added $22,581.

Cheques were distributed to 1,200 men and women who participated in the plan.

During the period of the present savings plan, which has been in operation for two years, the Corporation put up 10 cents for every dollar deposited by the employee with three or more years of service. For two-year employees, the Corporation paid 5 cents for each dollar, and 10 cents was added to each dollar deposited by new-year employees. Employees made their deposits through payroll deduction. Each employee could save up to 7½ per cent of his regular pay but not more than $20 a month. In addition to their own savings and the amount the Corporation added, employees also received interest on both amounts at the rate of two per cent per year, compounded annually.

According to J. E. Buchan, Superintendent, the savings plan which has just matured is the seventh such plan made available by divisions and units of Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation since July 1935. A new savings plan starts on July 1st.

14,228 ACCIDENT DEATHS

THOMAS CLEMENTS (Ivanhoe)

After working on his farm at Ivanhoe all day, Thomas Clements suffered a heart attack and died suddenly late Monday afternoon. He was born at Ivandale, 73 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clements and had resided in that community all his life, where he was well known and highly respected.

Mr. Mr. Clements was a member of Beulah United Church and surviving are his wife, the former Annie Kennedy, two daughters, Mrs. Sidney (Lela) Reid of Ivanhoe; Mrs. John (Mary) Courtney of Harold; two brothers, John of Ivanhoe; Richard Clements of Stirling; five great grandchildren, and one great grandchild.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

ROBERT ALFRED ARCHER

The funeral of Robert Alfred Archer was held from the Bellerville Burial Company Funeral Home on Monday afternoon. The service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. Dungan McTavish who also said the committal rites in Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were Charles Phelps, S. Bushell, Jos. K. Shortt, Dave Asselstine, J. N. Bentley and Louis Rump.

Godfrey Moves to Farm

LEESBURG, Va. (AP)—Arthur Godfrey settled down on his 250-acre estate near here today to live the life of a country squire for a while.

The 49-year-old entertainer flew here Monday after recovering from the Boston hospital in which he had been rushed since a serious hip operation May 15.

Godfrey probably will resume his radio broadcasts late in July or early August—and perhaps his television shows.

A second operation on his left hip has been postponed indefinitely. Godfrey broke his hip two years ago in an automobile accident and they have pained him ever since.

Chief of Police Warns Drivers To be Careful

With children now on summer vacation and more prone to become accident victims, Chief of Police Walter Probert today urged all drivers of the city and district to drive carefully and watch children closely.

"Handling daily with accident cases and seeing the results of violations" he said, "we know that one of the outstanding problems in traffic prevention is to reach and warn the driver, who is about to become a 'first offender'."

At this season of the year, Chief Probert pointed out, there is greatly increased travel, long week-end trips and multitudes of holiday travellers. Perhaps the average driver does not realize it, but he is never had an accident, and as a result has a high regard for his own driving ability. Too often he has allowed poor driving habits and an indifferent attitude to develop.

"With the increasing volume of motor traffic we have a greatly increased accident exposure and more emergencies. Again and again the average 'driver' finds himself in a situation with which he is unable to cope. Then there is an accident."

Chief Probert said that last year during June, July, August and September there were 739 persons died in traffic accidents in Ontario. In addition, other 15,000 were seriously injured that they died later.

He further pointed out that each year about six per cent of licensed drivers become involved in motor accidents, which is a serious loss.

By far the majority of these drivers have never been found guilty of an accident before. They are not 'accident repeaters' as are they 'accident prone.' They are average drivers with several years experience who have become over-confident or careless as a result of long, uneventful travel. They tend to minimize the hazards of motor travel and over-estimate their own driving ability and judgment.

MRS. COLDWELL FUNERAL

OTTAWA (CP)—Government and civic officials and business and professional men joined Monday in paying tribute at the funeral of Mrs. M. J. Coldwell, wife of the national CCF leader, who died suddenly Friday. The service was conducted at All Saints Anglican Church by Rev. C. L. G. Bruce. The body was taken to Montreal for cremation.

IN MEMORIAM

CHISHOLM. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Frank Chisholm, who departed this life June 30th, 1952.
"The days that we loved, to ever be forgotten."
—Sadly missed by wife and family.

FINKLE. — In fond remembrance of a dear son and brother, John Volney Finkle, who went home so suddenly July 1st, 1950, age 22 years.
Sadly missed by wife, Dorothy and family.

We recall happy memories of glad days departed,
When your presence so dear, your face so fair,
Were a blessing untold, making life sweet and fair.
—Lovingly remembered by the family.

IN memory of our youth, God called you away,
Never forgotten, though lonely years may be.
Our hope is to meet you in the sweet bye and bye,
—Loved dearly in his and still lovingly remembered by our hearts which can never forget, Mother, Dad, Brothers and Sisters.

HUSBAND. — In loving memory of a dear husband, Frank Chisholm, who passed away July 1, 1951; also a dear father, Frank Chisholm, who died June 30th, 1952.
They have gone across the river
To the land of the green
And we long to see their dear faces
And their smiling mien.
Some day, some time, our eyes shall see
The Heavenly land where they are free.
—Mrs. Saloon T. Ketcheson. 730

We would like to thank the many friends and fellow members of Chapter 238, Eastern Star, Minerva Chapter 238, Eastern Star, Minerva Council and Lodge No. 274 Order of Education, and all those who sent flowers and cards and so many ways helped us in our time of sorrow in the loss of our husband and father.
—Arlene Ashbury and family. 730

Marathon Count In B.C. Election May be Repeated

BY GEORGE PINLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia's long-count in the 1952 provincial election may be repeated this year.

The count of alternative choices on June 9 election ballots is scheduled to start today, but in many of the larger constituencies there may be a delay of days. A faster cleanup is forecast for several ridings.

In the marathon count last year, the first time the alternative voting system was used in B. C., it took 39 days before the final result was known in all 48 ridings.

In the large Vancouver ridings the final result may not be known until next week, returning officers reported.

Recheck's Asked

Social Credit and CCF candidates in many ridings have asked for a recheck of first-count ballots, and this must be completed before the absentee vote and second choices are counted.

Rechecks have been requested in Vancouver-Burrard, Centre, Point Grey and Vancouver East.

In Victoria, the three Liberal candidates, Mrs. Nancy Hodges, William Straith and D. J. Proudfoot, are trailing on first counts, asked for a recount.

Returning officer Alan MacFarlane said he did not expect the Victoria count to be completed until Friday night.

In Vancouver East, CCF leader Arnold Webster was elected on the first count. In the other three Vancouver ridings Social Credit candidates, including Education Minister Mrs. Tilly Rolston and Attorney-General Robert Bonner, have the lead. Social Credit candidates also lead in Victoria.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett, re-elected on the first count in his constituency of Thanton appears to have the best chance of getting a majority government.

The Social Creditors head the list with 20 members elected, and 26 leading. The CCF has elected two and leads in 15. Labor leads in one.

The Liberals and Progressive Conservatives have yet to be cast. None was elected, and none was leading after the first count election night.

The two Communists Liberals who will be eliminated in the second count will play a part in the final result. The Liberals' second choice may al-

Pakistan Paper Features Editorial From The O. I.

Special recognition of an editorial which appeared in the Ontario Intelligencer some weeks ago by the leading Pakistan paper Star Dawn Digest published June 1, in Karachi, Pakistan. It is given prominent display along with items from the New York Times; the Cincinnati Inquirer and the Portland Telegram dealing with Pakistan affairs.

Under the heading, Canadian Paper Praises Mr. Mohammad Ali, the News Digest reprints an Ontario Intelligencer editorial which referred to the choice of Mr. Ali as prime minister of the new Commonwealth state in the Orient and his known friendship for Canada and Canadians.

The editorial noted that Mr. Mohammad Ali had become one of the top ranking statesmen of the Orient at the age of 45, having been summoned from his post as Ambassador to Washington to lead the Pakistan government. Previously he had served as High Commissioner to Canada. He spent two years in Ottawa before going to Washington. During that time he came to be one of the most able and active men in the diplomatic world, even making a point of becoming familiar with Canadians and Canadian affairs in all sections of the country.

Two Horses, 15 Loads Hay Lost As Barn Burns

PICTON—During a short electrical storm on Tuesday swept part of Prince Edward County, lightning struck —and burned a barn in Greenbank, south of Picton, owned by Roy Clarke. Two horses and 5 loads of hay in the building were also lost. The heavy rain prevented the flames from spreading.

Lightning also struck the home of Clare Pearsall north of Picton, demolishing a chimney and tearing off some roofing.

Inspector Transferred

A. F. Brown, who has been inspector of public schools in Prince Edward County for the past 14 years, is being transferred to Grey county and will have headquarters at Owen Sound. He will assume his new duties September 1st. Mr. Brown came here from Haliburton and prior to that has been a public school teacher in various parts of the province.

During his residence here Mr. Brown has been active in community affairs. He is a past president of the Rotary Club, a member of the United Church official board and a member of the Masonic lodge. Mrs. Brown has been active in church work and is president of the Women's Association.

JUNE WEDDINGS HIGHER THIS YEAR

Marriage is on the up-swing in the city, judging by the number of marriage licences sold from January 1st to June 25th of last year. However, the deputy clerk pointed out that many persons who marry do not pay the five dollar fee, but simply have the ceremony in the church.

If a couple follows this latter procedure it is not necessary to purchase a marriage licence and consequently it is difficult to ascertain the exact number of young people who took the walk down the aisle.

NO DANGER

BOSTON (AP)—Ralph B. Novak, executive vice-president of the American Newspaper Guild (CIO), said Monday that the fear of some publishers that television is going to ruin the newspaper business is not true.

Novak told the first day's session of the guild's 20th annual convention that TV "is mostly entertainment and is not a threat to us."

Cadets to Take Special Course

This afternoon nine cadets of the Collegiate Institute left by train for Camp Borden. There they will attend a seven-week course in either artillery signals or fall operator R/T (signals).

The names of the cadets who have C/Capt. Dan Morton as their C/O are: C/Capt. Morton Taft; C/Sgt. Bill Carter; C/Sgt. John Hunter; C/Sgt. Murray Tucker; Cadet Carl Hall; Cadet John Hackett; Cadet Jack McDonald and Cadet Robert Schammerhorn.

This evening a special train chartered to pick up cadets of this area who are attending Camp Ipperwash will stop here. Twenty-three cadets of the same corps are attending the senior leaders' course at Ipperwash. C/Lieut. Arthur Sutton is in charge of the group comprising the following: C/S/Sgt. Chas. Keary; C/C/QMS. William Workman; C/Sergeants Larry Brohm, George Maguire, Howard Bowden, Allan Thorn, C/Corporals George Casey, Eric Moody, Andrew Robb, Cadet Marcel Allard, Kenneth Adams, Ronald Baker, Clarence Downey, Robert Elliott, Richard Hurst, Ken Jones, Dean Kemp, Harry MacKay, Donald Mayberry, Norman Mellow, James Sircone, James Wambold.

All told 21 cadets are being sent. This is the largest number to be sent at one time from the school.

Two officers and one senior cadet officer are attending the camps with the boys. Mr. F. W. Bradley is attending the senior leaders' course at Camp Ipperwash as an officer. Captain J. L. Field will be instructing in operator R/T training at Camp Borden, and Lt. Pat Ladner, one of the senior cadets in the R.C.I.V.S Cadet corps, will also be an instructor at the senior leaders' course.

Plan 'Treasure Hunt' For Summer Readers

The Children's Summer Reading Club at the Public Library this year is to be different from other years. It will be a treasure hunt. The idea of variation is to pick out fifteen of the best last few months and tell the children which books she has placed on the shelf. Each child reads the most of these books will get a book of a book of his or her choice.

There are two divisions of the club, the junior section for boys and girls in grades 6, 7 and 8, and the primary section for boys and girls in grade 3, 4 and 5.

The last few months there have been about 500 new books put in the children's section of the library, so there will be a special shelf for grade 5 students, a shelf of sports stories, a shelf of teen-age books and a shelf of animal stories.

The circulation of the library is upwards of 3,000 books per month.

Ontario Bowlers Defeat Quebec By One Shot

Ontario bowlers won the annual Ontario versus Quebec Goodwill match at the Kingston Lawn Bowling club by the narrowest of margins on Saturday. When the final bowl had been picked up, Ontario's score was 113 with Quebec one point back at 114. There were 24 bowlers from each province bowling during the afternoon.

The bowlers played 21 ends, 10 before a tea break and 11 after. Four players made up each rink for the games played on green, termed by the visitors as among the top they had bowled on this year. Perfect weather made the day a great success.

Following the matches the bowlers convened at the La Salle Hotel for banquet and entertainment. Speeches were few and short but amusing. The president of the Kingston Civic E. C. Dennison, spoke, as did W. D. Cowan, president of the Ontario Lawn Bowling Club, and S. T. Bastedo, president of the visiting association. Mayor George Clark Wright, on behalf of the city, welcomed the visiting bowlers, who came from different parts of Ontario and Quebec, and urged them to return to enjoy more of the sights of Kingston.

Cliff Argue, past president of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association, made the presentation of the "Goodwill" trophy and the "Book of Record" donated by himself after the completion of the match. This match is an intra-provincial affair and next year will be played at Lachine, Quebec.

Navy Promotes Man in Command At Coronation

OTTAWA (CP) —Commander Robert P. Welland, the man who commanded the Royal Canadian Navy contingent at the coronation, has been promoted to captain, the navy announced today in its half-yearly promotions list.

Twenty senior regular officers and 10 reserve officers were included in the promotions list.

Capt. Welland, 35, of Halifax and Victoria, becomes director of naval ordnance, Ottawa, effective next month. He won a Distinguished Service Cross during the Second World War. Previously he was with an enemy submarine and a bar to the decoration while commanding the destroyer Athabaskan, one of the first Canadian warships to fight in Korea.

The navy also promoted to ordnance Commodore its director general of naval ordnance, Capt. W. G. Rose, 46, of Woodlands, Que. Eight other commanders or acting captains were promoted to captains. No confirmation of the report.

Drift Six Days Locked in Cabin Of Crippled Boat

COFFS HARBOR, Australia (cp) Three dazed men staggered off the yacht Irene today after six days' drift during which the owner lashed them in a cabin and disappeared.

The three set out June 20 with owner Gordon Jones from Sydney, 30-year-old retired business man, on what was supposed to be a pleasant 10-hour cruise.

The 36-foot yacht's engine broke down and she drifted into a storm. After five days, said 70-year-old Charles Newlin, "towers suddenly closed the hatch on them in the cabin.

"He jammed it with an oil drum," Newlin said. When they tried to break out, "he threatened us with a brass bar."

The three broke down three days ago and finally got near the coast again."

Say Police Aided Polish Workers In Mid-June Riot

BERLIN (AP)—Polish anti-Communist mobs have clashed with Soviet troops in widespread disorders on the Polish-Russian frontier, the West Berlin Nachi-Depesche reported today.

Rioting workers set the state coal mines at Zabrze in Eastern Silesia and fought Soviet army units in the streets, the newspaper said. Communist sources in Polish Silesia were reported to have joined the strike and to have taken to the battle.

A mob shouting "Free Poland from communism" was joined by unarmed police in demolishing a statue of the Russian Generalissimo Stalin, which had been showing a different film, Nachi-Depesche continued.

It said the Polish uprising in West Germany and Berlin broke out June 17 after news spread of the Soviet mass revolt just west of the Oder.

"Despite terror and force exercised by elite Polish and Soviet troops rushed in from East Brandenburg, the disorders it still disturbed today," the newspaper asserted.

Allied officials here said they had

42 Are Killed By Big Explosion In Guatemala

GUATEMALA CITY (Reuters) —An explosion rocked Guatemala city at 2.10 a.m. local time today demolishing most of a city block in a crowded downtown area. There were 42 known dead.

Rescue workers were still searching the ruins of some 50 destroyed houses and two hotels from which the 42 bodies had been removed. Authorities estimated the number of injured at 200 and said they expected the death toll to increase to 100 or more.

The cause of the explosion was not immediately known.

All Plead Guilty

CORNWALL (CP) — Nine men charged with theft and receiving stolen goods from three local mills of Canadian Cottons Limited were each sentenced Monday to 30 days in jail. They had pleaded guilty.

Jailed were Alfred Michaud, 39, Albert Marleau, 24, pleaded jacques Bolleau, 41, Leopold Besner, 38, Riley Roach, 44, Elmer Brisebois, 33, Joseph Goulet, 41, Orille Quesnelle, 39, and Marcel Cousineau, 26.

A 19th man, Emile Beaulne, 26, was remanded to July 6. He did not plead.

Harry Segal, 68-year-old Cornwall antique dealer, pleaded guilty to receiving and was remanded to July 6.

J. C. Horwitz, counsel for several of the accused, criticized the methods used in obtaining evidence by a Montreal private detective agency.

He said the detectives had "incited" the accused to steal by getting them "liquored up" and posing as "hot tire" dealers.

Tiny Tornado Skirts Finch Trees Uprooted

FINCH (CP)—Torrential rains smashed windows in this Ottawa valley village Sunday as a miniature tornado swept the outskirts, damaging farm buildings and uprooting trees. No one was injured.

The wind came out of the northwest, veered off to the east just outside the town, and skirted the edge.

A silo on the farm of Hugh Shaver, two miles southeast of here, was kpocked to the ground and a barn was twisted to a 70-degree slant. At the neighboring farm of F. C. Leigh, a carriage shed was torn off its foundations and a car and tractor in the shed were damaged. Sections of a barn owned by Aden McMillan, two miles north, were carried 300 feet by the wind.

Damage to the village was confined to broken windows. Telephone and hydro services were disrupted for several hours.

DOMINION DAY — A TRIUMPH FOR COMPROMISE

Canadians will observe another Dominion Day on Wednesday.

Other young nations also have their holidays, commemorating the anniversaries of the days on which these nations came into being.

Most of these days recall the memory of some bloody event or events. France has its Bastille Day, the United States its Independence Day, the Soviet Union its anniversary of the October revolution of 1917.

Canada, however, was not born of revolt or war, but of compromise. True, modern Canadian history was molded by the Battle of the Plains of Abraham, when Wolfe defeated Montcalm. It is characteristic of Canadians, however, that few know the date of that event and even fewer regard it as a battle which should be marked by annual celebrations. With a genius for that spirit of give and take which alone can reconcile the inherited prejudices and aspirations of men of different races and creeds, Canadians have built slowly but soundly on what was once little better than the shifting sands of a huge, until today these nations have united in to a single firm as any ever to emerge from the furnace of rebellion or war.

The world needs that spirit today. Canadians do well to celebrate the anniversary of the day on which its potential value was recognized by them.

CANNOT ALLOW RHEE TO FIGHT

"If President Syngman Rhee believes he can fight it out with the North Koreans why not let him?"

Senator Wiley asked that question. He was defence minister in the former Labor government in Britain.

Such a question would be disquieting enough if voiced by a senator from the U.S. corn belt, or even a private citizen from any of the democracies of the west. But when it comes from a man who was once, and may be again, responsible for the defence of Britain and, therefore, a key man in framing the future of that country, the Commonwealth and the world, it becomes doubly alarming.

The reason why Rhee cannot be permitted to fight it out with the North Koreans if he feels so disposed is that such a continuation of the war might eventually embroil the whole world in a third and disastrous conflict.

This would not only be possible, but perhaps would be more accurately described as the probable result. If the South Koreans were allowed to go it alone China could afford the loss of face involved, or would she reinforce the North Korean Reds? If that happened, would the United States be justified in risking the possibility of seriously imperilling their entire Pacific defence system? If, on the other hand, the North Koreans whipped Rhee's forces, again could U.S. avoid intervening? And if U.S. forces became engaged in a Korean struggle for a second time, would the Chinese stay out?

Rhee's answer to have some peculiar ideas about the situation in Korea. The Americans, he said, seemed to have "a knack of backing the wrong man." For a long time it was Chiang Kai-shek, now it was Rhee. But there is no profit in getting into a discussion of the support, or lack of it, given Chiang by the U.S. Opinions on that subject have hardened with the passing of years. Nobody who believed that Chiang should have been handed to the hilt is now going to be convinced that we could have freed the Nationalist and agrarian revolt in China from Communist leadership had we not provided Chiang with some support. Conversely, nobody who believes that the Chiang regime was essentially corrupt and totalitarian is ever going to admit that it was the only alternative to the present Communist government of that country.

But when Shinwell compares Rhee to Chiang he is overlooking several factors. First of all, Rhee's government was chosen in a free election, conducted under the auspices of the United Nations. Chiang's Kuomintang government could hardly make such a claim. Secondly, the U.N. intervened to save this regime from aggression by an army from outside the boundaries of the Republic, not from overthrow by the revolt of its own people. Thirdly, the United States cannot be said to be backing Rhee in the present crisis.

About the only contribution Mr. Shinwell makes to the intelligent discussion of the present situation in Korea is that his obtuse observations ought to make us more charitable when some hot-headed U.S. Congressman or Mid-West isolationist starts talking off the top of his head on the situation. It appears not all the muddle-headed thinkers reside in the U.S.

A LITTLE BLOW FROM SOLON LOW

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, says he can show Hon. George Drew, P.C. leader, how to make the $500,000,000 tax reduction Drew has promised.

It's always nice to get advice, providing you don't have to use it. Friendship's fine, if it stays in line and there's no attempt to abuse it.

It gave a glow to Solon Low to suggest a cut in taxes. But before he was through we'll bet that Drew was looking for some axes.

For Solon stated that he rated Drew's proposal really grand. If the PC way won't make hay, just use the Socred brand!

Alas for Low his colleagues seem slow, at finances hardly bright. Only a Socred views without dread a social dividend blight.

MAN AND HIS DRESS SUIT

At times all women will declare: The pants and waistcoat wouldn't close.
"I haven't anything to wear."
And that, of course, is woman's doubt,
But now to wear it I'm too stout.
'Tis something she will often say.
But man's complaint resembles
"Black tie and short Tuxedo?
that:
Yes.
"Not evening dress! I'm much too
But, darting, not in evening dress, fat."
Is what I'm getting that is new.
It's years since I've been under
"It's fifteen years or more since I stress.
Have worn the tails, white vest
It's going to be a swell affair!
and
Like you, I've nothing fit to Where I to try to get in those wear."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NONSENSE

In his absorbing and brilliant book, "The Human Situation," by Mr. Harold Nunn, I came across this sentence in the introduction: "Perhaps I should not, but I find even the foolish illogicality of the world amusing. And my private opinion is that only if you can appreciate nonsense can you appreciate sense."

Perhaps that statement by this liminal author does not altogether suggests the popularity of so many of our humorous books and comic strips! Mere nonsense habitually spotlights sense. For years I collected the humor of W.H. Hudson, later presenting the collection to the Kennedy Library of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. In that collection was a book by Santyana, a famous Harvard teacher and writer. This book was Hudson's own copy and he made notations all through it. I recall one. It was in Hudson's handwriting. It said: "This is all nonsense!"

A debater gets a big laugh when he starts out by stating that his opponent has said nothing but a lot of nonsense. But then listeners pay strict attention to see if he has something to say that is not nonsense! Some and nonsense often intermixed. Again Dizzy said: "I am not unconscious of truth than beauty. Beauty I know, or think I know, when, I meet it. Of truth I am never so sure."

Writers often try to disguise the truth by saying that it is all a lot of nonsense. Often, if you are able to make people laugh you think you have made them think! So, you see, nonsense plays a big part in life. We turn over books by Bill Nye, Mark Twain, Josh Billings, and others. Their writings often set a broom to sweep out the cobwebs in our minds.

An unknown writer once said that "a little nonsense now and then is relished by the wisest men." The humorous artist, depicting a ridiculous situation, always gets a laugh.The late Don Marquis regretted that his reputation should rest upon his humorous creation of a cockroach, which he called "archy," but it suffice to outlive his genuine merit as a fine poet. We apparently need the mental vitamins in nonsense!

Laziness Old Fashioned

(From Changing Times Magazine)

The hammock and lazy summer afternoon are fast fading from the scene.

Instead, the weekend air rings with the sound of the belt sander, the power tool, and the occasional vexations outburst that escapes from the man wielding his own carport next door.

For the do-it-yourself craze has passed the faddish stage and has grown into a serious business. Unless the bubble bursts, you'll soon be hard pressed to find the time to do the work. There's too much to be done at home.

The activity is not confined to the suburban homeowner, either. Even among apartment house dwellers, there's many a man who has filled a clothes-closet workshop with expensive powerdriven tools.

About 80 percent of the homeowners in the United States now do some or all of their own painting.

Power tool manufacturers, who used to be patronized only by professional carpenters and the like, now do as much as half of their business with the amateur.

Sales of do-it-yourself books and magazines have jumped 100 percent to 300 percent in the last two years.

Before the Second World War only a courageous fourth of the people who bought homes would dare to paper a wall. Today about 60 percent have done it, and professional paper hangers are being forced from the wall to more promising employment.

Roughly $7 million worth of these tools left power counters last year—at about $1.75 each—about 25 percent of them to amateurs.

The figures on home heating and plumbing installed — the finishing to be done by the buyer. And they report there is a lively market for this kind of house.

About 30 million American workers make most of their own and their children's clothes.

There's high cost in having things done by experts. As one economist put it, "It doesn't make much sense for a $100-a-week shoe salesman to hire a $150-a-week carpenter to build a bookcase."

Families are getting larger, too, and homes smaller, so it becomes a test of the homebuyer's ingenuity to fit his family and its belongings into his house.

Nowadays, too, its easier to do things yourself. Power has been added to the lawn mower, the saw the drill and the floor waxer.

Probing deeper, psychologists say there are better reasons for the boom.

They say, for example, that with the pressures of war, stiff bonus and high taxes upon him, a man tends to turn away from all these worries and to home where he can relax over a power saw or disc sander.

And if he's an office worker who uses his mind rather than his muscles, he sometimes feels guilty and thinks he ought to be working with his hands as an outlet for energy.

And, according to some sociologists, the husband has been losing his authority around the house. To achieve some status by announcing he's about to build a swing for the kids or a new coffee table for his wife's living room.

No matter what the reasons, it isn't unlikely to be lazy any more. In almost any neighborhood the man who crawls out of the couch for an afternoon nap is likely to be held up to ridicule by his wife, looked down on by his children, and considered a ne'er-do-well by the neighbors.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the best trained dogs I ever saw, and a mongrel, is a perfect gentleman in all respects, utterly devoted to his master and aware of his every wish in a most unselfish fashion. No more devoted master ever respected a dog. Their understanding of each other is mutual.

"Your dog," I said to him, "never have ever understanding can do in the perfect training of animals."

"No, it was a pea shooter," said my friend modestly.

"A what?"

"A pea shooter," he explained. "Only I don't let the beans out of it. When this dog was old enough to start training I gave him the use of a pea shooter. It was around Halloween, I remember, and pea shooters were in season. I also got a pound of ordinary white beans. I then took the dog out into the garden. And when I said come, he either came, or I let fly with a bean. It was the same. The beans didn't hurt him. They merely startled him, and the dog came. It was a mysterious powers with which his master, he thought, I called him. And he did not instantly alert to my command, pfft, he got a bean on his britches. If he misbehaved in any fashion, pfft! After a few days of elementary training, I trained him to heel, and walk belatedly on my left side, and to respect my every rear, if he strayed away from that rank and station, pfft! If he was so disorderly as to leave my side and run after another dog, pfft! And he came promptly back. In a matter of a very few weeks, without any shouting, raising, scolding, or public disturbance of any kind, I had established a most admirable little pfft, my dog and I came to a perfect understanding of each other.

"By which I mean he perfectly understood me.

"Now, he is three years old, and a gentleman of the old school if ever there was one, sometimes take the pea shooter out of my desk, and the two of us sit and smile at it."

Love and understanding, he says may work in the training of children, but pea educationists are unlikely to agree. But he thinks school teachers should be equipped with pea shooters, if they want men as good as his dog.

Canadians Emigrating

(Fort William Times-Journal)

While 44,400 persons emigrated from the United Kingdom to Canada during the year 1952, the movement was not one sided. It will come as a mild surprise to a great number of Canadians that 17,600 persons left Canada than 7,600 Canadians went to the United Kingdom to live.

No doubt a proportion of those who left Canada went to their lives in their own country. On the other hand Britain went over to work of their liking. There are opportunities in Great Britain, just as there are in Canada, but there is a large number of us believe that ours is the home of opportunities.

Here's a logical whoopee making the rounds in Washington: A rabbit running full speed through the woods was hailed by a squirrel. "What are you running from, Rabbit?" asked the squirrel. "Hunters!" the rabbit replied. "He's after the kangaroos." "But you aren't a kangaroo," said the squirrel. "I know it," shouted the rabbit, still running, "but I can't prove it."

THE CALCIUM DEPOSIT OBSESSION

In recent years many doctors have published their observations on the subject of painful conditions such as "periarticular calcific tendinitis," "subacromial bursitis," "calcification of subacromial bursa," "brachial neuritis," and "explain "rheumatism of shoulder."

DR. Brady

Now, before you begin yawning about your bursitis or calcium deposit in or around your shoulder or other joint, I insist on telling you about the calcium deposit in my subdeltoid bursa.

It seems that a one-man wrecked wiper was good enough for me and I developed bursitis in the right shoulder worting the timber in the rain driving to the west coast. By gum they couldn't load me up with enough gadgets. Suffice to say my shoulder hurt plenty for weeks. But with a few hospitalization therapy treatments and passive active manipulations and exercises the shoulder got well with virtually no crippling.

About a year later, driving to the east coast in a big 12-cylinder car, we saw an approaching storm wavering from one side of the road to the other. We pulled over to the side as far as we could but still he ported his helm at us. We were hit square on the beam. Had to leave our car in the ditch and finish our journey by train. The light coupe that wrecked us was so little damaged that the driver, who by then was awake, continued his journey when he explained that he had been driving all night and had fallen asleep at the wheel.

I netted a fracture of the left shoulder. The X-ray film of the right shoulder (made for comparison) showed a calcium deposit in the subdeltoid bursa.

For all I know or care the calcium deposit may still be there. It goes to show that such deposit of calcium, or calcification of the tissue, is secondary, not primary a causative. It occurred in consequence of the irritation, injury, strain or inflammation in the bursa about the joint. If it were the cause of the painful condition my shoulder would have been lame and not functionally normal.

Now I don't really believe all doctors who are preoccupied with the "danger" of getting too much calcium and vitamin D and decry the use of milk are satisfied that calcium or calcium deposits in the arteries, in the joints and bursae are necessarily their ignorance of pathology.

Honestly, I'd rather not pursue the matter here. I've cut my name-calling and other reprehensible practices. I do not hurt anybody's feelings. But I'm confident or'as you might say, amateurs that in my physician or medical authority can or will accept the theory that I have said about calcification or "calcium deposits."

CHECK YOUR BIBICAL I.Q.

The great French apologist Voltaire once said that the Bible would be extinct book within a few decades after the French Revolution. The Genevan Bible was printed many years used, in the printing of their Bibles, the same printing press which printed the Bible, and made his prediction. The Bible is and year after year continues to be the world's best seller. It is most widely read and deeply revered book in the world.

Why?

Entirely apart from its sacred character, the Bible is the most wonderful book that was ever put together. It is wise, literate, and beautifully written. It is the basis of the world's best literature, and practically all the ethical concepts by which humanity is guided. For the believer, however, its value derives from its being the verytable Word of God. The Most High speaks to His people in its pages.

Some years ago, a prominent author and playwright began, quite by accident, to read portions of the Bible. He was soon overcome by its beauty, its wonderful content and charms that he, one of the most widely educated men in the world had known nothing about the greatest book ever written. His book, The Bible Treasury, now a best seller was about the Book nobody knows, and the another about the Man nobody knows.

Freedom of the Press

What precisely is meant by that familiar phrase, 'freedom of the press'?

Fundamentally it is not a special privilege reserved for newspaper publishers. It is rather a phase of the much larger freedom of the people to speak their minds openly and without fear. The press claims no right which should not belong to every citizen in a democracy. But freedom of the press is an all-important part of this larger freedom because, under modern conditions, the press is the principal agency by which the ordinary person makes that information he needs to judge the actions of his rulers and make up his mind on public affairs. Without newspapers, or with only gagged and blindfolded ones, he is in the dark, and helpless. An unfettered press is therefore one of the essential bulwarks of a democratic nation.

If any proof be needed, it is supplied by the record of the totalitarian dictatorships which have arisen in the twentieth century. Rigid control of all sources of public information, and especially of newspapers, was the cornerstone on which all these regimes—Nazi, Fascist and Communist alike—were founded. Without it, they could hardly have lasted for more than a few months. This is why they could have arisen only in countries which had never known any course they chose. The calamities of our age, its fear and insecurity, stem in no small measure from the simple fact that, at critical periods, great sections of the earth's population have been prevented by their rulers from learning the real news of the world.

These examples should provide a warning against any attempt, by governments or by private interests, to restrict the essential freedom of the press. A free people must stand on guard against not only open and direct attacks but also against more insidious encroachments. Nominal freedom is not enough. The only truly free press is one which can record the news faithfully and comment on it frankly, without fear of direct or indirect punishment. Neither the press nor the public is safe with anything less than this.

All liberty, of course, involves obligations. That of a free newspaper is to be truly free. It must strive to be thorough, accurate and unbiased in its reporting, sincere and thoughtful in its editorials, and resistant to all outside pressure. It must be both cautious and bold—cautious until it knows all the facts, bold when it is sure of its ground. It must, above all, be inspired by devotion to the public welfare as its staff understand it.

Such a newspaper is worthy of the privileges which the free peoples of the world have traditionally granted to their press. Such a newspaper is also the best guardian of the liberties of the people.

Maroney Brothers Set Pace In Trenton's Soap Box Derby

The Maroney brothers of Middleton Park zoomed home with three coveted awards Monday, when they undisputedly, other small fry racing enthusiasts in the Trenton Centennial Soap Box Derby.

At the wheel of the "Green Hornet", a sleek 79 3-4 inch racer, Carmen Maroney sped down Dufferin Street hill to the finish line a winner by an easy ten feet to capture the Grand Championship award. The twelve-year-old freckle faced champion was rewarded for his effort when he received a trophy donated by the Diamond Construction and Engineering Co., of Belleville, presented the annual competition in Trenton and District Soap Box Derbies. Carmen was the lucky owner to receive the silver cup put up this year for annual competition.

A second and individual cup was won by Carney when he placed in the 10 to 12 year class. Runner-up in this class was Terry Alexander, who also received one of the individual trophies inscribed with the words "Trenton Centennial 1953 Soap Box Derby."

Michael Maroney, eight-year-old brother of Carney, sped home in the "Green Hornet" to win the 7 to 9 year old class. Three times a winner, the "Green Hornet" with its long slim nose and streamlined body was the envy of the two Maroney brothers. The flight construction featured coupler covering and a new type window screening, painted grey, for the grille. Its spare was strategically able to the soap box racing wheels in the event and Michael borrowed from the older brother, Gordon, a third-place winner in Cobourg's Soap Box Derby in 1948.

Monday was the first contest for Michael and Carney who intend next year to make it a two car racer, "Kato," to go with the "Green Hornet."

Both boys are students of Alf Chief Marshal Brandner School and are sons of Pt/S and Mrs. C. P. Maroney, of 24B McGill Ave., where they have resided for the past year.

Runner-up to Michael in the 7 to 9-year class was Gary Whitney. Robert Kenney placed first, followed by David Hall in the 10 to 12-year class. All first and second place winners received individual cups and in addition were awarded spading red crash helmets donated by McPherson Tire Sales of Trenton.

First Child in Celebration Week 'Is Born to Air Force Couple

(By NORMA LEE)

TRENTON. — "Master Centennial—new born son of Group Captain and Mrs. C. H. Greenway —was barely five minutes old, when the clock in Trenton's post office struck midnight to tell Centennial celebrants that the first day of birthday celebrations were now complete.

Gordon Nelson Greenway's arrival into the world on June 29 at 11:55 p.m., not only supplied a link with Trenton's past history, but it also gave the one hundred-year-old town her first second century son.

Trenton's newest son is the great grandson of the late Samuel S. Young, wholesale grocer, who lived here until 1907. Mrs. Greenway's mother, Mrs. Neils Mills, of Hamilton, is the former Nelda Young, granddaughter of Samuel Young. Until 1943, Mrs. Mills owned a cottage at The Grove, on Carrying Place Road, when Mrs. Greenway spent many summer holidays with her parents and met her husband, Group Captain Greenway, of Training Command Headquarters.

Mrs. S. Young was a first cousin of Bill Ireland, former mayor of Trenton, past president of the Trenton Old Boys' Hospital Board and prominent in political circles.

The J. H. Sills house on Victoria Avenue was originally built and owned by Mr. Young.

A distinguished visitor during the Trenton Centennial celebrations is the baby's grandmother, Mrs. Nelda Mills, who is visiting with friends at The Grove.

"Master Centennial" weighed in at the Trenton Memorial Hospital at six pounds nine ounces. His mother is a former Sgt. in the RCAF Station, Trenton.

A silver inscribed silver cup was presented to Gordon Nelson's parents by Mr. A. C. Twiddy, donor of the gift.

Wins Bicycle Prize

As "Master Centennial" lay in his crib unconcerned about the excitement in the world around him, a slightly older generation than himself prepared to celebrate "Young Trenton Day".

Twelve-year-old Stuart Mac-Gillivray was celebrating his new found fortune of $5.00 which he received for the best decorated bicycle in town. As Stuart was pushing his winning bicycle up to the winner's platform, a few of the one hundred candles atop a gaily decorated cake resting on top of the bicycle carrier, tumbled over. The hardly-edible cake complete with flour, sugar and water pink icing sprinkled with coconut and topped with the candles and an artificial flower. On front of the bike a carefully printed notice expressed the bike rider's feelings for the party. It read "Happy Birthday Trenton". The contest was interfered with pink and white crepe paper and flying streamers, birthday greeting sung from the saddle and prancing steed, the bike's carrier.

Judy Kidd was also celebrating with her winnings which she received as the best dressed girls' bicycle. Wearing a red cowboy outfit, Judy rode her prize-winning bicycle decorated in a patriotic theme with red, white and blue predominating, around the judging-stand, followed by second place winner, Jean Carter and third place winner, Sandra Kidd.

Second and third prize winners in the boys' division held to the patriotic colors of Coronation Year 1953, Nine-year-old William Ireland, of Trenton, won first place and six-year-old Douglas Morrison was awarded third prize by Lt. F. E. Gardner, master of ceremonies for "Young Trenton Day" activities.

Freckle Contest

A non-winner, Teddy Howe, of RR 5 Trenton, was very proud of his decorated bicycle and stated "it didn't cost me any money to decorate it." It was typical of many entries which were decorated with newspapers. Braids of Queen Anne lace passed and flapped gaily in the breeze as Teddy Howe drove off a happy loser in a colorful competition on wheels.

"Sheckles for Freckles" aptly described the freckle-faced contest which followed the bicycle competitions at Trenton's band stand in front of Bayshore Park. As an interested audience stood by to the stand prompted by his friends, he told Lt. Gardner that he was going to buy lotion to get rid of his crop of freckles. When the judges handed down their decision, twelve-year-old Gary Long had enough money to buy a bottle of lotion and to have change left over. Bobby Shenael, with a full set of freckles, was awarded second place. Four-year-old Donna Hamilton, whose long golden tresses blended momentarily from the freckles on her little face, was the third place winner.

Prizes for the bicycle and freckle contest were: Mrs. R. Black, Mrs. Everett Walt, Mrs. J. Sharpe, Miss Anne Turnbull and Mrs. M. Hyatt.

The first issue passed of Bayshore Park, a patrol from the 3rd, Trenton Boy Scout Troop were busily selling the little paper to the mattresses. In an area six feet by three feet, Patrol Leader Doug Cottrell, Scouts Paul Walling, Doug Jordan and Garner Kliesch worr erected their loom. It consisted of five stakes at one end with twelve with a cross bar at the other end. Rope was strung between the crossbar and the five stakes and after interlacing with straw the patrol had a mattress two inches thick.

Rondeaumettes Requested to Repeat Pleasing Program of Favorite Songs

TRENTON — The Trenton Rondeaumettes will return for a repeat performance during the Trenton Centennial as a result of their pleasing performance given on Monday night the open air band stand in front of Bayshore Park.

Twenty-five male and female voices, blending in lovely harmony before an audience of 4,000, received an ovation, which resulted in a request for their second appearance at the band stand on Thursday at 8.15 p.m.

The audience thrilled in their lively rendition of "Skip to My Lou" were moved by "The Lord's Prayer," and reluctantly moved off as the band warmed up its program came to a close with "Deep Purple," "The Theme Song" and finally "The Queen."

The half-hour program of 12 songs was accompanied by Miss Odetta O'Keefe, Air Chief Marshal Brandner School musical director, and Miss Marie MacDonald at the piano.

Voices heard, under the direction of Mr. William Long, were those of Mrs. T. Army, Red Cross Co-operate In Bringing News

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—Two instances of the army and Red Cross co-operating to bring a touch of humanity to war have come to light.

In one, a United States army sergeant whose wife and children live in Sarnia, Ont., worried about their safety when news reached the theatre that a tornado had struck the city.

The American Red Cross operates a home service to check through for soldiers in such cases. Sgt. Bartholomew J. Wells of the 24th Infantry Division, stationed west of the A.R.C. field worker at 25th US infantry division headquarters and asked for a check to be made on the Sarnia home of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Speers, his wife's parents.

The Red Cross man, however, knew that the Canadian Red Cross hasn't such a service.

But the Canadian brigade was alongside at the time and got in touch with Maj. Murray MacDonald of Edmonton and Ottawa, the brigade major, had asked if he could help.

The brigade is connected to Ottawa by telprinter and MacDonald asked army headquarters if they would do what they could. Ottawa got busy.

Within three days MacDonald was able to have Wells informed that his wife and children were well, there was no damage to their home, and no need to worry.

Another Case

In the other instance the A.R.C., the Korean Red Cross, the Canadian Red Cross and the Canadian Army co-operated to meet the wish of a Toronto father and mother that they break the news on their son's grave on the first anniversary of his death.

Pte. Kenneth Sidney Brooks was killed just over a year ago while serving with the 1st battalion, The Royal Canadian Regiment, on his second tour of duty in Korea. Fragments from an exploding mortar bomb killed him barely a week after he returned to the theatre. He was buried in the U.N. cemetery at Pusan.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. K. R. Brooks, Toronto, asked Dr. W. Stuart Stanbury, Canadian Red Cross commissioner, if a wreath could be placed. He forwarded their request to the A.R.C. and in turn to the 25th Canadian Field Dressing Station which obtained a wreath.

A spokesman of Lord Strathcona's Horse was homeward-bound through Pusan at the time and the Red Cross asked if Strathcona's invited the Strathconas to place the wreath.

The Straths chose a fellow Torontonian, Capt. W. F. Ward, to carry out the parents' wish. Choosing their own fallen in Korea, the Strathconas included Brooks in their prayers.

Found $330 in Piano

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)— G. Kidd found an old piano he had bought for $50 from an elderly widow and found $330 in bills tucked away in the inside. The widow couldn't remember how the money got there. Mr. Kindy gave it back to her.

John Christie To Hang July 15

LONDON (Reuters)—Mass murderer John Christie will be executed in Pentonville prison July 15, it was announced today.

Christie, who confessed that he murdered at least seven women in his squalid London apartment, was convicted specifically last Thursday for killing his wife.

Monday it was announced that Christie would not appeal in the courts against the sentence. But his legal advisers said they would instruct Mr. Lane, home secretary to recommend the royal prerogative of mercy, commuting the penalty to life imprisonment.

Russia Accused Of 'Murderous' Repression'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's two top labor bodies Monday jointly accused Russia of "murderous repression" of workers' rights in the recent riots in East Germany.

A strong protest against the use of Russian military tanks to attack and put down the East German strikes was sent to the Soviet ambassador.

The letter was signed by Percy Bengough, president of the 100,000-member Trades and Labor Congress, and Aaron Usher, president of the 370,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor.

An ordinary official said he had not seen the letter. He declined to say what would be done with it if and when it was received.

The letter said in part:

"We have been profoundly shocked by the actions of your government in sending troops and tanks to East Germany in order to suppress the legitimate protests of the workers in that area. For the Soviet government, which has the right to exercise authority over the workers in that area. For the Soviet government, which has consistently and ruthlessly violated the rights of the working class to organize and defend its rights, have collaborated in the ruthless suppression of the workers of East Germany is, in our opinion, worthy of the strongest condemnation.

"The Soviet government has one use of Soviet guns and tanks, against workers asserting their confessional right to strike as free men. We are aghast at the execution of workers before Soviet firing squads and the inhumane holding, as hostages, of the wives and children of striking workers with threat of reprisals against their future life and limbs. Rarely in the annals of labor history has such murderous repression been visited upon the right of working-class protest."

Bodies of Two Missing Van Doos Are Recovered

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—The bodies of two Van Doos missing since a patrol the night of May 29 have been recovered from the bank of a stream in no man's land.

The bodies are those of 21-year-old Sgt. J. A. G. Desjardins of Winnipeg, and Pte. H. J. Morenz of Pointe-Gatineau, Que.

Desjardins led an 11-man patrol from the 3rd battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, trying to intercept and capture a prisoner.

Only four of his men returned, bringing with them a story of a patrol that criss-crossed all night through no man's land looking for the enemy, finally moving to a point 1,500 yards south of its assigned area.

There it was trapped between a Chinese outpost and a Chinese patrol trailing behind them. When last seen Desjardins was shooting it out, a pistol in his right hand, a stick in his left.

Taken For Sandbags

It had been hoped that the missing had been captured.

This assumption stemmed when two outlines in the stream, at first thought to be sandbags, were seen by soldiers who patrolled near them to be sandbags that had faded downstream.

During recent rains, however, the objects were raised again in the view of observers who constantly watch no man's land and enemy territory through powerful binoculars.

They again appeared to be bodies. Lt.-Col. Antoine Poulin, the CO, sent out a small patrol to check. They were bodies, apparently now washed onto the bank.

Identification is in parts. It might have placed them there and booby-trapped them. Poulin ordered the bodies watched and had the area carefully gone over.

Finally the night of June 21 a strong patrol under 2nd Lieut. R. Ritter of Cap des Rosiers, Que., was sent out to bring them in.

ACTRESS LEAVES SPOUSE

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actress Eleanor Parker said Monday she has separated from her husband, Director Bert Friedlob. "Our difficulties are personal ones," she said through a studio spokesman. "We have tried to solve them but we do not think it possible."

LIBERAL-HOUSING

Referring to charges by government supporters that this would drive the Communists underground, Mr. Low said most of them are, underground now.

Saying Fewer Down

Mr. Low said family allowances are a good thing financial management of the economy by the Liberal government resulted in a decline in the buying power of the country. The result was "that every child by 1953-53 was suffering a reduction of purchasing power to the extent of $21.47 a year."

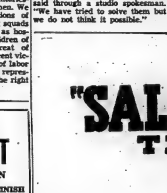
The Social Credit leader introduced his wife, the first time he and his campaign that a political leader's wife has entered the lists. Mrs. Low said Social Credit aims at an economic system to finance consumption.

The present economy was designed to finance production. Through issuing purchasing power to the people, Social Credit would help balance production and consumption.

Mr. Low said it is "high time" that new financial and economic policies were introduced into this country "and it costs nothing" to go into the Canadian dollar and remove its purchasing power from when social-security measures are provided, they will accomplish their full purpose.

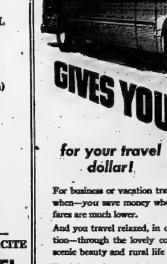
Must be Done Claim

"We Social Creditors commit ourselves with energy and conviction to the job of restoring the purchasing power of the Canadian dollar. It can be done and it must be done."



In Dauphin, Mr. Garson said: M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, "assumes that many of the other public men in admitting that his proposals will add substantially to our tax burdens.

". . . Mr. Drew with his usual mastery vagueness, is promising much of what Mr. Coldwell promises but at the same time is including a $500,000,000 per year tax cut."



At Prince Albert, Sask., John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of the last Commons, said there has been "an apparent concerted effort to indulge in personal attacks" on Mr. Drew.

"The endeavor to liquidate all political opponents by calling personalities is not in keeping with the best traditions of public life."

He said in a national radio address the Liberal government has "all but achieved a police state power." Through the Emergency Powers Act, the Liberals can "grant themselves above the constitution."

Brides-Elect Feted By Double Shower

An attractive double bridal miscellaneous shower was held recently at the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. O'Connor, Bleecker Avenue, when about 50 friends of Miss Jean Baldwin, of the Bell Telephone staff, and Miss Constance Reid, of the staff of Queen Victoria School, gathered to honor them on their approaching marriages.

The hostesses were Mrs. E. M. O'Connor and the Misses Ann Martin and Helen Snider.

The brides-to-be were seated beneath the archway where two large decorated umbrellas, in which the gifts were placed, and balloons, filled with confetti, completed the decorations.

The tea table was charmingly appointed with a hand-crocheted cloth centred by a bride's cake, flanked by pink tapers in silver holders, while on the mantel and throughout the attractive living room were bouquets of fragrant pink and white peonies and pink roses.

Presiding at the silver service were Mrs. Gordon Reid and Mrs. Earl Rathbun.

Those served included the Misses Arleen Smith, Ann Martin, Helen Snider, Reverend Alyea and Mrs. Murphy.

The highlight of the evening was a mock wedding, directed by Miss Helen Salman, which created much merriment and did greatly to the happiness of the occasion.

MODEL DIVORCEE'S ACTOR

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Keenan Wynn's second wife got a divorce Monday, testifying that he was too friendly with his first wife, Evie, who left him to marry Van Johnson. Rhoda Betty Wynn, 27-year-old model, got a Mexican decree last year but her counsel advised that she also get a California divorce.

Mrs. T. Casgrain Top Woman Member of CCF

MONTREAL (CP)—Mrs. Therese Casgrain, 55-year-old Montreal grandmother, is one of the party's top women members although she joined the party only five years ago.

In those five years she has become leader of the Quebec section of the CCF and now is a party candidate for the second time.

Mrs. Casgrain, handsome and grey-haired, joined the CCF because, she said, the party had a "positive approach" to social questions which matched her opinions formed in 20 years of championing women's rights.

Her first political contest was in 1945 as an independent Liberal candidate for the Charlevoix-Saguenay seat in the Commons which her husband, the late Mr. Justice Casgrain, had represented on his appointment to the Quebec Superior Court. Her father, Sir Rodolphe Forget, had earlier held the same seat for 13 years as a Conservative.

Mrs. Casgrain's first campaign as a CCF candidate was in the 1952 Quebec provincial election, when she lost in Montreal-Verdun constituency. The present campaign she is a candidate in Laval-Two Mountains-Cartier constituency in Montreal.

First Woman Leader

Her election in 1951 as the CCF leader in Quebec made her the first woman to head a political party in the province.

She has had other "firsts." As president of the League for Women's Rights she led the fight to get the franchise for Quebec women in 1940 and helped bring about legislation the following year which allows women to practise law in Quebec.

It was Mrs. Casgrain, too, who helped make sure that federal family allowance cheques were made payable to mothers—not fathers—in Quebec. When the first cheques were to be paid, it was rumored that fathers would get the cheques in the province. Mrs. Casgrain led a three-week campaign and organized a flood of protests to Ottawa. When the cheques came out—later than those for the rest of Canada—they went to the mothers.

A fluent speaker in English, French and Italian, she has served on the Quebec labor minimum wage board and the wartime prices and trade board. She is an executive of the Canadian Welfare Council.

Mountain View School Presents Gift to Teacher

Closing day exercises were held at Mountain View School on Friday. At noon, a picnic lunch with pie and ice cream, was enjoyed by all.

Miss M. Huff presented prizes to the following, Faye Adams for the highest percentage in the school, 92; to Pauline Morris and Bobby Morris, Hedger Sistema and Bennie Sistema for the best attendance.

Pauline Morris read an address to Miss Huff, and on behalf of the pupils, Betty Ellen Sprague presented her with a lovely necklace and earring set.

All joined in wishing Miss Huff a happy holiday and are looking forward to her return in September.

Chatterton's W. Institute Discusses Canada's Foods

The June meeting of the Chatterton Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Ben Bleecker with an attendance of 13. The president opened the meeting and conducted the business. The convener was Mrs. Leonard Prest.

Current Events were given by Mrs. Charlie Prest. The motto was: "Seed Time and Harvest Shall Not Cease." The convener reminded in her comments on the motto: "Seed time and harvest shall not cease", that this is one of God's promises and they do not fail if there is faith enough to believe them. How often one acts as though all depended upon themselves, and so take all the glory.

Pays Tribute

Mrs. Prest, in opening the meeting on the subject "Agriculture", paid tribute to the beloved Queen in the following manner: As this is the year of the Coronation and this the very month, it seems fitting that homage should be paid to the gracious Queen of the British Commonwealth now that the day of Coronation has made her the sovereign.

As one followed the Coronation ceremony on radio and television, and later varieties in the Maritimes, are famous everywhere. There are apples in every province.

From rhubarb, in early spring, to a species of cranberries grown far north, nearly to the Arctic circle, Canada's fruit rims the arc found this side of the equator.

These, too, are processed, canned, frozen, dried, till all surpluses can be stored for future use.

The fish and seafoods, eggs, nuts, honey, game for the hunter, maple syrup and possibly many more must not be overlooked. There has been built up an inexhaustible array of food in Canada. There it is—now what is done with it all?

Food Uses

The rest of the paper dealt with the use made of all this food. It took the form of a discussion with such questions being asked the members as follows:

Does Canada use all this food, do you think?

What is done with part of it? With all the surplus why is there starvation in China, India, the Far East and Greece?

What are the reasons that surplus foods of Canada cannot get to lands where there is famine?

These are some of the reasons: Difficulties of shipping; dangerous water, submarines; lack of merchant ships, owing to wartime lack of merchant marines; high duties; too much differences in the rate of currency; railway and steamship rates too high.

To all this the answer is a free distribution of foods all over the world was "free trade", and that will have to come about through world agreement. United Nations will get to it in time.

A demonstration of "Salads" by Mrs. Ben Bleecker was held.

Miss Evelyn Bleecker and Mrs. Don Bleecker favored with two duets.

After the meeting closed bountiful refreshments were served by the hostess.

Women Nation's Spenders Says Liberal Leader

OTTAWA (CP)—Mrs. C. J. Kenbree, a Halifax housewife who is president of the National Federation of Liberal Women, has a housewife's practical approach to the question of women in politics.

"All women should be interested in politics," she said recently, "because women are the nation's spenders. If they're not interested in their own business, what will they be interested in?" Mrs. Kenbree, 30-year-old mother of three grown-up children, has been associated with politics in the Maritimes for about 20 years but she also has a wide interest in educational and social work. Her husband is with the national harbors board in Halifax.

An able public speaker, she has addressed many women's meetings in Eastern Canada since she was elected in 1952 to head the national organization of Liberal women, a group with a membership of more than 3,000 in 10 provincial federations and some 300 local clubs.

She considers her political activities simply an extension of her normal interests.

"Governments are like homes," she says. "The home is a joint partnership and I think government should be too."

Mrs. Kenbree was active with the St. John Ambulance Association and the Halifax Navy League Hostel during the Second World War and was awarded the Order of St. John, nursing sister, for her work.

She has just finished a three-year term on the Halifax school board, was city playgrounds commissioner for two years and is director of the Halifax County Vocational School.

She held office in county and provincial women's Liberal groups for a number of years. Then in 1947 when the national federation was reorganized she became its national treasurer. Three years later she became vice-president and last year received an acclamation as national president.

PLAINFIELD W.M.S.-W.A.

The June meeting of the W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Treverton and Mrs. Charles Treverton with an attendance of 17 members and three visitors. Mrs. Fred Hall opened the meeting. Mrs. Carnet Denyes taking charge of the worship service.

Mrs. Garfield Hall read "The Parable of the Talents" from the 25th chapter of Matthew and Mrs. Garnet Denyes gave a splendid paper on "How to Pray and Improving Our Talents."

Plans were made for a quilting and dinner in the hall, July 8. The treasurer reported $81.82 having been raised this year. Mrs. Stanley Hazzard gave a reading on Community Friendship.

Mrs. Clayton Hall was group leader for the day and gave a reading "In an African Christian Village". Readings were also given by Mrs. Charles Treverton and Mrs. Fred Hall.

Offering amounted to $4.86 and there were two new members.

W.A. Meeting

The W.A. meeting followed with Mrs. Harry Roblin in the chair. Scripture was read by Mrs. Wes. Bradshaw. Mrs. Garfield Hall read a report which had been prepared by Mrs. Charles Beatty of the morning session of the W.A. annual meeting held in Tweed, recently.

Mrs. Clarence Platt gave a report of the afternoon session, both being much enjoyed. Roll call was answered by 17 members. Collection amounted to $2.25. One member contributed to the birthday box.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses and Mrs. Clayton Hall's group; a social half hour being spent.

BROKE SON'S LEGS

CHICAGO (AP)—Mrs. Thelma Hoffman, 30, was charged with aggravated assault and battery Monday in the beating of her 19-year old son who was found in a ditch with both legs broken and other serious injuries. Police said Mrs. Hoffman admitted beating the boy "because he had stolen candy from other children and did not do well in school."

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Mother Left Them Money—Father Won't Give It Up

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Fourteen years ago my mother died, leaving ten thousand dollars in her safety deposit box with a note giving instructions as to how she wished this sum to be divided. My Father was to receive four thousand dollars, and my sister and I each to receive three thousand, the money to be given to my sister and me when we became of age, which was less than six months after her death.

After all these years, our father is still holding this money. He says he will give it to us when he thinks we need it, and keeps reminding us that we are indebted to him for raising me. He is retired and financially secure, having income from both property investments and savings.

I am a licensed nursery school teacher, and if I had the money my mother intended me to have, I could buy property and start my own school. My sister has been told by her children that if she leaves a drunken and abusive husband, and needs her share of the money for herself and four young children. Under present circumstances, she and the children do not even have sufficient food to eat, yet my father says he is sure anyone would agree that he should keep our money.

What do you think we can do about this? — M.Z.

Dear M.Z.: I cannot undertake to speak on such a matter from a legal point of view, but offhand it would seem to me that if your mother left no legal document, such as a will, that was carried out in accordance with the proper procedure at the time of her death, there would be little you could do about this matter. Since your father has the money in his own hands, and presumably also, either has your mother's interest note still in his possession or has destroyed it, I am afraid your sister and you are not in a very sound position to support a claim for this money. The thought occurs to me, also, that some of this property investment from which your father gets his present income may represent the money left you by your mother. In other words, he may well have already spent the money.

However, the obvious thing to do is to consult a competent lawyer and follow his advice. If you don't know how to find a good lawyer, look up the office of the Legal Aid Society in your city and ask them what you should do.

Don't Put Tee Definitely, Tee Early!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17, and will enter my last year of high school next fall. For the last half year of school I went steady with a boy in my class and he has often told me that he hopes we will continue to feel as we do now about each other, so that we may eventually marry.

Do you think we are too young to plan for such a future now?

Pat

Dear Pat: It does no harm to talk about possible eventual marriage with this boy, but don't be too surprised or too upset if you find yourselves losing interest in each other's love before time to set a wedding date. That's what is most likely to happen, since normal teen-agers like yourselves fall in and out of "love" relatively often before they are old enough, and wise enough, to make the right choice of a marital mate.

If you would simply be content to look upon this chap as a congenial friend whose company you enjoy, and not get too serious about him, it would be the best and happiest thing you could do.

First They Were Two Then They Were Seven

By Mary Moore

Every member of this family is bitten by the canning bug; they cannot curb their impulses to invite.

When your week's work is done, it seems normal and natural to crave more company. So I phoned my sisters and invited them over for dinner with Pete and me. A minute later the phone rang. It was Pete calling from downtown to say he'd invited Thorny for dinner and that they would be home in a half hour.

That brought me up with a start. Could I stretch what I had planned for four to feed five? "I better could"—so quote Bygraduate Dorothy.

I did some mental gymnastics and decided to make hot raisin muffins as an 'extender' (see recipe below). It worked.

But before they were in the oven Peter and Thorny arrived and guess what?—the phone rang. This time it was Marjorie phoning from the nurses' residence to say she was coming home for dinner—and bringing Irma!

At this point my sisters walked in so we sat down and laughed together then with a breathe started our assembly-line routine.

I'd made a medium-sized potato salad so all I had to do was chop it bigger with cabbage, cucumber, green pepper and olives. Peachy was in charge of a platter containing a pressed veal loaf. It was her job to garnish it prettily.

I had eight little beets on cooking, so washed the leaves and cooked them. About one inch of the bottom of the stems was still on the beets so I left them on, cleverly peeling the skin off and sliced the beets length-wise through the stems, in halves. I made Harvard sauce. The glopped green were set in a bridge of the stems dish, halved beets on top, cut side up (very pretty too), Harvard sauce over all. A good beet-stretching trick.

For four of us we were to have had individual fruit salads, but they were too fussy to make for so many, so I switched to a fruit cup. This I started with a can of Mandarin oranges, 2 sliced bananas, sections from 2 grapefruits. Then I started scouring around for extenders. In the refrigerator I found about 1 cup of stewed rhubarb. I dumped that in the bowl. In the cupboard I found 1-2 jarful of mint shredded fine—mmmh. Is it weird.

Now there's like a joke in our house that is hard to explain: If you make something that is sort of nondescript and it needs a glamorous name to give it some distinction we call it "Hoyale" or "Wenroe" or "Ho's servin'." This fruit cup mixture with some mental reservations regarding that coconut and rhubarb—and with a deadpan expression—waiting for comments that I knew would break out.

When all the dessert dishes were served I was very tasting them Pete quietly observed "Ambrosia Ho's" (sotto) doubt. Mother's" choked, and my sisters howled—but they had all had their little joke they insisted it was good—silly in fact. You can do what you like, but don't remember, we'll never get anywhere today on just something different once in a while.

Emergency Raisin Muffins

Sift some flour and measure 2 cups. Sift the sifter in the mixing bowl. Put in it the 2 cups sifted flour, 1-4 cup sugar, 2 heaping baking powder and 1-2 teaspoon salt. Sift these together into bowl. Add 1-4 cup soft shortening, 1 egg and 1 cup milk and beat like mad until the batter is smooth. Butter the muffin tins—this amount makes 12—and fill them 2-3 full. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 20 or 25 minutes. Yield: 1 cup raisins when I added the liquids. Chopped dates, candied cherries, blueberries are all good, especially the blueberries when the fresh ones drift by.

I'll admit I was glad I had those husky young men to carry the remnants of food and all of the dishes from the garden where we ate—and to wash that stack of dishes. I just sat down on a bench with coffee with my buddies, so I did.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. BEECKMAN

Questions From The Bride's Mother

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter's wedding is to be in church, but nothing elaborate.

(1) Please tell me where I sit in the church.

(2) When should I arrive at the church?

(3) Is it proper to have the bride's mother thank the usher, or is this the best man's duty?

(4) How is the receiving-line formed? Is the bride's father included?

(5) Where do the bride's parents and the groom's parents sit at the reception, which is to be held in a hotel? — S

(1) You, the bride's mother, sit in the first pew on the left of the aisle. (The groom's mother and father, since they are the guests of honor at the wedding, sit in the first pew on the right of the aisle.

(2) You should arrive about fifteen minutes before the ceremony hour . . . not later than ten minutes before. You are, you know, the last person to be seated when the beginning of the processional.

(3) The best man usually proposes the first toast, to the "bride and groom."

(4) You, as hostess, stand first in the receiving-line, to greet the guests; then (in the place decided on) your husband, the host; then (unless the bride's father is the groom's father; the groom, the bride (at the right of the groom), the maid of honor, the bride's mother, the bride; last, the bridesmaids, in the optional order of the bride's father and the groom's father stand to the line . . . very often they prefer to mingle with the guests, particularly the bride's father, as host.)

(5) You, the hostess, have at your right the groom's father who is the groom guest of honor. Your husband the host has at his right the groom's mother, who is the woman guest of honor at the wedding.

Grown-To-Be Does Not Give Article

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How do you answer to the following question, to settle a "heated discussion": Is it ever correct for the prospective groom to furnish any of the articles of the prospective bride's personal trousseau?

Hi! None of these personal articles should be furnished by the groom-to-be. His responsibility about such items begins after the wedding!

Pat Thy Fee Extra Service

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Next month I am going to take an overnight train trip with my fiancé. Since I will need quite a bit of extra help (with carrying luggage, heading bottles, and so forth) I would like to have your advice as to what would be the proper tip for the porter. Also when do I tip . . . at the beginning of the trip, or when I arrive at my destination?

A.L.

The minimum tip to the porter would be a dollar . . . more if you ask for a good deal of service, if he gives willing service (as he undoubtedly will) and if you can afford it. Tips are generally given at the end of the trip.

Women of Moose Install Officers

On Thursday evening the Women of the Moose, Belleville Chapter, 625, held its installation meeting in the Moose hall.

Three candidates were balloted on: Ian Lake, Maudie Farnsworth and Ray Parsons, with the ballot favorable, sponsored by regent's station. These were initiated into the defending circle.

Senior Regent Mary Peoples congratulated Marg. Mallette for bringing her friends into the chapter. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Recorder Nellie Scrymgeour, and were certified correct.

Senior Regent Phyllis Kennedy of Brockville chapter, sent a telegram expressing congratulations to the incoming officers.

A thank-you letter was received from secretary George Moss-Ontario Loyal Order of Moose, 1004, thanking the ladies of the Moose for drapes and cleaning of the hall. A letter was also received from former Deputy Grand Regent Alice McKaigle Kitchener, congratulating the retiring officers on a successful year, and wishing good luck to the new officers.

Senior Regent Mary Peoples spoke on "Duties of Chairman" and hoped all would strive for Friendship Degree.

Co-worker Lillian Osborne gave report on proceeds made on quill and turned money into the treasury.

Ticket was drawn by Ida Lake and won by Florence Blakey, of Port Hope. Lillian received the heartiest of thanks from the Sr. Regent and co-workers.

Chairman Marie Thrasher assisted installing officer, Gladys Hitch to present installing officer: Installing regent, Lena Consell; installing chaplain, Selina Isles and pianist, Elsie Soules, at the altar where they received the sign of courtesy from the co-workers. They were then presented to the senior regent's station.

Officers Installed

Junior grand regent Mary People thanked co-workers who had worked faithfully during the year.

Names Chairmen

Sr. Regt. Ruth Mintz thanked all co-workers who had voted and elected her as senior regent promising to do all she could not only to make it interesting, but a happy one. She named her new chairmen for the year as follows:

July, officers' night, Sr. Regt. Ruth Mintz; August, alumni, Lucella Bull; September, publicity, Irene Kaiser; October, sick and heart, Luella Downs; November, library, Frances Cassidy; December, Moosehaven, Marie Thrasher; January, child care, Irene Kaiser; February, ritual, Marg. Mallette; March, social service, Lena Consel; April, homemaking, Madge Bailey; May, hospital, Lena Consel; June, membership, Mabel Moon; friendship, Selina Isles; degree chapter, Mary Van Dusen; captain of the degree team, Gladys Ritch.

Installing chairman, Marie Thrasher brought the installation program to a close. Installing guide Gladys Hitch and elected guide Marg Mallette presented retiring officers and escorts at the altar where they received gifts for their faithful duty throughout the year.

Previous to the meeting Junior Grand Regt. Mary Peoples and committee had prepared a bountiful supper for the installation with table all decked out prettily in white tablecloths, vases of summer flowers and gay umbrella favors.

The co-workers tendered their heartiest thanks to Mary for not only the lovely supper but for working hard to make the year so successful.

Foxboro W.I. to Hold Home Talent Show

The Women's Institute of Foxboro are sponsoring a home talent show, entitled, "On Stage, Canada," at the Foxboro school grounds on Thursday and Friday, of this week. Local artists, who are giving of their talents and time, free of charge, will be from Belleville and the Foxboro community.

The show will take the form of musical minstrel and amateur contest, the winners to be chosen by the audience vote, will receive gift bonds as prizes. Winners of the amateur contest and those of the Tiny Tots popularity contest will be announced at the Friday evening performance of the show.

MOIRA W.I.

The monthly meeting of the Moira W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. George Foster with a small attendance.

The president Mrs: Ken Thompson opened the meeting in the usual way. This being "Grandmothers' Meeting" the roll call was answered with a "Grandmother's Cure."

Much business was discussed and several letters were read by the secretary, Mrs. Nelson Welsh and the president then presented the past president Mrs. G. Thompson and the secretary, Mrs. Nelson Welsh, with pins in appreciation of their services in the past, for which they both expressed their thanks.

The president took charge of the program in the absence of the convener, Mrs. Don McIntyre. The highlights of the W.I. convention held at Tweed were read by Mrs. George Foster and Beade Holbert. A reading was given by Mrs. Twaid, "Seeds." Also a reading by Mrs. Blake Ketcheson "Grandmother's Old Arm Chair" Mrs. Nelson Welsh sang a solo "In a Golden Coach," and "Queen Elizabeth."

A display of Grandmother's treasures was enjoyed.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

The July meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. M. Vandervoort.

Fashion Flashes

The pet of Summer dance dress fabrics seems to be printed nylon net. It appears in every collection of fine-drawn, frilly all-over print of fuchsia flowers and green leaves, on white nylon net, is pieced from shoulder to hem, save for a broad midriff section which is plain. The bodice has a low, square neck and draped shoulder straps.

A beauty of a cover-up agent for dark cottons is a short bolero of fine-drawn black and white denim, made with a high-rising collar and short sleeves.

An improvement in the sheath, so say many women, is that the newest versions have short sleeves, instead of set at the natural shoul-

ARRESTS IN MOROCCO

RABAT, French Morocco (CP)—Thirty-eight persons have been arrested following the discovery of an alleged secret nationalist organization here, Agence France-Presse reported today. The agency said the underground organization had been run by the nationalist Istiqlal party since the Casablanca riots of December, 1952.

Good topping for one of those splashy, colorful, printed, woven or knitted sweaters. Summer shirts is a black cotton knit sweater, high in back and with a V dipping to the waist in front, and long, tight sleeves. Very smart and should be good for Spring and Autumn.

Easing of the line of the fashionably slim suit is noted as trends for the coming season start to crystallize. Violet and pink mixture tweed, in a very light weight, is used for a slim suit that achieves a softened line through the jacket, which is blazer-like, with a contour belt beneath which are two large patch pockets. Skirt is slim.

REDUCE MURDER VERDICT

VANCOUVER (CP)—Court of appeal Monday reduced to manslaughter the verdict against Glen Donald Smith, 23-year-old army deserter who had been sentenced to hang for a murder in Whitehorse, Yukon territory, and sentenced him to 15 years in penitentiary. Smith was charged with the fatal shooting last April 21 of Ralph Carson, Whitehorse taxi driver.

Everything All Set for Visit Of World's Greatest Circus

The Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, aboard its three long streamlined trains of double-length steel cars will arrive in Belleville Wednesday morning, coming from Kingston, over the C.N.R.

Immediately following the arrival, thousands of long colorful cargo will be unloaded from the Big Show's all-new-coated stock cars, flats and sleepers. Nine herds of elephants, hundreds of wild animals and horses, 775 cages, wagons, floats and cavalcades of other big top paraphernalia, together with a motor fleet of tractors, trucks, jeeps and caterpillars, will head for the show grounds located on Sidney St. There, two performances of the world's largest tent, comfortably air-ventilated, begin at 2.15 and 8.15 p.m. with the doors open at 1 and 7 p.m.

The 1953 program of The Greatest Show on Earth is highlighted by numerous new European, high-tension, thrill acts, both aerial and ground; by the beauty and amazing scope of its liberty and school horse displays, and by the lavish color and dazzling opulence of its four, new super-spectacles, all produced and scored by John Ringling North and staged by Richard Barstow.

Child Wonder Performs

This year, in a social contradistinction to Gargantua and other heavyweights of the Circus Hall of Fame, tiny Master Mistin, Jr., the Big Show's latest sensation, weighing but 30 pounds and standing but 36 inches in height, sets the pace and mood with a new and more potent entertainment elixir to excite the eye and ear.

Truthfully billed as the "Child Wonder of the World," this little 6-year-old boy musical prodigy made his official debut with a Belgian circus in Brussels, his home town, at the unbelievable age of 3.

Since then Mistin, the world's youngest and greatest xylophone virtuoso, has astounded circus crowds throughout Europe and in Asia and Africa.

This fabulous, pint-sized wonder, still wearing his baby teeth and standing on a chair in order to reach the keys of his xylophone, was discovered by Mr. North in Stockholm last summer.

Under the direction of his father, a Belgian music professor of note, Mistin practices from one to two hours daily. The youngster speaks five languages fluently. While he is an undisputed genius, there is like millions of other impish tots when he is not in the spotlight. He loves toys, ice cream and soda pop and hates to go to bed.

John Ringling North, in his latest quest for sensational new foreign features, was extraordinarily successful. In addition to the fantastic Mistin Mistin, he has engaged stellar acts and artists he had been after for three or four years on former overseas visits.

"Candy Land," the top-shelf, overall dazzler, is designed in blinding gorgeousness, rainbow colors and droll fantasies to delight children of all ages; and 2000 people and animals in dream ballets, trappings and floats, enact the Mother Goose nursery rhyme and Huck Finn nostalgic tales, makes it magically memorable in excitement and bewildering beauty. It is a tidal wave of transcendent splendor.

Next comes "Minnehaha," spectacularly eye-filling aerial ballet, with 60 alluring Indian princesses in rhythmic flights aloft, a dancing rainbow in the sky starring lovely Stella del Oro, Spain's adorable Infanta of Balanced Flight.

And now flashes by the stands "Derby Day Hoorymoon", the big show's brilliant equestrian, super-salvo salute to the Kentucky racing classic with the Carvalier of the Century, Roberto de Vasconcellos, the greatest dressage rider on earth.

Climaxing visually, audibly and emotionally, spectacles and performance, is the grand finale, "A Salute to Canada," a rousing resounding, resplendent red, white and blue tribute to this sensitive front the Greatest Show on Earth.

Europe's Top Horseman Heads Big Circus Display

Matador of Portugal, first Personage of Europe, Roberto de Vasconcellos has returned to the American scene as head of the new equestrian displays of the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, coming to Belleville, Wednesday, July 1st.

Wiry Vasconcellos are his two famous haute ecole and dressage mounts, Rondeau and Dynamite.

In every city in the land hosts of horse lovers will welcome the return of Vasconcellos, whose boyhood basic training featured bull fighting from the saddle, in the Portuguese mounted tradition. Gored in a Lisbon arena, Roberto leaped overnight to even greater fame as a high school and dressage horseman and rider, aided by his renowned godfather, Portugal's beloved equestrian, the Count of Fontalvo, amateur bull fighting hero.

Roberta de Vasconcellos was Europe's most famous horseman of when Ringling North first starred him with The Greatest Show on Earth several years ago. As such he still reigns, riding the "two best known dressage steeds in the world, Dynamite and Hercules, horses equally proficient in exciting and difficult step-and-world renowned dressage rider dance routines, thanks to Roberta's incomparable training and understanding.

Climaxing the presents Dynamite at the afternoon shows and Hercules at night. He does this to assure the public (especially discriminating horsemen) a peak Vasconcellos exhibition at each performance. This sense of obligation to the public comes naturally to Roberta, who is the son of the late Pedro de Vasconcellos, premier of Portugal under King Manuel. Roberto seldom uses his father's famous Quinta del Barca.

This year's edition of the Big Show presents four surpassingly beautiful new extravaganzas, including a magnificent $300,000 musical super-spectacle, in which 700 humans, bedecked people and animals participate.

With scores of sensational European attractions never before on this continent, performances will be given at 2.15 and 8.15 p.m., in the world's largest tent, comfortably air-ventilated.

Doors to the vast menagerie, featuring the celebrated young gorillas, Gargantua the Second and Mile Toto, will open at 1 and 7.

Woman Found Dead

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Canadian-born stenographer employed by central intelligence agency, a hush-hush arm of the United States government, was found dead Monday in her apartment.

Police said Mrs. Jean Lawrence, 42, had been dead several hours. Her unclothed body was found on the bedroom floor after an apartment employee entered to find out why she hadn't shown up for work. A telephone receiver was in one hand.

The police report said there were no signs of violence.

Mrs. Lawrence was a widow. A native of Ottawa, she became a United States citizen in 1934.

2,000 Scouts Meet at Ottawa For Jamboree

CONNAUGHT RANGES, South March, Ont. (CP)—These rolling rifle ranges near Ottawa will rock with the excitement of more than 2,000 Boy Scouts July 18 as they prepare for a week of outdoor fun at the second world jamboree.

The boys—all first-class scouts and between 14 and 18 years old—come from all across Canada. An international touch will be added by scouts from the United States, Cuba and Central America. The first jamboree was held here in 1949. Plans for this one started immediately followed the first.

The jamboree will be officially opened July 30 by Governor-General Vincent Massey in his capacity as Chief Scout for Canada.

Mr. Massey will make a tour of the camp and see the boys at work. Ministers Chef

These big ranges will take on the appearance of a miniature city for the jamboree.

In addition to a daily newspaper written by the scouts and printed by an Ottawa company, there will be a post office, a bank, a 20-bed hospital with a full-time staff, three canteens, a police force, church services for all denominations, a sports arena complete with bleacher seats for the public and many other facilities.

Maj.-Gen. D. C. Spry, chief executive commissioner of the Boy Scouts Association, said in an interview the jamboree organization stress higher standards and quality. He said higher standards have increased the boy scout population in Canada to 150,000 from $2,000 in 1945.

Gen. Spry said the jamboree would also give the boys a chance to know boys of other provinces and would enable the scouts to see the national capital. A full program has been outlined for the week including swimming periods and tours of Ottawa.

No matter what province a scout comes from, he pays no more than $60 return train fare to attend the jamboree. Scouts from nearby provinces pay their own train fare and an additional $10 to help scouts from more distant provinces.

Acting on the old saying that an army marches on its stomach, some $30,000 will be spent on food for the week. In all some 60,000 meals will be cooked by the scouts themselves over charcoal fires.

They should have plenty to eat. Already ordered are bread, 11,440 loaves; buns, 8,800; pastries 15,400; cereals, 2,640 boxes; potatoes 3.5 tons; fresh meats 5,610 pounds; canned meats 3,230 tins; vegetables 14,300 pounds; eggs 2,017 dozen, and milk 17,600 quarts.

FISH JUMPS INTO BOAT

OTTAWA (CP)—A three-foot, 15-pound sturgeon needed no urging from Hedley Spencer. It jumped into his boat from the Ottawa river Monday, breaking the youngster's leg and damaging the motor. The fish apparently was trying to scrape off half a dozen leeches from its sides by rubbing against the 13-foot boat. John rowed ashore with his prize.

PC STANDARD-BEARER

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP)—Eugene King, 56, Dover township farmer, Monday night was chosen Progressive Conservative candidate for Kent in the May 10 election. W. Watson, Harwich township, was also nominated but withdrew. The seat now is held by Blake Huffman, Liberal, who is seeking reelection.

TERRIFIC IN "THE CLOWN" AT BELLE THEATRE

The upper echelon brass at M.G.M. may know what they're doing, this writer fears they're missing a bet in billing the new Red Skelton film "The Clown" opening today at the Belle Theatre, as a hilarious comedy.

There's some slam-bang Skelton-style comedy in it, and some wonderfully new routines. But this movie is so much more than just another comedy. It has heart, and depth, and tears beyond it laughter. It may mark a new style for Skelton, who may have to ease up on his rambunctious routines since his recent operation. If so, it can only be hoped that the rest of his material will be as good. But "The Clown" seems to be one of those all-too rare blends of drama and comedy and deep human tenderness. There's an O. Henry poignancy about it.

Skelton has the title role as a one-great comedian who has been hitting the bottle and the skids with sickening regularity. His one consolation is his little son, exquisitely played by Tim Considine. The latter, serious for his years, drags him out of saloons, puts him to bed, wangles auditions and jobs for him, and serves as combination manager, guardian and nurse. And does it all with the weary, heartbreak sense of responsibility of children of which dolls his obvious devotion to his stumbledum dad.

Ziegfeld days—he just picks up and goes quietly on as a comedian. These two make a wonderfully sensitive team you won't soon forget.

Jane Greer, as Skelton's divorced wife and the boy's mother, now is able to give him all the love he ages, and seeks to win the lad's love. This produces a crisis in the strange father-son relationship which makes for a lump-in-the-throat finale.

The old zany Skelton is in there pitching for several comedy sequences, but the new Skelton, warm, rich and human, makes you forget the gagster. Knowing his weakness and hating it and aware of the lad's pelting on his boy, he staggers under the twin burdens of self-loathing and failure.

Tops in the comedy sequences shows Red, making a comeback on TV, as a lush in a topsy-turvey room, where one wall is the floor and furnishings hang accordingly.

"The Clown" is something new and different in movies, something very heart-warming and special. Put this one on your list of shows to see.

AT THE DRIVE-IN

"Flame of Araby"

Bedouin sheik Jeff Chandler, chasing a wild horse, has a run-in with princess Maureen O'Hara, after he saves her life. Couriers come to tell O'Hara that her father, the king, has been poisoned. Before he dies, he makes Prince Maxwell Reed promise he will never sanction O'Hara marrying one of the Barbarossas a warlike tribe. However, Reed makes a deal with Barbarossa Leo Chaney and Buddy Baer, and forces O'Hara to accept. Chandler, meanwhile, continues after the horse, with O'Hara also wanting the steed to beat the Barbarossas, since she has promised to marry the winner of the big race coming up. Eventually Chandler gets it, and O'Hara tries to sell him idea of riding it for her. He refuses. O'Hara is then captured by the Barbarossas, but Chandler arrives in time for the big race, and wins it, freeing the king. Leo Baer, the barossas kill Reed, and O'Hara slips away and eventually clinches with Chandler.

Slump-Ridden Milwaukee Braves, New York Yanks Seek Solace On Road

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

BASEBALL!

"There has been a bit of unfair criticism of the Regent Junior baseball team," smiled Coach "Red" Carson, "and it was to be expected, because a lot of the critics, most of 'em of the armchair type, expected us to come out with a team that could equal if not beat the New York Yankees."

"And," added the sorrel-topped mentor of the kids, "the way the Yankees are playing today I believe our young buckaroos could give 'em quite a tussle at that."

There is a lot in what 'Red' says. Let's get back to the start of this junior baseball business and maybe a lot of misunderstanding will be cleared up.

It is now common knowledge what happened to senior baseball in this city. We had one of the best heroes, figuratively speaking, lined up to represent this city in the Baseball Stakes, but we had no barn to put him in. Pasture, if was proved, was available later.

Malcolm Robb, Jack Carson went "all out" to not only line up a strong representative team but travelled far afield, after the so-called Border League started to fall by the wayside, in an effort to form a loop that would give senior baseball a lease of life. Their efforts failed.

There was, in this city, a sprinkling of players who were of junior age and a lot of younkers who had come up through the minor leagues, juveniles, for whom you can thank the Recreation Commission for its policy of development of young players.

Bryson Reid, one of the city's most consistent sponsors, had an idea. He recruited the services of "Red" Carson, well known sportsman of that ilk, and together, They got behind the idea before the "demise" of the senior situation, and the Belleville Baseball Association agreed, that a junior baseball team could be formed and in fact, it was suggested at a meeting of the B.B.A. that the team be organized and seek entry in the South Hastings Baseball League.

In the meantime the Bay of Quinte Baseball League, an honored organization of the old days, was revived but the "brass" aped the outlined plan and called it the "Belleville District Baseball League." Reid and Carson were quick to pop in an entry.

The kids have won but two of their league starts, but "Red," who has spent a lot of time and effort on his charges, feels the youngsters are gaining important experience with every game and at the season's end will make themselves felt.

He has drawn the youngsters from all parts of the district and is gradually moulding them into a team that should eventually give a good account of itself.

With no alibis in mind, it must be admitted the youngsters haven't had their share of the breaks, and have dropped decisions which were heartbreakers. Mainly through lack of experience but heads high, just the same.

Their "game of the year" pops up here next Saturday night when they meet the league-leading Bloomfield Silver Ribbons, a starry aggregation that has five senior players on its line-up—pitcher Ken Ross, a Yorn Geyer, Jack Wardaugh, "Mimeles" Mowatt, Bobby Bunten and Keith MacDonald.

The kids are out to win this one, if it takes everything they've got. They're working their heads off this week in an effort to show the import-packed, and especially the Ribboners' brand of imports, Bloomfield squad, that while they might be big league stuff in the village of peas, corn and tomatoes, not terrifing Ed Baxter's brand of pork and beans, they're just another baseball team when they hit the city. It should be quite a tilt. Remember, Saturday night at the CNR Recreation Park starting 8.30. And there might be a workout tussle here Friday evening with the Frince Edward Combines.

HORRORS!

Don't look now kiddies, but there'll be hellzapoppin' here come Friday evening. Just because Whipper Billy Watson and Yvon Robert (if you're Quebecois, you pronounce that "Robaire") won the tag-team championship of Canada from the rugged pair of ruffians, Dick Raines and Lou the Plummer, they think this city as the venue of the first defence of their title.

And look who they stack up against. None other than our bosom pal? from Australia, Fred Atkins, and the villainous Nanji Singh, the Horrible Hindu from Hindustan. Dunne, but it looks as though the Whip-Yvon duo has blitzen off a tough chunk in their start as champions and whether they can chew it remains to be seen. Mr. H'Atkins, who to get himself in a fighting fury just needs to seek the services of a waiter, he's that arrsery, and Nanje, the Banje from Karachi, are just about the toughest combination to come down the rassle' pike in many a moon.

But they don't "phase" the Whip and Robaire, b'gar. The "Dyin" from Australia, who doesn't resemble one, and Nanjo the Slaghing Sikh, may get their come-uppance Friday, but brother what a brawl 'twill be before anyone gurgles "uncle."

'There Aint No Joy' in Gotham, As 'Dem Bums' Bash Bombers Before Huge Home-Town Mob

By REN FELEGAR
Associated Press Sport Writer

The slump-ridden Milwaukee Braves and New York Yankees packed up their troubles in their old kit bags and hit the road today hunting for something to smile about.

The two clubs, deep in their longest losing streaks of the year, misplaced their winning touch in their own ballyards and they were hoping a change of scenery would make a radical difference. The Yankees went to Boston for three games starting tonight. The Braves headed for Cincinnati where they open a three-game stand with a twilight-night twin bill tonight.

Both teams have dropped seven straight. The sudden slump has also has proved considerably more costly to the immediate standing of the Braves than the Yankees.

Milwaukee skidded from first place in the National League, which it held by 2½ games over Brooklyn, to second, a full game behind the Dodgers. The Braves also lost 3½ games of their edge over third-place St. Louis.

The Yankees are still in first place in the American League by six games.

The Yankees can't even win on the exhibition circuit. Before their New York's largest crowd of the season, 56,136, they were humiliated and overpowered by Brooklyn 9-0, Monday night.

In the only regular game played in either league the lowly Chicago Cubs of the National League edged the Cardinals 3-2 on the six-hit pitching of lefty Paul Minner.

The Cardinals had figured to gain half a game on the idle Braves and Dodgers but Minner kept them well under control and didn't yield a run until Ray Jablonski homered with the bases empty in the eighth. Red Schoendienst of the Cards' pack also doubled to run his total hits for the season to 101.

The loss put the Cards 2½ games back of Brooklyn and 1½ behind Milwaukee.

The Cubs continue their three-game series in St. Louis tonight.

The Dodgers, who wound up their western trip with four straight victories including three over Milwaukee after a dismal start, open at Pittsburgh.

Cleveland, fresh from three straight over the Yankees, meets the last-place Detroit Tigers in six games starting tonight in Detroit. After that the Detroit is to visit Chicago, winding up with a 4th of July doubleheader.

The White Sox are at home for single games tonight and Wednesday against the Red Sox. Both are they attempt to extend their seven-game winning streak.

Washington and Philadelphia renew their battle for fifth place at Philadelphia.

Talbot Figures Both Major Leagues Are Beginning to Pose Flag Problem

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Anyone who tries anybody to figure out what's going on in the big leagues at this time, much less what might occur before the two races end, is threatened with softening of the brain tissues, but here we go again.

The Yankees are finding out at long last what happens to a club, no matter how gaudy it might otherwise, when such a great shortstop as Phil Rizzuto begins to slip over the hill. The little scooter is not a well man, and he's a knee which troubles him.

We recall that manager Paul Richards of Chicago White Sox said in the spring at Phoenix that he would be surprised if the Yanks about 20 games this season with Rizzuto on the loose. This would be a very interesting experiment, Paul said. "I don't wish Rizzuto any bad luck but you can tell Stengel I hope he has to get along without him."

In the National League if we had to make a choice right now, I'd choose the Brooklyn Dodgers. A man high in the baseball hierarchy, one who must remain neutral for the record, told friends recently the best thing that could happen to baseball this year would be an all-western world series. Maybe he was being prophetic.

And a Boston writer who was in Milwaukee to watch the Braves lose their seven straight said he was going right back home to mow the grass at Braves Field there and generally make ready for the prodigals' return.

Bisons Maintain Hot Pace As Royals Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons apparently were not fooling when they set their eyes on the International League leadership. Besides the backing of some good pitchers, the Herd showed Monday night that they also have the hitting power.

The Bisons overcame an early eight-run Syracuse lead in a rousing slugfest at Buffalo to nip the Chiefs 13-12 in 10 innings. Jake Crawford hit safely with one down and the bases loaded in the big 10th, for the win.

The pace-setting Montreal Royals downed the tail-end Springfield Cubs 4-1 at Montreal behind the neat five-hit pitching of Letty Ken Lehman, as Buffalo split in 2 1/3 games behind the leaders.

Lehman fanned five and walked one in registering his eighth win against four setbacks. Springfield's Dave Hillman also allowed only five hits, but he walked five.

Buffalo scored six runs in the first inning on a pair of second innings.

Jack Wallaesa, the loop's home run king, smacked his 13th round-tripper to score two mates in the sixth. Eddie Kazak stroked a solo home in the big ninth with one on to clinch the rally.

Bill Voiselle, the fifth Buffalo hurler who worked the 10th, gained the victory.

Baltimore's Dick Starr hurled a three-hitter to win 3-0 and drove in runs as the Orioles defeated Ottawa Athletics 11-1 in two tilts at the Canadian capital. Starr struck out six. Stan Jok paced the Orioles with a homer and double in the Baltimore 10th inning rally.

Toronto Maple Leafs routed Rochester Red Wings 10-3 before more than 7,000 fans in the second largest Toronto crowd of the season. This was the Leafs' eighth win in their last 10 games.

Toronto's Lew Morton hit his seventh homer of the season, while Mike Goliat, with two singles and a triple, socked home three runs.

Jim Pisoni went the distance for his sixth win against one loss.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitcher Paul Minner, Chicago Cubs, gave up six hits and walked only one in winning his sixth start in the season over St. Louis Cardinals.

Batter: Red Schoendienst, St. Louis Cardinals, singled and doubled to run his total hits for the season to 101, the first man in either league to reach 100.

Gagnon, Almond Meet for Title

QUEBEC (CP) — Fernando Gagnon of Quebec defends his Canadian bantamweight title Wednesday night against Vancouver's Stan Almond in a 12-round bout at the Municipal Stadium.

Boxing followers have long talked of the possibility of the match but it just never came off.

Almond, long considered top contender of the Canadian 118-pound crown won the title almost seven years ago, said that when Gagnon was in Canada he was campaigning in Europe and South Africa. Then it was the other way around.

Gagnon was busy last year with two North American featherweight championship fights. He lost both times by decision to Pappy Gault of Spartanburg, S.C.

When Almond finally challenged Gagnon, the Quebecer had not put his title on the line in two years, accepted.

Almond, 28, said he was overweight when he started training two months ago but now is down to lay-off.

"But I had stayed in condition all along and I'll make the weight limit to come in just under 118 pounds."

He was forced to spar with heavyweights as his sudden loss of weights as there were no boxers of his weight around but that made me only strong and I'm in good shape."

Gagnon, also 28, has fully recovered from a leg injury suffered in training which forced postponement of the fight from June 22.

The five-foot, two-inch Frenchman, four inches shorter than Almond, weighed 117¼ Monday. His last fight was about three months ago.

Gagnon, who won the bantamweight crown Aug. 26, 1946, from Eddy Petrin of Montreal, has defended it three times since. His victims have been Frankie Pucci of Toronto, May 17, 1948; Jackie Turner of Vancouver, Aug. 22, 1949, and Claude Mercier of Trois-Rivieres, Que., June 15, 1953.

'Sugar' Henry Will be Back

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruin goalie Sugar Jim Henry Monday wrote coach Lynn Patrick that he expects to be in the Boston nets in the National Hockey League for "a few more years." Thus squelched rumors he might retire.

Henry is spending the off-season at his hunting and fishing lodge, Hockey Haven, which he operates with another goalie, Charlie Rayner of New York Rangers, near Ossoro, Ont.

Henry suffered an ankle injury in the Stanley Cup final series against Montreal Canadiens but he wrote Patrick that it has healed completely.

Pick Cup Team By July 7th

MONTREAL (CP)—Members of Canada's Davis Cup tennis team will be picked by July 7 at the latest, Dr. Georges Leclerc of Montreal, non-playing captain of the team, said Monday.

In an interview, Dr. Leclerc said the team will be picked by a committee that will consider the records of various players.

(The Canadian Press, in a report from Toronto Sunday, erroneously said that a six-man team had been chosen to play for Canada in the Davis Cup matches against Mexico.)

Dr. Leclerc said that in interviews in Toronto he had mentioned the six players he considers to have the best chance to win places on the team.

The six:

Lorne Main of Vancouver and Toronto and Henri Rochon of Montreal, veterans of Davis Cup tennis; Bob Bedard, 22, of Sherbrooke, Que.; Paul Willey, 22, of Vancouver; Lawrence Barclay, 22, Vancouver, and Jim Bentley, 26, Toronto.

Canada meets Mexico in Mexico City in mid-July in North American zone Davis Cup play.

Seek Pro Golf Title

QUEBEC (CP)—A field of 32 golfers will set out next Saturday over the Royal Quebec course in the 36th annual Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship, a 54-hole affair which ends Sunday.

Medal play governs, with 18 holes Saturday and 36 Sunday.

Pat Fletcher, defending champion from Saskatoon, is expected to be on hand.

At least half a dozen CPGA champions, including Stan Leonard of Vancouver, four-time winner, have already entered.

Ontario entrants include Lloyd Tucker of Kitchener Rockway and Bob Barringer of North Bay.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

This column has been, since its origin, dedicated to good sportsmanship. And although horse-racing is an extremely practical business, we can't think there's any fair and sporting event in 1952 than the running of the $50,000 Internationl in Maryland.

That an English-bred horse, flown across the Atlantic, won the race, is beside the point. The quality of the horse and the race was conditioned in the thing that intrigues, and wins admiration.

American horses race on dirt tracks. Flat races on the turf are extremely rare on this continent. But in Britain and Europe, the turf encourages the racing of races are staged on turf courses. And so, to give the foreign horses a fair chance the Maryland race was held on the turf instead of a dirt track. And the start was of a mass affair, principally overseas, instead of from the electrical starting-gate commonly used in America.

How different from the other races of a similar type in other years, in which starters are shipped in from England and France, to race against the cream of American thoroughbreds, but were defeated under conditions strictly American, where the invaders little chance, particularly as in those days, the horses were not even shipped by boat. For the Maryland race, they were flown across.

When in 1923, Papyrus, winner of the Epsom Derby that year was beaten by Zev, the Kentucky Derby victor, in a match race at Belmont, there was some American cheering over what was raised the superiority of United States horses. But to that bred on the other side of the ocean. But experts grudgingly admitted that in the mud which happened to prevail that day, a track condition entirely strange to the British horse, Papyrus wasn't shod properly to combat the treacherous footing. And, as it's been, it's doubtful if he could have won. Papyrus had never before set his dainty hoofs into mud, and that he was improperly shod in the bargain gave him no chance to what was by no means a real test of quality.

Then there was the case of "Spinach" the French racing star Epinard, brought across in 1924, and pitted against America's best horses at a variety of distances under American racing conditions. He ran three times against two or more American horses that represented America's tops at the various distances, and all the races were under American racing conditions.

With the International of 1952, more fair and sporting rules prevailed, designed to place no horse at a disadvantage, nor to give an edge to any. The horses met on equally equal terms, and that, we believe raies the event as one conducted in the spirit of true sportsmanship not excelled in any event of the year, anywhere.

Tigers Nudge Panthers for Top In Intercounty

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Just when Guelph Maple Leafs appeared to have shaken an eight-game losing streak in the Senior Intercounty League, Kitchener Panthers climb dropped another game.

After a 3-4 victory over St. Thomas Elgins Saturday the sixth-place Leafs Monday night lost 8-4 to Galt Terriers. The Terriers now are close behind the Leafs.

Waterloo Hawks moved within a half game of the league-leading Kitchener Panthers with a 5-4 victory over Oshawa Merchants and Brantford Red Sox defeated London Majors 5-3.

Galt bettered three Guelph hurlers for 11 hits and was also helped with nine walks. Starter John Clark was charged with the loss. Oshawa's Jim Hillman limited the second game in as many starts.

Stanley Turowski, 1-24 Jimmy Glen Sloley and Art O'Connor managed two hits apiece for Galt. Sloley, an outfielder making his first start with Galt, socked two doubles. Pete Gray and Jim Bailey drove in his apiece for Guelph.

Waterloo shaved up its eighth straight win with the victory over Oshawa. Ralph Gord Arlen scattered six Oshawa hits. He was in trouble in the second when the home team scored three runs on but a triple play pulled him out of the hole. Al Gerrington, who succeeded Rod Hipplemeyer in the sixth, was the loser.

A pitchers' duel between George Copeland of Brantford and Lorne Osborne of Stratford opened the game at Brantford. Copeland won out. Jim Hallard's homer in the fourth gave London its only run.

One out when Stratford scored was unearned. Both were scored in the second inning when Ron Stokara scored on a hit and Luther Clifford made it home on an error. Word out of St. Thomas is that the Elgins are looking for a new president and vice-president. Harry Jackson, who submitted his resignation last week when stockholders voted for dismissal of team manager Bob Seamish, announced Monday he has definitely resigned.

Alderman Roy Brownlee, the vice-president, announced he also is resigning. Tommy White of London is the new playing manager.

No games are scheduled for tonight but on Wednesday Waterloo is at Kitchener, London at Oshawa and Guelph at Galt for afternoon games. At night London plays at Oshawa again, Galt at St. Thomas and Brantford at Waterloo.

Sport in Brief

YANKS SLUMPED BEFORE

NEW YORK (AP)—Is this the 1928 season all over again?

Just 25 years ago this month New York Yankees were enjoying a 9-game lead over Philadelphia, and blew it.

That's right. On June 28, the Yankees were 3 games ahead of the Athletics. On Sept. 1, the As swept a doubleheader from Boston and the Yankees dropped two games to Washington to deadlock the race. Philadelphia went ahead the next day, winning by more than the Red Sox.

The decisive battles took place Sept. 9 at Yankee Stadium. The Yankees swept the twin bill from Philadelphia 5-0 and 7-3 and went on to win the pennant by 2½ games.

The biggest lead enjoyed by the current Yankees was 13½ games June 21. Since then they have dropped seven in succession and their lead has shrunk to six games over Cleveland and 6½ over third-place Chicago.

"It's difficult to explain how a club that looked so unbeatable only a short time ago can look so terrible now," mulled Yankee manager Casey Stengel. "We're relaxing out there ways. We're not getting the hitting, the fielding and the pitching."

As if they haven't had enough trouble, the Yankees may now have to do without Mickey Mantle for awhile. Mantle pulled a muscle in his left leg trying to beat out an infield grounder in the ninth inning of Sunday's game against Cleveland.

Schoolboy Whips Armand Savoie

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—Ralph Dupas, 17-year-old New Orleans high school boxer, scored a unanimous eight-round decision Monday night over experienced Armand Savoie, gaining a big lightweight contender from Montreal.

Dupas, making his debut against a big-time opponent, took an early lead over the hard-hitting Canadian and had an advantage the rest of the way.

Dupas weighed 136; Savoie, 134½.

Dupas threw and landed more blows than his harder-hitting opponent. Neither fighter was hurt and there were no knockdowns.

Aussie Stars' Defeat Shocks Tennis World

By STERLING SLAPPEY

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Australia, reigning power in world tennis the last three years, lost two of its stars in quarter-final round matches of the Wimbledon tournament Monday. Defeat of No. 2 seeded Ken Rosewall was a shocker.

The 18-year-old big gun of Australia's powerhouse team was whipped by Kurt Nielsen, 23-year-old Dane, an in-and-out player, by scores of 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 6-0, 6-2.

Lewis Hoad, the other 19-year-old Australian, seeded No. 5 in this tournament, was spilled 5-7, 6-4, 6-3, 1-6, 8-6 by second-seeded Vic Seixas of Philadelphia.

In the other quarter-final round matches, Mervyn Rose, the third Australian in the powerful trio, eliminated Art Larsen of San Leandro, Calif., former U.S. champion, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4. Ronald Drobny of Egypt, still weary from last week's exhausting victory, used just enough of his energy to defeat Sven Davidson of Sweden 7-5, 6-4, 6-4.

Wednesday's semi - final round pairings will pit Seixas against Rose and Drobny against Nielsen. The title will be decided Friday.

The defeats of Rosewall and Hoad boosted U.S. Davis Cup hopes greatly.

The unseeded team of Doris Hart, Coral Gables, Fla., and Shirley Fry of Akron, seeded first, defeated Mrs. P. F. Glover of Britain and Mrs. Maria Weiss of Argentina 6-0, 6-0.

Second-seeded Maureen Connolly, San Diego, Calif., and Julie Sampson, Pasadena, Calif., won from Mrs. R. W. Blair, Britain, and Mrs. Harry Hopman, Australia, 6-1, 6-2.

Red Schoendienst Goodman Pace Major Hitters

NEW YORK (AP)—Three former batting champions are running one-two in the batting race in the American League with 1953 hitting race.

Billy Goodman of Boston Red Sox tops batters with a .352 mark, followed by teammate George Kell at .339 and Washington's Mickey Vernon at .328. Figures include Sunday's games.

Goodman, winner of the title in 1950, displaced Vernon as the leader this week as he advanced from second place. Vernon won the crown in 1946 and Kell in 1949.

Red Schoendienst of St. Louis Cards continues to set the National League pace with .344. Jack Robinson of Brooklyn Dodgers retained second with .333 and Cincinnati's Gus Bell moved into third with .322.

Petes Whip Fergus For Second Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Peterborough Trailmen are back from the cellar, leading St. Catharines Athletics in the Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association.

Tuesday night the Trailermen moved into a second-place tie with Toronto-Orillia. West Yorks by defeating Fergus Thistles 10-4. In the only other game, Hamilton Tigers upset the West Yorks 13-10.

Peterborough led all the way with quarter scores of 2-0, 5-1 and 5-1. Nip O'Brien was top scorer for the Petes with three goals. Two each were notched by Roger Smith and Bob Thorpe. Singles went to Lou Nickle, Ross Powless and Harry Wipper.

Fergus counters went to Marlowe Woods, Stan Abbott, Bob Gear and Jay Bill.

Hamilton outplayed the West Yorks all the way. Seven penalties were handed out in the roughest game at Hamilton this season.

Al Dyer led the Hamilton attack with four goals, followed by Barney Welch with three and Bill Rankin with two. Bill Henderson, Bill McLean and Tony Kapala were the other Hamilton scorers.

Jack Kapasky and Frank Pacio scored two goals apiece for the West Yorks. Singletons were picked up by Ken Smith, Hill Timpson, Don McPhail, Steve Kapasky, Joe McNulty and Lou Digby.

Tonight St. Catharines plays at Mimico and on Wednesday Peterborough is at Hamilton.

RANGERS BUY CHRYSTAL

NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Chrystal, 23, of Winnipeg, defenceman with Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, was purchased Monday by New York Rangers of the National Hockey League for an undisclosed sum.

The Rangers optioned defenceman Steve Kraftcheck to Cleveland.

Chrystal was a key man in the Barons' drive to win the championship and playoffs last winter.

England Faces Certain Defeat By Australia

Australian bowlers Monday dismissed Don Kenyon, Len Hutton and Tom Graveney for 47 runs before half-hour and left England 262 runs behind with seven wickets in hand at the close of the day. Australia, helped by Keith Miller's 109, had carried its second innings total to 368 when England went in to bat for the second time.

England gained a slight lead in the first innings—sending British hopes soaring over the week-end. They made 372 runs in reply to Australia's 346.

Fast bowler Ray Lindwall started the English slide in the second innings, getting Kenyon and Hutton—who made 74 runs in the first innings—caught out for a total of six runs. Bill Johnston disposed Graveney at the, wicket and three of England's top batsmen were out for 47 runs for only 19 runs.

Peter Loxton and Willie Watson played carefully and were still batting at the close. But the Australian attack matching victory out of imminent defeat are remote.

SKATING SCHOOL OPENS

GODERICH (CP) — The first Goderich summer skating school opened its nine-week training session Monday. Some 80 skaters from Canada and the United States have enrolled. Seven top-ranking Canadian and U.S. skating professionals are conducting the classes. They are Edi Kraly of Peterborough; Miss Elisa Durro, Woodstock; Otto Gold, Ottawa; Bob O'Connell, Philadelphia; Ed Rushka, Indianapolis; and Eleanor and Lewis Elson, Dublin.

British Cricket

LONDON (Reuters)—In British county cricket, Jim Laker, Surrey off-spin bowler cropped from the English test team this season, took the last three Cambridge University wickets with successive balls Monday.

Cricket close-of-play scores:

Australia 346 and 368, England 372 and 20 for three.

Surrey 284 and 245 for three, Cambridge University 183.

Essex 92 and 339 for three, Kent 188.

Somerset 237 and 196 for eight, Worcestershire 348 for eight declared.

Derbyshire 29 for nine declared, Nottinghamshire 105 and 160 for five.

Oxford University 209 and seven for one, Sussex 358 for seven declared.

Warwickshire 242, Leicestershire 33 and 135 for two.

Middlesex 346, Lancashire 401 for eight.

Yorkshire 218 and 49 for five, Glamorgan 377.

Hampshire 338 and 3 for no wicket, Northamptonshire 304.

Stingy Customers

St. Thomas (CP)—A lot of potatoes at the variety show for the London tornado relief fund Sunday night were "tight-fisted," show organizers said today.

They termed the show a flop and the attendance good. But, the total take was $440.92 "and a bottle cape."

SAUNDERS WINS OVER MACDONALD

HAMILTON (CP)—Danny Saunders of Hamilton Monday night scored a technical knockout over Toronto's Jimmy McDonald when the latter was unable to come out for the fourth round of the match on an eight-count amateur boxing card.

Fans saw one knockout. Al Lagofeldt of Hamilton nailed Kitchener's Conrad Welker to the canvas with a looping left in the first round.

Ian Evans, 138, Hamilton, won a unanimous decision over Eddie Bellugo, 32, Niagara Falls, in a three-rounder.

Auto Industry Spending Plenty of Money on Research

By DAVID E. WILKIE

DETROIT (AP) — The auto industry probably now is spending more money on engineering research than it has at any time in the last quarter-century.

If you are inclined to question this you need only check over the number of "cars of tomorrow" and other experimental units that have been hand-built by the various companies and the many items of refinement under test.

There is scarcely a car manufacturer who has not built one of the "dreamcars." Most of these, of course, never will reach the assembly lines. But many of their components will eventually get into production jobs.

Examples of the cars that will yield something to the assembly lines models of the future are General Motors' Le Sabre; Chrysler's d'Elegance and Ford's experimental XL-500. All are strictly "idea" cars, designed to put new engineering principles and theories. Generally the ideas are too costly to have any popular appeal, although they excite curiosity and the urge to own the best possible car.

Le Sabre has such future potentialities as aluminum body and fiberglass fenders; a 225 horsepower engine; disappearing headlights and built-in automatic wheel jacks.

Ford Dream Car

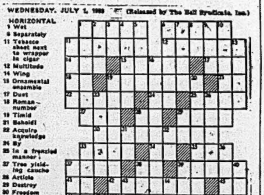
Ford's XL-500 has a scarlet fiberglass body with a roof of glare-proof glass and three separate bumpers, one horizontal and two vertical, to protect the rear section.

Chrysler's d'Elegance has such things as an hydraulically - operated spare-tire mount, flush-type pull-out door handles and other such conceits.

While all this research on new devices is going on the engineering departments also are giving more than normal attention to simplification of may established accessory items like automatic transmissions and power steering.

Simplification, of course, is the first step toward lower manufacturing cost which in turn will bring lower retail prices. Automatic transmissions and power steering are the most popular optional equipment items in the car industry's group of accessories.

The industry is selling just about as many of them as it currently can produce. However, it is aiming at making them standard equipment items as soon as possible. To do this it would likely half cut production costs.



Because its construction is some what less complicated power steering seems most prospect to that goal than automatic transmission.

FACE ASSAULT TRIAL

KITCHENER (CP)—Henry and Sheila Paspchs of Elmira Monday were committed for trial on a charge of assaulting from the death last January of the couple's three-year-old daughter, Glenis.

They were released on bail and will be arraigned in county court

Underground Station

This is the King Street station, one of the downtown stops in Toronto's subway, now under construction and expected to open in February, 1954. The $426,500,000 rapid-transit system—first in Canada — will carry 40,000 persons an hour from downtown Union Station, 4½ miles north to Eglinton Avenue. When the system is completed, surface cars on the city's main thoroughfare—Yonge Street—will be eliminated. — (CP Photo.)

TTC Expects Subway to Cost $58,500,000 to Open in Feb.

By HARRY KINGDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—One of the coolest places in Toronto is Canada's first subway.

Rapid transit system workers say the temperature never varies from between 70 and 80 degrees Fahrenheit, whether surface dwellers are sweltering or shivering.

The city-owned Toronto transportation commission expects its subway to cost a cool $58,500,000 before its turnstiles open to the public in February, 1954.

The concrete tunnels that will carry the trains under crowded downtown streets are complete. More than 70 per cent of the track has been laid and most of the stations are in the final stage of construction.

Cars Expected Soon

First of the 194 English-built cars will arrive in Toronto in July. The fleet will cost about $8,000,000. By the end of 1953, officials expect to see preliminary test runs started.

In full operation, the trains will be able to carry 40,000 persons an hour from downtown Union station 4½ miles north to Eglinton avenue. Trolley buses then will carry "northerners" about two miles further to the city limits.

The whole subway trip is expected to take less than 20 minutes in rush hour.

Surface travellers should save time too. Yonge street—the city's main north-south artery—will be cleared of street-cars when the subway starts rolling. Yonge cars now carry about 12,000 passengers an hour in rush periods—and move an average of six miles an hour.

The constant below-surface temperature makes winter heating unnecessary but above-ground stations will be heated by "off-peak" power.

Rush-Hour Demands

During rush hours the trains will need all the power to carry their thousands of passengers. But between the peaks of demand, some electricity will heat water to warm the stations.

Six of the 22 stations will have entrances directly from stores or office buildings.

The rushing trains will do more than carry passengers—they will also be air pumps. Huge vents have been built into the subway walls at each end of the underground stations. The trains—arriving every 120 minutes—will act as pistons, driving stale air upward and out through steel gratings in the street. As they pass again, the suction will draw fresh air back in.

When the trains stop, big emergency fans will supply fresh air. Other emergency equipment in the tunnels includes doorways from one tunnel to another and lamps that operate automatically on battories in case of a power failure.

Engineers have taken elaborate precautions to prevent accidents. The signal system not only warns the driver to stop with a red light, but automatically stops the train if the driver doesn't.

Automatic Operation

Everything possible is being operated mechanically in the subway. Each passenger sells himself tickets—in the form of cloth-coated tokens—from vending machines. He will pick up his own transfer to surface cars from a rack and have it stamped in a time-and-date machine. He will drop his token into a turnstile slot to let himself onto the platform.

But subway officials have forbidden certain automatic machines. There will be no cigarette, pipe, cigarette and candy. Advertisements on the station platform will be restricted to posters to be hung all manner of goods—somewhere else.

Advertising boards will occupy the pillars in the centre of each station—as far away as possible from the platforms and moustache-drawing children.

"Public Proof"

TTC engineers consider the stations almost "public proof" Glass-lined walls, they say, will be believed to be almost impervious to pen scratches and knife pokes, and easily cleaned of pencilled sanity. Stainless steel hand rails and plastic-faced doors are designed to mark with difficulty and clean quickly. Fluorescent ceiling strainers in the terazzo floors make slipping almost impossible.

Getting past the subway will also be difficult. Each station is marked with its name in large letters along the walls and also by a distinctive color combination. Above-ground, it will be a severe "open cut" sections of the line. Here the walls, formed from the tunnels and run, are ordinary railway-type fences, 10 feet high.

In the tunnel sections, the rails rest on steel plates bolted to the concrete floor. Rubber pads under the plates, sound-insulating material under the lip of the platform and acoustic tile in various sections are designed to reduce the noise to a minimum. Smooth-welded rails eliminate the characteristic clickety-clack of most railways.

More than 1,000,000 bags of cement were used to build the subway and 42,000 tons of reinforcing steel. Structural and rail steel accounted for another 13,850 tons.

Newest College

Carleton College in Ottawa, started in 1942, is Canada's newest university. It was founded when the capital was crowded with young people brought in on government work. The original idea was to give them something to do in the evenings. Before long it was well on its way to becoming a degree-issuing university. Its head is Dr. M. MacOdrum (centre) on the steps of the college with three of the 1,548 students registered last term. — (CP Photo.)

Dr. H. M. Tory Has Habit Of Founding Universities

By DONALD HAWORTH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Carleton College, Canada's newest university, was started 11 years ago when the capital was crowded with young people brought in on government work. The original idea was to give them something to do in the evenings.

But the man with the idea, Dr. H. M. Tory, also had the habit of founding universities. He helped to build the Khaki College in Britain for Canadian services men after the First World War. He founded the University of Alberta and was part founder of the University of British Columbia.

At 78 a man does not change his habits easily and before anyone quite realized what was happening Carleton College was well on the way to becoming a university.

Bergeron Response

Dr. Tory, supported by the Ottawa Association for the Advancement of Learning, began by putting an advertisement in the newspapers and waiting in a high school building one evening after hours for students to roll up.

He expected 100; 779 arrived.

Dr. Tory laughs. Other teachers were hired part-time; by the month, by the week, by the night. Some of the courses cost $10.

And while this makeshift teaching was going on Dr. Tory worked out plans to found a real college for the veterans who would return after the war.

He looked for an assistant, a man who would understand veterans, a man who knew life as well as books. He chose Dr. M. M. MacOdrum.

A B.A. of Dalhousie, M.A. of McGill, PhD of Glasgow, Dr. MacOdrum had been a Presbyterian minister, a newspaper worker, assistant to the president of a big corporation (Dominion Steel and Coal); a teacher at three universities, and on war assignments he had seen many parts of Canada, the United States and Europe.

Important Task

Dr. MacOdrum is 51, heavily-built and forthright. You know he believes it when he says:

"One of the most important tasks of education is to give a zest for living."

When he became president on Dr. Tory's death in 1947 he chose first to establish a school in the humanities; the applied sciences could wait.

"Today," Dr. MacOdrum says, "everybody knows how to do things but doesn't know why he does them. We are trying through the humanities to teach the why.

"The country has too few educated technicians. I would like to see men go on to engineering with an arts degree. In a top administrator what is wanted is sanity, wisdom, balance, appreciation of the human factor. That is what the liberal arts teach."

Notable Progress

Since the present college year just ended 1,545 students were registered, 413 of them working on full-time courses. Carleton is well-housed and has won the right to confer degrees. Students are coming from other countries.

Now the present degrees are in arts, commerce, journalism, and pure science. Initial advanced training is given in engineering, and the college may some time develop its own courses in applied science.

In 1946 there were six graduations—three in journalism, three in public administration. This year there were 123.

Carleton College has continued to develop its larger field among evening students. More than 1,100—61 per cent of them in the public services — attended lectures this year. Fishers and scouts attend for landscape gardening; men of more than 70 turn up for conversational French.

In September the college begins its first post-graduate course in public administration.

Speedy Sprayer For Weeds Along Railway Tracks

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Use of a new type weed and brush sprayer along Canadian National Railways tracks in western Ontario will result in "thousands of dollars savings" a railway official said today.

The sprayer, pot into operation about two weeks ago, will move into Northern Ontario after covering some 2,000 miles of track in this area.

Cutting away of weeds and brush was formerly done manually by scythe. The new sprayer covers a distance of eight feet on both sides of the main line.

Sunday the London-Sarnia main line was sprayed, a task which usually required days.

The sprayer was built by the Aitchem Company at Burlington and leased to the railway. An official said only one other such machine is in use.

South Africa's New Parliament Assembles July 3

CAPETOWN (Reuters) — South Africa's new Parliament with Prime Minister Daniel Malan's re-elected Nationalists now exercising a majority of 29 seats, assembles July 3 for a first session which is expected to renew old controversies over the country's racial problems.

Priority on the government's legislative program must be given to the national budget normally presented in April and postponed for assembly elections this year.

But the Malan government is determined to re-introduce soon its bill designed to transfer colored (mixed blood) voters from the common electoral roll to a separate register.

The bill, part of the Nationalist policy for segregation of whites "colorods," a mixed racial community living mostly in Cape province, to electing a few white legislators to "speak" for them.

An Appeal Court decision ruled the bill invalid in the last Parliament because it did not receive a two-thirds majority vote of the Senate and Assembly in joint session, a requirement of the constitution for altering voting qualifications.

Since the Nationalist party returned to power with more than double its old majority, it feels that it might now well be able to push the bill through "constitutionally" with the help of a dozen or so right-wing members of the opposition United Party to assure a two-thirds approval.

Increasing Exports of Cattle May Cause Shortage of Dairy Products

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Dairy products may be in short supply in the fall as a result of rapidly increasing shipments of dairy cattle to the United States and "too low" prices for secondary milk, Archie Hare, field man for the Ontario Milk Producers' Association, said here today.

Mr. Hare said there probably would be no shortage of milk for domestic use. Farmers get $4.60 a hundredweight for this and supplies generally used for other products may be diverted to the domestic market.

This in turn may mean a lack of secondary milk, which nets farmers only $2.35 under present conditions, and a drop in production of butter, cheese, powdered, evaporated and condensed milk.

Since the lifting of the embargo on cattle shipments to the United States Americans have been buying up Canadian animals in quantity, said Mr. Hare.

Although some are grades, most are purebreds which can cross the border duty free and by pedigree and environment generally are good milk producers.

Four Baptist Church Leaders Jailed by Czechs

LONDON (Reuters)—Four leaders of the Baptist church in Czechoslovakia have been sentenced to prison terms ranging from five to 18 years, a Czech-Czechoslovak news agency, dispatch received in London said Monday night.

It said all pleaded guilty to charges of espionage, treason and fomenting hatred of the Communist regime "under the direction of the World Baptist Union in the United States."

All were deprived of their civil rights and the court ordered confiscation of their property.

They are:

Jan Ricar, president of the Union of Baptists in Czechoslovakia, 8 years.
